Last Winter's Effect on Trees and Shrubs at St. Louis.

The past winter was more disastrous to trees and shrubs around St. Louis, Mo., than any of the past thirty years. At about that time we had a fine lot of Cupressus Lawsoniana (Lawson's cypress) ten to twelve feet high, handsomely developed trees, but all were killed. We had also two Cedrus Libani, two Cedrus Deodara and one Cryptomeria Japonica. These were ten feet high and well established and stood in sheltered positions; but they suffered the same fate, as did also six well established hedges of Buxus sempervirens. Outside of these, trees and shrubbery were left comparatively uninjured, but the past winter was not so careful in the selection of its victims, its attack being made in more of a broadcast way, severely injuring or completely killing many of those which had braved the battle during the last twenty or thirty years. Among these were many of the deutzias, althæas, tamarix, diervillas, calycanthuses, kerrias, rhodotypases, cornuses (especially C. Florida), ligustrums (not L. vulgare) and philadelphuses.

Many of the doubtfully hardy shrubs which have for some years past shown their willingness to remain with us and help to build up a more extensive collection of shrubbery than was generally used, though well mulched in late fall, had to die. Many are struggling hard to-day to make a go of it, but I am afraid they got too hard a chill to survive. Among these are cotoneasters and Crataegus Pyracantha. Ilex opaca was in some cases stripped of its leaves, but is coming again. Our young trees of Fraxinus Americana, six feet high, were killed to the ground, but these are growing vigorously again. White mulberries were killed down in like manner. Eight or nine inches of the late growth of Liquidambar styraciflua, fifty feet high, was killed and their spring growth exhibited great weakness, but the trees now are doing well. Magnolia glauca and M. acuminata were left uninjured, while M. Lennei and M. purpurea were either cut severely or killed completely.

Should one ask why such terrible havoc was made last winter, in all probability everyone would ascribe it to the extremely cold winter. This would undoubtedly be a correct answer. But while we must all believe that every tree and shrub has its own limit of endurance, one is tempted to ask whether special circumstances do not often produce different results. I was very anxious to plant a large quantity of trees and shrubs last fall and watched very anxiously for the maturity of the season's growth and the fall of the leaf; but it seemed to me that they had quite forgotten the winter was very close after them and that they would be caught in the cold wearing their summer clothing, or rather, with soft instead of matured growth and so ready for whatever might come along. The cold came and the result was they were damaged in the fall to so great an extent that it seemed useless to give the protection that many things require after winter has truly set in, so that I am inclined to believe that the cause for such wholesale damage to trees and shrubs during the past fall and winter was partly due to the condition they were in when the severe cold paid its respects to them. JAMES GURNEY.

Hail in the Carnation Belt.

A destructive hail storm has visited that portion of Pennsylvania called the carnation belt, taking in several towns in the lower part of Chester county. The storm, which was most severe at Kennett Square and Unionville, occurred last Wednesday afternoon, August 2. There was high wind, lightning, rain and such a fall of hail as was never seen before by the oldest inhabitants. Hailstones fell that were said to be as large as hen's eggs and some weighed over two ounces. The greenhouses of Joseph Renard, at Unionville, were ruined, the loss being over 5,000 panes of glass.

Thousands of dollars worth of glass was broken in and about Kennett Square. William Swayne lost 3,200 panes. H. & W. Hicks, however, whose houses are a few hundred yards farther north on the same street, were hit but lightly. William Davis, a grape grower on west State street, suffered hundreds of dollars of loss, having his cold grapery crushed and the fall crop of fruit damaged, besides the breakage of about 3,000 lights of glass. The small conservatory at his residence was completely riddled. Opposite to Mr. Davis' property are several carnation houses owned by Edward Swayne, of Wawassett, which are wrecked, and those of Joseph Chambers, at the same place, are also much injured. Charles S. Swayne's handsome plant, "The Slope," which occupies a fine site at Garfield and Linden streets, was practically stripped of glass, fully four-fifths of it crashing before the pelting hail. Isaac Larkin also lost 1000 or 1100 panes, as did Yeatman Brothers, nearby. Charles

B. Harvey and Monroe D. Palmer also lost heavily, the former estimating that 3,000 lights were broken, and the latter's loss is still heavier.

Thompson Brothers, in the valley in New Garden township, say it will require 150 boxes of glass to refit their houses, and Lewis Eastburn, in the same locality, sustained an equally heavy breakage. Chas. Chambers' loss was light.

About the same time a similar storm, but not so severe, caused considerable damage at Burlington and Edgewater Park in New Jersey. L. R. Hancock, of Burlington, was hard hit, while Lukens, of the same place, lost but 150 lights. At Atkinson's, in Edgewater park, about twenty per cent of the glass was broken.

The amount of hail insurance was small, so that the loss will be severe. K.

Some Representative Detroit Stores.

The e are several very fine retail flower stores in Detroit, stores which would be a credit to any city and to any owner. From among the number we have selected three as representative and present herewith reproductions of photographs which give a fair idea of the general excellence of the retail establishments of the city.

J. F. SULLIVAN'S.

Woodward avenue is the leading street in Detroit and Sullivan's is the principal store on the avenue. The trade here is a steady stream and in volume is five times what Mr. Sullivan is able to grow in his nine greenhouses just outside of town. Palms and ferns are shown in the rear of the store and meet with considerable sale. Mrs. Sullivan is in charge of the store and few there are who are closer to their customers or who can execute a wedding or funeral order more deftly.

BRUNO SCHROETER'S.

B. Schroeter has grown grey in the florist business in Detroit. His store at 59 Miami avenue is a model of the type opposed to the gorged effect produced by the crowding seen in many retailers' places. Everything is in the best of taste and high class work appeals to the better kind of patrons. Charles Schroeter is a considerable factor in the success of the store. Mr. Schroeter has 15,000 feet of glass out on Elmwood avenue and grows some cut flowers and most of the plants which are handled in the down town establishment and which are shown in the illustration.

BREITMEYER & SONS'.

Our illustration affords a glimpse from the Breitmeyer conservatories into the retail store at chrysanthemum time. This is a store, standing at the busy corner of Gratiot and Miami avenue, with its glass for plants and decorative stock, which will seldom be found excelled in many larger cities. It will be taken for granted that such a place enjoys a liberal patronage and in point of fact Philip Breitmeyer is able to sell more stock here than his brothers can grow under 100,000 feet of glass at Mt. Clemens. That the appointments and methods are thoroughly up-to-date will be the consensus of opinion when the florists visit the store during convention week.

SOUTHPORT, CONN.—At the invitation of Nellis H. Sherwood the Connecticut Pomological Society spent Wednesday, August 2, at his Sound View Farm. The farm contains many acres of fruits and vegetables besides extensive greenhouses. A picnic dinner was served.

CARNATIONS.

WORK WITH CHEMICAL FERTILIZERS.

With most growers the early part of August is the season when the houses are prepared for planting. In this connection it is hardly necessary to point out the necessity of absolute cleanliness in the houses, as the days of slovenly methods in floriculture are fast becoming memories of the past.

The subject of soils will, however, require attention; it is a subject on which there seems always to be a little room for more knowledge. At the last meeting of the American Carnation Society, Prof. Britton read a paper on "Commercial Fertilizers and Their Relation to Carnations," a resumé of which may not be amiss at this time.

Carnations, as you know, like all other plants, require for their growth and development three chemical substances, nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid. Many other chemical elements are found in the plants, some essential to growth, and others which are unnecessary, but these less important ingredients are usually present in the soil and scarcely need our attention. The three above mentioned fertilizer ingredients are of the utmost importance and form what has been termed, I believe by Dr. Kedsie, the "chemical tripod of floriculture."

Working on the above basis Prof. Britton and Dr. Jenkins, in order to ascertain the quantities of plant food removed from the soil by carnations, grew the plants in a soil of known chemical composition. The soil employed was as nearly sterile as possible; it contained extremely small quantities of potash and phosphoric acid, but no available nitrogen. A series of experiments with this soil was conducted by the addition of chemical fertilizers in various quantities, but it is only in the successful ones that we are especially interested.

The varieties chosen were Wm. Scott, Alaska and Daybreak and the plants were of good size and as nearly alike as possible when benched October 1. During growth all flower stalks were disbudded, leaving only the terminal bud to open. The blooms were gathered about twice a week and were in about the same condition as carnation flowers usually are when picked for market. The plants were pulled out July 1. Beyond the fact that the plants were benched a full month too late in the season they seem to have been handled about the same as by any commercial grower.

The three plots giving the best crops produced an average of twenty-seven blooms per plant on Daybreak and Alaska, and demonstrated the fact that in order to secure a maximum crop there should be in every 100 square feet of bench space the following plant foods:

Nitrate of soda, 3 pounds, 14 ounces.
Dissolved bone black, 1 pound, 1 ounce.
Muriate of potash, 1 pound, 13 ounces.

Two plots were filled with soil made by composting turf with one-third of its bulk of good stable manure. This compost soil did not give as good results as the sterile soil with the ingredients just named added.

The sterile soil used for the experiments was a mixture of coal ashes and peat moss. The experiment was made of adding the fertilizer in small quantities, making three or four applications during the season, but no benefit was derived from this fractional fertilization and those plots that received the entire amount before the plants were set gave the best yield.

Where fertilizer chemicals were added to an already rich compost, as a rule the yield was not increased. In experiments with tomatoes and lettuce the yield has always been considerably less than from the compost alone.

For many years it has been known that soils contain bacteria which transform the nitrogen contained in animal or vegetable matter into nitrates, a form which can be readily taken up and assimilated by plants. These organisms are called nitrifying bacteria. Their effect upon soils has led us to recommend well decomposed manure for use about the roots of plants because there is more nitrogen present if the organic matter has been broken up. More recently, however, it has been established that there is another form of organism found in many soils which, instead of causing nitrates to be formed, break up these nitrates and dissipate the free nitrogen into the air, so that unless we have some knowledge of the microbic life of the soil we cannot tell the amount of nitrogen our soil may contain.

From a series of experiments Prof. Britton established the fact that fresh manures contain an unusual number of these denitrifying germs and are therefore not so valuable as a fertilizer. He also demonstrated the fact that it is better to keep the compost in shallow heaps and stir or handle it frequently and, if possible, have it under cover. The experiments also led them to believe that it would be dangerous to water with liquid fertilizer made from fresh stable manure on account of the great number of denitrifying organisms present.

Prof. Britton sums up their experiments by saying: "The carnation does not seem to require an abundance of humus or vegetable matter in the soil, so that while we must be sure that plenty of plant food is in reach of our plants, we must not over-fertilize them. Over-fertilization, in the first place, tends to produce a small root system. We want our plants to have good root systems. Over-feeding causes a rapid decay of the root hairs through which the food is taken into the plants from the soil. These root hairs are quickly replaced by new ones, which, in turn, decay and no roots are sent out into the soil to increase the system. A plant with such a small root system may make a good top growth for a time, but it usually reaches a point where the roots cannot take up moisture as fast as it transpires from the foliage. Then the plant wilts."

"It is best to use a complete fertilizer, that is, one containing nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. See to it that these are all present. The quantities to be applied can only be determined by direct experiment. Soils differ so greatly in their texture and composition that the proper application for any given soil or compost might not be an economical dressing for any other soil and, again, carnations, like men, have racial characteristics and some varieties will need more food than others."

Perhaps there is no one thing we growers need more than a better knowledge of our soils and fertilizers and, while it would not be wise to experiment on large plots, it would be the part of wisdom for every grower to read these extracts carefully and make some experiments in a small way along the lines suggested so as to determine just what his own soil needs in order to produce the best results.

If Prof. Britton could get thirty single-stemmed, marketable flowers to the plant from Daybreak that were planted in a mixture of coal ashes and peat moss with chemicals, then we who make a business of carnation growing ought to get even better results and a small section of our place set apart for some experiments might be a paying investment, but do not forget that many a carnation crop has been partially ruined by chemical fertilizers and use your regular cultural method for all but a few of your plants so that losses will not fall heavily.

ALBERT M. HERR.

WITH THE GROWERS.

GEORGE A. RACKHAM, DETROIT, MICH.

Cerise Queen is the favorite with this careful grower, whose place is the model of neatness, and as an evidence of the foothold this variety is gaining he points to the fact that this spring he was able to sell every cutting he could make his plants produce, and even then the demand was not satisfied. He thinks the cheerful color to be the strong point with the sort but finds it a prolific bloomer.

SCHROETER'S STORE, DETROIT, MICH.

The varieties which Mr. Rackham will bench this fall will be principally Wm. Scott, Victor, Mme. Diaz Albertini, Cerise Queen, Flora Hill, White Cloud, Alaska, Genesee and Holznagle's White Daybreak, with lesser quantities of G. H. Crane, Evanston, Melba and The Marquis. Alaska is his favorite white. Daybreak he does not grow because he cannot get perfect flowers, nearly every bloom coming one-sided. However, Jas. Taylor, who started a year ago at Mt. Clemens with three houses, grows Daybreak to perfection and gets a good price for it.

Mr. Rackham will drop Mayor Pingree because the Detroit market is not good for a price sufficiently high to make this sort profitable. Jubilee will also be discarded because it is not prolific enough to make the returns equal the same space devoted to other sorts. Evelina will go because it bursts too badly in winter, Mr. Rackham cutting hardly a perfect flower before July. Mrs. Bradt will not be grown because his customers call for self colors.

Everything is grown in solid beds, there not being a bench on the place. In one house a test is being made of sub-irrigation. There are two beds in the house, each 4x50. They were planted in mid-June with standard sorts of chrysanthemums; already there is a difference apparent in the stock, not so much in growth as in the color of the foliage, that on the sub irrigated bed being a deeper green. This bed was prepared by laying the brick walls to the usual height and filling in to within about seven inches of the top with ashes, upon which a perfectly level cement floor was laid. Then the whole bottom of the bed was filled with rows of 2½-inch tiles tightly joined, leaving four inches for soil. An elbow was turned up at one end and through this the tiles were filled with water at the time of planting the bed. The water had all soaked into the soil at July 15 but at that date the soil was soft and easily penetrated, there being a noticeable difference in this respect between the two beds, the other having been given usual surface waterings. The total cost of this 200 square feet of sub-irrigated bed was $28, the tile costing $17.50 a thousand and 500 being used. When the chrysanthemums are cut both beds will be planted to carnations.

Mr. Rackham is growing the incurved varieties of chrysanthemums, having found that they ship better than the reflexed sorts. He makes no effort at specimen blooms, preferring to grow three 5-cent flowers to a plant to one 15-cent flower, the former being always sure of a sale while the latter is not.

TRADE VERY DULL.—GOOD STOCK RATHER SCARCE.—EVERY ORDER CREATES A STIR.—HARRISII BRING A GOOD PRICE.—MOST ROSES POOR.—KAISERIN, TESTOUT AND METEOR THE LEADERS.

It is quiet enough to be tiresome in and about the flower trade centers, both wholesale and retail. We read of more favored localities where the summer trade is accounted an item of no small importance to flower growers and wholesalers but it would take a miraculously keen eye to discern anything in this neighborhood at present worthy of the name of summer trade. When one of the local retailers is fortunate enough to be the recipient of a steamer order, a funeral order or some other little variation from the prevailing solitude he is apt to make a little stir for the moment for he is sure to want something that nobody has and must try every wholesaler in town, or if it be something that can be readily obtained he thinks it equally his duty to go to every wholesaler before deciding who shall have the favor of the order and the cheapest man gets it finally, of course. The stock in market is about the same as last week; asters a little more abundant, Harrisii lilies scarce and worth a good price when obtainable and the general stock rather inferior in quality all through the list. Roses are either mildewed or are cut from young plants and consequently undersized in flower and stem, with the exception of a few lots of stock from special summer houses that are in excellent form. Of such are the Kaiserins at Thos. Young's that come from Jersey City. There are also a few good lots of Testout and Meteor seen that are decidedly creditable to their growers.

W. F. Sheridan and wife have gone to Port Jervis for a rest.

VERY VALUABLE PAPER ON THE PLANTING AND CARE OF TREES PRESENTED AT THE CLUB MEETING.—TRANSPORTATION DETAILS NOT YET ARRANGED.—BUSINESS FAIR.—RICE & CO. HAVE REMOVED.—GREAT FUTURE IN THE PLANT BUSINESS.—OTHER MATTERS.

The August club meeting was fairly well attended but more should have been present to hear the very instructive paper on the care of trees in cities, prepared and read by the city forester, John C. Lewis. He was listened to very attentively and received the unanimous thanks of the club. The paper contained very valuable information on many points relating to selection, planting and after care of trees as well as a list of the kinds most suitable for street planting in Philadelphia. The essay committee is to be congratulated for its happy thought. The reports of the various convention committees were listened to with interest. Mr. Westcott, chairman of the transportation committee, said that only one thing was definitely settled and that was that the fare would be $19 for the round trip. The committee had not been able to close with the railroad but would in a day or two, when all the members would be notified. Three gentlemen were elected to membership; we are growing gradually but surely, scarcely a meeting passes of late that new members are not elected.

The subject for discussion in September is "What was done at the convention." John Walker is to do the telling.

BREITMEYER'S STORE, DETROIT, MICH.

There is a fair business in the stores for the season and the stock offered is improving as the summer rose houses are beginning to bear on the strong shoots. Jacob Becker is carrying some very nice La France. Robert Craig & Son have fine Kaiserin and so have Robert Scott & Son, whose assortment includes good Carnots. Beauties are very poor, but a little better than a week ago and will probably improve from now on. Asters are coming in good shape and sell well. Prices range as follows: Teas $3 to $4; Beauties $4 to $8; carnations 50 cents to 75 cents; valley $3 to $4; asters 50 cents to $1.50 per hundred.

Robert Craig says it is a great state of affairs when men come to the city as prospective buyers and go about the various plant establishments and see practically nothing for sale. The stock is there, lots of it, but growers don't want to sell until after the summer growth is finished. There is plenty of room for more houses and a great future for the business.

M. Rice & Co. are now doing business at their new stand, 918 Filbert street, having moved everything from their Fourth street factory to this building, where they occupy the entire five floors and basement. Everything is modern and up to date, steam heat, electric light, telephones on all floors and an elevator. All the floors are flooded with light from front and rear and altogether Messrs. Rice and Eschner are to be congratulated on their move. Mr. Rice, who has worked very hard for the past two months, has gone on a trip by sea to Prince Edwards Island, where he will recuperate and hopes to come back much refreshed.

J. G. Heinle was in town the past week visiting Willow Grove Park, which he says is the finest commercial public park he has ever seen, either in this country or Europe. John Bader, of Allegheny, was also a visitor. K.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—VERY ERRATIC DEMAND.—FINE KAISERINS.—STRIKE OF TELEGRAPH MESSENGERS CAUSES ANNOYANCE.—MEDALS FOR DIPLADENIAS AND A CATTLEYA.—THE MORTUARY RECORD.—CATERPILLARS ON THE COMMON.

Wholesalers assert that the summer trade up to date is somewhat disappointing. There are unexpected calls for large quantities of material quite frequently but these demands are so irregular and so apt to be for goods that are not to be obtained at short notice that they bring more confusion and trouble than they do profit. Magnificent Kaiserins are available in quantity and there is a fair supply of Carnots and Meteors, both of which are considered good for a profitable summer run but oftener than not they have to resort to the street boys to find a sale and this is decidedly discouraging when the stock is as good as it is at present. Carnations are not coming in to any extent but are not missed in the present abundance of asters which, however, are, as a rule, of interior quality. The situation at best is not up to the hopes of the wholesalers, and just now the conditions are made more annoying by the strike of the telegraph messenger boys who thrash any boy caught carrying a despatch to or from a telegraph office. One of Welch Bros.' boys was roughly handled on Monday while on such an errand and his message torn to shreds.

At last Saturday's exhibition by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society George McWilliam once more dazzled the eyes of the visitors with several of his seedling dipladenias and was awarded a silver medal for one named Mrs. George McWilliam, an Appleton medal for one named Geo. M. Whitin and a bronze medal for one named Miss Lois H. Whitin. Hicks Arnold received a silver medal for Cattleya Hardyana. Phloxes from W. N. Craig, Geo. Hollis and J. L. Gardner, sweet peas from E. C. Lewis and perennials from Rea Bros. were all good.

Henry Ross, superintendent of Newton Cemetery died July 27, aged 77 years. He has been superintendent for thirty-eight years and no better monument can he have than the beautiful grounds that show his skill and devotion. He was a member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and a true exponent always of the best in horticulture. Many friends will miss him.

Dr. M. W. Pray, of Malden, died on July 28, aged 72. Dr. Pray was a dentist but years ago he, like many others not florists, built greenhouses and raised Bon Silenes and smilax for the Boston market. A truer hearted, nobler-souled man would be hard to find and many a florist who was the recipient of his kindliness will endorse this.

Boston Common and adjoining areas are suffering from an overwhelming invasion of caterpillars that are doing great injury to the maples, elms and lindens.

BUSINESS ON THE DECLINE.—ONLY DEMAND IS FOR STOCK TO FILL FUNERAL ORDERS.—PLENTY OF GOOD SUMMER FLOWERS.—FAKIRS ARE FIXED.—CONVENTION TALK.—CARNATION PLANTING PROGRESSING.—KIDWELLS BUILD A STORE.—WATER TANKS AND WATCH ARE LOST.—NUMEROUS VACATION NOTES.

There has been a great change in the business situation in the past ten days. The first three weeks of July were good but then trade began to slide; for the last week its been on the toboggan. Monday was a good day for shipping orders but the rest of the week has been dull, very dull. The retailers are buying very little in the wholesale market and claim to lose money on everything not sold before it is bought. There is, however, some good stock coming in; Weinhoeber has been paying 5 cents for Reinberg's best Kaiserins and glad to get them. There are a plenty of 3-cent roses and too many of the 40-cents-a-hundred kind. The carnation cut is right "between hay and grass." The indoor blooms are becoming fewer every day and the cut in the fields is increasing day by day. There are some pretty good flowers coming from each source but not in any quantity. There are asters, sweet peas, gladioli and other summer flowers to supply the street men. One fakir bought 550 bunches of peas for $2 the other day and a friend of his turned 316 bunches of asters that cost him a nickel each. Golden rod has made its appearance.

Recent advices are to the effect that a party of about fifteen from St. Paul and the northwest will arrive Monday, August 14, to join the Chicago conventionites via the Wabash. J. T. Temple, of Davenport, Ia., and O. L. Baird, of Dixon, Ill., will be with us. The Milwaukee party will also go on the Chicago train.

If the assessor's figures are to be believed Peter Reinberg is one of those who have prospered greatly during the year. Besides an increase on his real estate the assessor placed the value of his personal property at $7,500 as against $3,500 in 1898; but then everyone's assessment is being raised this year.

There is a new deal on for the fakirs. Since last March they have been permitted but one in a block on State street; from August 1 any curbstone man can get the police permit by paying the city $10 a month and first securing the consent of the merchant whose curb he is to occupy.

Among those who do not bowl who have declared their intention of attending the convention are Ernst Weinhoeber, Emil Buettner, O. P. Bassett, W. L. Palinsky, F. F. Benthey, Jas. Hartshorne, Peter Reinberg, Geo. Reinberg, J. B. Deamud, and Mrs. Deamud.

Reinberg Bros. are planting some of their carnation houses. The work was begun August 1 and the varieties thus far housed are the new sorts. Their plants in the field are nearly all ready for benching.

J. F. Kidwell & Bro. are building a new, well appointed and commodius store on Wentworth avenue adjoining their old stand at 3810. W. H. Kidwell has been east for two or three weeks.

The Hinsdale Rose Company sustained a loss of several hundred dollars a few nights since in the wrecking of a windmill and two water tanks each of 600 barrels capacity.

Nic. Wietor mourns the loss of a fine watch, presented to him by his wife. He left his vest hanging in the toilet room and a sneak thief found it.

George Asmus left Thursday for a visit at his old home in Buffalo. He is planing to meet the Chicago party in Detroit on August 15.

J. A. Budlong and Bert have been at Lake Buelah, Wis., this week. Mr. Budlong senior made the trip awheel.

Charles Balluff and wife left last Saturday for a two week's outing at Oshkosh, Green Bay and other Wisconsin points.

Charles Hughes, of the Illinois Cut Flower Co., has enjoyed a vacation at his old home, Hillsdale, Mich.

Andrew Miller, of the Central Floral Co., is on his annual vacation to Denver and the Colorado mountain resorts.

Swain Nelson & Sons, are rebuilding one greenhouse, 16x60, on Paulina street, for miscellaneous plants.

Andrew McAdams and daughter are on vacation at Mackinac Island, Mich.

Henry Wietor is at Manistee and will visit other Michigan resorts.

W. A. Peterson has returned from his outing at Lake Geneva.

Miss Nelda Wolf, cashier at Budlong's, has been ill two weeks.

A. L. Randall is rusticating at St. Joe, Mich.

C. S. Stewart is biking.

CONVENTION ENTHUSIASM GROWS APACE.—EVERYONE WANTS TO WORK.—COMMITTEES ARE ACTIVE.—BREITMEYER REPORTS ON EASTERN PROSPECTS.—EXHIBITION SPACE STILL IN DEMAND.—JOTTINGS.

The regular meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club, August 2, was more largely attended than any meeting in our history; every one was enthusiastic and anxious for more work to be assigned them in connection with the convention. The entertainment committee has completed the program and there will be no time outside of business sessions without something interesting and amusing to the great number of visitors we are assured will be present. The reception committee has been, and will be, busy. All trains and boats will be met and S. A. F. members will be located in the different hotels without confusion or trouble. The decorating committee, of which Wm. Dilger is chairman, promises something unique and elaborate in both the exhibition hall and the auditorium where the business sessions will be held. Outside the entrance to the hall there will be erected an electric arch of over forty feet span, made more beautiful by the liberal use of flags, palms and bunting and suitably inscribed.

Philip Breitmeyer, president of the local club and vice-president of the S. A. F., has just returned from a two weeks' trip to eastern cities and reports that everywhere he went he was promised large delegations to the convention and observed an extraordinary interest in the bowling contest.

The exhibition space is well sold out and applications are still coming in, but Supt. Rackham is equal to the emergency and is appropriating the corridors and and other departments of the hall for the accommodation of late comers.

Trade in retail stores is generally good. Carnations are in short supply but the fine asters that are coming in make a good substitute.

G. H. Taepke and wife have returned from a trip on the upper lakes.

NEWTON, MASS.—C. F. Trafton now has the store formerly conducted by Wm. Sillman.

LEBANON, PA.—R. W. Wynings has gone to Stafford Springs, Conn., to take charge of an establishment there.

CARLINVILLE, ILL.—Wm. Beigert, of Beigert & Mueller, has sold his interest to Albert Mueller; consideration $300.

DOYLESTOWN, PA.—Reading Palmer has dissolved partnership with L. H. Clemens and will engage in rose growing.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—Fred. Atkinson has succeeded Mr. Uttenweiler as superintendent of horticulture at the Experiment Station of the University of Illinois.

BATAVIA, ILL.—The Williams & Sons Company has been doing an extensive wholesale plant trade, fully up to anything in the previous history of the concern. They are now building one more house.

MANHEIM, PA.—E. P. Hostetter is building four houses, for carnations, violets, mignonette and pansies, each 15x200, and his brother, Abraham Hostetter, is erecting four houses of similar dimensions for carnations and violets.

A NUMBER of new and promising double violets are noted in the Italian horticultural papers.

VIOLET LA FRANCE is said to be identical in every respect with Princess de Galles except that it is an improvement on that fine variety by having a more compact growth.

ATTENTION is called to the fact that the New York train for Detroit leaves the foot of Cortlandt street at 12 o'clock, noon, Monday, August 14, not August 7, as the types said last week.

DEUTZIA LEMOINEI should be included among the good things to force for Easter. All deutzias for winter and early spring decoration should be potted in August and rested two years after forcing.

Butted Versus Lapped Glass.

I was surprised at the almost uniform condemnation of butted glass in the AMERICAN FLORIST of July 22. In my ignorance I had concluded that the thing had been settled in favor of that method. I can only account for this condition of affairs by the assumption that your glass men do not make good "cuts." You use glass of home manufacture; we use a German make. I have a three-quarter span house 20x100 feet built seven years ago, and one could put all the leak it makes in his eye without injury. The roses produced by John Dunlop, of Toronto, and H. Dale, of Brampton, will compare favorably with those of any other grower, and they are all grown under butted glass.

Woodstock, Ont. ANGUS ROSE.

Hot Water as a Fungicide and Insecticide.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—In your issue of July 22 you note that "Europeans are experimenting with hot water as a fungicide and insecticide." The use of hot water for this purpose was quite common about this city twenty years ago. My recollection is that 130° was our limit. You say Europeans run it to 140°. In this water a little kerosene was poured. Plants in pots were then turned upside down and their tops dipped in the mixture. Just enough kerosene was used that a little adhered to the foliage when drawn out of the tub. Collections of azaleas and miscellaneous greenhouse plants were treated in this way, every plant getting a dip, with no injury to a single plant to my recollection, but with the destruction of all insects of whatever kind. For some time afterwards there would be quite an odor of kerosene about the plants, much to their benefit in keeping away insects and fungus germs.

Milwaukee to Detroit.

Milwaukee members of the S. A. F. will accept the invitation to join the Chicago party and will leave Milwaukee by the C. M. & St. P. R. R. at 7:15 a. m. Monday, August 14, which will give us two hours in Chicago before taking the 12 o'clock train on the Wabash at Polk Street Depot. If a number will meet and take this train together a reduced rate to Chicago can be secured, purchasing our ticket with certificate in Chicago.

Paterson, N. J.—E. McCornac, rebuilding range.

Ashland, O.—A. C. Lamprecht, six houses.

Water Supply.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have greenhouses situated on rising ground. About 350 feet distant and fifteen to twenty feet below the level of greenhouses is a spring, and I wish to know (as I do not care to go to the expense of a windmill this season) whether it will be possible to draw water from the spring by means of a pump placed in the greenhouses. If so, what size of piping should I use? If not, what other course would you advise?

J. M.

There should be no difficulty in drawing water by means of a good hand pump when the elevation is not more than twenty feet, but owing to the friction in the long pipe nothing less than one-inch pipe should be used and one and one-fourth or even one and one-half inch pipe would be desirable, especially if a windmill is to be used later on. L. R. TAFT.

New York to Detroit.

The committee in charge of the transportation for New York and vicinity has made arrangements to go by the celebrated Black Diamond Express, Lehigh Valley railroad, leaving foot of Cortlandt street at 12 o'clock (noon) on Monday, August 14, reaching Detroit the next morning at 6:55 o'clock.

The beautiful scenery of the renowned Lehigh and Susquehanna valleys by daylight in a special car will, we feel sure, induce many to go who otherwise would not.

The rates are one full fare going and one-third fare returning, on the certificate plan, or $13.50 for the fare going and $4.50 for the return; in addition the sleeping car fare from Buffalo to Detroit is $2. Delegates wishing to save themselves trouble may secure tickets both for train and sleeper by remitting $15.50, to John N. May, Summit, New Jersey.

As the New York Florists' Club has decided to invite the S. A. F. to New York in 1900, the members will realize the great importance of having a full delegation at the forthcoming convention.

For the New Jersey delegates who may prefer to board the train en route, it stops at Newark at 12:08 p. m., South Plainfield at 12.51 p. m. and South Bethlehem at 2:06 p. m.

It is particularly requested that delegates notify Mr. May of their intention of going in good time, as otherwise it may be difficult to secure sleeper accommodations.

W. J. STEWART,
P. O'MARA,
JOHN N. MAY, } Committee.

Boston to Detroit.

Arrangements have been made whereby those who so desire may travel together on special buffet sleeping car from Boston. The train selected is the "Continental Limited," leaving Boston 11 a. m. Monday, August 14, due in Detroit Tuesday at 7 a. m. The route is via Fitchburg R. R. to Rotterdam Junction, West Shore to Utica, New York Central to Buffalo and Wabash R. R. to Detroit. Connecting train leaves Worcester at 11:45 a. m. Monday. It is expected that the members from central New York points will arrange to connect with the Boston party. The fare is one and one-third full rate for round trip from all points, which makes the Boston rate $22, exclusive of sleeping car berths. Meals will be provided for all passengers on the Boston car without charge. Stop-over allowed at Niagara Falls both going and coming. Those who intend to go with the Boston party are requested to communicate with Wm. J. Stewart at once as the car is filling up fast.

Japanese Lilies.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Can Japan lilies that have blossomed in pots this season be transferred to the open ground now with safety, and will they give satisfactory results another season? D.

Japanese lilies can be easily planted out for the remainder of the year and will probably do far better than if kept in the pots. If it is desired to have them in pots again next year, lift as soon as the frost has killed the stems and repot in good fresh material, placing the pots for the winter in a cellar where frost is excluded, and they will make strong roots and can be brought up to bloom as soon as shoots are started in spring. L. auratum is an exception, as it rarely does well more than one year. If left in the open ground for the winter, a light mulch of dry leaves is desirable, with a few boards to keep them in place, or evergreen branches if boards would be unsightly. It is surprising how much frost a protection of this kind will exclude, with the help of the snow.

E. O. ORPET.

Changing Arrangement of Pipes.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—The piping of my greenhouses is of cast iron and four inches in diameter. The top of the boiler is four feet six inches below the base of the expansion tank. The pipes run underneath the benches 114 feet up grade to tank, thence 190 down grade to bottom of boiler. In building an addition to my houses a change in the piping is necessary, and I wish to know whether it will do to so change the present piping so as to run it all, 304 feet, up grade to the tank, then drop vertically to the bottom of the boiler? If I were to raise the tank two feet, would it help the circulation. INQUIRER.

If any change is to be made, it would be far better to place the expansion tank at the end of the house nearest the heater and, after elevating that end of the pipe as much as possible, run the pipe down hill around the house and back to the boiler. While a circulation could be secured if the pipes are arranged as proposed it is not advisable to have the radiating pipes, or returns, as they are often called, run up-hill. Little will be gained by raising the expansion tank two feet, but it is a good plan to do away with the old-fashioned cast-iron tank, and, after putting in continuous piping, connect the highest point of the system with a galvanized iron tank elevated ten or fifteen feet. L. R. TAFT.

RIDGEWOOD, N. J.—A. V. D. Snyder is rebuilding his entire range of glass and will add a new even span house 18x100. He will install a new system of hot water heating.

OBITUARY.

JAMES GALLOWAY.

This pioneer florist of Baltimore, Md., died July 23.

WILLIAM M'MILLAN.

William McMillan, widely known as the superintendent of the park system of Essex county, New Jersey, and who had many friends in the trade, died of paralysis Monday, July 31.

JOHN NELSON.

The veteran Oshkosh, Wis., florist died July 13, from consumption resulting from an attack of the grippe last winter. He was born August 2, 1843, in Denmark, coming to this country at the outbreak of the civil war and enlisting in the Federal army, in which he served valiantly until Appomattox. At the end of the war he established himself at Oshkosh as a florist and gardener and had built up an extensive business. He was a man of sterling character and had many friends. He leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters, who will continue the business. At the funeral W. H. Ellis, of Milwaukee; C. Reinecke, of Green Bay, and E. Haentze, of Fon du Lac, served among the pall-bearers.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—REPORT ON THE GULF EXCURSION.—ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—PAPWORTH PREPARES TO START FOR DETROIT.

The annual meeting of the New Orleans Horticultural Society was held Saturday evening, July 22, and report was made of our trip to Grand Isle. The affair was a perfect success, even better than the excursion of last year. There was boating, fishing, sport of all kinds, dancing and music. Most notable of the terpsichorean events was the Indian war dance executed on the beach and the cake walk on the boat, the prizes being awarded to T. A. Shalk and M. M. Lapouyade. New officers were elected as follows: President, Emile Valdejo; vice-president, C. R. Panther; secretary, Dan. Newsham; treasurer, John Eblen.

Harry Papworth is preparing to go to Detroit to attend the S. A. F. convention and make a display from his fine collection of specimen palms. M. M. L.

THE Cape Vincent Seed Co., 182 Duane street, New York, has certified to an increase of capital stock from $20,000 to $60,000.

THE onion seed crops in the Santa Clara valley are reported to be looking poorly and have been considerably affected by blight during the last half of July.

H. W. BUCKBEE, with May C. Buckbee and T. E. Buckbee are named as the incorporators of the Rockford Seed Farms, Rockford, Ill. Capital stock, $25,000.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—A. W. Livingston's Sons are building a fine two-story office fronting on Long street and connecting in the rear with their wholesale and retail departments. Robert Livingston will probably attend the S. A. F. convention at Detroit.

Does Frost Injure Seeds?

Through the agency of liquid air, it has been demonstrated that the seeds of common plants like cucumbers, wheat, squash, and so on, will germinate almost as well as ever after being submitted to a cold of 300° below zero. Lord Kelvin, in discussing the origin of life on this planet, once suggested that the first seeds may have been brought here through the cold of interstellar space in a meteor, although he didn't explain how the seed could find its way into the meteor in the first place.

ON TO THE CONVENTION.—GOOD PARTY ASSURED.—THE ROUTE CHOSEN.—CLUB MEETING AND ELECTION.

We expect from fifteen to twenty from St. Louis to attend the convention at Detroit. We have chosen the Wabash Railroad and will pay one and one-third fare. We expect to leave Sunday evening, August 13. J. W. Kunz is chairman of the transportation committee and all who intend to go to the convention will do well to notify him as soon as possible.

All members are earnestly requested to attend the next regular club meeting which will be held at Odd Fellow's Hall No. 2, August 10, at 3 p. m. Election of officers for the ensuing year and other business of importance will be brought before this meeting. S. E.

Pittsburg.

A DULL MARKET.—BUILDING OPERATIONS.—VACATIONERS GO TO ATLANTIC CITY.—PENNSYLVANIA ROUTE TO CLEVELAND CHOSEN BY CONVENTION PARTY.

Business continues featureless. With the exception of an occasional wedding decoration or funeral order nothing is being done. Good roses and carnations are still scarce; there are fine asters coming in and they find a more ready sale than formerly.

Mrs. E. A. Williams is rebuilding six houses 22x150. Five will be devoted to roses, carnations and other cut flowers while the sixth will be used for palms and decorative plants. She is using 16x24 glass. More space will be used for cut flowers and less for bedding plants than formerly.

A. M. & J. B. Murdock have erected two new greenhouses, one 21x150, which is planted to roses, the other 10x150, for small palms and ferns. They are using one-inch iron pipe for the rests and supports of the benches. The face boards are held in place by a small casting and the bottom is laid without being nailed down, making it strong and durable.

J. B. Murdoch has gone to Atlantic City. He will return on August 14. in time to join the party going to Detroit. E. C. Rineman and family are also off for Atlantic City and will be absent for ten days.

It has been decided that our convention party will go by the Pennsylvania road to Cleveland where we take the boat.

Charles T. Siebert and his family had returned home from a drive when the horse started and ran over a twenty-five-foot embankment. Part of the buggy was found about half a mile from the house, while the remainder was found next day in Highland Park, about three miles from the place of the accident. No one was hurt but the horse was somewhat bruised. G. O.

Tarrytown, N. Y.

The Tarrytown Horticultural Society held its regular meeting on Thursday evening, July 27. The date of the fall show was fixed as November 10 and 11 and the executive committee was instructed to select judges forthwith. The preliminary schedule has been issued but, as funds continue to come in, the present amount of prize money will be considerably increased and probably a few extra prizes will be added. John Fotheringham and Philip Hamilton, Tarrytown, were elected to membership. John H. Corneth and Jeremiah Herett were proposed. The secretary read a letter from the Westchester County Gardeners' Association inviting the members to accompany them to the nurseries of Henry A. Dreer, Riverton, N. J., on the occassion of their annual outing on August 9 and several signified their intention of accepting. This is another instance which goes to show that the gardener is in love with his vocation. This is to be a day's outing, a day of pleasure, a day of good fellowship, yet a day of business instruction.

JAS. T. SCOTT.

LAFAYETTE, IND.—Prof. J. C. Arthur is slightly ill.

AVON, MASS.—Dooley Bros., of Randolph, have bought the greenhouse owned by Hiram Blanchard.

WATERBURY, CONN.—The New York Floral Company has opened a new flower store at 118 South Main street.

WOONSOCKET, R. I.—Walter S. Hogg's residence, 54 Congdon street, was entered July 20, while the family was absent, and a sum of money stolen.

NEW WHATCOM, WASH.—G. Gilman Barker has purchased the establishment and business of F. J. Pettibone and reports things looking up in the northwest.

POTTSVILLE, PA.—Carl E. Taube, who sometime ago went out of business here, has bought the plant of the Mercer Floral Co. at Trenton, N. J., where he will have about 40,000 feet of glass under which to grow cut flowers.

GOUVERNEUR, N. Y.—Henry Neener has sold his greenhouses to Green & Underhill, Watertown, and will enter their employ.

MILWAUKEE.—W. H. Ellis, formerly of the firm of Ellis & Pollworth, is now a traveling representative of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

TO THE AMERICAN FLORISTS' CONVENTION VIA THE WABASH.

The Railroads have granted a fare and one-third to the meeting of the American Florists to be held in Detroit, August 15th to 18th. The direct and popular line to Detroit from Chicago is the Wabash road. We have the following trains:

Leave Chicago 12:02 noon; arrive Detroit 8:10 p. m.
Leave Chicago 3:15 p. m.; arrive Detroit 10:45 p. m.
Leave Chicago 11:00 p. m.; arrive Detroit 8:00 a. m.

Wagner Sleepers and free reclining chair cars on all our trains. It is the only line operating compartment sleeping cars between Chicago and Detroit. For full particulars, sleeping car reservations, etc., call at Wabash Ticket Office, 97 Adams St., or write to F. A. PALMER, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., 310 Marquette Bldg., Chicago.

Before Thursday Noon...

ADVERTISEMENTS for the annual Convention Number of the American Florist should reach this office before noon on Thursday, August 10.

The Detroit Number will eclipse all previous special issues of the American Florist both in the value of its special features, its typographical excellence, its circulation and its business bringing power.

The Advertising rates for this issue will not be increased. $1 will buy an inch, $10 will buy a column and $30 will buy a page. Send advertisement now in order to make certain of good position and display.

ORLANDO HARRISON says that nurserymen who wish to test fumigation with cyanide need not go to the expense of constructing a house for the purpose but can make the trial upon the occasion of the shipment of stock in a refrigerator car.

PRESIDENT N. W. HALE, of the Southern Nurserymen's Association, enumerates as some of the advantages of the south for a nursery business that the period of growth is long, deliveries can be made from October 15 to April 15 and packing houses are a convenience, not an essential.

Cleveland.

TRADE CONSISTS PRINCIPALLY OF FUNERAL WORK.—BATE BROTHERS BUY HOUSES AND STOCK.—WAMELINKS LEASE TO THE STANLEYS.

Business continues along at the usual midsummer pace. Patrons and patronized are alike out of town so far as circumstances will allow, and nothing goes on save the everlasting funeral work. Flowers are of quantities, qualities and varieties noted in earlier issues and prices have not changed.

Bate Bros., who for two years have operated the place built by G. W. Heiser, have bought the houses and stock. It is understood that they have a year to get the houses off the grounds.

The establishment of Wamelink Bros. has also changed hands, to a certain extent, at least. The Stanley brothers, one of whom has been foreman with James Eadie, have leased the establishment for a term of years. Both the brothers are skilled rose growers, being graduates of the Oil City establishment and having come to Cleveland originally to run the place they have now leased.

J. Austin Shaw has been here, coming from Detroit, and told many wondertul tales of doings past and to come relating to the impending convention in that ancient town. A.

Hartford, Conn.

First the drought inflicted great damage upon the sweet peas and then, when it came the days for the annual show of the Connecticul Horticultural Society, it rained continuously. In view of the adverse conditions the displays and attendance were both fair. W. T. Hutchins sent a big display, but not for competition, accompanied by a note which said that the blooms were the sum total of the achievements of his vines this year. As usual W. J. Eldred was a prominent figure but his blooms showed the effect of the season. Elizabeth Park and W. G. Henderson were other prize winners and Mrs. J. Kopperberg was the leader for the Burpee prizes. Rev. Hutchins was unable to be present because of illness.

Baltimore.

TRADE DULL AND SUPPLY VARIABLE.—LACK OF SPECIMEN CHRYSANTHEMUM PLANTS.—MAYOR OF ANNAPOLIS TO GO TO DETROIT.—THE ANNUAL OUTING.

There is the usual midsummer stagnation in both cut flower and plant trade. What business does make its appearance, mostly funeral work, seeming to come in little flashes and generally on the days when, from some cause or other, suitable flowers are scarce. Seeing a lot of fairly good roses and carnations going begging one day, a retailer was tempted to take a large order at a low figure the next and not only lost time and car fare in a desperate chase after elusive stocks of suitable flowers, but had to put up a disappointing and discreditable lot of work with odds and ends gathered from all over town.

Interest in the proposed chrysanthemum show seems rather languid. The hot weather may have something to do with it and the prospective prize winners may be lying low, to lull competitors into over-confidence; but, whatever the cause, plants well started for specimens do not seem as plentiful as they should be.

The convention at Detroit will probably be honored by the presence of the mayor of our capital city, Annapolis, E. A. Seidiwitz, who has made a wonderful start in politics.

The annual outing of the club took place at Electric Park August 2. As Mr. Seybold was chairman of the committee in charge, nothing but a really enjoyable time was to have been expected.

Omaha.

Omaha will have a team of six of her best howlers and two substitutes at the Detroit convention. J. F. Wilcox will be our captain. We will leave Omaha either August 12 or 13 in order to have some time in Chicago, joining the party from that city for the latter part of the journey. We have invited the Denver delegation to join us here.

A Set of Balls.

The Crawford, McGregor & Canby Co., of Dayton, Ohio, manufacturers of bowling supplies, offer to the team making the highest score in one game in the Detroit tournament six of their regulation bowling balls made of the best lignum vitæ and bored as per order of each player of the winning team. This is a grand chance to get just the ball you want, so get together, boys, pull together and get a ball to suit you and with which you will continue to win glory for your club. K.

At New York.

The bowling alleys at Fifty-seventh street and Sixth avenue were the scene of a high old time last Monday afternoon, a three-cornered contest, in fact, between the New York Florists' Club, who were at home, the Flatbush Bowling Club, who were three miles from home, and the New York Gardeners' Society, who, when their antagonists got through with them, were a hundred miles away from nowhere. The return match will be played on Thursday night and will be a thing of the past when this gets into print. Monday's scores were as follows:

At Flatbush.

The Flatbush Bowling Club has decided that it will be represented at the great contest in Detroit. In view of this fact the following scores, made on last Thursday evening at the regular club alleys, are interesting.

Name.	1st.	2d.	3d.	Av.
E. Dailledouze	169	175	154	166

"Dem Phillies."

"I came all the way to Philadelphia to see 'Dem Phillies' bowl, and I tell you that Brown is a dandy and Westcott is not far behind." So said John Bader, of Allegheny, as he witnessed the last match of the tournament that decided who is to represent Philadelphia at Detroit. There were ten men bowling, but from the first only six were in it; the others simply bowled for the substitute positions. Brown, Westcott, Moss, Anderson, Habermehl and Walker will comprise the team, with Kienle and Kift as substitutes. The first of the four matches was rolled under adverse conditions; the other three give a fair estimate of the strength of the team and in these twelve games on three strange alleys the average is 141½ points. An average of 137 won in Omaha and 139 at Providence the year before, and if the alleys selected for this year's tournament are full regulation the average of the winning club will not be very far above 140. While we sympathize with the St. Louis boys for being placed in the "also bowled" class they must not expect us to agree with them in their one, two, three finish as arranged by Mr. Beneke. Mr. Shaw was no doubt poking fun at them; nobody ever takes him seriously. The winners in this contest will be the team that keeps closest to the alleys and goes "up in the air" the least. Serious cases of "rattles" have been known to be developed on occasions of this kind and before the afflicted recovered the prize was lost. Bowling is much like baseball in that strikes often come together as hits do in the national game and a few strikes in succession in the last two frames will sometimes pull out what looked to be an almost impossible victory. Enthusiasm is also a great factor, but offensive rooting indulged in for the purpose of rattling opposing players; should be strictly prohibited.

Our pipe contest is finished and the prize was won by George Moss. It went to the player making the most high games for the week for the past three months. Mr. Moss had four high games, 203, 212, 193 and 207. Brown had three, 211, 182 and 214; Hamilton, two, with 232 and 217; Walker, two, 189 and 188; Westcott, one, with 199; Rust, one, with 211.

The past week there have been some exciting brushes on the alleys; Hamilton moved the record up a few pins; it is now lodged at 238; he also put up 217. If he was only a florist we would take him to Detroit and enter him against that champion of champions, Wm. Scott. George Craig is also getting in it again and put up a 212 score. The associate members are to bowl the newly selected Detroit team on Thursday. It should be what the boys call "hot stuff." The following is the score of the last match game:

Westcott	167	146	110	423
Brown	187	177	153	517
Keinle	131	134	129	394
Walker	102	121	127	350
Baker	138	113	96	347
Total	725	691	615	2031

Name	1st.	2d.	3d.	Total
Habermehl	144	121	139	404
Moss	122	140	130	392
Anderson	119	133	162	414
Kift	129	120	142	391
Gibson	127	118	105	350
Total	641	632	678	1951

Big Scores at Chicago.

There were some excellent scores on Anson's alleys, July 28, when the last series of the handicap contest was rolled:

Name.	1st.	2nd.	3d.	4th.	Av.
G. Stollery	159	164	205		176
F. Stollery	207	158	162		174
Geo. Asmus	173	194	212	116	174
Jno. Degnan	144	144	169	155	153
E. F. Winterson	156	147	119	178	150
Phil. Hauswirth	143	173	139	125	145
Chas Balluff	157	109	138	171	144
C. W. McKellar	110	147	125	107	122
J. S. Wilson	117	116	133		122
C. A. Hunt	110	124	122		119
Walter Kreitling	97	118	127	113	114
M. Barker	84	119	101		101

Following is the official score of the twenty-four prize handicap games. Though fifteen members took part only six played the requisite number of games, sixteen, to be considered. The scores of these six were as follows:

	Games.	Total.	Av.
F. Stollery	18	2725	151
G. Stollery	18	2635	146
Jno. Degnan	24	3383	136
P. J. Hauswirth	18	2322	129
A. Henderson	20	2534	126
C. Hunt	21	2559	121

As it happened the handicaps did not affect the result, the two Stollery boys having a walk away without the handicaps. F. Stollery takes first prize, a $5 umbrella, and G. Stollery the second prize, a $2.50 pair of bowling shoes.

The Chicago players are practicing Wednesdays and Fridays now. Following is a summary of the work August 2.

Name.	No. games.	High game.	Av.
Geo. Asmus	2	190	178
Geo. Stollery	7	176	165

There is not much trade; just enough to keep the store men awake and exhaust the supply of flowers. But at the producing end of the business everybody is hustling and no ulsters are needed to keep warm. At H. F. A. Lange's establishment, planting, building and making alterations keep a large force of men busy. Three of the old "gutter" houses have been pulled down and two modern houses will be erected in their places. Butted glass will be used, Belgium 16x16. One violet house has been completed and planted but the roof will not be put on till fall. Mr. Lange is a firm believer in cement walls and is building all of his new houses with cement sides and replacing the old wooden walls with the same as fast as they rot out.

Hugo Book contemplates building two new houses at College Hill, but has not decided yet just what he wants, probably even span 25x250.

Sweet peas have been more or less of a failure in this section and pea fanciers are puzzled to account for it. A. H. L.

New Haven, Conn.

Trade has been very quiet here for the last two weeks with the retailers but the growers seem to have enough to do in making repairs. The violet growers, of which this city has an even dozen, report their plants as looking very good. Carnations are not as good as they should be. Asters are very scarce indeed; those of the Semple variety seem to be affected with some insect in the soil. We are receiving a few Queen of the Market but they are very small. Sweet peas are nearing the end of their season and are coming in rather short-stemmed.

J. B. Hoogkirk, clerk for S. H. Moore, is enjoying a two week's vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Champion are spending the summer as usual at the Pequot House, Morris Cove.

Recent visitors were: Chas. Fleming, Bridgeport, Conn.; Wm M. Cottle, Waterbury, Conn.; Geo. B. Whitehead, of Green's Farms. G. H.

TRADE GOOD.—PLANTS SOLD AS NEVER BEFORE.—VISIT TO A SUCCESSFUL CARNATION GROWER.—AFFAIRS WITH THE LONDON FLORAL COMPANY.

Business duriug the spring and early summer season excelled all former years, everything salable being bought up. London has been rightly named the city of homes, as is evidenced by the well kept lawns and flower beds, considerable taste being displayed by both rich and poor.

Wm. Gammage and A. G. Stephens paid a visit to Fred. Dicks and the London Floral Co.'s establishment last week. At the former place a new twenty-five horse power boiler had just been placed in position. A new chimney and sheds are being built, also a fifty-foot addition to the propagating house. Nothing but carnations are grown here. Mr. Dicks is experimenting with inside planting, 500 plants of Eldorado and McGowan being chosen for the trial and at the present time they are very fine.

At the London Floral Co.'s establishment everything is prime. The roses, of which there are five houses, are in excellent condition. One house of adiantum is alone worth a visit. One house of violets, planted inside, is very fine. This establishment consists of 25,000 feet of glass, heated throughout by steam and up to date in every particular. The manager is Ed. Meredith, Jr. Their stock is disposed of at their two stores, one in the city and one at Petrolia. They are about to erect a carnation house 18x120. One disadvantage they have is the lack of a good supply of water, having at times to draw from a long distance, but arrangements are being made to remedy the deficiency. A. G. S.

THE SYPHON REFRIGERATOR FOR FLORISTS.

(PATENTED.)

MANUFACTURED BY The White Enamel Refrigerator Co., ST. PAUL, MINN.

WHITE ENAMEL REFRIGERATOR CO., St. Paul, Minn.

DEAR SIRS:—Since using your ice case in our retail flower department we have saved 30 per cent in the consumption of ice. Our saving in flowers we cannot accurately determine, but should estimate conservatively 25 per cent. Not only this, flowers keep with us as they never did before and retain their salable appearance longer. Your box is certainly a boon to the florists and we predict a wonderful sale on them, especially to the florists, when their qualifications become known.

Yours truly,
L. L. MAY & CO.

ST PAUL, MINN., December 8, 1898.

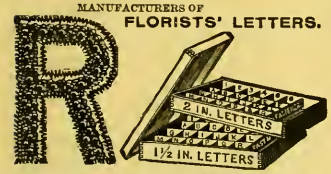
WHITE ENAMEL REFRIGERATOR CO., St. Paul,

GENTLEMEN:—The flower refrigerator show case which you put up for us two months ago has proved a big money maker to us.

It has given perfect satisfaction and has done everything you claimed for it.

We can regulate the temperature to whatever point we want it, from almost freezing up.

We are thoroughly satisfied with it.



Yours respectfully,
HOLM & OLSON.

STATE OF TRADE.—FLORISTS FIND FLOWERS OF CUBA AT THE WALZ PLACE.—NOTES OF THE VARIETIES. — ON TO DETROIT.—THE CLUB MEETING.

Since my last report there has been very little change in the condition of trade in this city, either in the volume of business done or in the prices obtained. Our storemen report trade of July fairly satisfactory.

A party of florists visited Fred Walz a few days ago and found him busy on funeral work. Of interest about his place is a batch of Cuban plants in which Fred takes a special pride. The seeds were sent through the mail by Sargent John Naegle, who served in Company M. 2d Immunes, which was the first to arrive at the surrender of Santiago. Sergt. Naegle was at one time a Cincinnati florist, and on his return home brought a rare collection of seeds. Mr. Walz sowed his seeds last January and several varieties are now in bloom. The first to attract our attention was a collection of acacias about twelve inches high varying very much in growth and foliage. The largest among them is called Flambango among the natives. The flower is similar in color to Salvia splendens and a tree twenty feet high with a mass of scarlet blooms is said to be a beautiful sight. A collection of abutilons not yet in bloom, show a variation of foliage and differ greatly from those in cultivation here. One variety of ricinus turned the water black by soaking the black seeds over night; the plant is of a compact and dwarf habit. Among the running vines is a fine Gleditschia [?] in bloom now; flower azure blue with yellow throat; should this plant prove to be hardy in our climate, I am sure that the flower loving public will hail it with delight.

The Cincinnati delegation will leave on the C. H. & D. R. R. on August 14, at 9:30 p. m., reaching Toledo the following morning, thence by boat at 8:30 a. m., reaching Detroit at 12:45 p. m. Round trip, $9.85, sleeper extra. Cincinnati should be well represented at this rate.

Next Thursday afternoon, August 10, the regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Society will be held at President Murphy's place. Two wagons will be in waiting at the end of the Elberon avenue car line at 1 o'clock to carry the boys to the carnation belt. Every one invited. H. SCHWARZ.

Butted Glass.

This is no longer an experiment, it has come to stay. There are various ways of making Butted Roofs, but the best way is with the Clipper Bar.

With this bar you can make a roof that is absolutely free from drip, and glass cannot be torn out by the wind. Butted glass makes a tight roof, a warm house and saves fuel. It lasts longer, looks better and costs less than the old-fashioned roof. But do not think that this is the only bar we sell, for it is not; we furnish what people want and there is nothing in greenhouse material that you cannot get from us, and all of open-air-dried Cypress clear of bright sap, stained sap, knots and all other defects.

THE FACTORS OF PROGRESS.

Five years ago, reviewing briefly the events and progress during the first ten years of the existence of the Society of American Florists, we attributed the remarkable horticultural development in America during that period largely to the beneficial influence and practical work of this national association. To-day, at the close of another half decade, we can with equal confidence and pride claim for that time a continued steady growth, a creditable industrial and social advancement and an uplifting of our profession toward better ideals and higher honor, in all of which our great national institution has been a potent factor.

As we said five years ago, we can now reassert, that to the fact of the affiliation and co-operation of the best and most eminent men engaged in floricultural pursuits is largely due the great influence and continued prosperity of the Society of American Florists. Recent years have seen occasional outbreaks of unfriendly and often abusive criticism on various lines, but most of this being from obscure sources and clearly intended to injure, it failed of effect and now the voice of the croaker is silent, while within the organization itself the problem of how best to serve the cause of American floriculture and benefit those engaged in it has been manfully faced; every honest suggestion for the good of the cause has been unselfishly considered and that which in the judgment of the society appeared wise has been adopted, so that to-day it stands on a broader and stronger foundation than ever before. From the botanical teacher down to the humblest worker in the garden or greenhouse, all classes and conditions find something helpful in the S. A. F.; even the scoffers are made the unappreciative but willing beneficiaries of its policies, while the character of its membership, its marked freedom from petty intrigues and internal dissensions, the trend of the discussions at its meetings, the enterprise displayed in its exhibitions and the encouragement given there to inventors and progressive men, all speak for its permanency as an organization and point to a future full of increasing usefulness.

The indifference that comes, as the novelty of traveling wears off and widely separated points become familiar after a few years of convention going, is mainly responsible for the decreased attendance at the annual meetings now, as compared with that in the earlier years of the society's existence. But the florist who allows this feeling to influence him and keep him at home when so much of vital interest is going on, depending upon the printed accounts of it all to serve him sufficiently, is making a serious mistake. Nowhere is it more true than in floriculture that "when we go from home we go to school." A convention of the S. A. F. with the opportunities there afforded for personal contact with progressive men, all interested in a common cause, with varied experience in different sections and under different conditions, the facilities for seeing and testing the value of the latest introductions and mechanical appliances, is always worth, to the man ambitious in his calling, more than it costs in time and money.

The programmes of the society's annual meetings as now made up are quite different from those of the earlier conventions and a comparison is interesting as indicative of the methodical precision which the years of experience have gradually brought into the management of the society's business. The growing importance of the exhibition department and the prominence of the "sporting" element in the program are especially noticeable and these two features are gradually but effectively displacing the old "essay and discussion" method, which proved such a strong attraction in the earlier days, when the controversies over steam versus hot water, practical versus scientific education, hail insurance, etc., brought the gladiators of the profession into fierce oratorical combat, yet the contents of the annual reports of the society's proceedings show that the serious problems of to-day are not neglected and that the society is keeping well in the van in all matters pertaining to the present and future welfare of the craft. The possibilities in American bulb growing, the investigation of plant fertilizers, registration of new plants and supervision of nomenclature, and co-operative purchase of materials, which have been taken up in a practical way may be mentioned in illustration. In the way these all-important matters are handled is seen the tendency of the present time to distribute the society's activity over the entire year and make of the convention a sort of rallying point where results may be compared and new movements put into operation, where the benefits of personal association and interchange of ideas may be enjoyed and the fraternal spirit developed. Once brought together, "some to voice the accumulated knowledge of years, others to receive and acquire wisdom," as the Mayor of Cincinnati aptly said in his address of welcome at the first convention, a body of liberal minded and practical men, such as the majority of the florists of America to day are, may be safely left to make things very interesting.

To the same courageous and self-reliant spirit that made the Society of American Florists a reality, the influential horticultural trade press owes its inception and its successful career. The AMERICAN FLORIST, the pioneer and leader in everything that goes to place such a journal in the foremost position in its class, was born at the first convention of the Society of American Florists, at Cincinnati. The men who thought out the plan and laid so well the foundations of the national society were the same men who gave to the florists of America their first trade paper and these have uninterruptedly to the present time given this journal their earnest support and encouragement. With such friends as these, men of "broad and generous views, big hearts and sound heads," the steady growth of this publication during its fourteen years of existence is no surprise. It has grown, not alone in size, beauty and patronage, but its columns reflect the advance in intelligence, education and refinement which has been going on in the ranks of the workers in horticulture, for which the Society of American Florists and the AMERICAN FLORIST have labored together all these years, and to these agencies more than any other, the credit is jointly due.

A perusal of the early issues of the then bi-weekly paper and comparison with recent issues convinces us that the world, floriculturally, "do move." Diagrams and keys to the planting of formal designs and minute instructions in the "art" of sticking flowers in wire forms seems crude matter as compared with the class of horticultural literature the AMERICAN FLORIST now spreads weekly before its readers and, indeed, the fulfilment of the prediction of an early correspondent that "the time is coming when vulgar imitations of mechanical objects will be no longer tolerated" seems near at hand. But from the first, the material published was the best to be found at the time and we have strenuously endeavored to keep the promise made on the first issue to be "up with the times."

The cuts in our early volumes were all hand-engraved and the now almost universal half-tone process illustrations had not come into use. Our first year saw the introduction of the American Beauty, the next year the Bride, two roses that still stand peerless in their classes. But in the meantime many highly lauded novelties have come to the surface for a brief period, then dropped into obscurity and innumerable projects, visionary or practicable, from the establishment of a horticultural university down to dethorning the rose, have been launched and through the publicity given by the horticultural trade press have had their merits recognized or their uselessness quickly demonstrated. The S. A. F. and the AMERICAN FLORIST have done their part in "letting in the light." Our simple platform as announced in our first lines was "to reach and benefit the florists of North America." That platform we re-affirm to-day.

Forcing Annuals and Perennials.

The first thing to do is to get a stock of plants in the fall, the earlier the better. It is very important that they should be potted up very early in the fall, so that they will make some root growth before the time arrives for storing them away in frames for winter. Any good fibrous compost will suit them and they can be put in boxes, pan or pots. After the plants are potted they should be given a position where they can obtain plenty of light and watered as they require it. Whenever severe weather sets in the plants should be placed in frames where the frost is kept out. The frost does not hurt the plants but when the soil in the pots gets frozen, at the time of removing them from the frames a large percentage of them will be found broken. Any time they are required for forcing they can be removed to a cool greenhouse and forced gradually. The plants are much easier to force after the days begin to lengthen and they then respond to this artificial treatment in a much shorter time.

There is quite a long list of herbaceous plants that can be forced, but only a few of the best are mentioned in this list. Dicentra spectabilis is very easily forced and is a most beautiful plant, producing racemes two feet or more in length if well grown. The individual flowers are of a rosy crimson color. The foliage is very pleasing, much divided, and has a graceful habit. Arabis albida, the white rock cress, is very easily grown and has pure white flowers which are produced freely. The plants are from six to nine inches high. Astilbe Japonica is well known; the variety grandiflora is the best. Campanula persicifolia alba is a tall handsome perennial and forces well late in the season. Its height is from one to three feet and the flowers are pure white and bell shaped. Primula officinalis and all its varieties are good. P. denticulata is also good and so is P. Japonica, although it comes in later than the others.

Some of the native cypripediums force well, C. spectabile, C. acaule and C. pubescens giving the best results. Polygonatum multiflorum, Solomon's seal, is a very decorative plant and grows from eighteen inches to two feet high; it is very floriferous. The flowers are in long racemes, pendent, white, spotted with green in the throat. It makes a very desirable plant for forcing. Trillium grandiflorum is a native plant that is well known and has beautiful large white flowers. It forces very well Uvularia grandiflora is another native plant with graceful bell-shaped flowers which are produced in large numbers. Aquilegia Canadensis makes an excellent pot plant and is as pretty as a fuchsia when it is in blossom. It ought to sell well as a pot plant in the spring.

There are many annuals that force well if the seeds are sown in the fall and wintered over in boxes in a cold frame and forced gently in the spring in a cool greenhouse. Among the best are Delphinium Ajacis, godetias, clarkias, schizanthus and cheiranthus. Some others treated differently and well known are stocks, mignonette, antirrhinums and sweet peas. Many of the spring bulbs are easily forced, such as Fritillaria meleagris, F. imperialis, Erythronium dens-canis, Camassia esculenta, Chionodoxa Luciliæ, Scilla Sibirica, Muscari botryoides, Brodiæa congesta and Milla uniflora.

ROBERT CAMERON.

Seasonable Notes on New and Old Varieties of Clematis.

The illustration, Fig. 1, shows a two year vine of Clematis Jackmanni planted in its present location two years ago. Fig. 2 illustrates a much older plant of the same variety six or seven years in its present position, but in poorer soil and more exposed. The latter plant would have done much better if the soil had been carefully prepared and enriched with manure both underneath and on the surface; but the average city jobbing gardener is too confident that nothing needs to be learned to investigate much as to the special needs of the clematis, and so this plant is a good example of persistence under adverse circumstances.

A successful clematis grower tells me that one of the first essentials for having this plant flower well in dry weather is to have a good depth of rich soil. A good mulch is put on also, and frequent waterings of liquid manure given according to the state of the weather. If the ground be stiff, it should be lightened by working in a good proportion of leaf soil or cocoanut fibre refuse, also a little sharp sand.

Of late years many fine new varieties have been secured by hybridization. The first hybridizer of note is said to have been Isaac Anderson-Henry, Esq., of Edinburgh, Scotland, followed by George Jackman, of Woking, England. In 1862 the celebrated Jackmanni flowered and it is still one of the best. Mme. Edouard Andre was first seen at the World's Fair at Chicago, and is now well diffused and greatly admired. It is the nearest approach to a bright red that has yet appeared, perfectly hardy and a very free flowering sort. A recent introduction of the Jackmanni type is Mme. Baron Veillard, a lavender pink with a lively satiny lustre that is very charming. Another new one offered on this side for the first time this season is M. Koster, a bright rosy carmine, claimed to be a much stronger grower and freer in flowering than Mme. Edouard Andre, although it is admitted that the latter is richer and brighter in color. The introducers claim M. Koster has shown a growth of six to eight feet in a single season under ordinary nursery cultivation with hundreds of flowers open at one time, which speaks well for its vigor. Of the older varieties, the following are all good and in general cultivation:

Alexandra.—This is one of the continuous blooming sorts of real merit. The flowers are large and of a pale reddish violet color. July to October.

Countess of Lovelace.—A decided advance on John Gould Veitch, both in habit, color and form. A bluish lilac, rosette shaped, forming a double flower.

Duchess of Edinburgh.—One of the best of the double white varieties. The flowers are pure white, four inches across; very deep. They are remarkably sweet scented.

Fair Rosamond.— Free growing and handsome. The flower is fully six inches across. The color is white with a bluish cast, having a light wine red bar up the center of each sepal. Flowers very fragrant, and are abundant through June and first of July.

Gem.—A new and perpetual blooming variety. The flowers are of a deep lavender blue. June to October.

Henryii.—This is the finest of all white clematis and should find a place in every collection. A vigorous grower, and remarkably free and continuous bloomer, beginning with the earliest and holding on with the latest. Flowers large, of a beautiful creamy white with reddish chocolate anthers. June to October.

Kermesina Splendens.—This is the most profuse bloomer of all clematis. Commencing in early summer and continuing through the season; literally covered with scarlet crimson flowers. Not subject to blight and is a vigorous grower.

Lady Caroline Neville.—A remarkably fine variety of the lanuginosa type producing flowers successively through the summer and autumn. Color pale mauve, with lavender bar, anthers pale reddish brown.

Lawsoniana.—One of the finest of all; a vigorous grower and continuous bloomer. The flowers are very large, often nine inches in diameter Opening a rich, glistening, rosy purple, they gradually change to a mauve purple. June to October.

FIG. I.—TWO YEAR OLD PLANT OF CLEMATIS JACKMANNI.

Lucie Lemoine.—Flowers white, double, large and well formed; composed of seventy-five to ninety petals; very showy. June.

Miss Bateman.—One of the most charming of the spring flowering hybrids, having large white flowers with chocolate red anthers and somewhat fragrant. May and June.

Prince of Wales.—This is one of the very profuse flowering varieties of vigorous habit; showy and free. The flowers are of a deep purple with a red bar in the center of each sepal. First rate for bedding as well as training up. July to October.

Ramana.—Said to be an American seedling of the Jackmanni type; one of the strongest growers; flowers lavender blue, similar to Gem.

Rubella.—One of the finest of the Jackmanni class, having the same habit of abundant and continuous blooming until frozen up. The flowers are large and of a deep velvety claret color. Showy and effective. July to October.

Star of India.—A very showy, very free flowering sort, with large flowers; first of a reddish plum color, changing to a violet purple with turkey red bar in the center of each sepal. A distinct variety of great merit. July to October. This is claimed to be one of the parents of the new coccinea hybrids mentioned in this article.

Velutina Purpurea.—This variety has great merit in being the darkest colored clematis of its class. The flowers are large and of a very rich, blackish mulberry purple color. It has the vigorous free blooming character of Jackmanni. July to October.

In addition to these must be added, of course, the popular Jackmanni and its white form. Albert Knapper, a successful Philadelphia grower of clematis, claims Gypsy Queen is better than Jackmanni, being freer and a better color. He has also a very good word for Belle of Woking. At Mr. Knapper's I saw a good instance of the free flowering qualities of Mme. Baron Veillard—a plant over a doorway having hundreds of fine blossoms on it at the time of my visit. Also I was reminded what a charming thing the old C. coccinea is by seeing its bright scarlet flowers sticking out from a plant that was growing vigorously on an old fence. It is a great bloomer, commencing about the 4th of July and continuing until frost. And C. crispa, isn't it fragrant!

FIG. II.—CLEMATIS JACKMANNI SIX OR SEVEN YEARS PRESENT POSITION

NEW COCCINEA HYBRIDS.

The new coccinea hybrids illustrated in this issue from the excellent colored plate of the London Garden were introduced recently by Jackman, and are decidedly unique and entirely different from pre-existing sorts. The varieties shown are Countess of Onslow, Duchess of York and Duchess of Albany; all of which received the certificate of the Royal Horticultural Society. The beautiful bell shaped flowers are quite distinct from each other, with from four to six sepals each of good substance and standing well out from the foliage, which makes them excellent for cutting as they last well in water. I give Jackman's descriptions:

Countess of Onslow.—A bright violet purple with a broad band of scarlet down the center of each sepal.

Duchess of York.—A delicate blush pink with a deeper tinge down the center of each sepal.

Duchess of Albany.—Bright pink, deeper down the center softening to lilac pink around the margin.

It is understood that a stock of these is being worked up in this country; but so far they have not been offered and the introducer's prices are as yet so high that very few have invested. If they succeed well in our climate they will be a decided acquisition to this charming family of flowering climbers.

NELLY MOSER.

I am indebted to Mr. A. Blanc for the translation, which I have condensed considerably, from the French, of the particulars of the new variety, Nelly Moser, illustrated herewith from the colored plate of the Revue Horticole:

"In 1897 Mr. Moser, of Versailles (France) exhibited two new clematis. Both were pretty; but one, called Nelly Moser was particularly noticeable. The flower is fully six inches in diameter, of a satiny rosy lilac. Its bright carmine central stripe, so well defined, distinguishes it from any other of the C. lanuginosa type. Its habit is particularly vigorous and its hardiness assured. It blooms in May and at frequent intervals during the season, even up to October. The other variety, called George Magne was lighter in color but of the same form and size. In 1896 the attention of clematis specialists was directed toward the productions of Mr. Moser who in that year exhibited Rene Moser and Marcel Moser. The novelties were already a great improvement upon the forms issued from C. lanuginosa, but those exhibited in 1897 showed still further advance.

"Until within the last few years the variety Belisaire, with delicate lilac flowers bore the largest blooms. After this, but little increase in size was obtained. It was more in variation of color that progress was made, without, however, much deviation from the lilac, bluish or violet tints. It was then that Mr. Moser began to hybridize Belisaire with different varieties. From these successive hybridizations were issued Rene Moser, a double mauve, and Marcel Moser, a very large mauve flower with red central vein. Crosses from these two sorts finally produced George Magne, a rosy lilac with carmine rose central stripe or vein, and Nelly Moser, a white shaded rose, with bright carmine vein. Mr. Moser will soon place in commerce a novelty called Madame Deschamps, of which the petals are remarkably rounded instead of being pointed as in Nelly Moser. The color of this new sort is white, shaded mauve, with red central vein."

I am told that Mr. Egan, of Highland Park, Ill., has tested the coccinea hybrids of Jackman. It would be interesting to hear what that gentleman has to say on the subject. Will he not tell us?

G. C. WATSON.

The Present Status of the Geranium.

The geranium is the most important bedding plant of the day. No other plant disputes place with it. No other low-priced plant can be made to produce so fine an effect and with the increased number of good bedding varieties, running through such a wide range of colors, there is absolutely no need of monotony; the beds of this year need in no way resemble last year's; Mrs. A. and Mrs. B. may both order geranium beds, yet there need be no tone of resemblance between them.

A few seasons ago the popularity of this grand plant was seriously threatened by the fact that the majority of florists had but one or two favorite varieties of bedders, and customers must take these sorts or go without. For a long time Queen of the West was the leader, and square after square of town and city gardens presented the crude contrast of its red flowers against the green grass. No wonder the geranium began to be spoken of as "common!"

The number of first class bedding sorts even to-day, and with all the recent fine additions, is still not very large, though there are enough varieties to give customers an excellent choice as to combination of colors, if only the florist has selected the best as they have been offered to the trade.

The AMERICAN FLORIST has given some excellent lists recently, which should be valuable to growers in making up varieties for another year. Every florist who grows geraniums largely, would do well to have a small "trial ground" in some convenient part of his place, where he can make notes on varieties during the summer, and be able to speak with absolute precision to his customers regarding them.

Take your dark varieties and bed them side by side; label them plainly: S. A. Nutt, Marvel, Leonard Kelway, M. Ott, Le Cid, Louis Mayet. Score them up in your note book by points; which one gets into form and growth quickest, other things being equal; which has the best habit; most important of all, which produces the finest mass of clear color; put a very black mark after any that burn their foliage and dwindle away under the hot sun; no customer wants that variety to spoil his lawn; put a bright, particular star before the names of those that come out quickest and brightest after the rain storms; spot the shy bloomers and the small trusses; in short, work intelligently and systematically, and go through each color, double and single, and still you will not have an enormous contract on hand, for the bedders are limited in number. Beside those named in the S. A. Nutt class, we would suggest the following:

Double white, Countess of Harcourt, Boucharlat's White, Alpine Beauty, Mme. Chevralierre, La Favorite and Mrs. Gaar (single).

Double pink, Francis Perkins, L' Contable, Mary Hill.

Single pink, Ben Schroeder, Vincennes, J. D. Cabos, H. Le More.

Double salmon, Beaute Poitevine, Enlalie.

Single salmon, Mrs. E. G. Hill, L. Swartling.

Double scarlet, A. Ricard, Ville de Poitiers, Feu de Joie.

Single scarlet, Bruant, Gloire Poitevine.

Odd colors, Col. Barre, Mme. Jaulin, Prest. V. Dubois, rosy magenta, very fine combined with white.

While the geranium is first of all a bedding plant and is most highly valued because it gives a continuous mass of color throughout the season, and increases in effectiveness till frost comes, it is no less valuable when placed to other uses. For growing to specimen flowering plants, nothing but the chrysanthemum can equal it, and it is less exacting in its requirements.

In a retail florists' establishment nothing can approach the "fancy" varieties for brightening up the houses and adding interest to the place; visitors are always enthusiastic over the new and odd varieties displayed, so utterly distinct from the "fish geranium" of earlier days. These fancy sorts always meet a ready sale, at advanced prices, to buyers who are making up collections, and others who grow their plants in borders and enjoy them individually as distinct from producing a mass of color on the lawn.

Some ten years ago the introduction of Souv. de Mirande made a decided sensation as being a distinct break from every other type; on trial it fell into disfavor when it was found that it was a poor bedder, and its form of floret debarred it from a place among fine fancies, but it has proved the forerunner of a very fine and valuable family, two of which are leaders in the line of fancy bedders, these are Columbia and Dryden. Dryden has large florets approaching the circular in form; it is dwarf, a mass of bloom, color rosy red with white; bright and distinct and does not pale in the sun. Columbia is light scarlet and white, flame color in effect; very dwarf and one of the freest; stands the sun finely.

Other members of this showy family are Southey, probably the brightest and showing the most striking contrast of colors; Andrew Lang, of finest coloring, enormous size and perfect form, and Mark Twain, one of the most remarkable. These three are probably the finest and most striking of the Aureole section; as bedders they have not yet been tested, but their grand size, novelty and points of general excellence should secure them a place with every grower; they are delightful surprises.

For perfection of beauty and stunning size the "English round-flowered" stand unapproached. Cannell's set of a dozen years ago took away one's breath to look at them, but the past few years have seen them surpassed. "Round as a dollar" describes their form exactly; the colors are inexpressibly clear and bright, and the size is most remarkable of all; when a geranium floret measures two and three-quarters by two and a half it is large!

Jno. Forbes is still unsurpassed among fine scarlets of this class; Gertrude Pearson, rose pink; Phyllis, salmon rose; Virginia, snow white; Shelly, dark velvety crimson; Alfred Tennyson, rose crimson; Crabbe, cherry red, and queen of them all is Mrs. Gordon Linzee, rosy-salmon shading to pure pink, a perfect bouquet of the most delightful color.

The fancy geraniums among double varieties are of the greatest beauty, and are quite novel. One of the earliest of these was Triumphe de Nancy, of carmine red color with white markings, a double Aureole; then came Mme Alcide Bruneau, a double white with a laced edge of rose; very beautiful, but not a strong grower. This year we have La Fraicheur, a quite double, snow white flower with a lace of bright pink, and a nice free grower; this is one of the prettiest geraniums extant. Emanuel Arene is a fine double flower of pure rose color with an enormous white eye.

Among the most promising of the coming novelties which will please the trade greatly are the following:

Tempest (Tempete), single; the nearest approach to an orange yellow yet introduced, and a mass of bloom.

Mantle of Fire, double; we consider this the finest thing of its color seen in many a day; it is very dwarf with neat foliage like Mrs. Gaar; the color is dark velvety scarlet, and it is the freest variety extant; the blooms must be kept off until the plants are well established; we think this will prove a leading bedding variety in its color.

A grand companion for it in pink is Bruant's Jean Viand. This is the color of Ben Schroeder in a double Bruant, with the white eye, a dwarf grower, rigid footstalks, elegant florets and a great profusion of bloom. It looks at present as if it would rank quite up with A. Ricard; we have several good pink bedders but there is room for a better one and it is here.

Of bedders of a new color for this purpose are President Victor Dubois, Bruant type, and the new variety, Stephen Ligeard. The former is rosy magenta; Ligeard is the color of a good crimson H. P. rose; both of them "mass" nicely, and either one lined against a row of white will produce a new and beautiful effect, a refreshing change where one has grown tired of scarlet used one season after another.

At the present time only the rose and the carnation surpass the geranium in interest and value. Each importation is anxiously tried for the fine novelties sure to be found in it; each year the process of weeding out goes on and the really valuable sorts quickly take their places among "standard" varieties. Of each annual importation fully seventy-five per cent is discarded by our firm as being unsuited to the American trade or not sufficiently distinct for introduction. Those sent out should be carefully tried before judgment is passed. A young plant in a 2½-inch pot rarely shows its capabilities. A new variety, if recommended as a bedder, should be planted in the open ground; other novelties should either be benched or grown on into 4-inch or 5-inch pots; then only will the bloom be seen in true character. Carelessness has consigned many a fine variety to the rubbish heap, from which it has only been reclaimed by the patience of the discriminating grower.

COCCINEA HYBRID CLEMATIS.

A Visit to Riverton.

The name of Dreer is a household word among the commercial florists from one end of this broad country to the other. "Have you tried Dreer?" is invariably the answer given to the man who complains that, after repeated trying, he is going to give it up and write his customer that he cannot fill the order. After a visit to this immense establishment, taking in the acres of greenhouses and the broad fields surrounding, with their rows and rows of frames and summer sheds, the well-kept beds full of everything except nursery stock that will ornament a garden or lawn, together with the very complete water gardens, stocked with all that is desirable in aquatics, it may be said that the half has not as yet been told. Large collections of a similar character have been gathered together before, but they have gradually disappeared, while the building up of this business has gone steadily forward, until today it will compare favorably, when variety is considered, with any in the world. Another large addition, covering over half an acre in extent, is now being built, to be devoted entirely to ferns, of which they have over half a million in pots at present.

Jacob D. Eisele, the manager, to whose thorough knowledge of the business much of the success of the establishment is due, is always glad to see visiting craftsmen and takes great pleasure in showing them about. One of their specialties is a strain of double-fringed petunias. The seed for these is sown each season, the finest varieties selected at the time of bloom, and then perpetuated from cuttings. About fifty per cent of the seedlings come double. The varieties of last season, no matter how fine they were, are discarded, as the stock from fresh seedlings gives so much better satisfaction. In speaking of importing plants Mr. Eisele said that at the time, some years ago, when verbenas were much in demand, the tariff was largely increased. Wm. Bull, of London, who was doing quite a large business in new plants with American importers, said that this worked disastrously for him, as the Americans began to raise seedlings themselves, which were quite the equal of his, and the importations ceased.

"The demand for ferns is increasing all the time," reports Mr. Eisele. "We never seem to have enough. In the winter we protect our regular trade by setting aside certain parts of benches with selected stock, from which we take their orders and immediately fill up again, so as to have a full line of good plants at all times. Each year we sow more seed and give more room to this class of plants, but in the busy parts of the winter season, when the demand is greatest for table decoration, we invariably run short of some varieties. There is also an increasing demand for large plants for sale as single specimens. Cybotium Scheidii is a grand fern. We have had a great demand for the plants and also for the fronds, which are used by some florists with good effect in bouquets and other floral work. It is most profitable, as it grows easily, only requiring plenty of room."

"What new varieties suitable for ferneries would I recommend? Well, Pteris serrulata voluta, P. Weimsetti and P. Biaurita argentea, the latter a dwarf, striped kind with good, strong foliage, are, I think, acquisitions among the pteris family. We are potting a lot of strong growing varieties into six-inch pots as the demand for larger sizes for decorative work is increasing. We grow nearly all our ferns outside in frames during the summer; it gives us the houses to spread out our palms, and the ferns seem to do equally as well outside."

The frames are all covered with white-washed sash, raised fifteen inches, leaving a large air space on all sides. The plants are either growing in boxes or in pots, partially plunged. They are watered from a system of pipes running overhead, with faucets at convenient distances, to which the hose can be attached. "Adiantum Farleyense no longer a puzzle?" repeated Mr. Eisele. "No, we have no trouble at all with it. We propagate from old plants that we get back from florists, or those that do not seem to grow strongly and break up into many crowns. These we shake out and cut into small pieces, a crown or so each. We sow these crowns in a bed of sand and moss, sprinkle sand over them and, when started, pot them off.

"What is there new about palms?"

"Nothing new; same old bugs to fight. We use a little more system now, however. Scale thrives best in a high temperature, so we keep our kentias during summer, their resting period, as cool as possible, as they make their best growth in the fall and early winter. This treatment helps to keep the pest down at this season, and if we start clean in the fall we have but little trouble in the winter. With the other kinds of palms there seems to be no better way than a systematic syringing with insecticides and and an avoidance of overcrowding. With the best of care, however, it becomes necessary at times to go over the plants and remove the pests by hand. No, there is nothing new in palms, at least for commercial purposes. Still, there are useful varieties that the retail florists could take hold of and push, which, I think, would give satisfaction as house plants and add much needed variety to the stock. I refer to such varieties as Arcea Baueri, A. sapida, A. Australis and pheonix in variety. Caryota urens is also a very decorative palm which, with its distinct foliage, stands out well in decorations and would be found very useful."

"Are you able to get palms up any faster with improved houses and greater experience?" was my next question.

"Well, not much. Latanias seem to come on a little quicker and planting several together in a pot, which is a plan now generally adopted by large growers, enables us to get bushy stock in a shorter time and with less handling and an economical use of greenhouse room."

"Has there been any advance in prices owing to scarcity and higher price of greenhouse material?"

"Yes, from ten to twenty per cent, arecas particularly being higher on account of scarcity and increased demand. There is one thing I would like to say about arecas; they do not usually get the care after shipment and on arriving at their destination that they require. They should be given a warm, close atmosphere, as they are apt to get chilled if placed in a cool, airy house, such as would do very well for kentias."

"What is in these boxes under the table?" I asked.

"They contain our palm seed, placed about six inches deep and covered with moss and kept moist. They are looked over occasionally after the seed begins to show signs of life, and the quick ones planted on the table above. In this way we save room and keep the sizes, or strong and weaker growers, separate. Palm seed should, on arrival, be at once placed in damp moss and never allowed to get dry thereafter."

JACOB D. EISELE.
Manager Dreer's Riverton Establishment.

"Which variety sells best with you?"

"The kentia is in most demand on account of its general utility; next come arecas and the latanias."

"Do you find as much sale for araucarias as formerly?"

"They seem to sell just as well, the greatest demand being for medium sizes. Many small growers who sell at retail find them profitable, and they are included in every order. We raise quite a number from cuttings, keeping the stock plants in pots, where they do no grow so large as when planted out, but make more shoots. These stock plants are not available for anything else, as they never afterwards grow into salable stock. The araucarias seem to do best during summer plunged in ashes, under a slat frame."

"Has Cocos Weddeliana been overdone?" I interrogated.

"No; there is a great demand for cocos, it being one of the best of house palms and its very extensive use for ferneries still keeps the stock down although it is now much more largely grown than ever before."

"You have a large stock of Cycas revoluta; how do they go?"

"Very well, only the price is too low. When they have to be kept a year or two to get a good, even set of leaves they should bring more money than they do to make them desirable stock for a grower to handle."

"How about the prices of palms abroad; are they also advancing?"

"Yes, some of the growers in Ghent quote prices now for this fall's delivery that are from twenty to fifty per cent higher than their figures two years ago."

"Here is a fine variety of Draceena Australis type called Doucetti, with a fine light blush-colored midrib; it is a good strong grower and will be a good commercial sort when it can be sold a little cheaper. They are working up a large stock of it in Belgium."

"Your collection of dwarf Japanese evergreens is very pretty; what do you think of their antiquity; do you believe they are as old as they claim?"

"I have asked my Japanese assistant several times about the truth of the given ages of these specimens and he always laughs but has nothing to say. I think their ages are largely fictitious and that they can be grown in a much shorter time."

The lily gardens are themselves worth a visit and to enthusiasts, and their number is increasing rapidly, this portion of the grounds is a most fascinating place. Mr. Tricker, who has charge of this department, is on the lookout constantly for new varieties and has raised from seed some very valuable kinds. The large Victoria pond, given up almost entirely to this species, looks very tropical, with its surface covered with the handsome leaves of this superb variety.

"The demand," said Mr. Eisele, "is rapidly increasing for this class of plants and the water garden is getting to be a feature of every well conducted private place. Orders are received for our new varieties from connoisseurs in Europe who get a hold of the fact that we have them, probably from the horticultural notices in their journals, as we do not advertise the newer kinds."

There are many more stocks here that might be spoken of, both in the houses and on the grounds outside, but train time comes all too soon and we return Mr. Eisele's earnest handshake and thank him for his attention. We cannot close, however, without mentioning the beautiful rock work, covered with hardy annuals and perennials that are at home in such a location. ROBERT KIFT.

Dwarf Poinsettias.

The general cultivation of poinsettias being so well known, we need not say anything about it here. The propagation is usually effected by means of hard-wood cuttings in early spring. These are undoubtedly the best, if large plants or large bracts for cutting purposes are desired, but as a rule they grow too tall to be very ornamental as pot plants.

To obtain our dwarf plants we propagate during the summer, taking soft-wood cuttings, which will root readily if proper care is taken of them. Given a little bottom heat and kept quite close, there will be no trouble in rooting them. After that the cultivation is essentially the same as that of hard-wood cuttings. Being well rooted through in 2½ inch or 3-inch pots, we usually plant them three or four together in a 7-inch pot or half a dozen in a 10-inch pan, using one of the larger plants for the center. In this way they make very attractive plants for Christmas. Poinsettias are not at all particular about soil, though they prefer rather a loose, porous but rich mixture and require careful watering as soon as cool nights set in. J. M. KELLER.

ROSES.

CULTURAL NOTES.

Roses for the coming winter should now all be planted and, as so much of their future success depends upon the care they receive from now till their blooming period commences, it may not be out of place to enumerate some essential points in their treatment.

We will presume that the plants have been well treated, being grown in a rich compost, on well drained benches, with the soil pressed as firmly as possible. The main thing at the present time is to guard against overwatering. In very hot weather two or three light syringings each day, the last not later than 2 p. m., will keep the plants in better health than one heavy watering at any time. They should have an abundance of air all day and, unless very stormy, the ventilators should be open at least three or four inches at night. The more air they get now the better will the plants resist mildew and kindred troubles, as it gives them a hardy constitution. This treatment should be carefully followed until the outside temperature falls below 60°. When this occurs it is much safer to put on a little fire heat, just enough to prevent condensation on the foliage, leaving the ventilators open all night to guard against soft growth. Keep all decayed leaves carefully removed.

Some varieties require a little different culture from others. Those which will thrive under practically the same treatment are Bride, Bridesmaid, Bon Silene, Perle, Sunset, Madame Hoste and Clara Watson. The hybrid teas should be given a little more water and an early top dressing as they will succeed better if kept steadily growing, particularly American Beauty, Madame Caroline Testout and its offspring, Admiral Dewey, Mrs. Robert Garrett, La France, Meteor and Souvenir de Wootton. Mrs. Pierpont Morgan, Madame Cusin and Papa Gontier will require still more liberal watering.

Regarding temperatures at this season, and until regular firing begins, they should all be treated alike, but when the forcing season proper begins, then there should be considerable variation. The first lot all require an average of 56° at night; American Beauty may go 2° higher at certain periods; Meteor should have 6° or 8° more to ensure the flowers opening well, while Souvenir de Wootton and Papa Gontier should never be given over 52° or 53° at night to get fine blooms.

Maid of Honor and several others which have been introduced within the last three or four years all require about the same treatment, but there are an exceedingly small number of these that are valuable to the general florist, though some of them have done well for a few who seem to have a soil particularly suited to their requirements. As an illustration, Golden Gate was sent to me by the originator for trial, before he sold any of the stock. After giving it all the care we knew how we could not get enough petals to make a decent bloom. Since then I have tried it several times and have given it to others to try with the same result; yet there are some who do this rose very fine, getting good flowers of large size. The same rule holds good with others of still more recent introduction.

Souvenir du President Carnot is a grand rose, but how few can get enough flowers in mid-winter to make it profitable! At other seasons it is superb. The same applies to Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. The first winter President Carnot did remarkably well with us, at least the plants on their own roots did. The variation in many varieties is an interesting, though sometimes disappointing, study. Some will do well the first and second season; after that they seem to deteriorate; others sometimes take three or four years to develop their good qualities. Meteor and Souvenir de Wootton are examples of this latter class.

Of the varieties of this year's introduction it is too early to pass any opinion. Maid of Honor seems a little darker in color than Bridesmaid; whether this will be an improvement remains to be seen. Lady Dorothea, another claimant for honors, belongs to the Perle family; its color is certainly very pleasing. Admiral Dewey is also of a very beautiful shade and it is large, but fickle fashion and the retail florists are responsible for the future of any flower, no matter what its qualities may be.

How long will flower buyers be satisfied with the same stereotyped varieties, only four or five? Brides for luncheon one day, Bridesmaids for breakfast the next, American Beauty for dinner, or possibly a few Meteors or Morgans! This is the regular diet nine months out of twelve and yet there are many lovely shades to choose from for variety. But the grower who beguiles himself into the belief that some others than the above will certainly sell, will find himself badly left. Why is it thus? Can any one give us a reason why so many really beautiful roses should be absolutely ignored?

ROSES FOR CHRISTMAS.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I wish to know how to treat roses taken from the bench after flowering last season so as to have them in bloom at Christmas. They are now standing outside in pots.

respondent refers to are the ordinary tea roses taken from the benches, in which case I should advise him to keep the plants plunged outdoors in their pots until about the end of August. Let them get a fairly good rest by withholding water somewhat; then thin out all the small wood leaving the strong growths almost intact. When planting inside loosen the ball as much as possible so as to help them to start into the new soil. After planting press the soil solid about the roots. Give them sufficient water to make them hold their foliage, but do not over-water, giving them all the air possible day and night. By this means they will start new roots before they start any top growth; then by the end of September or first of October they will begin to show considerable top growths. If the flowers are wanted they could be allowed to produce blooms up to about the middle of October, but to insure getting the very best crop at Christmas let the buds be picked off as fast as they are seen up to the middle or end of November. This will induce the plants to make exceedingly good growth, and when the final pinching is done they will all break nicely and produce a fine crop for Christmas, providing the treatment is reasonable all through. Orchids for Cut Bloom.

Anyone desirous of having a supply of choice orchid flowers the whole year round, or a few for some particular occasion, need not be a genius in order to grow them. It requires, however, a careful selection of species and varieties, coupled with good management. At the present time there are very few orchid flowers in the market, for the simple reason that no one holds the stock of plants from which to supply. In the course of six or eight weeks there will be an abundant supply, and there will also be plenty of demand for them. The average florist cannot do better than grow a stock of these plants in proportion to his needs, and those here named will be found the most valuable for general purposes.

Miltonia bicolor and its varieties would, I have no doubt, find a ready market. For autumn and winter supply the various species and varieties of cattleya must be given first place. The following, in their order of flowering, will cover a period of at least ten months, starting with Cattleya labiata and following with Lælia autumnalis, Cattleya Gaskelliana, C. Trianæ, Lælia ancepes, Cattleya Mossiæ, C. Mendelli, Lælia purpurata and Cattleya gigas. We have, of course, the usual complement of sundries, the most conspicuous of which I should say are the odontoglossums. In O. grande, one of the oldest, we have, if not the finest, certainly one of the most showy orchids in cultivation. It is a general favorite, flowering in the fall, and with a good batch of O. crispum one may rely on securing from these plants a good handful any month in the year, although the heaviest cut is obtained in early spring.

Among oncidiums the trade favorite is O. varicosum, but O. ornithorhynchum is worthy of a place on account of the freedom with which its deliciously odorous flowers are produced. Calanthe vestita and C. Veitchii are most desirable subjects for almost any kind of decorative work; they usually flower about Christmas. The most profitable cypripediums to handle are C. insigne, C. Leeanum and C. villosum. And then we have the fall and spring flowering dendrobiums, the cream of which are D. formosum, D. Phalænopsis, D. nobile and D. Wardianum. This list, of course, could be drawn out almost indefinitely with good things, but they are of no greater market value than those enumerated. All the above plants are within the reach of every grower, and they may be purchased at a figure that will insure good returns the first season if properly handled. This is a good time to secure imported stock. The plants generally arrive about this season in good shape, and they have ample time to plump up before fire heat is applied. But all the choicest orchids are collected, imported and sold during almost the entire year. Established importers now have their business down to such a fine point that one runs hardly any risk in placing an order at the most convenient time. A specially constructed house is not required for orchids. Many of the erroneous impressions respecting the difficulties attending the culture of these plants have been removed by some intelligent growers who handle them very satisfactorily with palms, ferns, roses, etc.

Freezing, Steaming and Drying Soil To Destroy Eel Worms.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—My attention has been called to an article in the AMERICAN FLORIST of June 10, by W. N. Rudd, entitled "Freezing and Steaming Soil To Destroy Eel Worms," in which the writer expresses surprise that the freezing method was not more strongly recommended in bulletin 55 of the Hatch Experiment Station, Amherst, Mass., as such a method would be considerably cheaper than the annoying one of steaming the soil.

We are willing to acknowledge that more attention might have been paid to the freezing method, but the reason why more attention was not paid to this method was because we had known of instances where it has failed when tried by practical growers. As a result of this failure we were led to exercise some caution and perhaps did not give the method as much attention as seemed desirable. We do not consider this failure by certain growers in applying this method to contradict the statement which we have made in our bulletin, viz, that freezing kills parasitic nematodes and their eggs, but is only an evidence of the carelessness with which remedies are sometimes applied. It is owing to this carelessness in applying remedies, this lack of acumen and attention to details, which renders co-operative experiments frequently unsatisfactory to men who have been trained in scientific methods. There are many instances where remedies prove absolute when applied with a reasonable amount of skill, which too often fail when applied by guesswork.

The failure of the freezing method led the writer to advocate a better and more absolute one, viz., by heating, inasmuch as by the use of such a method numerous other pests are destroyed in the soil which are troublesome and the soil is rendered far more effectual by this process, a fact which has been demonstrated many times on various crops. The various details, moreover, connected with the freezing method advocated by Mr. Rudd we consider open to objection. The labor and expense involved in removing the soil from the benches and top of the ground underneath and scalding hot water applied to every part of the house, benches, walks, posts and ground underneath the benches; whitewashing all rough wood work or treating the same with crude oil or kerosene; the application of lime wash to which sulphur is added to the inside of the benches, would be more expensive and far less effective in our judgment than putting two-inch tiles in the benches and attaching a steam boiler to them and treating the soil once for all. The steaming method does not require removing the soil and everything except some of the more resistant bacteria will be killed; besides the soil is rendered more available for germination and growth. If one owns a steam boiler so much the better, but, as in our experiments, where we had to hire a portable boiler, the heating method is far more effective, less troublesome and cheaper than the method recommended in the columns of your paper.

There are some things which the treatment recommended by Mr. Rudd will not do. Freezing will not kill certain troublesome fungi, as we have already demonstrated, and I doubt whether it has any effect on the red spider or aphis; neither can we regard lime and sulphur used as a wash as effectual agents against nematodes and fungi. We have observed the mycelium of certain destructive fungi growing upon the surface of soils which were well covered with sulphur and lime and charcoal, and we have completely covered the surface of inoculated prune agar tubes to the depth of about one-thirty-second part of an inch with these substances without apparently causing any ill effect upon fungus growth. We believe that some method of disinfection or fumigation, as mentioned by Mr. Rudd, is very desirable whatever process is used in treating the soil. We have been experimenting for some time with gas, etc., in unemployed greenhouses with the hope of finding some efficient remedy for both fungi and insects, but our experiments are not yet completed. So far, however, we have found nothing much superior to burnt sulphur.

There is one method of combating nematodes which we mentioned in our bulletin as giving promise of becoming a cheaper and more efficient method than either the freezing or steaming process. This is the method of desiccation or drying the soil directly in the house, thus obviating the troublesome labor of emptying the beds. The great majority of truck houses in our section lie idle during the hot summer days and if the house is closed tightly and the soil forked over two or three times during this period it will become completely dry and all nematode life will disappear. We have repeatedly demonstrated the effectiveness of this method on a small scale and we are convinced that when properly done we have the cheapest and best method for nematode control which has yet been suggested.

During the past year we have been able to obtain results on a larger scale than heretofore by the use of this method and it has proved entirely satisfactory thus far. One of the houses we experimented in did not have benches and was devoted to cucumbers, the roots of which were completely covered with galls during the winter of 1898, some of them being one and one-half inches in diameter, and in many instances could be seen protruding above the surface of the soil. The house, during a short time last summer, was closed up, the earth forked over once or twice so as to become dry and cucumbers were again planted in the fall. During the present season, as a result of this treatment, the plants have been entirely free from nematodes. It would seem from our experiments that desiccation has more disastrous effects upon insects and fungi than freezing. According to the present state of our knowledge concerning the problem of nematode control we will offer the following conclusions in regard to parasitic species of heterodera:

1. Nematodes (heterodera) and their more resistant eggs cannot stand the severity of our northern winters and thoroughly freezing the soil is a remedy for their suppression.

2. The application of live steam through porous tile laid directly in benches for a sufficient time to secure an even temperature of some 180° to 200° Fahrenheit is sufficient to kill heterodera and its eggs.

3. Thorough drying or desiccation of the soil for the period of a few weeks will rid it of heterodera and its eggs. This latter constitutes the cheapest and best method so far used by us.

4. All chemical remedies are failures so far as known.

KALANCHOE FLAMMEA.

Kalanchoe Flammea.

This new and beautiful greenhouse plant was one of the principal attractions at the exhibition of hybrids and new plants held at Chiswick, July 11, in conjunction with the conference on hybridization. A group of about fifty plants was staged by the Royal Gardens, Kew, where this species first flowered in 1897, having been raised from seeds collected in Somaliland two years previously by Mrs. Phillips and Miss Cole, travelers and botanists. A figure of the plant was published in the Botanical Magazine, May, 1898, (t. 7595).

The genus kalanchoe numbers about fifty species, chiefly African, with a few Indian. None of those previously introduced into cultivation have won recognition as useful garden plants, the best of them being K. crenata, K. marmorata, K. grandiflora and K. carnea. In general appearance these plants resemble some of the better known crassulas, and the new introduction may be placed along with the useful C. coccinea which finds favor with most growers of greenhouse plants. The requirements of the two under cultivation may be said to be identical and a successful grower of the crassula need not hesitate to essay the kalanchoe.

The history of the plant whilst under cultivation at Kew is as follows: From the single example, a small one, which flowered in 1897, a batch of about 300 plants were raised, chiefly from leaf cuttings and small basal shoots which were developed on the plant after flowering. As these grew their tops were taken off and rooted and it would have been easy to have raised 1000 plants in the time had they been required. Whilst under propagation the plants were kept in a warm house on a shelf near the glass. In May last year they were removed into a sunny, airy greenhouse where the conditions were such as are afforded to young fancy pelargoniums. They did not flower that year. During the winter they were kept on the dry side and freely ventilated when the weather was favorable. By April last or when they were from eighteen months to two years old, they were sturdy, leafy plants about a foot high with from one to six erect shoots, according to the number of times the growths had been stopped. At that time the ends of the shoots narrowed and shot up into flower heads, the largest of which were nearly a foot across. The most shapely specimens were those which had only one stem, although every plant when in flower was what is known as useful in form, requiring no support, the stem covered with bright green leaves and the flowers elevated on long, slender, wiry, self-supporting stalks. The plants were in full flower the first week in June and they are not past yet (July 27). The flowers are about three-fourths of an inch across, fleshy in substance and colored a brilliant salmon scarlet. As in the case of Crassula coccinea, the flowers of the kalanchoe do not fade if cut and left dry for hours.

Seeds are ripened abundantly by the cultivated plants and as they germinate in a few days no difficulty will be experienced in raising plenty of plants. They should be sown in February or March along with such seeds as begonia, gloxinia, etc. It is not unlikely that the old plants if cut back will grow into large specimens; that, however, has yet to be proved. With the exception of a dozen plants kept for the Kew collection the whole stock has been secured by J. Veitch & Sons, Chelsea, who intend to distribute the seeds next spring.

The illustration reproduced herewith from a photograph taken by S. Grimshaw in the Royal Gardens, Kew, represents a single plant in a 5-inch pot, much reduced. A first-class certificate and a silver gilt flora medal were awarded to the plant by the Royal Horticultural Society.

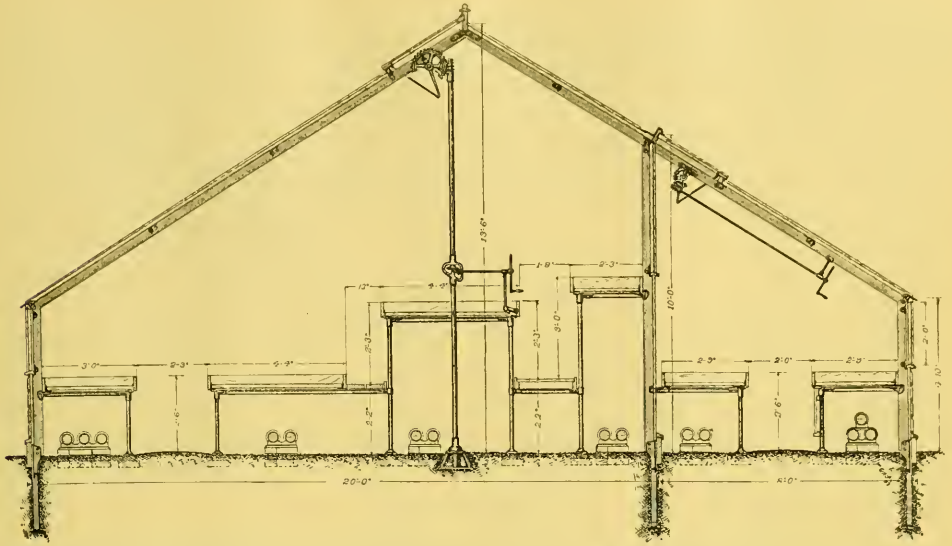
Heliconia Sanderi.

This is a new and distinct species and received a first-class certificate at the Temple show of this year in London. It has the same free habit as is seen in Heliconia aureo-striata and H. illustris. The foliage, however, is beautifully marked with pure white, in some instances almost over the entire surface of the leaf, while others are marked with numerous white lines on a green ground. It will make a splendid acquisition to our ornamental stove plants.

OWATONNA, MINN.—Lord & Johnson have closed their down town store until September 1. Their roses and carnations for fall and winter blooming are in fine shape and they expect a prosperous season.

HELICONIA SANDERI.



WITH THE GROWERS.

JACKSON & PERKINS CO., NEWARK, N. Y.

The home grounds and greenhouses of this enterprising firm were visited by your representative recently. A bright view presents itself on approaching the neatly kept grounds surrounding the residence of Mr. Perkins; everything is tidy and trim and the walks, lawn, beds, border and shrubbery give evidence of careful and continuous attention. Of special interest were several pillars of the Crimson Rambler rose eight or ten feet high and covered on all sides, from top to bottom, with immense clusters of flowers. I had seen large specimens of this grand rose before, but none could compare with these as to an even distribution of bloom on the lower parts of the plants. Usually the bloom is produced from the middle of the plant upward, while the lower parts are but sparingly furnished with foliage or flower sprays. Judicious pruning and liberal treatment will do wonders for this plant, as is demonstrated here.

A little farther along is the office building, where I found every man unexpectedly busy, though after a short interval Mr. Perkins found time to show me around. First to be inspected were the frost-proof buildings, where nursery stock is stowed away in winter. Packing goes on here without interruption in the coldest weather. Three separate air spaces in the walls effectually prevent frost from entering the buildings and even in zero weather no difficulty has been experienced in keeping the temperature at or a trifle above freezing point. An immense quantity of nursery stock, such as is grown here, can be stored in these spacious cellars, as they are called, and the advantage of being able to fill any order at any time prevents too great an accumulation of spring orders. From these buildings I was led to several 250-foot houses covered with lath, in which are grown in pots large numbers of Hydrangea Otaksa, H. paniculata (in tree shape), Viburnum plicatum, lilacs and various other shrubs used by florists for winter forcing, all now making a fine growth in the protecting shade. Later in the season the laths will be removed in order that the new wood may be thoroughly matured.

In the long range of greenhouses I saw the second batch of roses in 2½ inch pots just starting into new growth; the first lot propagated was planted out some time ago. Over 500,000 roses are grown here annually, principally the leading hybrid perpetuals and the Ramblers. Varieties which do not make strong or rapid growth in this soil and climate are sent out to California, where a son of Mr. Perkins superintends the planting and cultivation of the stock. An excellent growth is made by all the California plants in a single season and thus the firm is enabled to supply extra strong plants on their own roots of many varieties which in other establishments are only to be had budded on Manetti. Another specialty is the clematis, a complete assortment of the large-flowering varieties being grown from single-eye cuttings. I saw about 100,000 of these cuttings in the propagating frames, most of them now well rooted. Several men were engaged in potting them off and I had an excellent opportunity to observe the success with which they are propagated here. Many rows were taken from the sand before my eyes, every cutting a mass of bristly roots at the base. Whether all varieties form roots with the same freedom under the management of Jackson & Perkins' propagator, whose skill in this particular branch is so remarkable, I am not prepared to state; but as sash after sash was lifted in the long ranges of frames, I came to the conclusion that one variety looked as promising as another, and not a decayed or damaged leaf could be noticed on any of the cuttings. From 150,000 to 200,000 has been the annual output lately, but the figures are increasing every season. C. paniculata is grown in large quantity from seeds, also Ampelopsis Veitchii.

Cuttings of a large assortment of ornamental shrubs are now in frames, many frames being devoted to Viburnum plicatum, all in the best possible condition. The remaining propagating frames are filled with rose cuttings. No propagating frame or bench is allowed to stand vacant very long at this season. When space is cleared the old sand and manure are taken out, replaced by fresh material and more cuttings inserted. Quite a stock of small and medium sized plants of Cryptomeria Japonica, the Japanese cedar, are grown in one of the houses. In this state they bear some resemblance to Araucaria excelsa at first glance, though the branches are more erect in habit and not produced in whorls. The plant responds readily to pot culture and is a faster but not so symmetrical a grower as the araucaria, though as a cheap substitute for the latter it may have a future. Another house is devoted to the blackberry Rathbun in pots, the plants being grown in this way because they produce more fibrous roots under this treatment than by outdoor culture. Among the novelties is also an English red currant, the berries of which it is claimed attain the size of ordinary grapes. A number of Wichuraiana seedlings will probably be distributed next year, one of them a remarkably free bloomer, with very double flowers of a soft, light pink shade, produced in large clusters and very fragrant and lasting. Another of more upright habit—perhaps a cross with some hybrid tea—has large, well formed, double, silvery pink flowers and withstood the past severe winter unprotected and unharmed. Several large flowering clematis seedlings of various shades will be probably introduced to the trade next spring. Every eye is being utilized in working up a stock, so that I had no opportunity to judge of the flowers, though they are said to be great improvements on older sorts.

The original or home grounds comprise about thirty acres of land, but in addition 200 acres or thereabouts have been acquired in different sections and every foot is utilized and planted to ornamental stock. The firm does a strictly wholesale business, selling only to dealers, nurserymen and florists. The stock sent out is invariably of the best quality, unless an inferior grade is expressly ordered. By adhering firmly to this rule the house has in a comparatively short time established a reputation as to reliability which could not have been gained otherwise in a lifetime.

J. B. K.

A Modern Commercial Greenhouse.

The accompanying illustration shows one of Lord & Burnham Co.'s model full-span greenhouses, twenty-eight feet wide, divided by a glass and ceiling partition into two compartments. It shows their latest construction for this purpose. The large compartment is practically a three-quarter span house to run east and west, while the smaller compartment gives an ideal propagating pit on the back or north side. Being built together they give these added advantages: With an ordinary three-quarter span house the north side is very much exposed, while in this case it is practically sheltered by the warm compartment at its back. On the other hand, the propagating pit instead of being exposed to the sun on the south is shaded by the main house, this being generally conceded by florists and gardeners as an advantage to the cuttings. In this way the two are made to serve each other.

The frame is of the most improved iron construction throughout. Cast iron foot pieces serve as the supports for the iron rafters in place of a masonry foundation. They are securely bolted to the rafters, and by having a large, flat base, give ample support and at the same time furnish a very secure anchor. The patent angle iron eave plate, for which great things are claimed, on account of its strength and ice-clearing properties, is a detail to which we call attention, and it is recommended by this firm to take the place of gutters for commercial houses. With some eave details owners and gardeners have complained that the ice would form at this point (in very bad weather) backing up so as to break off the bottom lights, and in a case where side glass or vent sash were used, would form a screen which very effectually shaded the front bed. With a view to overcoming these disadvantages the Lord & Burnham Co. has invented and patented this angle iron eave plate, which, they claim, fully overcomes the difficulties, for as one face of the angle iron is exposed to the heat of the interior it is kept warm enough to melt any ice which might otherwise collect.

The cast-iron gutter over the partition is a feature of the construction peculiar to this house. The ventilators in the pit are not usually made continuous, and this gutter effectually sheds the water collecting on the glass above the vents to the glass between them. As much of the under surface of this gutter is exposed to the heat of the interior, it also is kept warm enough to clear itself of all ice that might collect. This keeps the ventilators in the pit free to act in the most severe weather.

Attention should be called to the ventilating machinery, which is strong, durable and simple of operation. The propagating house ventilators are operated by the firm's Standard apparatus, while for the machinery shown in the center an important improvement is claimed. As regards the use of lines of vents at the ridge the pipe support which extends from the cast-iron foot piece to the yoke which holds the gear supports the weight of the machinery at that point and incases the steel rod which carries the power from the set of bevel gears. These bevel gears reduce the exertion required to raise the ventilators by one-half and are a very important feature where long, heavy lines are in operation.

The beds are also of the most improved pattern and consist of a frame of angle iron, supported by pipe legs or by legs securely bolted to the rafters. The sides are generally made of clear cypress, and in this case the bottoms are made of the same material, but a tile bottom especially adapted to the purpose is often substituted.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

CULTURAL NOTES.

We are now coming to the season for selecting our buds and it depends largely on the condition the plants are in which is the best bud to take. It is also necessary to take into consideration the color, form and habit of the variety and the mode of culture to which it has been subjected. Most of the early stock has had the crown rubbed out and is now making what we term the second crown bud. It is best to be sure you understand the requirements of the variety before taking the early buds and to allow the buds to get large enough to handle without bruising before you undertake to disbud. The following varieties are forming their buds and in every case it is the second crown bud which we have found to give the best results.

Yellow Queen is one of the first; April struck cuttings planted in the early part of June are now nearly four feet in height The later planted stock of this variety will not have the buds ready before the end of August, which makes them much later in maturing and while this is a fine early sort it is not good enough to compete with Major Bonnaflon or Henry Hurrell and should be out of the way before these are ready.

Mrs. Jerome Jones is another which is budding. Some of them formed their second buds two weeks ago and these were removed, allowing the plants to run on to the terminal bud, which is the one that comes pink with this variety. The buds which are forming now will be retained and will produce the white form of this variety.

With Henry Nanz, the bronze sport of Mrs. Jerome Jones, we select the terminal bud, the flower from the earlier bud being too pale.

If you have Mayflower at the required height and strength any buds that are "ripe" about August 15 may be selected; these will make an incurved form.

Frank Hardy is another which we are given to understand makes the best blooms from buds selected about August 12. This is the first season we have grown this variety and at this time it bids fair to run away with every other white here. Our few plants of it are over five feet high. We understand it to be a regular glutton and feed accordingly.

It will be a week or ten days before Golden Wedding and Major Bonnaffon show the bud. Ivory and its sport have had two buds removed, these being kinds which form a bud every little while during their growing season. No buds have been retained so far, but the ones we are after are visible. Almost all of the pink varieties are best from the terminal buds, which give them a much better color, and the same may be said of all the red and bronze varieties.

The plants will take a considerable amount of food from now until the color of the petals commences to show but do not apply the fertilizer too strong while the bud is very small. Gradually increase the strength as the bud swells but at no time should the liquid be watery, or, in other words, have no life in it; let it have substance enough to keep the plants moving. Now is the time to get rid of any insect pests. C. W. JOHNSON.

Helpful Reminders.

Every nook and corner around your place is adapted to some variety of hardy plant. Shady corners and wet places around most greenhouse establishments are anything but pretty and for many perennials these peculiar situations are better than an open field, besides you will continually be digging up a 25-cent root of something from a corner that never yielded you anything before, or cutting some flowers that break the monotony of the usual store stock.

It is more satisfactory to grow many of your perennials from seed. Start this month, sow in flats and while the seedlings are growing prepare the beds. Dig deeply and work in plenty of fertilizer. When the seedlings are large enough to handle, plant them out in rows in the irregular borders and patches around your place and arrange to give them a light covering before very hard frost. They should be in place early enough to make some growth before winter, which they will easily do if you start them at once. The roots increase rapidly and the digging of an occasional root is hardly missed, but if considerable trade is expected it pays to pot off the seedlings not bedded and carry them over winter in a cold pit; the pot plants will sell well the following spring and they are less labor than a good geranium. Do not waste time on a poor variety; get good seed at any price or none at all.

Geraniums that are left over should be shifted to good-sized pots and grown for fall; any that do not sell are good for cutting up for young stock. But there is sale for fine specimen geraniums; the name is common, but the article scarce.

Cyperus should be potted now, if you have seedlings, and old plants should be divided or shifted to a larger-sized pot.

If you have had any trouble in your heating system, now is the time to remedy it. C. B. W.

WIRE SUSPENDER FOR POTS.

Some Useful Contrivances.

As in all other lines of activity, the inventor is unceasingly at work in the interest of florists and floriculture. Many of his productions are crude and useless, but occasionally an idea is hit upon which proves of untold value in this field of labor. We here call attention to a few recent contrivances in the hope that at least some of them may prove helpful to our readers:

WIRE SUSPENDER FOR POTS.

It is often desirable to grow plants in pots or pans on benches for a time, and at other seasons suspend them from the roof. Colin Ogston, of the Kimball Gardens, Rochester, N. Y., calls our attention to a handy, cheap and serviceable arrangement for the purpose, as herewith illustrated. Mr. Ogston says: "It is now extensively used by Siebrecht & Son, of New Rochelle, N. Y. It can be made in any suitable size of soft or hard wire, and the operation is so simple that with a little practice one can make them as quickly as they can be attached by another man. By using a wooden block of the size required great speed can be made with them, and they are certainly safe. It is my own idea."

A DRIP MOULDING.

A new device offered by the John C. Moninger Company is the drip moulding shown in the accompanying illustration. This is a strip of cypress worked into the inside of the sill on the gutter and is grooved sufficiently to catch and carry away all condensation on the glass and bars and any leakage which may run down the inside of the glass. The moulding is made with what is known as a tongue and groove splice at the ends and when put on is practically one piece. This dispenses with the water pools which accumulate at the posts and is being quite generally adopted, all the more willingly as it can be added to a house at trifling cost.

SOIL CRUSHER.

The accompanying illustration clearly shows the mechanism and utility of the soil crusher manufactured by the Florists' Supply Company, North Tonawanda, N. Y. The quantity of soil now used in the average commercial place renders some such machine an absolute necessity, if one intends to keep pace with the times. This No. 2 machine differs from No. 1 of the same firm chiefly in size, strength and capacity, being stronger and larger in every respect. The larger machine is not yet on the market, but it will soon be ready.

CYCLONE SPRAY PUMP.

Stevens & Co., of New York, the manufacturers, claim many things for this spraying apparatus. The trouble with nearly all the spraying machines is not that they are difficult to put in proper shape, but rather that they are generally out of working order when needed. Every grower in the country has frequent use for a good spray pump and if this new one can be depended upon it will fill a long felt want.

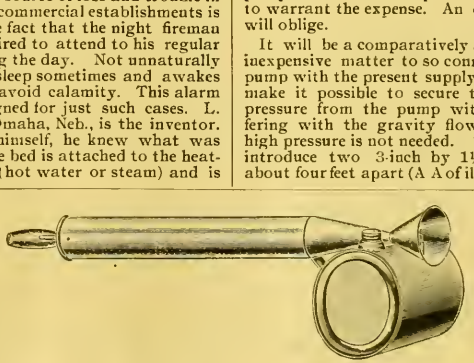
EDERER'S ALARM BED.

A frequent source of loss and trouble in many small commercial establishments is found in the fact that the night fireman is also required to attend to his regular duties during the day. Not unnaturally he goes to sleep sometimes and awakes too late to avoid calamity. This alarm bed is designed for just such cases. L. Ederer, of Omaha, Neb., is the inventor. A fireman himself, he knew what was needed. The bed is attached to the heating system (hot water or steam) and is operated efficiently, but without injury to the sleeper, by means of a safety valve. The Omaha florists speak well of the bed.

PUMP AND TANK CONNECTIONS.

GARLAND'S IRON GUTTER.

The valley gutter and drip conductor, made of cast iron, has been designed and patented by George M. Garland, Des Plaines, Ill. This device is now used in many important greenhouse establishments, Lincoln Park, Chicago, among the number. Those who have had experience with it say the gutter is very satisfactory. The principal advantages claimed are that it lasts much longer than the ordinary gutter; that it affords more light, is more quickly cleared of snow with no breakage of glass, formation of ice, or drip from condensation.



NEW REFRIGERATORS.

Retail florists can hardly get along nowadays without something of the refrigerator order, and in most cases it should be attractive as well as useful. The new syphon refrigerator now being placed on the market by the White Enamel Refrigerator Company, of St. Paul, Minn., is certainly attractive, and it is claimed to be constructed on a principle which renders it economical of ice and of the greatest possible utility as a preserver of the contents. Well known florists speak very favorably of it.

Pump and Tank Connections.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I am seeking information of a somewhat complicated character. My water supply comes from an elevated tank about thirty feet high to extreme height, consequently there is only about fifteen pounds of pressure when the tank is quite full. Under certain conditions this does not furnish the desired pressure. Can I increase the pressure with any degree of practicability by adding a force pump to the supply pipe? Said supply pipe is known as 3-inch pipe. Could it be so arranged that when needed I could have a man or two work the pump and increase the pressure sufficient to warrant the expense. An early reply will oblige. D. E.

It will be a comparatively simple and inexpensive matter to so connect a force pump with the present supply pipe as to make it possible to secure the desired pressure from the pump without interfering with the gravity flow when the high pressure is not needed. To do this introduce two 3-inch by 1½ inch tees about four feet apart (A A of illustration) in the supply pipe and connect the higher one with the suction and the lower one with the discharge pipe of a force pump at B. A gate valve (C) should be placed in the main pipe between the tees. If this is closed when the pump is used, a good pressure can be secured.

CARNATIONS.

INDOOR GROWN CARNATIONS.

Our earliest planted stock has made fine growth, the foliage has a rich color, with new shoots breaking out from every branch, and the roots have spread well through the soil. This is very satisfactory thus far but from now on the plants will require every encouragement. They must not be allowed to dry out severely and it is important that the soil be in one condition clear through.

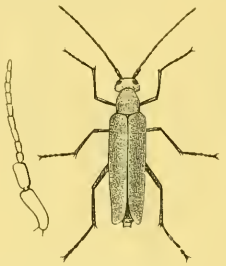
It is well not to be always governed by the looks of the soil at the surface, as we often find that the tops of the beds appear dry enough to require a watering, but by digging down a little the soil is found to be plenty moist. At this season we give the plants a syringing on every bright day and dampen the walks at the same time.

We believe in a good firm soil for carnations and if the beds are at all loose we go over them at this time, making the soil as even and as firm as we can, after which a light surface cultivation is given every little while to keep the soil open and prevent its baking.

If the plants are in vigorous growth they will need to be watched closely so that they do not become drawn. Give them all the ventilation possible day and night without any shading whatever. We allow full sunlight for all of our plants and on the front benches close to the glass, where we often find it too hot to work comfortably, the plants are equally as good as those on the other side of the houses. The shoots must be pinched back before they get too long so as to form an even, stocky plant and when topped on time they will break away much more readily.

We tried some plants of Flora Hill this season, planting them from the sand to soil in frames outside as we were short of room at that time. They were lifted and planted in the house about July 12 but have suffered considerably from stem rot, whereas, with the stock grown in pots, we have been free from it entirely. Again, the plants from soil did not take hold nearly so well as the pot-grown stock.

CHAS. W. JOHNSON.



A New Carnation Pest.

On the occasion of a recent visit to the establishment of the Chicago Carnation Company, at Joliet, Ill., Manager Hartshorne called our attention to the ravages of an insect which, hitherto, has not been known to attack carnations. This pest has appeared in large numbers at Joliet during the present season. It eats flowers and foliage indiscriminately, cleaning up everything of this character in its path, and is certainly very destructive to carnations. The insect proves to be the ash-gray blister beetle (Macrobasis unicolor), figured herewith from the Yearbook of the Department of Agriculture for 1898. The female beetle is shown at the right, twice natural size; the antenna of the male at the left, greatly enlarged. The following account of the insect is taken from the publication already specified:

"The most troublesome blister-beetle enemy of legumes in the east is the one here figured. This beetle is elongate in form, rather soft-bodied, and of a uniform ash-gray color, produced by a dense covering of minute hairs of this shade. It inhabits the entire eastern United States from Canada, New England and South Dakota to Florida and Texas, extending westward to Kansas and Nebraska.

"This species does severe injury to beans and peas by devouring the leaves, and the past year it was found upon cowpeas and soy beans at Washington. Of other legumes it attacks clover, locust and honey locust, and numerous wild plants, such as lupines, astragalus, and wild indigo. It is quite a serious enemy of the potato, and has been reported by department correspondents to do damage to tomatoes, sweet potatoes, anemones and chrysanthemums. The beetles are actively destructive for a month or more. In the latitude of the District of Columbia they make their appearance about the middle of June and farther north from one to four weeks later.

"In their life history blister beetles differ greatly from other coleoptera in that they undergo a more complicated series of metamorphoses. The class to which this species belongs feeds upon the eggs of locusts or grasshoppers. The blister-beetle eggs are laid on the plants or upon the ground. From each hatches a small long-legged larva, called a 'triungulin,' which runs actively about in search of a grasshopper egg-pod, which it enters and feeds upon. After a time it casts its skin and assumes what is called the 'carabidoid' larval stage, and when it next molts it resembles a white grub, the 'scarabæidoid' larval stage. When a larva has finished its quota of locusts' eggs, it undergoes a third molt and forms within its own skin what is known as the 'coarctate' larval stage or 'pseudo-pupa,' and in this condition usually passes the winter. In the spring the fourth and ultimate larval molt takes place, and with the fifth molt the insect enters upon the true pupal stage, and in due time transforms to a beetle.

MACROBASIS UNICOLOR.
(Chittenden, Yearbook Dept. of Agr., 1898.)

"Blister beetles are not an unmixed evil, since they do some good in their larval stage to compensate in a measure for the harm they occasion to our crops; for the habit of the larvæ of feeding upon grasshopper eggs renders them of very material aid in keeping these pernicious insects in check. This is especially true of the western states, where both blister beetles and grasshoppers abound. But the benefit derived from the insect while in its larval stage is really more than counterbalanced by the loss it occasions in fields and gardens; hence insecticides or other measures should be employed to destroy the beetles when they occur in harmful numbers.

REMEDIES.

"Paris green is one of the best remedies for blister beetles when they occur on potatoes and most other crops. It may be applied dry, mixed with from ten to twenty parts of flour, plaster, or air-slaked lime, or in the form of a spray, also mixed with lime or Bordeaux mixture, at the rate of a quarter of a pound of the poison to forty gallons of the diluent. But, unfortunately, in the use of an arsenite upon beans there is difficulty in obtaining a dry mixture or solution sufficiently strong for the destruction of the insects which will not endanger the plants by burning or scalding. The addition of lime mitigates this to a certain extent. Repeated applications are sometimes necessary, since the poisoned beetles are replaced by others. A remedy which is employed with success in the western states consists in sending a line of men and boys through infested fields to drive the beetles, by short flights and running, before them until they alight in windrows of hay, straw, or other dry vegetable material which have previously been prepared along the leeward side of the field. When the beetles have taken refuge in such a windrow it is fired and the beetles are burned. After what has been said concerning the voracity of these beetles it is almost superfluous to add that whatever remedy is employed should be applied at the outset of attack in order to be of substantial value."

MR. HARTSHORNE'S EXPERIENCES.

Referring to his efforts to banish or destroy these troublesome beetles, Mr. Hartshorne says: "In attempting to get rid of the insects attacking the young plants outdoors, I first tried air-slaked lime, dusting it over the foliage, but this did not have much effect. Next I tried boiling tobacco stems and spraying the extract over them, which seemed to drive them away some. I then tried a compound put up by the National Mining and Milling Company, called Basofine Gray Mineral Ash, which is dissolved in boiling water, and after applying same a gray scum was left upon the foliage. In twenty-four hours after the first application hardly a beetle remained, so I judge from the experiment that the latter preparation did the business, and it does not seem to injure the plants. I have not destroyed the beetles entirely as yet, as they have made an advance on the old plants indoors, and are eating up the flowers about as fast as they open in one or two of the houses. Fumigation with tobacco seems only to knock them down, and the next morning they rise again apparently with as much vigor as ever. However, I am about to throw out our old plants now, so do not mind them much."

Cleveland.

No business of any account is being done at present. The street railroad strike that has been on here for the past three weeks seems to be wearing off slowly and possibly with its departure there may be some very slight improvement, although it came at a time that worked the minimum injury to the florist business.

A. Graham & Son are erecting one new house 23x125 to be used for carnations.

STATE OF CUT FLOWER TRADE.—STEAMER TRADE SATISFACTORY.—SUMMER VACATIONISTS.—DEATH OF JAC. BEBUS.—A NEW LILY OF THE VALLEY.—AN EXCURSION.

There is an abundance in the market of everything called for, with the possible exception of orchids, of which a few more might be sold were they obtainable. The call for these, even, is spasmodic and they are by no means certain of a customer at all times. Lily of the valley appears to be on the increase, a quantity of it being seen on the tables of most of the wholesalers every morning, and the sale is far from brisk. Of asters there is a surfeit. Those received now are an improvement on the earlier blooms but they bring less money and the still better goods that are yet to come will have difficulty in reaching the prices of last year unless conditions change considerably. Roses are not badly overstocked for the season but they go at all sorts of figures. Very few carnations are seen. They are mostly of the regulation summer pattern. Steamer trade, which makes about all the order business here at this season, while at no time especially heavy, is holding out longer and more steady than usual.

Many of the hard workers of the craft are still enjoying their summer outing. In addition to those reported as missing last week may be added John I. Raynor, who has gone, with Mrs. Raynor, to Pine Hill. J. K. Allen stands out in front of his Twenty-eighth street mart with a look of wistful dejection on his features that excites one's sympathy and is accounted for by the fact that his faithful bookkeeper, Miss Riley, accompanied by her smile, has gone to the Adirondacks for two weeks. Johnnie Weir also wears an uneasy countenance, for Mrs. Weir and daughter are away at Nantucket, and Ed. C. Horan has taken a modest little trip to Bridgeport.

Jacob G. Bebus, for many years a retail florist on Broadway, and once in the wholesale business in partnership with the late Lou. Patterson on West Twenty-ninth street, died on August 5 at his home, 118 West Eighty-fourth street, after a lingering and painful illness.

H. A. Bunyard has been given the American agency for Laxton Bros., of Bedford, England, to introduce their new large flowered lily of the valley known as the Fortin variety. It is said to be double the size of the best Berlin quality with stems averaging twelve inches.

The members of the Portchester Horticultural Society went on their annual outing on Wednesday of this week to Riverton, N. J., to visit the Dreer nurseries.

Traendly & Schenck are having their store on Twenty-eighth street repainted throughout.

THERE IS LITTLE TO REPORT IN THE CUT FLOWER MARKET.—THINGS REMAIN ABOUT AS INDICATED LAST WEEK, WITH FLOWERS ENOUGH AND TO SPARE IN ALL LINES.—ROSES AVERAGE GOOD FOR THE SEASON.—CARNATIONS ARE SMALL AND ASTERS ARE THE WORST EVER SEEN IN THIS MARKET, A CONDITION ATTRIBUTABLE TO THE DRY SEASON.

Special awards at the Horticultural Society's exhibition on Saturday were a certificate of merit to H. A. Wheeler for superior cultivation of Oncidium sarcodes. Certificate of merit to J. F. Harlow for gladioli Mme. Desbordes Valmore and Baron Joseph Hulot. Certificates of merit to J. E. Rothwell for superior cultivation of hybrid cypripediums Frau Ida Brandt and hybrid Cypripedium Edwardi var. superbum. Honorable mention to Oakes Ames for collection of botanical orchids, and a silver medal to Kenneth Finlayson, gardener to Dr. C. G. Weld, for Watsonia Adernei, a new bulbous flower that as soon as it becomes sufficiently plentiful can not fail to take its place among the staple florist flowers. It blooms in a spike in the way of the gladiolus, the flowers resembling those of the freesia, but larger, scentless and snow white throughout. Gladiolus Baron Joseph Hulot is startling as to color, being a vivid violet purple, unlike any gladiolus ever shown before. It was the regular prize day for annuals and fine displays of these were made by Mrs. John L. Gardner, Mrs. E. M. Gill, C. H. Souther and Jos. Heurlin, notwithstanding the drawback of a very dry season. J. Warren Clark brought a brilliant collection of gladioli and Rea Bros. made an interesting display of hardy phloxes, including a number of the best of Lemoine's hybrids, such as Coquelicot, salmon scarlet, Mars La Tour, white with pink eye, and Lumineux, rosy red. Phloxes were shown by Geo. Hollis, Mrs. J. L. Gardner and James Comley. W. C. Winter showed some seventy named varieties of dahlias in different classes, Norris F. Comley, asters, I. E. Coburn, pansies and C. W. Hoitt a group of lilies including Batemanni and auratum virginale album. A collection of choice flowers from H. H. Hunnewell attracted much attention; in it were a number of choice orchids, Ixora Williamsii and hybrid greenhouse rhododendrons, among the latter being Duchess of Teck, Princess Christian and luteo-rosea.

Robert Morrison, who for the past twenty-two years has been gardener at the Boston Lunatic Hospital, died at his home in South Boston on August 2. He was a native of Sterlingshire, Scotland, and was 81 years of age. Mr. Morrison was gardener for Daniel Webster from 1845 up to the time of the latter's death in 1852, and planted the trees that are growing around Webster's tomb at Marshfield.

Among the most beautiful sights of the year at the Arnold Arboretum are the loniceras in fruit. Just now they are at their best, weighted with brilliant red or scarlet berries and producing a grand effect. The half hardy hydrangeas have made a record for themselves here this year, being well furnished with fine flower heads although they were left out all last winter.

The ponds at the Arnold Arboretum are at present the most attractive features of the place, and Jackson Dawson can usually be found in the vicinity feasting his eyes on the picture which he has created. Great masses of magenta Lythrum Salicaria with clumps of Hibiscus Moscheutos and rushes fringe the irregular banks, and the nelumbiums and nymphaeas are simply gorgeous.

J. Welch is back from his well-earned vacation, sun-browned and sturdy.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE CONVENTION TRIP.—HALF A HUNDRED ARE ASSURED.—BUSINESS QUIET.—THE MATTER OF POPULAR PRICES TO BE TESTED BY BATTLES.—STORE FITTED FOR THE PURPOSE.—OTHER MATTERS.

Convention time is almost here and the transportation committee has at last decided to go by the Black Diamond Express, which leaves the Reading terminal, at noon Monday next, and must travel at the rate of a mile a minute or better, as the schedule time calls for fifty-seven miles an hour, including stops. This should be swift enough for the most enterprising. Secretary Lonsdale has sent each member of the club a circular with all particulars, so that all should be on time. Tickets and sleeping car berths are to be had of David Rust, who has these important matters in charge. Most of the party will stop over at Niagara coming home, their tickets carrying this privilege. At present writing over fifty names are on the roll, and it is expected that there will be sixty or more before the hour of starting; a very good delegation considering the distance. Lots of good things are to be provided by Gen. Westcott, who is never happier than when he is attending to the comforts of others.

Business is moving along in the usual August fashion. There seems to be plenty of stock for the light demand. Some of the summer houses are a trifle off crop, and the roses smaller. Robt. Craig & Son's Kaiserins are blooming very freely; they are the same gratted stock he forced last summer, which he kept dormant over the winter. He is much pleased with the result.

The question of selling cut flowers at popular prices in the retail stores is one that has caused considerable discussion in the past, many growers claiming that considerably more flowers could be sold if the dealers would be satisfied with less profit. There are many pros and cons and situations possible that it is thought might follow such a plan if it were carried out. Whether it will be successful or not, it is at least to be tried by H. H. Battles, who has fitted up a store within a few doors of his own, not to be run in his name, but to be called, we believe, the Century Flower Store. Popular prices will prevail. Spot cash is to be paid for all stock handled, which will be the best of the lower grades. Plants that can for various reasons be purchased at a low figure and sold at bargain, or what appear to be bargain, prices, will also be handled. The store is very nicely fitted up with the necessary counters and shelves, but no refrigerator. Pictures and mirrors adorn the walls, and it goes without saying that cleanliness will be one of the salient features. The outcome of this venture will be watched with interest, as the problem of the surplus may be solved in this way.

Robt. Craig & Son have selected a fine line of samples from their stock for their exhibit at the convention; they appear to be as well grown as it is possible to get such plants in their sizes. H. A. Dreer Company will also have a choice exhibit, which will be in charge of W. B. Mott.

E. J. Paddock, of Cleveland, was in the city the past week. He looks well and says business is all right in his city, barring the railroad strike, which at another season would have affected them seriously. Mr. Wagner, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., was also with us and enjoyed an evening at the club room. K.

A DULL MARKET SEES A SCARCITY OF ROSES.—LITTLE LOCAL DEMAND.—ASTERS MEET THE CALL FOR MORTUARY DESIGNS.—MUCH BUILDING BEING DONE.—GRIST OF PERSONAL JOTTINGS.

The market has been dull this week but there have been a number of fair shipping orders and they have cleared up every available rose, no matter what its quality. Funeral work has been the extent of the local use for flowers and for this asters have sufficed, and there are many of these. There is the usual heterogeneous mass of garden flowers which have been picked over for window decoration and the balance sent out through the fakirs.

There is quite a bit of building going on about town. The Rose Hill Orphan Asylum is adding three houses 22x290 and a palm house 20x60. J. F. Kidwell & Bro., are building a show house 20x 175. The Chas. Held place is being extended by an even span house 22x102, Damm Bros. are putting up a house 24x 45 and the range of glass at Humboldt Park is being increased by four houses 19x60.

Mrs. Wittbold, step mother of George Wittbold, died in Augustana Hospital August 4, after an operation for cancer. She was in her seventy-seventh year. The funeral was held on Tuesday.

The Moninger Company reports this season the best in the history of the firm. They now have a capacity of five 20x100-foot houses per day.

E. C. Amling has been confined to his home for a week, threatened with typhoid fever. He had planned to attend the convention.

At Wittbold's they are preparing to build a new house 25x125, using Garland's iron gutter. Otto Wittbold went to Detroit Thursday by boat.

Mrs. J. B. Deamud has been ill this week but expects to be recovered by Monday at 12:02 p. m.

C. S. Stewart has returned from Paw Paw Lake, Mich., where he spent last week.

Arnold Ringier is in the east but will probably be at Detroit next week.

Henry Payne, of the Hinsdale Rose Co., is rusticating in Wisconsin.

B. J. Blameuser and Miss Josephine M. Gerbel were married recently.

Eugene Geisreiter, of the Bell Conservatory Co., Sacramento, Cal., passed through the city August 5 on his way east.

GOOD SUMMER SEASON.—JOTTINGS AMONG THE GROWERS.—MILLER'S NEW CARNATIONS.—ROSES AT DUNLOP'S.—UTLEY HAS SUCCESS WITH SWEET PEAS DESPITE UNFAVORABLE GROWING CONDITIONS.

With one exception the reports of the past season's business are excellent. I found T. Duffort, of Little York, busy erecting a new greenhouse 15x80; evidently business had been prospering there.

Mr. Miller, of Bracondale, is away on a trip to New York with his wife, but his son, Frederic, showed me the new varieties of carnations which he is introducing this season. They are Lady Laurier, an improved Daybreak; Lady Van Horn, a large cherry red; Lady Minto, a fine striped crimson on white, and Lady Macdonald, white. (I had no idea he was so fond of the ladies.) He appears to have about 4,000 plants of these varieties, and, although the season has been hot and dry and he has been able to water but little, they are all in excellent condition. He also showed me a large field of the older sorts and a number of seedlings not yet thoroughly tested, all in fine shape. I observed a fine stock of chrysanthemums, palms, ferns and ficuses, and a large field of tomato plants which I was told had been secured by H. Summers & Sons for seed. The roses are in good condition but not much bloom yet.

George Hollis, of Bracondale, who, by the by, has severed his connection with Miller & Sons and is now on his own account, has a good house of chrysanthemums, not quite so forward as usual, he says. He has put up a small windmill, or air motor, which he reports working well. I noticed some very fair sweet peas here, very good indeed, considering the drought; also some excellent asters and geraniums.

At Dunlop's I found the proprietor ensconced on a lounge, recovering from a severe illness. I had a peep over his fine new dwelling house, finished in the latest style. Here is a field of about 40,000 carnation plants in excellent vigor, and a hurried look at the rose houses showed the plants to be in their usual healthy condition, just coming into bloom. Miss Brown, the courteous manageress of Dunlop's King street store, told me that business had been better than usual at this season of the year. Some good roses were coming in; asters and sweet peas were improving.

Edwin Utley, of Little York, has had a large field of sweet peas growing for seed and, although the heat and drought have been excessive, and he was late in sowing, from May 5 to 10, they have made a grand display of bloom. Burpee's Navy Blue as grown here may be considered one of the best novelties of the season. The six Cupids, grown in the open field without any coddling, have made a beautiful show. The original white variety and the new pink and white dwarf varieties prove to be excellent border plants and are a mass of bloom.

The hot season has proved too much for the Toronto Horticultural Society, and the meetings have been called off until October. S. P.

MONTHLY MEETING OF THE CLUB.—ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—TWENTY-EIGHT CONVENTIONITES.—THE TRAIN SCHEDULE.—BUSINESS QUIET.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held August 10 with a large attendance. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. F. Ammann, president; Chas. A. Kuehn, vice-president; E. Schray, secretary; J. J. Beneke, treasurer; A. S. Halstead, C. C. Sanders and H. G. Ude, trustees.

Twenty-eight from here are going to attend the convention at Detroit, and will leave Monday morning, August 14, at 9 o'clock, over the Wabash. The bowling club will have a strong team and will try hard to bring back the cup.

Business is very quiet, but most of the growers are busy repairing their houses and getting ready for fall trade. F. J. Fillmore is busy planting his carnations in their houses. His plants are better than ever. S. E.

NO STRIKING NOVELTY IN THE LAST EXHIBITION.—USUAL EXCELLENCE IN FLORAL WORK.—WORK ON THE EXPOSITION.—PLANTINGS OF ORNAMENTALS IN PROGRESS.—OTHER NOTES.

There was no novelty of striking character on display at our last Parisian horticultural exhibition. The great exposition not being far away, it may be that our great horticulturists prefer to keep back for next year any world's novelty they may have. In floral work we had as usual, a splendid show. Lachaume, Debric and Moser continue to be the leaders. The latter exhibited a rustic windmill, overlaid with birch bark, to the summit of which elegant clematis were climbing as shown by the accompanying illustration. He secured the medal of honor for his display.

Another artistic composition was a basket of Lilium Harrisii among which delicate shoots of clematis were trailing, showing their mauve and violet flowers to best advantage. As a complement to it a few light adiantums and a large ribbon of a mauve color were added. Orchids continue to be profusely used in floral works, and stately flowers they are. Vilmorin had, as usual, the finest display of garden flowers and vegetables.

The work of the Paris Exposition has been going on steadily since my last letter. Not less than 500 varieties of trees and shrubs, hardy enough under our climate, have been planted and will look next year as healthy as if they had been brought up on the ground. At the foot of the big trees many climbers and flowering shrubs have been planted, which will cover the stems and branches with a great variety of flowers and afford an agreeable effect. PARISIAN.

Worcester, Mass.

The condition of trade remains unchanged but quite an improvement is noticeable in the quality of the flowers. We are receiving some good carnations from September cuttings; Scott and Evelina seem to be good varieties for summer blooming. Carnations in the field are thrifty and the houses are being emptied and cleaned. Housing the field grown stock will begin the first of September; we find we cannot lift as early as some of the carnation experts advocate. Chrysanthemums are looking exceptionally fine and require lots of attention. About the same quantity are being grown as last year.

H. F. A. Lange will join the Boston convention party and there is a likelihood of two or three others attending.

Elmira, N. Y.

The Elmira Horticultural Society has held two successful exhibitions this year. The rose show in June was an advance over the one held last year, both in number of exhibitors and in the quality of the blooms staged. The sweet pea show, held August 3 and 4, was also better than the one last year. The home grown peas showed great improvement but those grown in Cohocton and Avoca were still ahead. It was a grand opportunity to study the novelties. Mr. Charles Larrowe, of Cohocton, showed the entire set of seven Eckford novelties with which he won the Eckford cup at Springfield. The society will now devote its efforts to the chrysanthemum show to be held next November. H. N. H.

Butted Versus Lapped Glass.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—How would it be for William Scott, or some other good fellow who really knows how to do it, to show by practical demonstration those of the members present at the S. A. F. convention, to be held in Detroit, who do not know the right way to glaze a greenhouse when butted glass is used. One "W. S.," in a recent number of your neighborly contemporary, gave a dissertation on butted glass during which he made the statement more than once that those who do not approve of butted glass for commercial greenhouses probably do not lay it the right way. He neglected to attempt to tell just how it should be laid, possibly abiding his time and awaiting an opportunity to be invited to show just how it ought to be done under the circumstances now offered. Boiler and Piping.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have three greenhouses, all running east and west. No. 1 is an even span, 28x170 feet, fifteen feet to ridge and side walls three feet six inches high. The eastern half of this house is used for carnations and the western half for roses. Houses Nos. 2 and 3 are connected with eastern end of No. 1 and used for general stock. No. 2 is 18x50 feet, ten feet to ridge, north wall six feet and south wall four feet high, and No. 3 is 11x50 feet. Replies to the following will be much appreciated.

1. What would be the most practical method of piping the houses where the thermometer falls from 25° to 30° below zero?

2. What size of hot water boiler would you recommend?

3. Could the boiler be placed in the cellar of dwelling house at western end of house No. 1 and if so how deep?

C. D.

1. While the scheme recommended has some objections, it is made almost necessary by the arrangement of the houses and the necessity of maintaining different temperatures in each. We suggest the use of three 3-inch overhead flow pipes, one upon the center posts and the others on purlin posts. One of these mains is to supply the coils in the rose house, another those in the carnation house, and the third is to carry the water to houses No. 2 and No. 3. Just before reaching the end of the carnation house the third main is divided into two 2½-inch pipes, one of which is carried under the ridge to the father end of each house. The coils in house No. 2 can consist of thirteen 1½-inch pipes, while eight will suffice in No. 3. To carry the water from these coils to the west end of the carnation house three 2-inch pipes can be used; one should be along each side and the other through the center of the house. In addition to the two 3 inch flow pipes and three 2-inch returns that pass through the carnation house, nine 2-inch returns will be desirable although eight would perhaps answer. The return can be placed on the walls or under the benches according to the arrangement of the houses. The returns from houses No. 2 and No. 3 can be enlarged to 3-inch and the coils in the carnation house connected with them. If the coils are all upon the walls only two of the returns need be enlarged. In the rose house there will be three 3-inch overhead flow pipes and either three 3-inch returns or two 3-inch and one 2-inch, from the other houses. In the one case ten 2-inch and in the other eleven 2-inch returns will be needed in the rose house. Three 3-inch returns will suffice to take all of the water back to the boiler.

2. Although there will be but about 2400 feet of radiating surface it will be advisable to use a boiler rated for 3000 to 3200 square feet or better yet to take two of one-half the above capacity, as one will suffice in mild weather, and it might save a large loss if one boiler should give out to have another in reserve.

3. There will be no difficulty in heating the greenhouses if the boilers are placed in the cellar of the dwelling if the top of the boilers is one foot or more below the returns. L. R. TAFT.

Springfield, Mass.

The annual sweet pea show of the Hampden County Horticultural Society, held August 1 and 2, was not up to previous years, owing to the unfavorable season, but was, nevertheless, a greater success than had been anticipated. As is not unusual, the exhibit of W. T. Hutchins, Indian Orchard, was the finest in the hall. Mrs. Chas Larrowe, of Cohocton, N. Y., won the Eckford cup for the best display of Eckford novelties. The eight sorts are Sadie Burpee, Lady Grisel Hamilton, Lady Skelmersdale, Mrs. Dugdale, Hon. F. Bouverie, Contess Cadogan, Duke of Westminster and Othello. W. J. Eldred was the largest prize winner and F. A. Blake was on hand with a large winning collection. G. H. Lapham and Ralph Perkins were other successful exhibitors. A. B. Howard staged his Howard's Star petunia in fine form and Mrs. W. J. Eldred exhibited nasturtiums and L. D. Robinson, dahlias.

Butte, Mont.

Business for the season continues fair, weddings and funerals causing considerable demand. Sweet peas and asters are of extra quality.

Elmer Law is making a tour of the east, where he expects to meet Mrs. Law, who has been visiting there for the past two months.

Miss Nellie Fudge has accepted her old position with Law Bros. & Day, who will shortly move into their new and commodious store. M. W.

OBITUARY.

JACOB FREYTAG.

Jacob Freytag, one of Milwaukee's pioneer florists, died Thursday morning, August 10. He had been in business in Milwaukee for thirty-two years and was one of the most prominent and successful florists in Wisconsin. He leaves a wife and grown up family in good circumstances. Mr. Freytag had been in poor health for several years and the business has been conducted by his son William, who will succeed his father.

HENRY BREITENSTEIN.

Henry Breitenstein died at his home in Pittsburg August 1. He was born in Germany about forty years ago, and came to this country when young. At an early age he showed great musical talent and studied under some of the most famous German masters. He was a personal friend of Emile Sauer, and in his younger days associated with Paderewski. He was obliged to give up music on account of his failing health, but was the composer of several songs, which have been favorably mentioned by critics of national reputation.

JAMES GALLOWAY.

James Galloway, whose death at the advanced age of 78 years took place on July 23, was one of the few remaining pioneers of the florist business in Baltimore. He was born August 10, 1821, in Kirkcaldy, Fifeshire, Scotland. In his twentieth year he came to Baltimore and engaged with his uncle, William Stobie, who had a garden and greenhouses about where the First Presbyterian church now stands, corner Park and Madison streets. After two or three years he went to Dr. Edmondson's place as head gardener. From there he went to the place of Mr. Wm. Tiffany. Having a distaste for private places, he, after a short time, engaged in business for himself, renting the greenhouses at the Clairmount Nursery. He next leased ground at Ross and Dolphin streets and started a florist business which he carried on with success for twelve years, until the outbreak of the Civil War, but which he abandoned for a market garden on the Belair road. This he rented from the Ready estate, and here he remained fifteen years, until he purchased the place on Gorsuch avenue and Old York road, Waverly, where he spent the last twenty-three years of his life. He married, while with Mr. Stobie, Miss Isabel Truesdale. They had five daughters, two of whom, Mrs. Chas. Ricker and Mrs. Wm Christie, survive him. His son-in-law Wm. Christie, who carries on the business, has been associated with him for the past thirteen years. Of unassuming manner and conservative and careful in business, few but his most intimate friends knew the sterling character and practical ability concealed beneath his quiet and unpretentious exterior. THE SYPHON REFRIGERATOR FOR FLORISTS.

(PATENTED.)

MANUFACTURED BY The White Enamel Refrigerator Co., ST. PAUL, MINN.

WHITE ENAMEL REFRIGERATOR CO., St. Paul, Minn.

DEAR SIRS:—Since using your ice case in our retail flower department we have saved 30 per cent in the consumption of ice. Our saving in flowers we cannot accurately determine, but should estimate conservatively 25 per cent. Not only this, flowers keep with us as they never did before and retain their salable appearance longer. Your box is certainly a boon to the florists and we predict a wonderful sale on them, especially to the florists, when their qualifications become known.

Yours truly,

L. L. MAY & CO.

ST. PAUL, MINN., December 8, 1898.

WHITE ENAMEL REFRIGERATOR CO., St. Paul,

GENTLEMEN:—The flower refrigerator show case which you put up for us two months ago has proved a big money maker to us.

It has given perfect satisfaction and has done everything you claimed for it.

We can regulate the temperature to whatever point we want it, from almost freezing up.

We are thoroughly satisfied with it.

Yours respectfully,

HOLM & OLSON.

ALEXANDER RODGERS, Pres.; ALBERT MCCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

H. W. BUCKBEE is making a trip to California.

VISITED CHICAGO: J. L. Ullathorne, of the Ullathorne Seed Co., Memphis, Tenn.; F. Barteldes, Lawrence, Kans.

LAWN mowers and garden tools generally will advance twenty to thirty per cent for 1900.

AT the moment of going to press report reaches us of the death of E. Livingston, of the Livingston Seed Co., Columbus, Ohio.

TUBEROSE growers say they have had too much rain; the bulbs have suffered and are not looking as well as they should at this date. They think it is too late to expect a full crop of first size bulbs.

THE American Wholesale Seedsmen's League met at the Astor House, New York city, August 2, and completed their temporary organization. Plans were outlined and formulated for discussion and consideration by full membership when completed. Among the firms represented were D. Landreth & Son, Robt. Buist, J. M. Thorburn & Co., Cleveland Seed Co., Plant Seed Co., J. B. Rice & Co., Weeber & Don, W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Vaughan's Seed Store, Jos. Breck & Son, F. W. Barteldes & Co., S. F. Leonard, Johnson & Stokes and Goodwin, Harries Co.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—Hereafter the Buckbee seed interests in this city will be conducted under two separate heads, incorporation papers having been issued by the secretary of state. H. W. Buckbee, Rockford Seed Farms, Forest City Greenhouse is the title of the first. This corporation is capitalized at $25,000. The incorporators whose names are given are Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Buckbee and T. E. Buckbee. The other corporation is to be known as the Rockford Seed Co., with a capital of $20,000. The incorporators are Chandler Starr, L. L. Morrison and John C. Dunn.—Rockford (Ill.) Register, August 1.

The Seed Crops in Germany.

Under date of July 15 we have the following information from Quedlinburg: Head lettuce at present very good; cabbage and kohlrabi medium; Savoy cabbage promises to be a good crop; kale, radish and turnips good; cucumbers good, although somewhat backward; carrots poor, a great many bare spots having been noted in the fields; mangel wurzel medium and indications are that last year's prices will prevail, with the possibility of an advance; peas very good and beans so far look well. In flower seeds asters, stocks and pansies are all good.

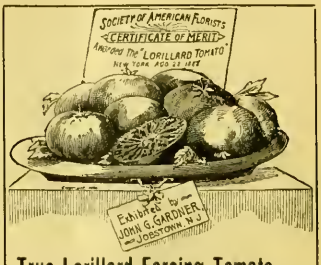
Detroit.

CONVENTION DETAILS ARE ARRANGED.—LADIES TO RENDER VALUED ASSISTANCE.—LARGE ATTENDANCE ASSURED.—TRADE EXHIBIT TO ECLIPSE ITS PREDECESSORS.—A NEW RETAIL STORE.—JOTTINGS.

What assumed the proportions of a fair sized national convention took place in Harmonie hall on Wednesday evening. All the members of the Florists' Club, active and honorary, were present with their wives, sisters and daughters, for this was a ladies' meeting, called for the purpose of arranging the details of their work for the reception and entertainment of the great number of their sex expected to come to the convention. Reports from all parts indicate the largest attendance in the history of the society. The fame of our beautiful city seems to have reached florists everywhere, and the opportunity to see it is gladly taken.

The Evans Challenge trophy, and a beautiful and valuable one it is, is on exhibition in Sullivan's window and is viewed with interest and admiration by thousands who wish us success in our efforts to keep it here.

The trade exhibit will be without doubt the largest ever made. This is already an assured fact. Applications for space are still coming in and some exhibits are already here. As large as the exhibit hall is, every available foot will be occupied, as well as adjacent corridors.



Frank Danzer has rented half the store at 228 Woodward avenue and will open for business about September 1. Mr. Danzer is a Detroit man, having lived here many years, part of the time having charge of the Michell greenhouses on Grosse Isle, but for the past four years has had charge of the floral department of the Livingston Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. H. Flammer has just returned from a few weeks' visit at Jackson.

Peter Crowe and wife, of Utica, N. Y., are already here.

LINCOLN, NEB.—C. L. Chapin, of Chapin Bros., read an excellent paper entitled, "Do Flowers Pay?" before the Nebraska State Horticultural Society at its recent meeting at Johnson.

NEW YORK.—Mrs. T. G. Hallinan, widow of the late T. G. Hallinan, is on a visit to her parents at Sing Sing. Her manager, Chas. A. Bird, will, on her return, spend two weeks at Saratoga.

OUR NEW BUILDING.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

W. J. PETERS, Pres.; D. S. LAKE, Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

THE Czar plum, one of Thomas Rivers' seedlings, has proved itself to be the earliest of its class.

THE Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., is delighted at the hardiness of their new white blackberry, Iceberg.

THE Western Association of Wholesale Nurserymen has appointed a committee, consisting of A. L. Brooke, Peter Youngers and F. L. Schutte, to endeavor to secure a modification of the classification now in force in the Western Freight Association.

T. S. HUBBARD, Fredonia, N. Y., who has recently retired from the nursery business, is one of the highest authorities on grapes in this country. He was the winner of the Wilder medal at a meeting of the American Pomological Society with an exhibit of 157 varieties, the largest collection of grapes ever shown in the United States.

Importation of Nursery Stock.

Frederick W. Kelsey, of New York, has been endeavoring to get at the bottom of the dissatisfaction with the work at the Customs House, and states that matters will be expedited if the following rules are closely adhered to:

First—All cases must be distinctly marked in English letters, with the name of the country whence they are shipped, viz.: From England marked "England," from Holland marked "Holland," etc.

Second—All invoices must specify the contents of each case opposite the marks of each case in invoice.

Third—The contents of each case should indicate the sizes (age if possible) and price of each size, if more than one size and price in a case. Also whether the plants are named, "of sorts," or seedlings

Fourth—Invoices of $100 (U. S. money) or more in amount must have American consul's certificate attached to invoice. Each shipment must be covered by separate invoice.

The Southern Nurserymen's Association.

The Southern Nurserymen's Association met August 1, at the Southern Hotel, Chattanooga, Tenn., and completed its organization, with N. W. Hale, of Knoxville, Tenn., president, W. D. Griffing, of Macclenny, Fla., vice-president and A. W. Newson, of Nashville, Tenn., secretary and treasurer. The attendance was representative of the leading nurseries in fifteen southern states.

The purpose of the organization is, in a large measure, the same as that of the American Association of Nurserymen, but the direct and immediate purpose is to engender closer acquaintance among the dealers in the south, to secure a uniform price for nursery stock, both wholesale and retail, to, if possible, procure from railroads more rapid transportation of nursery stock, and to secure certain changes in the classification of nursery stock; also to get, if possible, a minimum car of 20,000 pounds.

The business looks very favorable in the south, and no doubt there will be rapid improvements in nursery and orchard business throughout all this section. N. W. HALE.

One year plants ready from pots Oct. 1, $5.00 per 100.

SPIRÆA ANTHONY WATERER.

This beautiful shrub endured last winter with impunity and was charming all through June and July and is still blooming; foliage variegated, white and green with some pink marks; blooms pink—well adapted for grave covering; will no doubt displace Myrtle (Periwinkle) which was so generally winter-killed last season. Five-inch pot plants, require a shift now, are just right for planting out now to insure a display for next summer, $15 00 per 100.

At New York.

There was plenty of enthusiasm at the New York alleys on Monday evening although several of the war horses that are to serve on the team at Detroit are in seclusion, ostensibly on a vacation, but undoubtedly with their trainers, being put in proper condition for the great set-to. The score board, under official scorer O'Mara, showed the following figures at the finish:

Look like easy marks, don't they?

At Baltimore.

Our annual outing at Electric Park was a most enjoyable affair from beginning to end. To be sure a shower stopped the ball game but our boys had the best of it, 8 to 3, and only one more inning to play. During the shower all adjourned to the bowling alleys and there we stayed until dark. The alleys are all right except that rough play and "lofting" has made the surface very uneven and big scores were impossible. The following was the game played by the regulars and reserves:

MACK.

On Chicago Alleys.

At Anson's on August 4 many games were rolled, Ed. Winterson making high score with 208. Among those present were A. C. Brown, of Springfield, Ill., and J. C. Vaughan. The latter player made a strike and thinks he is therefore entitled to a place on the Detroit team. With some coaxing the president and captain may be induced to let him go along as mascot. Following are the games and averages:

Hot Stuff at Philadelphia.

The game between the team selected to "bring back the cups" from Detroit, as "modest" William, of Buffalo, puts it, and a team of our associate members, who, by the way, are all cracker jacks, was bowled last Thursday night. It was what the associates called hot stuff when they finished their first game, making 997 pins to the florists' 956. Well, the pace they set was a warm one, but the boys pulled themselves together and under the leadership of John Walker, whose name was first on the list, they hit the pace up in the second struggle, until it became too hot for the gentlemen; while the Detroit team was putting up 1005 the associates could only gather 723, which left them forty-one pins short in the two games. They tried hard in the last one but were defeated by ninety-one pins, making a total in the match of 132. Before the game started it was "dollars to doughnuts" on the associates, but "one can't always sometimes tell." It was a great contest and the three games gives each man of our team an average of 162 pins. The associates had an average of nearly 155, which will win eight times out of ten. Walker and Brown were in great form, while Moss and Westcott were not far behind. The other two are not on the Detroit team, being but subs. Here is the score:

The balls with which the Detroit contest is to be won or lost go out this week so as to get acclimated, as it were. A word of advice to "Modest Bill," don't buy a very large piece of velvet or many spools of the silver wire as prices are high now and they may be down next year or some other year when you will have more use for them.

Cricket at Stoke Pogis.

At the invition of John Gardner, of the Stoke Pogis Farm and Nursery Company, a number of Philadelphia florists accepted his challenge to play an eleven, selected mainly from the employes of the company, a match game at cricket. The contest took place at the Stoke Pogis farm, near Villanova, Wednesday afternoon, August 9, and proved a most enjoyable outing, particularly for the city florists, for in addition to enjoying a bountiful repast they also carried off the honors by winning the game, which surprised them even more than it did the country eleven. John Burton was elected captain of the city team, which contained such sturdy players as Edwin Lonsdale, David Rust, James Thatcher, Geo. Campbell, Geo. Watson, Dr. Goebel and others, who had all played the game in their school days and who showed that they had not forgotten how to bowl and bat. George Watson distinguished himself by catching a difficult fly (he will no doubt speak of it for some time) and others stopped scores of runs by their great sprinting. David Rust was a terror at the bat, making two threes, both long drives. John Gardner's bowling was very effective for his side, as was also Mr. Rand's. Messrs. McFarlan, Dodds, and Goebel bowled for the florists, McFarlan being particularly effective. A corps of ladies under the direction of Mrs. John Gardner had prepared a bountiful repast, which was thoroughly enjoyed, the ladies taking great pains to see that all were served abundantly. We must not forget to mention, and it may account for the result, that Wm. K. Harris umpired the game for the florists. His decisions were given in that effective parliamentary tone so familiar to members of the Florists' Club. A social hour was spent after the game and in the dusk of the evening the visitors took wagons for the train, returning the cheers of the hosts as they were driven away. A return match is to be played at Chestnut Hill in the near future. The score follows:

At Flatbush.

Thursday evening, August 3, was the date set for a trial of skill on the Flatbush alleys between the local team and the New Yorkers in return for the game played on the latter's alleys the previous week but the New York team failed to appear, Mr. Traendly being the only representative present, so the surplus material was utilized in the emergency and, under the name of the "New York Gardeners," was set up as a shining mark for the Flatbush boys, who are terrors at home but when they cross the river are as timid as hares. The "New York Gardeners" on this occasion were made up of one New York gardener, one New Jersey gardener, one journalist, one literary florist, one commission man and one seedsman, but this is not the first time this very elastic title has had to do service for a very promiscuous lot of material. Here are the scores:

Prizes for Bowlers.

In the effort to make the bowling contest of this convention a memorable event a collection of trophies and prizes has been made which should be very nearly sufficient to go around, a favor for each player.

Next in importance to the Evans Challenge cup comes the $75 trophy given by the city officials of Detroit, offered to the team making the highest one game of the tournament. This prize is to be bowled for annually until won twice by the same team, but at the fourth year if no team has won twice it passes into the permanent possession of the winning team. The set of balls offered by the Crawford, McGregor & Canby Co., Dayton, O., also goes to the team making the highest one game.

The Brunswick-Balk-Collender Co., Chicago, offers a set of six unique and appropriate scarf pins, one to each member of the team making the highest score for three games.

The individual trophy is a gold badge valued at $60 offered by the hotels of Detroit, going to the player making the highest one game.

Another individual trophy, valued at $30, given by the officers of Wayne county, Mich., goes to the member of the champion team who makes the best one game.

Tradesmen of Detroit have contributed the following prizes:

A five-dollar hat to the player making the best score for three games.

A five-dollar hat to the player who makes the greatest number of spares in three games.

A box of cigars to the player who makes the greatest number of spares in any one game.

A box of cigars to the player who makes the most strikes in any one game.

A silk umbrella to the player who gets the most pins on his spares in three games.

A box of cigars to the Detroit player who makes best score for three games.

Providence, R. I.

Stock in the field is looking much better than last year, carnations especially. Some growers about here are adopting the plan of growing them in the houses. Mr. Miller, of the Rhode Island Greenhouses, has several houses grown this way; they are looking very promising. The newer varieties are being grown in limited quantity for trial.

M. J. Leach, of Pawtucket, R. I., is building a carnation house 18x130. His stock is looking bright and thrifty. Mr. Leach and wife started last week for a month's vacation to Norfolk, Baltimore and Washington.

Fairbrother & Wood have dissolved partnership. Mr. Fairbrother will continue the business.

Geo. Campbell died last week after a long illness. It was in one of his store windows that our first flower store was started.

The aster disease is very prevalent about here. Some growers are discouraged and will not grow them after this year.

Prof. Fred. W. Card, Kingston, R. I., was a recent visitor.

MacMICHAEL'S "PEERLESS" SULPHUR BLOWER.

PRICE $4 75 EACH.

This Sulphur Blower has no equal for applying sulphur to the foliage in rose houses. It does the work quickly and perfectly, the distribution of the sulphur being so even that every leaf receives its due proportion, and NONE BEING WASTED, thus making it more economical than the bellows.

The Blower will also distribute with equal facility and thoroughness Tobacco Dust, Slug Shot, Lime, or any other powdery substance used in greenhouses. It is a great labor saver, as a 200-foot rose house can be sulphured in less than five minutes. It is easily handled, is strong and durable, and is GUARANTEED FOR TEN YEARS. Read the following Letters from Leading Growers who have used the Blower.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., September 13, 1898.
The MacMichael Sulphur Blower purchased of you and which we are now using, is the best apparatus for the purpose we have ever used; does the work very quickly and well.
ROBERT CRAIG & SON,
Forty-ninth and Market Sts.

SOUTHAMPTON, PA., September, 1898.
Permit me to say the MacMichael Sulphur Blower is giving me entire satisfaction. It is not only what you claimed for it when I purchased it of you, as a saver of sulphur, but it is a saver of labor as well. I consider it a great improvement on the old-fashioned bellows. The sulphur can be put on much more evenly and with much less trouble. STEPHEN MORTENSEN.

JENKINTOWN, PA., September 14, 1898.
With MacMichael's Sulphur Blower which we purchased of you, we now only use one-half of the quantity of Sulphur and Grape Dust, and do the work in about half the time; the work is also better done. Thank you for calling my attention to it. JOSEPH HEACOCK.

CHICAGO, May 18, 1898.
DEAR SIR:—We have one of your Sulphur Blowers and consider it the best thing we ever had to apply Sulphur in the greenhouses.
Respectfully, GEO. WITTBOLD,

LAKE VIEW ROSE GARDENS, Wholesale Growers Cut Flowers. Plants and Palms, JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

Newport, R. I.

The bedding plant business in Newport has been unusually good this season. In scarlet geraniums, vincas and ivies the supply fell far short of the demand. Coleus and alternantheras are not now grown by florists as much as formerly, and the same may be said of annuals, Begonia Vernon and B. Erffordii. These are only grown extensively on private estates. Some florists grew these begonias for this season's sale and report but little demand for them. These plants will probably be more employed when better known as they have the good quality of being constantly in bloom and are very effective in beds and for edging borders. Hydrangeas in tubs, with the exception of very fine specimens, have been sold this year at a discount. In fact they have been sold outright at a lower price than has been received for the rental for the same size of plants other seasons. This underselling business extends to the estates of some wealthy cottage owners who are abroad and have ordered their fruits and flowers to be sold. The employes receiving such orders in some cases are anxious to make some "returns" and sell at prices lower than those with which growers for profit can compete.

The rose and strawberry show of the Newport Horticultural Society was somewhat of a failure all around. Had the show been held on the dates originally mentioned an exhibition of credit to the society would have resulted, but the hall that was thought to be most suitable could not be obtained for those dates but was secured by the committee for dates a week later, with the result that the roses and strawberries were at their perfection a week earlier than the holding of the show. J. J. B.

A NEW DECORATIVE EVERGREEN FOR HOUSE CULTURE.

JAPAN CEDAR,

(Cryptomeria Japonica.)

AS HANDSOME AS ARAUCARIA EXCELSA!

But much more easily grown and ten times cheaper.

In this species of Cryptomeria we have a most dainty and handsome jardiniere plant, a plant that has all the grace and beauty of Araucaria Excelsa, (for which it is often mistaken) but which has the happy faculty of successfully withstanding the trying atmosphere of living rooms, a quality in which the Araucaria is woefully lacking. The Cryptomeria Japonica is of vigorous habit of growth and can be grown much more economically than Araucaria. The plants from 4-inch pots offered by us if given ordinarily good care and attention should be 18 inches tall and ready for 6-inch pots within three to four months and will readily bring $2.50 to $3.00 each. As far north as Philadelphia the Cryptomeria Japonica is hardy outdoors when it makes a most beautiful shrub for lawn planting and will ultimately attain great size.

4-in. pots, $15 per 100; 2½-in. pots, $9 per 100. 25 2½-in. for $2.50 postpaid.

TRADE QUIET BUT AN OCCASIONAL NICE ORDER GOING.—ROSE GARDENS CATCH A FEW PLUMS.—A HAIL STORM.—VISITORS.

Trade has been rather quiet of late, although the Lake View Rose Gardens caught some nice orders at the time of the recent annual meeting of the National Photographers Association. They had the decorations for the grand ball given at the Kent House, on Lake Chautauqua, and also did the work in the hall in which the association made its wonderful display of photographs; besides this they provided 500 bouttonieres of American Beauty roses. Lilium auratum is plentiful and sells fairly at from $5 to $10 per hundred. Sweet peas are plentiful, Emily Henderson and Countess of Radnor being extra fine, some of them bringing $1 a hundred. There is fair demand for roses, Beauties being quoted at from $8 to $20, and teas at $3 to $4 per hundred. Carnations can hardly be obtained at any price.

There was a heavy fall of hail August 2, most of the local growers being heavy losers. The Lake View Rose Gardens lost 700 panes of glass, F. A. Dorman lost a few hundred lights and E. D. Spaulding was also hit.

Recent visitors were: August Kruger and Geo. Hass, Meadville, Pa.; Thos. Murdock, Titusville, Pa.; M. I. O'Brien, Sharon, Pa.; W. J. Myers, New Brighton, Pa; F. R. Williams, Cleveland, O.

C. H. R.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—W. C. Krick will be at Detroit with his new stand for decorating, for which he has applied for a patent. The stand is adjustable and can be folded into a very small space when not in use. It may be tilted and employed for side decorations.

We supply the trade, in large or small quantities, with the very best quality of trees and decorations. None but fine, symmetrical trees shipped, and fresh-gathered Lycopodium. No culls in a carload of trees from us. The holiday season of 1899-1900 marks the beginning of a new century and will be the most enthusiastically celebrated holiday season in the lives of the present generation. Demand for Decorations will be in accordance. Prepare for it, as the rest are doing, and place an order now. Write for prices and say how much Lycopodium and how many trees, and sizes, you can use.

SATISFACTORY SUMMER MARKET.—CARE IN GRADING STOCK.—ROSES POOR AS A RULE.—BUSINESS JOTTINGS.

The flower market for July and thus far in August has been quite satisfactory, all good stock being disposed of. It is noticeable that the growers are taking greater care in grading stock before shipment. We are not experiencing the drought usual at this season and outside stock is almost as fresh as in June. Sweet peas, Lilium auratum and L. speciosum, gladioli and Asparagus Sprengerii are beautiful. Roses and carnations are a trifle small. Once in a while we have a glimpse of the Marechal Niel rose which puts everything else in the shade.

Binzel & Kellner have leased one of the Baumgarten greenhouses for their palms and other plants.

Geo. A. Mock, who has been with Currie Bros. for some years, has purchased the store known as the Paris Floral Company from Mr. Booth.

RAIN REVIVES OUTDOOR STOCK.—TRADE DULL.—MEETING OF OUR SOCIETY.—THREE NEW BOYS.—GOOD SEEDLING CANNAS.—JOTTINGS.

At last we have had a few good soaking rains to help outdoor stock. Business is pretty dull just now, but the fact that trade kept up very well until far into July makes this inevitable summer dullness less oppressive.

The August meeting of the Society of Indiana Florists took place at Garfield Park, with the business session shortened and the sociable part prolonged and made especially enjoyable by Messrs. Fred. Huckriede, Henry Rothermal and Fred. Rieman, who treated the members to a lot of good things in honor of three fine baby boys, who blessed their respective homes on the same day of July. Robt. McKain exhibited fine cannas. He is very lucky in raising good seedlings of this valuable bedding plant. The following three of his seedlings are worthy of a place in any collection: E. A. Parker, a very desirable yellow, distinct and of good blooming and growing qualities; Mrs. Rothermal, a very pretty orange color; R. A. McKain, bronze foliage; dark red, similar to Mrs. Cleveland.

C. Sonnenschmidt, who suddenly made up his mind to join the convention party, was, with John Bertermann, appointed a committee on transportation and has been busy visiting railroad offices.

Walter Bertermann left on August 10 for Atlantic City to spend his vacation.

H. JUNGE.

ASHLAND, O.—A. C. Lamprecht has outgrown his present quarters and is now building a residence and six greenhouses on Broad street.

Springfield, Ill.

Trade has been remarkably good for a long time. All through the winter there was a good call for first quality cut flowers and prices were better than usual. This spring there was fifty per cent more call for bedding stock than the year before. Geraniums and cannas were most in demand and there were not nearly enough to go around. During the summer business has been better than formerly.

Belle Miller undoubtedly grows more carnations than anyone here. She has worked up a very good business with this flower as her leader and expects to bench 10,000 plants this fall. Her stock looks clean and healthy now. Everything on the place is being cleaned and painted.

H. L. Phelps and A. C. Brown will likely be the only ones of the Springfield florists to attend the convention at Detroit. Just now Mr. Brown mourns the loss of a fine horse stolen from their pasture a short while ago.

Louis Unverzagt is rebuilding three houses and is erecting a fine dwelling house to rent. He hopes to get away later on for his usual two weeks vacation in Wisconsin.

David Wirth intended building a new house this year but on account of the high price of glass and other material gave it up for this season.

The South Side Floral Company has given up the cut flower business and is starting out strong in rooted cuttings.

Moss & Hay have gone out of business and are pulling their houses down. M.

Dear Sir:—Your Model Carnation Support is all right in every way, and will no doubt be considered as necessary as good plants with growers when better known. I consider it the best on the market; and if your other specialties are equally as good, they should make another addition to the money makers of 1900.

E. B. Clapp, South Boston, Mass.

It is with great pleasure I recommend your Furman Boiler. I have had your No. 7 in use for several winters and find it heats my houses in first-class style.

S. J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.

Your No. 10 Steam Boiler is heating over 30,000 square feet of glass (or twice as much as your catalogue rating), and does not require one-half as much attention as some of the wrought iron tubular boilers which are heating other sections. I am so well pleased with your boilers that I give you an order for two No. 12 steam boilers. At all times I am ready to speak a good word for the Furman.

Anson Wheeler, Concord Junction, Mass.

Am now heating four houses (24,000 square feet of glass) with two of your Furman boilers to my perfect satisfaction.

Allen B. Wells, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Last Winter the thermometer went 37 degrees below zero, and your No. 7 boiler kept my four greenhouses (roofs alone containing 6,200 feet of glass), on only 20 tons of hard coal. It gives complete satisfaction.

H. J. Whittemore, Winchendon, Mass.

I thoroughly endorse and recommend The Herendeen Mfg. Co. for boilers, fittings and advice.

Wm. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.

It gives me great pleasure to speak a good word for the four Furman Boilers I have in use. The No. 8 heats 10,000 feet of glass, has been running 9 years and only cost for repairs the price of two new grate bars.

Rhode Island Greenhouses, Pawtucket, R. I.

I want you to know my entire satisfaction with the two No. 12 Furman Boilers you installed for us. These boilers replaced three vertical boilers. In five months we have saved 23 tons of coal and the expense of an extra fireman. Your boilers far surpass any boilers that have ever come under my notice.

AN HONORED MEMBER OF THE CLUB PASSES AWAY.—MAN WHO MADE THE PARKS.—MANY VISITORS IN TOWN.—JOTTINGS.

The Buffalo Florists' Club has suffered the loss of an honored member in the death of Wm. McMillan, superintendent of Essex county parks in New Jersey. Mr. McMillan was a resident of Buffalo for twenty-seven years and executed most of the work on our park system. He was a man of integrity and many attainments, a member of our club and the S. A. F. His paper on carpet bedding at the convention here in 1889 will always be remembered. The funeral was held here August 4 and was largely attended.

Phil. Breitmeyer paid us another visit homeward bound and J. Austin Shaw has been in town. George Asmus, an old Buffalonian, from Chicago, is here and so is Peter Crowe, of Utica, and, strange to say, he brought his wife. There is no one as slick as an old one. He endeavered to palm his daughter off as his wife, but it was no go. We all said her eye-sight was too good for that.

S. A. Anderson is able to be about again.

W. F. Kasting is in Pittsburg on business. W. A.

ROCHESTER, PA.—B. F. Engle has leased a piece of land here and has moved his greenhouses from Beaver.

CROMWELL, CONN.—W. E. North, of Plantsville, has been engaged to superintend the range of new rose houses recently completed by A. N. Pierson.

MEDIA, PA.—Dr. Wm. H. Mattson, of Chester Heights, has been a successful grower for some years and is now preparing to enlarge his business not a little. He has just completed a house 24x100 and is getting ready to put up another similar structure. He has also just completed a mushroom house 8x100.

The Right Cypress for Greenhouse Material.

Have you heard of Cypress Greenhouse Material that has not been satisfactory? If you have it does not follow that Cypress is not the best lumber to use. There is White Cypress, Yellow Cypress and Red Cypress; there is Cypress that grows on the high lands and Cypress that grows in the swamps.

All of these different kinds are not suitable for greenhouse purposes. Do you know which kind is best and do you know that kind when you see it? If not you would better buy from those that do know and will deliver exactly what they sell. We introduced Cypress for greenhouse construction and pushed it to the front. We know all about it. For fifteen years we have made a specialty of furnishing it, and during this time we have built up a reputation that we can not afford to jeopardize. We send out the best only.

DON'T PLANT YOUR CARNATIONS....

Until you have run the soil through our Pulverizing Machine; it will pay you. 90 per cent of the florists in Buffalo are using our machine. It will pay for itself the first week. Stone and gravel have no effect on it, it is made very strong. It can be regulated so as to make the soil fine or coarse as you wish.

We guarantee it will do the work far better and quicker than it can ever be done by hand. The cylinder is framed with iron plates to prevent its wearing out.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 26, 1899.
FLORISTS' SUPPLY CO., North Tonawanda, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—I have made a thorough trial of your Ground Crushing or Mixing Machine and find that it is satisfactory in every respect. It has already paid for itself in the saving on labor. I can hardly see how any florist can do without them.
Yours very truly, JOS. H. REBSTOCK.

Gentlemen:—I have used your Ground Crushing Machine ever since I first procured it from you and it does all you claim for it, pulverizing the earth finely and rapidly. I like it and find it a paying machine. B. F. FELTON.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 21st, 1899.
I have used the Soil Crusher and Pulverizer made by the Florists' Supply Co., of Tonawanda, N. Y. It is a labor saving machine, breaking up the soil admirably of almost any texture. The only soil it wont handle is a very stony soil or a very green sod. It also breaks up animal manure in good style if not too fresh. WM. SCOTT, 546 Main Street.

FLORISTS' SUPPLY CO., BUFFALO, N. Y., July 29, 1899.
Gentlemen:—The Soil Pulverizer we ordered from you came in due time. In answer would say that it is a great labor saving machine. Two men with the machine can do as much work as six (6) can any other way. Yours truly, W. J. PALMER & SON.

February 6, 1899.

DEAR SIRS: Referring to the No. 34 Gorton Side-feed Boiler, which I have in use, would say that this boiler works to Perfection. It is heating two of my greenhouses and also three lines of 1½-inch pipe in a third house. With the temperature down to 8 degrees below zero the boiler gave all the heat required.

The boiler will run for twelve hours without attention and give us heat to the last. It only burns about 300 pounds of coal per day. I am sure if your boilers were better known among florists that there would be a great number of them used. Yours truly,

HENRY KAEMPFER.

BUSINESS QUIET BUT STOCK IS INADEQUATE. —FRED STOKES MAKES HIS EXIT.—PERSONAL JOTTINGS.

Business has been rather quiet but, nevertheless, there is not enough stock to meet the demand. So far seasonable rains have favored us and all outdoor stock, especially carnations, are in good shape.

Fred. Stokes, manager for Wm. F. Kasting & Co., and also connected with the International Growers' Exchange, of this city, left town last week and in his haste forgot his trunk and numerous creditors. Mr. Kasting is in the city straightening out matters. The business will be continued and he will spend much of his time in Pittsburg in the future.

Miss E. B. Maxwell, of Wilkinsburg, is off on a ten days' vacation.

Samuel McClements sailed from Europe on August 9. GEO. OESTERLE.

ELKA PARK, N. Y.—J. B. Keller, Rochester, N. Y., arrived recently and will spend the reminder of the summer here.

MARINETTE, WIS.—George Vatter has a fine stock of ferns and tropical plants, for which he finds ready sale. Business has been good with him this season.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Hail caused considerable damage, on August 2, to the houses of P. R. Quinlan & Co., John Bronner, Peter Kay, W. Meneilly, Gustave Bartholmew and others. L. Guillaume and L. E. Marquisee were among those who escaped.

BROCKTON, MASS.—The Brockton Florists' Club is arranging for a fall exhibition to take place November 1 to 3. At the last meeting Messrs. Cooper, McFarland and Graham were appointed a committee on ways and means. There was a discussion on aster culture. Carl Blomberg gave an interesting talk on the subject.

GARLAND'S

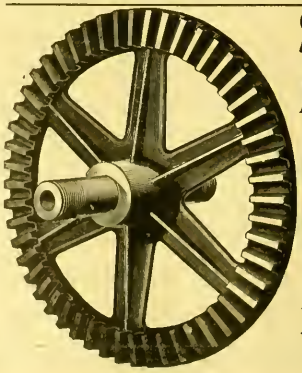
VALLEY GUTTER and DRIP CONDUCTOR

Some Advantages of a Cast-Iron Gutter:

As the gutter of a greenhouse is the foundation of same, the house reaches a dilapidated condition as soon as the gutter becomes defective, which is in about one-half the time the house would otherwise last. Thus the life of the house is doubled when cast-iron gutters are used.

The cast-iron gutter will last a lifetime.

In case of a heavy snow-fall, the house is relieved of the snow in much less time, which is an important factor when sunlight is at a premium.



There is less obstruction to light.

No ice in gutter; iron absorbs sufficient heat to keep it continually thawed.

No breakage of glass from frost and ice.

No drip from condensation, drip being conducted by inner drip conductor, consequently allowing an increase of bench surface of house, as plants can be grown under gutter.

THE DETROIT CONVENTION.

In every respect the fifteenth annual convention of the Society of American Florists, opened at Detroit Tuesday, August 15, was one of the most successful in the history of the organization. The attendance was very large, and it is believed that a larger portion of the country was represented than has been the case at any previous convention. The exhibition was exceptionally full and interesting. The local florists' club made very elaborate and finished preparations for the visitors, and in the entire proceedings there was a harmony of feeling and action, combined with practical helpfulness, which are none too common in such gatherings. All the best elements of the trade were well represented. The matter-of-fact way in which members went about the business of the meeting was a credit to all concerned. The decorations for the occasion were especially noteworthy, and with the usual display of plants, flags and bunting included an elaborate triumphal arch, 30x50 feet, in close proximity to the building in which the meeting was held, and an electric ornamentation of the front of the city hall with the legend "Welcome Society American Florists." Conspicuous among the stage decorations were the long stemmed Kaiserin roses supplied by W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, Ind., and the gladioli from the Cushman Gladiolus Company, of Euclid, Ohio.

Late trains from the east delayed the opening exercises somewhat, but when President Breitmeyer of the local club got to work, introducing Mayor Maybury, business and pastimes, as they occurred upon the programme, were indulged in at high pressure until a late hour Thursday evening. The shooting contest took place Thursday afternoon, and Friday was devoted to the bowling tournament. Particulars of both events will be found in our _____s department.

Mayor Maybury's Address.

GENTLEMEN OF THE SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS:—I am glad to see you here this morning, to utter a word of cordial welcome to you and to express the hope that, while remaining with us, you will live in the odor of our most generous hospitality. Here in Detroit we have good times and hard times, we have railroad times and some other times; but there is just one kind of a time that we want you to have and that is a good time. Dear friends, that is a time which the hands of the clock do not govern; you control and make that time; you cannot make it, for us, too good for yourselves and we will be close by to help you make it a royal good time.

Perhaps I might voice this welcome as I would voice the welcome that comes with the spring time. Our winters are long here; the snow and ice linger along, almost until the May-day at times, and the first precursors of the coming summer appear in the form of little, unpretentious flowers. The passer-by would scarcely notice them, but, thinking of the summer, he is watching for the evidence of its coming; but here and there, coming almost in a night and from a source that no man discovers, we see the little, modest daisy. It seems to peep out from the decaying snow and to say, "Am I welcome?" and the hearts of those who have suffered through the cold winter, with its cares and anxieties, respond to the pretty stranger, "Yes, you are very, very welcome." As that flower is to the promise of the summer, so is your coming to us; and as you look into our faces and ask the question, "Are we welcome?" I respond, as does he who watches the coming of the rose, "Yes, you are very, very welcome."

You are welcome also for the purpose for which you come. It is peculiar to these times that people who have a secret, whether it be in the propagating of the rose or the vine, or a secret in any art, do not lock it up in their hearts, as they used to do in the olden times and say, "This is mine and I shall keep this secret, carry it with me and make merchandise of it." The world is not content to allow any man who has such a secret to keep it for himself. He must recognize himself as a trustee of the Almighty; and that secret of his business, if, as in your case, it is to make the flower larger and prettier and to add to its perfume, he has no right to keep, and you are here to-day for the purpose of giving it to your fellows, instead of keeping it. We read of the "lost arts" in this world; we believe that the world has from time to time come up to the high tide of art, and then seemed suddenly to recede again; that was due wholly to the fact that men were selfish in those days. The physician who had an antidote for a disease never prescribed or revealed it to anybody, until, passing away, the secret died with him. The descendant of old Vulcan, Tubal Cain, learned to temper iron and make it strong and pliable; they made the Damascus blade, and we find, away off in those centuries, secrets in iron and steel manufacture that were not discovered until this day. Had Mr. Bessemer, in those days, discovered the art of annealing and making steel pliable and tried to keep it a secret, he would not have been the honored head of the steel industry, but it is because he gave it to the world that you and I are reaping the benefit of it, and he has not been kept from his just reward. No, my friends, the time never was in this world as it is now, when people came together to exchange the best thoughts in art, and they seem to delight in spreading their knowledge so that the world may have the benefit of it. This is a peculiarity of the age in which we live, the best age, in my judgment, that the world has ever seen.

But how much of life gathers around the flower! Why, if you should take away from the heart of childhood and the memories of manhood the morning glory, training up the windows and over the doors, it would take a great deal of sweetness from our homes. The rose never blossoms or gives forth perfume as it does when close to the human voice and a human habitation. Just in proportion as it is remote from human auspices the flower is lacking in verdure. In a country where there are no flowers there is no human voice. When that voice is near at hand it seems to have the magic of drawing from the most barren place the perfume of the rose.

Now, my dear friends, you have come to an old city. I don't mean to say that we are very ancient because we have succeeded to an ancient regime, for we are rather a modern city. On July 24, 1901, we hope to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the founding of the city of Detroit. Within a distance of half a mile from where you are sitting the early voyagers landed on an evening of that date. The scene, it is said, was delightful. The sun had sunk in the west, the sky was cloudless and the birds had folded their wings to rest. Having landed, the pioneers erected a rude altar and there the sweet tones of the evening vespers were chanted by the attending priests. When I reflect upon the freedom of this city from fire, flood, disease and those calamities that have afflicted our neighbors, I cannot help but think of the consecration of that evening, when the first act was one of religious devotion and a recognition of God, as a blessing which has come down to us even to this day.

We lived for nearly a century under the French flag and a French regime, when the language spoken was wholly French; we passed then to an allegiance to the British flag; and now, for a hundred years, we have been living, and we hope to live forever, under the stars and stripes. We have an island park here and, as I want you to go there before this convention adjourns, I feel that I ought not to say anything about it. To describe it would be impossible, but I may say it is a place consecrated to peace and happiness; and this was so true in savage days that the red men gathered there to smoke the pipe of peace and seemingly were unwilling to desecrate the place by the shedding of one drop of human blood.

My friends, you have come to a city that is proud of its homes. In no city in the world is the land owned by the householders to the same extent as in the city of Detroit. You will see the palace home and the cottage home side by side, but you will see everywhere the evidences that those who occupy the palace and the cottage are alike their owners. That ownership is seen in the cultivation of the flower garden and of vegetables for the table, and the hand of the housewife and the husbandman is seen in the trailing vine and rose bush over the windows and doors. This is, perhaps, our greatest pride, that Detroit is a city of homes and home owners. To this city, to its hospitality and with the kindly greeting of all its citizens, I welcome you. Let me repeat what I said in opening—pay attention to no other time except "a good time."

Robert Craig's Response to the Mayor.

Ex-President Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, made the response to the Mayor. He expressed appreciation of the kindly welcome and suggested that a solution of the question as to the reason for this cordiality would be found in some expressions of His Honor. He continued:

He talked about flowers. That is the common platform that has brought us together. Men may differ on religious, political, financial and other matters, but when they come to the contemplation of the beautiful, as it is in the floral kingdom, they all unite in a common sentiment of sympathy and admiration. I am afraid that we who follow floriculture as a calling, for the support of ourselves and families, very often lose sight of much that is beautiful in connection with our business. The whole art is a delightful one. Take the fern seed for illustration. Insignificant in itself, almost without character, so small that you can scarcely see it, yet when put under proper conditions it develops with such exquisite gracefulness that its whole being is bewitching beyond expression. The artist who strives to convey its beautiful forms to canvas is inspired by it and the musician sounds its praise in the sweetest strains. So it is that we understand why we are welcomed, as we have been by the cities of the country, and never more fittingly than in the kindly words to which we have listened this morning.

Mr. Craig here explained that, as the convention had been unavoidably detained far beyond the appointed hour for the opening, he would be obliged to curtail his remarks. He assured His Honor, the Mayor, and the people of Detroit, that the evidences of kindly attention to be seen on every hand and the cordial words of welcome just uttered were fully appreciated. The object of the convention was to disseminate knowledge of horticulture. Thither had come the practical men who watered the plants and gave them daily attention and these came in contact with the scholar and the student who had spent their time in devising means to counteract plant disease and kill insects, which the florist himself had neither the time nor the appliances to do. The union of the two classes is productive of much sympathy and benefit.

Mr. Craig added that a threatened danger to these convention meetings at the present time was the craze for athletics. He was apprehensive that the enthusiasm for the pastimes would have a prejudicial effect upon the value of the meeting unless some means could be devised to put a bridle upon gentlemen like Mr. Westcott and Mr. Anderson. He said he only threw out the suggestion by way of caution. It was well known that the great educational institutions of the country had been confronted by the same problem. Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania had encountered these waves of enthusiasm, but there had never been a worse case of it than that now existing in the S. A. F. Mr. Craig closed amid applause with some amusing references to the gentlemen named.

President Rudd's Address.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN OF THE SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS:—Fifteen years ago, with mingled hopes and doubts and fears, assembled the first convention of the florists of America, the first convention of the Society of American Florists. Thirteen times in the intervening years have we met together for the same purpose. Men who were young, as we accept the word, at the time of this first convention, have now reached middle age. Men in the mature vigor of their fourth decade, now feel old age creeping upon them. Annually new faces have appeared among us and annually have old and honored members stepped from the ranks, to assemble with us in this world never again.

This mysterious, this incomprehensible thing we call life and growth, this never-ending removal and replacing of parts, has been at work with us all these years and we are met here to-day, in our fifteenth annual convention, the same, and yet not the same, as at our first.

This society stands to-day for these three things:

To discourage and stamp out from our profession and practice that which is bad.

To commend and retain that which is good.

To point out and obtain that which is lacking.

These are what it was organized for; they are what it has steadfastly stood for during all the years of its existence; they are what it stands for to-day and I devoutly believe it will so continue long after you and I and all of us have passed from the stage and its work is done and its course guided by other hands and other heads.

The year passed has been notable as one of great prosperity generally. The florist, both grower and merchant, has had his fair share of this increase in the general volume of business and, unless all signs fail, the Society of American Florists at this meeting is to largely recover, financially, what it has lost during the hard times and by reason of holding a convention at a place remote from its center of membership. As a missionary movement, and as a compliment to its members in the west, the meeting at Omaha, was desirable but, as was foreseen by many, the result was a serious financial loss.

At the present time, perhaps nine-tenths or more of our members are located between Boston and Chicago and north of Washington, the center of membership being, probably, in Pennsylvania. The financial welfare of the society, and a due consideration for the greatest good to the greatest number, should prevent frequent meetings outside this territory until the western and southern membership is increased. The horticultural sun has always been in the east, but it is already high in the heavens, and is traveling toward the meridian. We may expect to see the time when the meetings can be held as frequently in the west and south as in the eastern cities.

During the current year has occurred the discontinuance of the Florists' Mutual Fire Insurance Company. After every effort on the part of the able men having the association in charge, the general apathy of the trade has compelled them to give up the stuggle.

The birth, or rennaissance, of the American Rose Society is a matter of interest to us all. We wish it God-speed. May it do as much for the rose as its sister society has done for the carnation.

The continually increasing demand for plants has been noticeable, especially for flowering plants. While no doubt a part of this demand is due to the high price of cut flowers at the holiday season and Easter, there is no question but what the growth in that direction is far beyond what could occur from so small a cause.

Enormous quantities of the Boston fern have been produced and sold. The plant is altogether lacking in the stateliness and grace which characterizes the palm and the delicate beauty of form and color shown by many of our greenhouse plants, yet every point of its ragged fronds speaks strength and vigor. Its strong growth and adaptability to unfavorable conditions, and its comparative cheapness, withal, have assured its retaining the place in popular favor which it so quickly gained.

The year's list of new plants introduced in this country is not especially large and apparently contains nothing of strikingly unusual merit. In the early part of the year we followed with amused admiration the Boston exposition of how to advertise and sell a new carnation.

A decided tendency exists in outdoor planting to use less of the highly colored flowering and foliage bedding plants, substituting massed effects of perennials and shrubbery, especially the native forms. It is quite likely that the planting at the World's Columbian Exposition, so much discussed at the time, is largely responsible for this movement, and as many of the leading parks and cemeteries are working on this line, it is well for the florists to take heed.

Many railroads are giving special attention to the care and adornment of their station-grounds with flowers. This practice is rapidly extending, and not only as creating another market, but more especially as placing well designed and well cared for plantations most prominently before the public, is in future to have a marked effect.

The matter of sub-irrigation in the greenhouse is worthy of careful investigation.

The present growth in floriculture in the west and far west is phenomenal. The number of glass structures being erected this year is unprecedented, notwithstanding the seemingly prohibitive prices of material. The tendency in the east seems to be more in the line of rebuilding, modernizing and increasing the quantity and quality of product from a given space, rather than enlarging that space.

Present conditions may render profitable these enormous ranges of cheaply built, poorly equipped houses, supplied with insufficient and unskilled labor, but the future has sad lessons of experience in store for their owners.

We are not as a class receiving from the experiment stations—institutions established and conducted with public funds and for the public good—those benefits to which we are entitled. For this state of affairs no one is to blame but ourselves. We have neglected to make our wants known in an intelligent manner and have not accepted gracefully what little work has been done in our behalf.

In the press and at our meetings frequent complaint has been made of the lack of variety in flower stores. It has been well characterized as "that everlasting sameness." Many an old-fashioned flower could be grown and sold to-day to the profit of both grower and retailer as well as the satisfaction of the customer.

The increase in the number of sidewalk flower sellers, and the vast quantities of stock disposed of by them, has been a perennial source of argument between different branches of the trade. This class of dealers is a boon to the wholesale house and to the growers, by making a market for otherwise unsalable stock. With the exception of an exceedingly small percentage, their trade is wholly with those who do not patronize flower stores, and it is an open question whether they do not create flower lovers and flower buyers enough to amply repay the legitimate retailer for such few customers as they attract from him.

The list of new plant names registered will be of little value unless it is full and complete. The present fee would seem much too high. The question of carnation registry, also that of the chrysanthemum, rose and dahlia requires attention. I would suggest that this society consult with all the auxiliary societies having in charge special flowers, with a view:—First, to establish a uniform registry fee to be charged by each; second, for this society to recognize and register free, all names properly registered before the auxiliary societies, they in turn to accord the same courtesy to names in their special line registered with our secretary.

In conclusion let me say a word for that much abused body, the executive committee. The men composing this committee are, almost without exception, in charge of large established interests. Their time is money and the giving up of a week to the business of this society is a distinct financial loss to each and every one of them, and each one of them is annually put to an additional actual expense generally greater than that necessary to secure life membership in the Society of American Florists. For earnest, intelligent and conscientious hard work I commend the executive committee to you.

Judges of the Exhibits.

President Rudd announced the following list of judges to pass upon the displays in the trade exhibit:

Plants, Class A.—Emil Buettner, Geo. Fancourt, C. D. Ball.

Cut blooms, Class B.—Alex. Montgomery, A. S. Burns, J. M. Gasser.

Boilers, Class C—Samuel Henshaw, C. B. Whitnall, A. S. Swanson.

Greenhouse appliances, Class D.—J. F. Wilcox, A. Graham, John Burton.

Florists' supplies, etc., Class E.—Robert Kift, P. J. Hauswirth, J. W. Ludwig.

Bulbs and seeds, Class F.—Robert George, Warren Ewell, F. L. Atkins.

Miscellaneous, Class G.—Robt. George, Robert Kift, J. F. Wilcox, Samuel Henshaw, Alex. Montgomery, Emil Buettner.

Medal awards.—Jas. Dean, John N. May, Wm. Scott.

Report of the Secretary.

MR. PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS:—In reporting a decrease of membership for 1898 of about seventeen per cent from the previous year, I desire to say that this condition, under the peculiar circumstances of last year, does not indicate any weakness in our organization, but should rather be regarded as an evidence of vitality because the loss was not greater. The results of the present year will, I believe, show that this reduction in our membership was only temporary, while the record of what we accomplished in 1898, the broadening of our lines and the systematizing of our work, afford good evidence that the society has now reached that stage where the size of the attendance at its conventions is no longer the only test of its strength.

I have to report the full paid up membership for 1898 as 434 inclusive of nineteen life members. The new names added during this year numbered fifty-six, of which one each were from Virginia, New Jersey, Michigan, Georgia and Washington; two each from South Dakota and Wisconsin; three each from New York, District of Columbia and Kansas; six each from Illinois and Minnesota; eight each from Missouri and Iowa, and ten from Nebraska.

The loss of 144 members who had been in good standing in 1897 was due solely to the indifference resultant from the holding of our annual meeting in a locality so remote from these centers whence our strongest support in membership has been heretofore derived and our return to these more thickly populated communities will, in time, without doubt bring many of them back into line, while our new activities such as co-operative purchase and plant registration are already beginning to secure us new accretions that are likely to be influential and permanent, regardless of where our annual meetings may convene. There is also an increased prominence in the trade exhibition feature of our conventions and we shall make no mistake if we give our best thought to the further development of this department which should eventually become so important that no enterprising florist will think of missing it, and also to the reasonable encouragement of the recreative features which are so dear to the hearts of many of our best members.

The printed transactions of the society for 1898 contains all the speeches and essays, the valuable discussions and other business of the sessions at Omaha, in full, reports of the superintendent of the trade exhibition, the judges and various important committees, the medal awards, a list of plant introductions for the year, the story of how generously our Omaha brethren entertained us, the membership list by states and alphabetically, together with the transactions of the auxiliary societies. It records the inauguration of the new departments of plant registration, co-operative purchase, legislation, arbitration and claims adjustment, all of which have been in operation during the year and will be reported on at this session by the proper committees.

F. R. PIERSON
Vice-Pres elect of the Society of American Florists.

The list of new plants registered at the secretary's office up to date is as follows:

July 12, 1898, by The Conard & Jones Co., rose Miss Clara Barton, and cannas Admiral Schley and General Shafter.

October 29, 1898, by Rob't Sandilord, pelargoniums Sandiford's Surprise, Sandiford's Wonder, and Sandiford's Best.

November 10, by John H. Taylor, rose Admiral Dewey.

November 27, by John Cook, rose Baltimore.

December 30, by Alex MacLellan, chrysanthemum Regina.

January 3, by M. H. Walsh, rose Lillian Nordica.

January 19, by Hoffmeister Floral Co., rose Maid of Honor.

January 27, by Freeman & Fletcher, violet Columbia.

January 27, by C. Eisele, carnations Neptune, Mercury, Venus, Jupiter, Uranus, Rising Sun, Saturn, Vulcan, Vesuvius, Estella and Minerva.

February 1, by J. C. Vaughan, cannas Red Indian, Mandarin and Victory.

February 25, by Good & Reese Co., rose Frances E. Willard.

February 27, by H. Eichholz, geranium America.

March 27, by Ernst G. Asmus, rose Liberty.

April 6, by American Rose Co., rose Ivory.

May 20, by W. A. Manda, Cypripedium insigne Mrs. Geo. B. Wilson.

July 15, by A. Herrington, Hemerocallis Florham.

July 25, by W. A. Manda, Dendrobium nobile Mrs. Geo. B. Wilson.

The names Miss Clara Barton and Admiral Dewey as applied to roses, were given each to the productions of two different firms and it is a pleasure to report that in each case deference was given to the parties having registered the name with the Society of American Florists and their right to the exclusive use of the title in question honorably acknowledged by the claimants who had failed to register.

The executive committee meeting in this city last March was attended by all the members but one. An infinity of questions concerning the society's welfare were taken up. A synopsis of the committee's deliberations was given in the trade journals at the time and the programme of this convention as now before you is also based on action taken at that meeting. The matter of the guarantees made by certain members against financial loss to the society by reason of the visit to Omaha was considered and it was decided that the guarantors should be permitted to fulfill the obligations they had assumed, whereupon Mr. Kellogg, who was present, at once paid over the sum promised by him and the committee voted that in recognition thereof Mr. Kellogg be constituted a life member.

Upon notification by the secretary, two other guarantors, Messrs. Benj. Hammond and H. A. Siebrecht remitted the amount respectively subscribed by them, thus leaving only one guarantor yet to settle. The secretary hopes that the generosity of these gentlemen will be recognized as in the case of Mr. Kellogg by a vote of the society making them life members.

The losses by death of members during the year since our last meeting have been as follows:

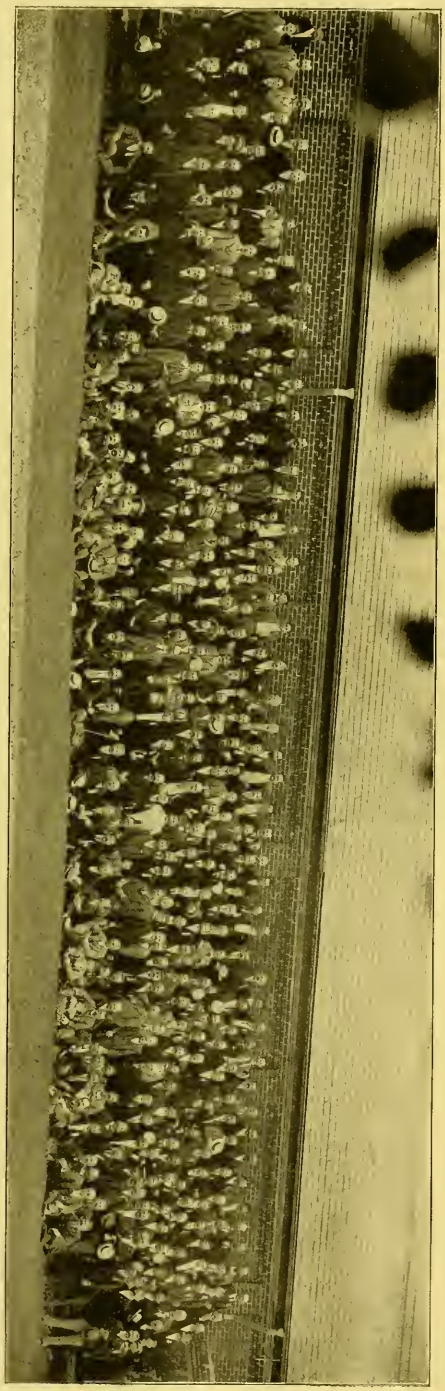
Robert Christie, of Newport, died on January 7, 1899.

J. Kadletz, Dongan Hills, Staten Island, April 11, 1899.

Julius Koenig, St. Louis, April 22, 1899.

E. H. Hunt, Chicago, July 25, 1899.

The communications to be presented later show that our society has a reputation both wide and good, and that a visit by the S. A. F. is universally regarded as a high honor to a community.



In conclusion, your secretary takes this opportunity to thank the officers and members for the continued kind forbearance, willing assistance and friendly encouragement so cordially extended throughout the year now closed.

WM. J. STEWART.

Department of Co-operative Purchase.

Chairman E. M. Wood presented an exhaustive report upon this important work of the society, of which the following is a necessarily brief summary:

The committee was handicapped in the first part of the season by the decline of prices and their subsequent sharp and continued advance, causing quotations to be good only for the moment and entailing much vexation, delay and clerical work for which the committee was poorly equipped. Enough has been accomplished, however, to indicate what might be the value of this department to the society if placed upon a permanent basis. The committee sent letters to those who purchased through the department, requesting them to state what benefit, if any, and in what manner, the co-operative department of purchase had been to them.

M. H. Walsh, of Wood's Holl, Mass., writes that the saving to him was $27 on sixty boxes of glass, $3.25 on 200 pounds of putty, $15.50 on 350 pounds of lead, $24 on 600 feet of hose, $1.05 on sixteen gallons of linseed oil—being a total of $70.80. He says: "I think the co-operative department of purchase a most important and valuable branch of the Society of American Florists. I hope its members will avail themselves of the benefits to be gained by purchasing through your committee, as the larger the amount purchased, the lower the cost."

J. D. Imlay, Zanesville, O., writes: "I think I was very fortunate in getting my glass through the Society of American Florists' department of purchase. I saved at least $1.80 per box on twenty-two boxes, making about $110 saved."

The E. Hippard Co., Youngstown, O., writes: "We will say that we saved on our glass purchased through your department about 90 cents a box on 16x24 double A glass, making a saving of $160.65 on 175 boxes.

There are others of the same tenor.

It is here shown that the saving to those members who availed themselves of the opportunity to buy their supplies through the co-operative department of purchase, has been large and, as indicated in last year's report of your committee, the percentage of saving is much greater to the small purchaser than to the larger one, especially when the latter is located in or near the larger cities.

In continuing this department of purchase, your committee would recommend the following changes in its management: We believe there should be a paid official to have charge of this department under the direction of a committee of three of the executive committee. He shall devote his entire time to the business of this department and shall report once a month or once a quarter to the committee of three having charge. In this way its business would be properly done, and with dispatch. He should be paid by a percentage upon the purchasing price, which percentage should be added to the distributing price.

The committee would also suggest another form of running this department and we believe it to be the better of the two: By organizing a corporation to be known as the Co-operative Department of Purchase and Distribution of the Society of American Florists, with a capital at its organization of not less than $12,000, the society to hold fifty-one per cent of its common stock and its members the balance. Whenever there is any increase of the capital, the society shall always retain fifty-one per cent of the common stock, allowing the members to purchase the balance, no member to have over one share. The profits of the business to be divided in the following manner: Fifty per cent to be paid to the purchasers, or customers; fifty-one per cent of the remaining fifty per cent to the society and the balance to holders of the common stock other than the society.

Of course it will require capital to start the business properly, to insure its success and, if it cannot be obtained immediately upon the common stock, we would suggest that the more active members of the society subscribe to a sufficient amount at once to make up the $12,000, for which they shall have issued to them preferred stock drawing interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, cumulative, the common stock holders reserving the right to cancel the preferred stock at any time upon the payment of principal and interest. Thus the common stock holders will have not only the profit upon their stock, but also a profit upon their purchases, and at the same time enabling them to buy at a less rate than elsewhere on account of the large volume of business which would come to the department and from the great expense saved in obtaining business; the business to be carried on upon a cash basis, either by pre-payment of cash when sending the order, or by cash draft, with bill of lading attached, drawn upon the purchaser. This department to transact business not only with the members of the society, but with those who are not members. Only members of the society and the society itself holding common stock of the co-operative department of purchase shall participate in the profits of their purchases. An accounting of the business shall be made at the end of every six months and the profits then declared and paid.

We wish it understood that we have discovered no new law or principle and only wish to urge the society in carrying out what has already been attempted and found to be successful.

This department, when well established, would obtain articles for its members' consumption of the best and most durable kind. It would also be a bureau of information that would direct where to get the best and most improved materials, which, in nearly all cases, are the cheapest. From a money point of view, all these savings and benefits would be great, which are not easy to calculate, and which a separate individual could not obtain except through co-operation. The economies of co-operative purchase would be large and in these economies wealth is obtained. In furnishing 600 to 1000 individuals their supplies, seventy-five per cent at least of all the expense that is incurred by the merchant in obtaining business would here be saved. That of itself would amount to thousands of dollars, besides furnishing a basis to enlarge the scope and activities of the society.

We repeat what we said last year—that one must not be too much impressed with the theoretical advantages of co-operation and expect large results almost from the outset. Its greatest drawback, oftentimes, is the want of a co-operative sentiment. It is said a true co-operator has good sense, good temper and a good will; good sense to dispose him to make most of his means, good temper to enable him to associate with others and good will to incline him to serve them and be troubled to serve them, and go on serving them whether they are grateful or not in return, caring only that he does good, and finding it a sufficient reward to see that others are benefited through his unthanked exertions.

Florists' Hail Association.

The Florists' Hail Association met at 3 p. m. Tuesday, August 15. H. H. Ritter and Ernst Wienhoeber were elected to succeed themselves as directors. The increase of glass covered by insurance for the year past amounted to nearly one and one-half million feet and the permanent reserve fund showed an increased balance now amounting to about $6,600. Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted: J. C. Vaughan, president; E. G. Hill, vice-president; J. G. Esler, secretary; A. M. Herr, treasurer.

President's Reception.

Tuesday evening President Rudd held a reception in the convention hall under the auspices of the Detroit Florists' Club. The reception was attended in a body by those present at the convention and also by many prominent people of Detroit. Music and refreshments were provided.

Wednesday's Proceedings.

The convention was dilatory in assembling on Wednesday but disposed of its business with a rush. The state vice-presidents' reports were not read because of lack of time for the purpose but were ordered to be published in the official record.

Officers for next year were then nominated and resulted in the selection of candidates as follows: President, E. M. Wood, Natick, Mass; vice-president, Patrick O'Mara, New York (10 votes), F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown-on-Hudson, N. Y., (119 votes), Mr. O'Mara only consenting to the use of his name in connection with the office because of the peculiar rules of the society; secretary, Wm. J. Stewart Boston, Mass.; treasurer, John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.; (77 votes), H. B. Beatty, Oil City, Pa., (36 votes.)

The nomination of next year's officers was followed by the selection of a place of meeting in 1900. After a cordial invitation from Patrick O'Mara, representing the New York Florists' Club, tendering the use of that city, invitations were read from Mayor Van Wyck and Governor Roosevelt. The latter wrote: "No state in the Union is more proud of the work done by her horticultural societies and by your association than is our state, and, should you conclude to accept our invitation, I can assure you of a hearty welcome." The selection of New York city was then made by a unanimous vote.

The convention next concurred in a request from the Pan-American Exposition, to be held at Buffalo in 1901, for the appointment of an advisory committee on horticultural matters, and directed that the committee should be of a national and representative character.

The report of the committee on co-operative purchase was taken up and a brief but animated discussion followed.

E. G. Hill said: If the S. A. F. wants to give this co-operative principle a practical trial I would suggest that we organize a stock company and that we buy a window glass plant. (Applause.) There are quite a number of co-operative concerns scattered through the country, in the glass belt and other sections, and if we could just hitch on to some of those workmen, give them forty-nine per cent and we take fifty-one per cent, we could get glass at a reasonable price. As a starter I would suggest that we turn over the matter of buying a glass plant to the co-operative committee of the society. We were simply held up and robbed this year by the American Window Glass Company; that is all there is about that. And while I have always voted in favor of the protective tariff, I would no longer vote for a 140 per cent tariff for the exclusive benefit of that concern.

J. D. Carmody, of Evansville, Ind., remarked with characteristic humor that he, for one, had not been approached by the committee to make a special price on boilers to the association, though he would gladly have made most bountiful concessions to his dear friends. He intimated that he thought the committee had been remiss in ignoring him.

J. L. Dillon, of Bloomsburg, Pa., expressed the opinion, based on what Mr. Hill had said, that that gentleman had been plucked by the potteries as well as the glass companies.

C. W. Ward suggested that it would be a good idea to get possession of one of the co-operative pipe factories and try to absorb the major share of the profits in the first instance.

Jno. N. May said that the trusts had been bleeding the florists pretty severely, and he thought it was about time for the latter to form a trust for self protection. If the trusts were putting up the prices two, three and four hundred per cent on the goods the florist wanted, why shouldn't the florists put up their prices to corresponding figures? All over the country to-day the trade is selling goods at practically no profit at all, and he thought there was no occasion for it. He believed that if they would all make up their minds to advance prices, the public would have to pay those prices. He did not see why they should sell goods at an unprofitable rate any more than other manufacturers do, because florists are manufacturers in the best sense of the word.

J. C. Vaughan expressed the opinion that if a general advance of prices had been made by the florists of the country hundreds of thousands of dollars could have been added to the receipts of the trade last spring, and at the same time all plants could have been sold. He suggested that a representative committee of the commercial florists of the country, or a committee of this society, could have issued a statement, about February 1, showing the general condition of the plant market and advising the retail plantsmen that, in the opinion of the committee, a fifty per cent advance could be made on all plant prices for the spring trade. Then the growers could have acted on such advice. He believed that this was still possible of accomplishment. Bearing in mind that good quality must go with a fair price, florists who grow good plants, the coming year, might with safety add fifty per cent to former prices and dispose of their stock before June 15 next.

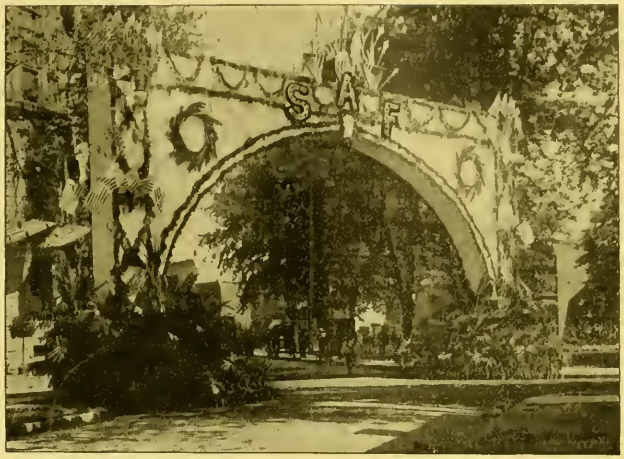
Robt. Craig said he liked Mr. Hill's idea because there was something definite about it. For florists to attempt to raise the prices of their plants all over the country was too big a job, but they could get control of a glass plant and get the glass at about cost for each and all of them. Then the S. A. F. would be doing something. He said he wanted to see that idea followed up. He hoped it would not be dropped, but that a committee would be appointed to push the matter. If nothing was done at this convention but just to get that glass plant a great work would be accomplished. (Applause.)



Wm. Scott said he agreed with Mr. May in wishing that prices could be raised, but in the trade in which he was largely engaged, that of bedding and ornamental plants, he did not think there had been any serious drop even during the hard times; fairly good prices had been maintained. He deprecated any attempt to raise prices by mutual agreement, and argued that competition is the life of trade. Ten men might agree, but if one of them lessened his price the rest would come down to it; but, in retailing, a man can not always gain trade by underselling. There are men who sell at half prices, but respectable people come to respectable florists.

Replying to a statement by one member that trusts are antagonistic to the law, Mr. Scott said he did not believe this. He could see nothing criminal in six men saying, "Let up pool our interests." He quoted the declaration attributed to Mr. Havemeyer in an allusion to the sugar trust, viz., that protection is the mother of trusts. He continued: Glass can be made and sold for $2.25 per box; that is, within a certain bracket, viz., 12x12, 14x14 or 16x16. It is now $4 50. Who gets this great profit? The manufacturer gets it, although he lived and did well at the low price. The laborer is not getting it, for the glass blower has been idle for some months. When the tariff is 140 per cent it is more than protection; it is prohibition. That precludes the possibility of sending to Belgium or England for glass. It is this which enables the trust to stop us poor, working florists from building greenhouses.

Mr. Scott went on to urge that the legislative committee be directed to appeal to congress to take off the tariff so that when the trust increased their prices to an enormous figure the florists could send to the old country for glass.

C. W. Turnley, of Haddonfield, N. J., argued that the price of a product was regulated by its quality. He could see no sufficient ground for a complaint of low prices.

E. A. Seidewitz, of Annapolis, Md., spoke of the successful operation of a co-operative glass factory in the town from which he came, the cost of which was between $10,000 and $12,000, although the output was small. He regarded the idea of establishing such a factory by the S. A. F. as a practical one. He thought it was the only way in which they could fight the trust, whose prices are entirely too high. In regard to a pipe factory, as suggested by Mr. Ward, he explained that this necessitated an enormous plant whereas a window glass plant required but a small capital to begin business with, viz., about $20,000 or $25,000.

THE TRIUMPHAL ARCH AT DETROIT.

E. M. Wood, chairman of the co-operative purchase committee, explained that his report proposed the formation of a corporation with a capital of not less than $12,000, which could buy glass, pipe or any other factories to carry on its business, the purpose being to create a co-operative department for the benefit of the trade.

Jos. Heacock said he had not much faith in an appeal to congress, as they would vote money into the pockets of the capitalists but none to the florists. He believed in individual action and that the place to fight these evils was at the polls, when congressmen are voted for.

E. G. Hill remarked that he believed the American people were a fair minded people and would not wink at or support iniquity in any body of men. If the S. A. F. would inaugurate a movement to besiege congress on this question, every member writing to his congressman and getting his friends to write to theirs, they would make the dry bones rattle and there would be a reduction of the tariff on glass. In this way a conclusion on the matter would be reached in less time than it would take to buy and start a glass factory. Concerted action would compel the reduction; and when the tariff came down the price of glass would fall. He suggested to the committee to formulate a letter and send it to all the florists of the country with this end in view.

The discussion here ended and, on motion of Mr. Wood, a committee of five was created to consider the matter and report to the present convention the best method of procedure.

Report of Committee on Claims.

Secretary Stewart presented the report of the committee on claims, received from H. A. Siebrecht, in which it was stated that several claims had been satisfactorily adjusted by the committee, that eight are still in the committee's hands in process of settlement and that thirty-seven have been placed in the hands of an attorney for collection on a contingent basis, without expense to the society or claimant. The committee stated that the members are convinced that the forwarding companies have used more care and diligence in the handling of florists' goods since the committee was appointed.

The American Rose Society.

President Wm. C. Barry, Rochester, presided at the meeting of this society and spoke eloquently of the development of the rose as the result of intelligent effort and long years of study, energy and enterprise. Everywhere growers are united in support of the new society. He predicted that its exhibitions would not be ordinary shows but such as would deserve to be compared with the finest art displays and that they would be liberally patronized.

Robert Craig spoke of the value of the carnation society in providing an official court to which a seedling could be taken to get the stamp of approval. In this way a seedling of merit soon becomes known to the public and carnation growing is stimulated. The American Rose Society proposes to be of like service to the rose. Its first exhibition, in New York, in March, 1900, will be a notable one. The premium list for that exhibition will be sent out about October 1 and growers will be stimulated to exhibit not only the tea roses but varieties of hybrid teas adapted for winter and spring forcing.

E. G. Hill repeated the statements of various large growers that, unless the proposed organization is maintained, the rose would have to take a place behind the carnation. He believes that every florist is indebted to the rose because Perle des Jardins, Bride and Bridesmaid had earned more shoes and calico, built more homes and carpeted more floors than any product in the floral kingdom. The florists have virtually lived and flourished on these three roses, and they could not now refuse support to the Rose Society. He urged that it be given financial backbone by 100 of the florists of the country subscribing $50 each for a life membership. He would lead the way as one of the hundred. He wanted to know how many would join him.

Jno. N. May said he represented to-day, in his own person, what the rose could do for a man, for he would frankly admit that he owed to the queen of flowers the bread and butter for his family. He made an earnest appeal to florists in general to enroll their names upon the life membership list, which contained already seven names.

Immediate responses to these appeals were made by a number of gentlemen present and before adjournment the following had become enrolled as life members: Jos. Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.; Alex. Montgomery, of Natick, Mass.; E. Hippard, Youngstown, Ohio; Robt. F. Tesson, St. Louis; Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit; Peter Reinberg, Chicago; Harry Dale, Brampton, Ont.; Fred. Mathison, Boston; J. M. Gasser, Cleveland; J. L. Dillon, Bloomsburg, Pa.; Emil Buettner and J. C. Vaughan, Chicago.

American Carnation Society.

The American Carnation Society met in Harmonie Hall, Detroit, at 9 a. m., August 16, with President Wm. P. Craig in the chair, facing a goodly proportion of the members.

The following were decided upon as features of the programme for the next annual meeting at Buffalo in February:

Hybridization of Carnations, by Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass.

Sub-irrigation, discussion opened by C. W. Ward, Queens, N. Y.

Indoor Culture During Summer, discussion opened by James Hartshorne, Joliet, Ill.

Insect Pests of the Carnation, paper by Prof. F. A. Sirrine, of the Jamaica Experiment Station, Long Island, N. Y.

In the discussion on the premium list it was moved by W. N. Rudd that such a sum as may be necessary be set aside from the $500 donated by Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, to procure a gold medal to be known as the Lawson Medal, the design of said medal to be approved by Mr. Lawson prior to its acceptance by the committee. The motion was carried and President Craig appointed Wm. Nicholson, Peter Fisher and M. A. Patten to execute the will of the society in the matter.

It was moved by Mr. Scott that a gold medal be awarded the best twenty-five blooms of an undisseminated seedling, also to the best 100 blooms of any variety. The motion prevailed.

On motion of E. G. Gillett with an amendment by Mr. Nicholson the balance of the premium list was left in the hands of the executive committee with the understanding that the awards be of increased value.

Edwin Lonsdale moved that special premiums be awarded exhibits other than carnations providing they be offered by individuals. This prevailed with the amendment by Mr. Ward that such awards be restricted to plants and flowers. The meeting adjourned with the motion by Mr. Rudd that the executive committee be empowered to so alter the premium list as it may see fit.

Chrysanthemum Society.

This organization held a meeting Thursday morning, W. N. Rudd presiding. The reading of the previous meeting's minutes was dispensed with and Treasurer May presented his report showing a balance on hand of $475.76. E. G. Hill was elected president and Edwin Lonsdale vice-president, Treasurer May and Secretary Smith being re-elected. The president was instructed to retire one member of each judging committee every year and to appoint a new man in his place. On the suggestion of S. J. Mitchell, of Houston, Texas, changes in the judging scale were adopted as follows:

Scale A.—Bush plants and standards, to apply to single specimens or any number of specimens up to six, provided same do not form the chief feature of the exhibition hall:

	Points.
Equality of size and form of plant	40
Excellence of bloom	35
Foliage	25
Total	100

Scale B.—Exhibit of more than six or for any number of specimen plants in an exhibition, where the class forms the chief feature of the exhibition hall:

	Points.
Excellence of bloom	40
Equality of size and form of plants	35
Foliage	25
Total	100

THE LATE WM. M'MILLAN. (SEE PAGE 98)

Scale C.—Points on plants grown to single stems and one bloom:

	Points.
Excellence of bloom	40
Compact and sturdy growth	35
Foliage	25
Total	100

Scale D.—Points on specimen blooms:

Color	25
Form	25
Fullness	15
Size	15
Stem and foliage	10
Substance	10
Total	100

Thursday's Proceedings.

The first business was the reading of the report of the exhibition judges, which was accepted and filed.

President Rudd announced the appointment of the following committees ordered by the convention:

Advisory Committee to the Pan-American Exposition, J. C. Vaughan, Patrick O'Mara, Robt. George.

On Co-operative Purchase, E. M. Wood, E. G. Hill, Robt. Craig, J. L. Dillon, J. M. Gasser.

The next business was the presentation of E. M. Wood's paper on "Rose pests and how to annihilate them," which was read by Mr. O'Mara and much applauded. A vote of thanks was tendered to its author.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the unanimous choice of the following: President, Edmund M. Wood, Natick, Mass.; Vice-President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Secretary, Wm. J. Stewart, Boston. Treasurer, H. B. Beatty, Oil City, Pa., was re-elected after a contest in which he received 97 votes and John G. Esler received 64 votes.

The question box was opened with the following query: "Can roses be grafted on roots of Manetti with dormant wood as is done in apple grafting." E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., and Robert George, of Painesville, Ohio, made brief responses.

The next business was the reading of a paper by C. W. Ward, on "Hybridization of carnations and introduction of new varieties."

Discussion of the paper was invited but the only response was made by Wm. Scott, who said he thought the paper left no room for discussion. The only suggestion he would add was this, that a variety should not be hastily discarded because it did not turn out well the first year. He instanced the variety Flora Hill, which was magnificently exhibited at Cincinnati. The first year it was widely disappointing; the second year it was moderately successful but it has that trait of hanging its head when the flower is fully expanded and has acquired the reputation of being weak stemmed. By proper selection it turned out, last year, as being nearly all we desire in a carnation. A vote of thanks was given Mr. Ward for his paper and the convention adjourned until evening.

At the evening session a telegram was read offering a window glass plant for sale which had evidently been sent in response to the Associated Press report announcing the appointment the day previous of a committee to report on the feasibility of organizing on a co-operative basis to protect florists from the rapacity of the glass and other trusts, now exacting enormous profits. This committee is composed of E. M. Wood, Robt. Craig, J. M. Gasser, E. G. Hill and J. L. Dillon, and is to be continued until the wishes of the society have been carried out in the matter. The committee recommended the organization of a corporation under some state law, with a capital of not less than $12,000, shares to be ten dollars each and no member to receive more than five shares. It was further recommended that the S. A. F. have control of fifty-one per cent of the stock, for which it is not to be required to pay anything, forty-nine per cent to be controlled by the individual members of the society, the idea being to insure the co-operation of the florists at large by the society's ability to make them economical prices and at the same time secure to the actual investors dividends in adequate recompense of the cash advanced. It was further suggested that in case the subscriptions for stock prove insufficient the corporation might sell bonds to make good the deficiency, said corporation to purchase or manufacture supplies as requirements demand.

There was considerable discussion as to the legal technicalities of the question, and a motion directing the committee to take steps for the carrying out of its recommendations, without involving the society in any way, was adopted unanimously. It was also suggested that the standing committee on legislation organize their forces in opposition to the high tariff on many of the necessities of the florists, it being cited that glass was taxed 140 per cent. The discussion on this point brought out the fact that many who had previously been in favor of a protective tariff were now opposed to it.

The question box brought out some interesting information on various subjects, and the discussion on glazing, elicited through this medium, was rather exciting for a time. Wm. Scott defended butted quite vigorously and was supported to a limited extent by some others. The less demonstrative arguments of C. W. Ward and E. M. Wood, however, in favor of lapped glass left a great deal of doubt in the minds of a majority as to the superiority of butted glass. The remarks of Mr. Sanders at the conclusion of the debate appeared quite fitting when he said it was one of those cases in which "you pays your money and takes your choice."

Toward the close of the meeting Robt. Craig, on behalf of the society, and in his usual felicitous style, presented President Rudd with a beautiful diamond as a token of the members' appreciation of his earnest labors in their behalf. Mr. Rudd responded briefly and feelingly.

A resolution was adopted endorsing Wm. Scott as a candidate for the position of superintendent of horticulture at the Pan-American Exposition to be held in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1901.

The president appointed Alexander Wallace, G. L. Grant and Michael Barker a committee on final resolutions.

Legislative Committee's Report.

Patrick O'Mara, New York, chairman of the standing committee on legislation, stated the result of the committee's labors as follows:

Since our last convention the trouble arising through the importation of goods through the New York Custom House was the only matter referred to the committee. It was investigated at the time, and the committee made what it considered a full report through the columns of the trade press. As it is to be assumed that everyone vitally interested in the matter was made aware of the main facts of the case at that time, it would be a waste of time to go over the details now. A detailed statement will be incorporated in the report of the proceedings of this convention.

The committee proposed to the Appraiser at the port of New York that he should solicit from the trade, in advance, the purchase price as fixed by sellers and catalogue men, so that he could appraise the value and make that value known to the importer in sufficient time to permit a proper entry to be made and so do away with the cumbersome and very annoying method which had prevailed. The Appraiser coincided with the committee and, after some discussion, the view of the committee was adopted by him; but as a result, the Treasury Department appointed a commission of special agents to go to New York and investigate the conduct of affairs at the Appraiser's stores with special reference to importations of plants, bulbs, etc., and that commission nullified the action of the Appraiser, so that the fixing of values in advance by the Appraiser, to be given to the importer will not be allowed. However, I believe that as a result of that action, the Appraiser of the port will be at greater liberty to make valuations in accordance with published prices, and, as the commission of special agents condemned the practice of making an equalization of values, I believe he will have more lee-way in passing invoices where some buyers who buy in large quantities are able to get lower prices than somebody else.

One other matter to which I wish to refer is this: Your committee was early convinced that the officers entrusted with the collection of the revenues were equally anxious with them to expedite business wherever and whenever it could be done consistently with the proper discharge of their duties. While plants, bulbs and nursery stocks are on the list of dutiable merchandise there must always be more or less delay in appraising and passing them; at least they cannot be altogether avoided. These delays are more likely to occur at the port of New York, where seventy per cent of the entire import revenue of the United States is collected, than at minor ports of entry, and for obvious reasons. The appropriate remedy—in the opinion of your committee, the only unfailing remedy—for this condition lies in legislation. While the government might easily and willingly forego the comparatively paltry revenue derived from the duty now levied on plants and bulbs, yet it is doubtful if it would be expedient to ask that they be put upon the free list, even if they are to a great extent raw material to the trade at large. A line of specific duties would do away with the most, if not all, of the difficulties encountered under the present system of advalorum duties, and would be preferable for many reasons to which it is needless to refer here but which must suggest themselves to all who have been hampered by the present cumbersome system. We express the hope that, when the occasion arises to effect a change, a remedy will be sought and found in legislation and that combined and harmonious action will be taken by the florist and nursery trades.

DETROIT CITY HALL DURING CONVENTION WEEK.

The Trade Exhibit.

The trade display was quite large, the increase being notably in plants. It was such stock as should enter into the make-up of each establishment that caters to the public. The space taken by exhibitors was greater than anticipated and a trifle crowded, although the hall provided was not small. Had the artistic feature inaugurated at the Cleveland convention been retained it would have been the means of a more free exchange of ideas in relation to the use of the stock exhibited; the store keeper and his direct interests were not enough in evidence; the art of making proper use of flowers and plants, on which the advancement of the horticultural fraternity depends, should have been given greater attention.

CLASS A.

Henry A. Dreer Co., Philadelphia, displayed a large assortment of kentias from small to quite large, arecas, latanias, dracænas and small ferns.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, staged palms, Boston ferns, acalyphas, Adiantum Farleyense, fern balls and hibiscuses.

Peter Crowe, Utica, N. Y., showed a specimen adiantum three feet in diameter, apparently a very strong grower.

Robert Craig & Son, Philadelphia, exhibited palms, ferns, asparagus, pandanuses, dracænas, bougainvilleas, ficuses and a beautiful collection of crotons.

Geo. Wittbold, Chicago, had palms, ferns and Cycas revoluta.

Harry Papworth, New Orleans, made a beautiful display of palms of unusually large size.

S. Taplin, Detroit, gave a brilliant display of Vallota purpurea and Rochea falcata.

Chas. D. Ball, Holmsburg, Pa., had a large display of arecas, kentias, dracænas, pandanuses and Cycas revoluta.

Siebrecht & Son, New Rochelle, N. Y., exhibited a large collection of palms, particularly of small size, dracænas, pandanuses and ferns.

J. M. Gasser, Cleveland, Ohio, made a display of Carnation Merrimac, cut blooms and potted plants; it is a seedling from McGowan and Scott.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., showed Japan cedars.

Ellis & Pollworth, Milwaukee, had palms, ferns and araucarias.

W. J. Hesser, Plattsmouth, Neb., exhibited a small collection of palms, fancy caladiums, selaginellas and geraniums.

Albert Fuchs, Chicago, staged arecas, kentias, pandanuses, latanias and other palms and ferns.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., made a most beautiful display of cattleyas in bloom, are species attracting particular attention.

Geo. A. Rackham, Detroit, exhibited fine nephrolepis and very good cyclamen plants, also a rare specimen of Cattleya Hardyana grown by Henry C. Fruck.

J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O., had Adiantum Farleyense, pandanuses, cycas, arecas and latanias.

E. H. Michel, St. Louis, brought aspidistras, palms and ferns.

CLASS B.

Cushman Gladiolus Co, Euclid, O., had a large and beautiful display of gladioli arranged in jardinieres.

Henry A. Dreer showed a tank of aquatics, a good assortment of useful varieties, but a trifle damaged in transit.

L. B. Brague, Hinsdale, Mass., brought cut ferns, moss and lycopodium.

CLASS E.

Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, white cedar plant tubs and plant food.

P. H. Simeres, Detroit, plant tubs.

Union Manufacturing Co., Toledo, O., cypress plant tubs.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, adjustable plant stands.

John C. Meyer & Co., Boston, Mass., silkaline for training vines, also fancy colors for tying packages.

E. H. Hunt, Chicago, a large display of florists' ribbon and sheaves.

Dayton Paper Novelty Co., Dayton, O., large and varied assortment of folding paper boxes.

Edwards & Docker, Philadelphia, folding paper boxes.

Ellis & Pollworth, Milwaukee, folding paper boxes.

Henry F. Michell, Philadelphia, watering pots, sheaves and chenille.

A. Herrmann, New York, metal wreaths.

H. D. Rohrer, Lancaster, Pa., florists' shipping boxes.

Flower City Plant Food Co., Rochester, N. Y., Walker's Excelsior plant food.

White Enamel Refrigerator Co., St. Paul, a syphon refrigerator.

McCrays, Kendallville, Ind., refrigerator.

W. C. Krick, Brooklyn, immortelle letters, wire holders for standard pots and plant stands.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, a large and beautiful display of baskets, jardinieres, fern dishes, sheaves and foil.

Wm. Dilger, Detroit, a display of Sandusky rock formation.

J. W. Erringer, Chicago, wagon heater.

CLASS C.

Hitchings & Co., New York, improved sectional boiler.

S. Taplin, Detroit, clay and slack burning hot water boiler.

CLASS F.

Clucas & Boddington, New York, Dutch bulbs, lilies, oncidium, and kentia seed.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Dutch and other bulbs.

H. F. Michell, Philadelphia, assorted bulbs.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., bulbs, Dutch, French and Bermuda.

C. H. Joosten, New York, assorted bulbs.

CLASS D.

John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, greenhouse model and material.

Jennings Bros., Philadelphia, iron bench frame and greenhouse fittings.

Geo. M. Garland, Des Plaines, Ill., iron valley gutter and drip conductor.

Quaker City Machine Works, Richmond, Ind., ventilator.

I. N. Kramer & Son, Cedar Rapids, Ia., adjustable tubular greenhouse construction.

J. M. Gasser, Cleveland, O., zinc joints for glazing.

J. G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J., rubber hose.

Lockland Lumber Co., Lockland, O., samples of cypress.

Antone Hupprich, Detroit, flower pots.

Ionia Pottery Co, Ionia, Mich., pots, saucers, vases and hanging pots.

Detroit Flower Pot Manufactory, pots, fern pans and a pot for violets.

Florists' Supply Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., soil crushing and pulverizing machine.

S. P. Conkling Co., Detroit, excellent display of valves, hose, tools, pipe covering and gauges.

J. D. Carmody, Evansville, Ind., hinges and improved ventilator apparatus.

CLASS G.

Daniel B. Long, Buffalo, a unique display of blotters and calendars, also pads for growers in keeping account of flowers cut, designs for catalogue covers, etc.

The Trip to Star Island.

The afternoon and evening of Wednesday were devoted to a most enjoyable steamer ride on Lake St. Clair, and a fish supper at the Star Island House, a courtesy extended by the Detroit Florists' Club.

Those Present.

The following are among those who attended the Detroit convention:

Pennsylvania: Wm. P. Craig, Robt. Kift, Geo. Anderson, Lemuel Ball, John Burton, A. B. Cartledge, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Habermehl, W. K. Harris, Flora Harris and Jas. Harris, Edwin Lonsdale, H. F. Michell, M. Rice, David Rust, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker, Felix Myers, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Ball, Clara Y. Ball, and Chas. D. Ball, Jr., T. B. Meehan, B. B. Starkey, F. J. Michell, Jas. J. Gilbert, John Kuhn, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Westcott, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Westcott, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Craig, Mrs. Culin, Mrs. Roberts, A. L. Brown, Geo. Moss, Rupert W. Keinle, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baker, H. T. Dumont, Philadelphia; J. W. Ludwig, Fred. Burki, Wm. Leow, Gustave Ludwig and E. C. Rieneman, Allegheny; P. S. Randolph, Pittsburg; H. L. Blind and Fred. Henkel, West View; Joseph Heacock and James Heacock, Wyncote, Albert M. Herr and H. D. Rohrer, Lancaster; Geo. E. Fancourt, Wilkesbarre, J. L. Dillon, Bloomsburg; Augustus Krueger, Meadville; M. I. O'Brien, Sharon; A. Wintzer, West Grove; W. H. Taplin, Holmesburg.

New York: P. O'Mara, C. B. Weathered, Wm. Plumb, A. S. Burns, Saml. Henshaw, A. T. Boddington, A. T. De La Mare, Cornelius S. Loder, Theo. Roehrs, J. Austin Shaw, Alex. Wallace, C. G. Weeber, J. W. Withers, C. F. Atkins, W. C. Mark, Jas. McHutchinson, Frank Traendly, O. Boehler, Jno. A. McArthur, Chas. E. Hanscom, H. M. Krause, Robt. Leach, Jas. Begbie, New York City; Wm. F. Kasting, Wm. Scott, D. B. Long and W. A. Adams, Buffalo; Henry Dailledouze, Paul Dailledouze, D. Y. Mellis, W. C. Krick, Alfred Zeller, L. Schmutz, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Langjahr and A. Wolmer, Brooklyn; Benj. Hammond, Fishkill; John C. Hatcher, Amsterdam; Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Kretschmar and Julius F. Kretschmar, Nyack; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown; Paul M. Pierson, Scarborough; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Siebrecht, New Rochelle; C. W. Ward, Queens; Jas. Dean, Babylon.

Illinois: J. B. Deamud, Arnold Ringier, N. J. Rupp, Geo. Stollery, Fred. Stollery, John Degnan, C. L. Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kreitling, E. Weinhoeber, E. Buettner, Edgar Sanders, Albert Fuchs, Peter Reinberg, J. C. Vaughan, E. C. Pruner, E. F. Winterson, J. S. Wilson, J. V. Merrion, W. N. Rudd, M. Barker, E. E. Pieser, C. M. Dickinson, P. J. Hauswirth, Chas. W. McKellar, J. W. Erringer, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Fred. J. King and daughter, Ottawa; P. Weiland and Miss Weiland, Evanston; Chas. Swigart, Niles Center; Jas. Hartshorne, Joliet; H. The Leaders of Horticulture.

The men who stand at the head of affairs in the Society of American Florists, the officers and the members of the executive committee, are selected for the various positions because of their steadfastness in promoting the best interests of horticulture and floriculture. A mere glance at the long list of men who have served the society will at once confirm this assertion, and it is largely due to their active and practical interest that the society is to-day an almost indispensable institution. The superstitious may find the number usually in office—thirteen—an excuse for the unjustifiable and malicious attacks to which they are subjected, but we feel certain it is simply another case of the shining light a mark for the bad, mischievious boy whose early instructors neglected to teach him better. The officers and committeemen of the Society of American Florists need no defense; their work stands out in bold relief as their own best eulogy. We are pleased, however, on this occasion to be able to give the readers of this issue portraits of the present incumbents, with brief biographical notices as follows:

PRESIDENT RUDD.

Willis N. Rudd is one of the youngest men who ever served as president of the society. He was born near Chicago thirty-eight years ago and acquired his education in the schools of his vicinity and at Cornell University. In 1886 he became superintendent of the Mt. Greenwood Cemetery and secretary of the corporation which controls it. A range of commercial glass was soon erected in which he has always taken great interest and which has become renowned for its carnations and chrysanthemums. Mr. Rudd has for several years been superintendent of the annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago and was, two years ago, president of the American Carnation Society. In addition he was for some time a member of the S. A. F. executive committee and chairman of the Chicago committee of the C. S. A. He is an indefatigable worker for the welfare of the trade.

VICE-PRESIDENT BREITMEYER.

Philip Breitmeyer is one of the most popular young men in the trade. He was born in 1864 and his school days ended with his twelfth year, when his father opened a retail store in Detroit. Phil. was the delivery boy. In 1874 he served a term with Pennock Bros., Philadelphia, returning to his father's business with renewed ambition to make it what it is to-day, one of the best. Mr. Breitmeyer is the president and moving spirit of the Detroit Florists' Club and it is largely to his efforts that the success of the convention has been due.

SECRETARY STEWART.

William J. Stewart has been identified with the S. A. F. since its organization, as he was a member of the original executive committee and succeeded Edwin Lonsdale as secretary in 1887, being honored by re-election annually ever since. Mr. Stewart was born at Cambridge, Mass., fifty years ago. As a young man he was in the Harvard Botanic Gardens. His first connection with the trade was in a retail store in Boston but he soon became manager for E. M. Wood in the commission end and later carried on a successful business of his own, retiring to devote his energies to his duties as secretary of the S. A. F. and eastern representative of the AMERICAN FLORIST. Mr. Stewart has long been a worker in the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and is at present chairman of its committee on prizes and a member of the building committee. He was the first president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston and was re-elected to that office in 1895. Of recent years he has also been an active worker in the New York Florists' Club.

TREASURER BEATTY.

H. B. Beatty, who, since the Atlantic City meeting in 1892, has cared for the financial interests of the S. A. F., is a Pennsylvanian, usually at home at Oil City, where in years past he carried the active management of the Oakwood Rose Gardens; but for the last six years he has been most actively engaged in the natural gas business. Mr. Beatty is now the head of the Manufacturers Natural Gas Co., of Pittsburg, a corporation with an investment of a million and a half of dollars. He has given unselfishly of his valuable time to the society, not only in his official work but on other lines as well and for such is entitled to the gratitude of its members.

ELMER D. SMITH.

The junior member of the firm of Nathan Smith & Son, Adrian, Mich., was born at Detroit, November 30, 1854. His parents removed to Adrian in 1857, where the family has since resided. It was in June, 1876, that the Smiths built their first greenhouse, 10x50 feet, but the establishment had grown materially before 1883 when the subject of this sketch withdrew to devote two years to banking and other clerical work. In 1885 he returned to the florist business with renewed enthusiasm and made further large additions to the plant. In recent years Mr. Smith's name has been linked with the development of the chrysanthemum, he having served long and faithfully as secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society of America. His first interest in the flower was aroused by John Thorpe, whose paper on the subject was a feature of the S. A. F. meeting in Chicago in 1887. Since then his experiments at hybridization and cross fertilization have given us some of the best of recent introductions.

GEORGE M. KELLOGG.

George M. Kellogg was born April 16, 1838, at Southwick, Mass., and lived on a farm until his eighteenth year, when he removed to Chicago, going thence to Kansas in 1857. For ten years he labored to make that bleeding land what it is to-day, as he says, "the liveliest state in the union." In 1867 he located at Pleasant Hill, Mo., and engaged in market gardening. In 1888 he built his first greenhouses, two small structures, the embryo from which has sprung his present range of 124,000 feet of glass. A year ago he established a wholesale store at Kansas City, where he is doing a large and profitable business.

EDMUND M. WOOD.

E. M. Wood was born at Brookline, Mass., "the heart of New England floriculture," June 18, 1837, the year in which his father established the large business of color manufacturing which Mr. Wood now conducts as Henry Wood's Son & Co. Mr. Wood saw remuneration in commercial floriculture and ventured in. Two houses built in 1869 were the beginning and stand to-day, the nucleus of the big range of thirty-four conservatories at Natick and a monument to the mechanical abilities and judgement of Mr. Wood, for, with the single exception of height, eighteen feet, they embrace about all the best features of the houses built to-day. These houses were Mr. Wood's own design and furnish probably the first instance of the use of large glass in greenhouse construction, the size used being 18x20. At first a variety of stock was grown and it took some years and the investment of much money before the winning pace was struck, with Alex. Montgomery at the helm. Although burdened with an infinity of business cares Mr. Wood is a willing participant in all the social and fraternal affairs of the craft in Boston and his annual invitation to view his chrysanthemum houses is the event of the year. He is a member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and of the Horticultural Club of Boston. For nine years he has been a willing worker for the S. A. F., having given much thought to the Department of Co-operation Purchase, of which he is chairman, and the society has made no mistake in bestowing upon him its highest honor.

E. H. CUSHMAN.

It is upon the farm at Euclid, O., which his grandfather purchased in the early days of the century, that E. H. Cushman has brought the gladiolus to such perfection that this flower is instinctively coupled with his name. Mr. Cushman has resided upon this farm since his birth, in 1859, and for years devoted his energies to small fruits; it was in 1891 that he turned his attention to the gladiolus. He is growing over 1,000,000 bulbs this year. For six years he has been an exhibitor at the S. A. F. conventions and he attributes much of his success to his presence at these meetings. Mr. Cushman is a member of the Cleveland Florists' Club and of a number of organizations of horticulturists, including the Ohio State Horticultural Society, of which he was elected president in 1895.

JOHN H. TAYLOR.

John H. Taylor was born in New York City in 1857 and from 1867 to 1877 was in Europe acquiring an education. On his return home he attended the Bussey Institution, Boston, graduating in 1881 with the degree of Bachelor of Agricultural Science, his being the first degree ever conferred there. In 1863 Mr. Taylor's father and the late John Henderson went into partnership in flower and fruit growing, Mr. Henderson subsequently retiring with $10,000 as his share. On emerging from college Mr. Taylor became the manager of his father's place and eventually its owner. A diverse stock was at first grown but was gradually narrowed to roses and chrysanthemums, the latter serving as an alternate crop with forced hybrid roses. Mr. Taylor was the first in the New York market to disbud chrysanthemums, getting phenomenal prices for the single blooms the very first season. In 1889 he had 116 varieties under cultivation. Another specialty which Mr. Taylor turned to good account was the old Hinsdale carnation. Some fifteen years ago he had a sash lean-to 10x250 with 8x10 glass and solid beds from which in June he cut 75,000 blooms, which averaged $1.50 per hundred. The establishment now consists of 75,000 feet of glass under which are cut some of the finest roses which reach the New York market. Here originated the Admiral Dewey rose introduced this year.

WALTER W. COLES.

In common with many of our best growers, W. W. Coles is a native of "Old England" and looks back upon a long training in the many strong establishments in the "tight little isle." He is forty-two years of age and from his sixteenth year until 1880 he served upon such excellent estates as that at Elvaston Castle, under J. H. Goodacre, and in such great houses as that of Veitch. Coming to America he found his first friend in Wm. Bennett, of Flatbush, and his first occupation upon the grounds of Mrs. Morgan. In 1882 he rented a few houses at Claymont, Del., quickly making his mark with chrysanthemums. In 1885 Mr. Coles bought land at Lansdowne, Pa., and for five years grew roses for the Philadelphia market. Since locating at Kokomo, Ind., in 1891, he has achieved a reputation for his Kaiserins, which he annually exhibits at the fall shows. He was a charter member of the S. A. F. and is a member of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, of the American Carnation Society and of the Society of Indiana Florists, of which he was twice elected president.

C. W. WARD.

In the brief period of nine years since he embarked in floriculture C. W. Ward has achieved a distinction which it takes most men a life-time to attain. Mr. Ward was born in a Michigan lumber camp in 1857. Broken health and the necessity for an open air pursuit caused him to go into commercial floriculture at East Moriches, N. Y., in 1890, subsequently removing to Queens, where he has a model range of 25,000 feet of glass. Mr. Ward was one of the first to practice the now common methods of bringing carnation blooms to their highest development and some of his seedlings are among the number best known. His first was a white one named Ethel, a cross between Lamborn and Portia, which proved to be an excellent summer bloomer. Later introductions which have taken high honors wherever shown are Mrs. James Dean, New York, John Young, Gen Maceo, Gen. Gomez and Glacier. Mr. Ward is one of the active members of the American Carnation Society and seed pods innumerable indicate that persistent and painstaking work is constantly going on at the Queens establishment, and no donbt the future will disclose many gems therein.

LAWRENCE COTTER.

At the age of twenty-six Lawence Cotter, who was born on the Smith-Barry estate, Cork, Ireland, in 1854, came to New York with a horticultural training gained in some of the best known establishments in the British Isles and located as foreman in the greenhouse department of S. R. Van Duzer, afterward taking a similar place at W. K. Vanderbilt's and, after brief terms at other places, settled down as manager of the estate and greenhouses of the late C. V. Whitten at Dorchester, Mass., a position he has now held for ten years. Roses have always been the principal crop at the Whitten establishment and the flowers grown there have gained a high reputation in the Boston market, but Mr. Cotter has also won honors with chrysanthemums and, in fact, with whatever else he has undertaken. He was the first to grow the Crimson Rambler for the Easter trade in Boston Mr. Cotter is one of the famed "Old Guard" of Boston horticulturists, among whom one of his staunchest admirers is his old-time employer, Judge Hoitt. Mr. Cotter was president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston in 1896 and is one of President Rudd's appointees on the executive committee.

JOHN F. COWELL.

Prof. Cowell was born near Boston and early in life engaged in the work of construction gardening, his first important task, the rehabilitation of an estate of seventy acres, being undertaken when he was but eighteen. In the late seventies he located at Buffalo and in 1884 accepted a position in the department of education as a teacher of botany where he remained until he resigned in 1894 to enter the employ of the park department. Prof. Cowell, besides being a member of the S. A. F., is a member of the American Society for the Advancement of Science, the Microscopical Club, Society of Natural Science, the Field Club, the Foresters' Association of America and the Buffalo Florists' Club. From a barren tract of land in South Park which in 1894 he undertook to change, it seems wonderful what has been accomplished in the way of roads and flower beds. At the present time his limited amount of glass is filled with all that is rare and of interest to the advanced scholar or student.

Hybridizing and the Introduction of New Carnations.

BY C. W. WARD, QUEENS, N. Y.

[Read before the Detroit Convention of the Society of American Florists.]

The improvement in the carnation which has taken place during the past six years has brought it so prominently before the general public and has increased its use to such an extent that probably no flower occupies a more prominent position among florists' flowers than does the carnation to-day. This increasing interest in the divine flower naturally attracts the efforts of many florists towards its improvement.

There exist two leading elements that bid fair to encourage florists to continue their efforts for the improvement of the carnation for many years to come. Lovers as well as users of flowers are constantly seeking that which is novel and rare. The progressive florist is ever on the alert to gratify such desires on the part of the flower-loving public; consequently the call for new and improved carnations will be to some extent perpetuated by these conditions and it may be well said that no florist who hopes to keep abreast of the times can afford to ignore this improvement in the carnation and must of necessity keep in close touch with the newer varieties as they are introduced and keep his stock fully up to date by the purchase of those better sorts which bid fair promise to succeed under the conditions which he grows carnations.

Again, say what we may, it is a well known fact that the average variety of carnation remains in profitable cultivation but a few years and must be constantly replaced by the newer and improved and more vigorous varieties grown from seed. In other words, carnations are continually running out. Therefore the market for new and improved varieties would seem to be a permanent one; consequently these elements will tend to keep a broad field open to the hybridizer, who may rest assured that if he produces a really improved carnation he will find a profitable sale for his production.

The operation of hybridization has been so frequently and so fully described by various writers that there is little need of repeating it in this paper and perhaps more good may be accomplished by devoting our time to discussing selection of parents, pedigree, keeping of records, selection of propagating wood and various other minutia upon which the production of a meritorious seedling carnation depends.

The foundation of successful hybridizing rests upon the selection of parents in the first instance and gradually builds up with and in proportion to the care exercised by the hybridizer in keeping proper watch upon the pedigrees of the various strains he is seeking to improve.

This can best be accomplished by means of accurate records of the work done, as well as notes upon the results obtained, which notes must necessarily extend through the life history of the plant and be fully brought down to date and properly compiled so as to be accessible to the mind of the hybridizer with the least mental effort to himself. This, of course, means application and labor to such an extent that perhaps comparatively few of those who engage in raising new carnations will carry out the necessary details a sufficient length of time to accomplish material results.

The bare raising and selling a double seedling carnation, even though netting some profit to its grower, cannot be considered as successful improvement of the carnation. An accidental variety of merit may now and then come to the grower who miscellaneously mixes the pollen of different flowers and plants the seed resulting therefrom, but the continued production of the best of the improved varieties will scarcely result from such work.

If the reader of this paper expects that hard and fast rules for producing an army of new seedlings to perplex the whilom seeker of that which is best and most profitable to grow will be herein laid down, he is laboring under a mistaken idea.

The ground over which a hybridizer is working becomes peculiarly his own territory, practically an unknown region which he alone is exploring and he must not only get his knowledge as he works over his field, but he must also have the wit to take advantage of and use what knowledge it may be his fortune to garner; consequently he cannot make rules, even for his own guidance, much less for the guidance of others laboring in entirely different, though analagous fields.

In the selection of parents choose the best you have at hand. You will not find all the desirable attributes in any one plant nor in any six plants; possibly not in any 100 plants, and after producing several thousand seedling plants, and finally reducing them by the process of selection to a half dozen worthy of a third year's trial, the hybridizer will wonder and be discouraged by the amount of dross he has to handle in order to get a little gold.

In the selection of seedlings, color stands preeminently above all other considerations; size, form, fragrance, substance and strength of stem stand on a fairly even basis of value. When these have been secured get as much freedom and continuity of bloom as is possible and maintain your cardinal features. Don't overlook fragrance. Its place is so close to color and size (the changes in the American Carnation Society's scale of points to the contrary, notwithstanding) that it was the cardinal virtue that won the divine flower into favor long before she had much of either color or size to boast of.

Having suited your own taste in selecting your seedling you must investigate its selling qualities. Florists should appreciate that the discriminating buyer usually decides what he or she wishes to buy. The retail florist being in close touch with the consuming purchaser quickly discerns what is most pleasing to the greatest number. Therefore it follows that the producer of new carnations should keep in touch with the retailer and should avail himself of the retailer's knowledge whenever possible. Choose pure tones of color, those possessing the greatest element of fixedness. Avoid dull, fading or washy colors, and, above all, those peculiar combinations of discordant tints that shock the optic nerve.

Every flower coming with long stiff stems, large double flowers, good form and calyx and free bloomer will not prove commercially valuable, but a combination of size, pure tone of color, good stem, form, fragrance and calyx with freedom of bloom, and above all not forgetting selling qualities, is what constitutes a first-class commercial carnation and the hybridizer who produces such a one deserves the plaudits of his fellow growers.

Having determined the candidate for introduction the method of bringing it before the trade will next interest the originator. There are two methods now in use, differing to such an extent as to deserve separate descriptions. The first and possibly most frequently employed is what we may term the "boom method," and in order to be successfully carried out needs the co-operation of several different elements and the accumulation of a large number of stock plants.

Briefly stated the "boom method" consists of praising and pushing the merits of the candidate for introduction in all possible ways and advertising all its virtues, real and imaginary, constantly through all available mediums. Certificates of merit, special cups and prizes offered to be won by the candidate, as well as frequent exhibitions at flower shows supplemented by well written press notices, form the usual plan and when cleverly carried out result in large sales and considerable profit to the introducer during the year of introduction.

The second and perhaps the most desirable method might be termed the "business method" and, while not producing such large sales the first year, eventually accomplishes more for the general benefit of the fraternity than the method just previously described and may be safely ventured with a stock of 1500 to 2000 plants to propagate from. The varieties selected for introduction may be brought to the attention of the trade by placing the flowers in the hands of leading retailers as well as by judicious advertising and staging them at the annual exhibitions.

The descriptions given should be correct; avoid producing impressions or arousing expectations that cannot be fulfilled. Be satisfied with selling a fair quantity at a good price the first season and endeavor to be in a position to satisfy the second season's demand, which will be large if your selections possess merit.

Propagate your stock carefully, selecting your propagating wood with judgment, keeping your stock in good health and sending out the young plants in a condition that will insure good growth and a successful crop of flowers in the hands of the average florist.

I do not mean to carry the impression that the introducer is limited to the two methods above described. Each introducer may adopt any honorable, legitimate means whereby he brings his productions to popular notice and secures a profitable sale thereof.

If the carnation specialist can get under the wing of a "copper king" and deftly twist a $30,000 nugget from the plethoric purse of the monarch of metals, he may well congratulate himself, and no doubt many of the fraternity will also congratulate him; but it may be well to remember that there are as yet few Lawsons, even fewer Fishers, perhaps, while the combination of Lawson, Fisher & Galvin is the rarest bird of all.

It may, however, be well to comprehend that a reputation for reliable and honorable dealing may be established by the introducer of new plants as well as by any other business man, and such a reputation will become a source of much profit to the possessor and a surer aid in marketing his productions than could all the prizes and certificates that he might be able to win. It therefore behooves the intending introducer of new carnations, to not only be cautious and circumspect in the selection and judging of his own seedlings, but to guard his statements well and to let no shadow of misrepresentation linger about the descriptions with which he brings his favorites to his patrons' notice.

Remember that ten satisfied customers are far more valuable than a thousand dissatisfied ones; and the way to create satisfied customers is to introduce only varieties which your experience teaches you have a probable chance of succeeding, and to deliver the stock in such a condition that the purchaser will not be handicapped in his efforts to successfully test your introductions.

CARNATIONS.

CULTURAL NOTES.

August 19.—Having prepared our soil for the benches it is well to consider what that soil will need in the way of water. Water plays an important part in the growth of our plants and is second only to the fertilization of the soil as an element of success. When we consider that not only is a different quantity needed for different soils, but for the different varieties of carnations as well, it becomes a matter requiring serious thought.

We have, thanks to the experiment stations, two methods of applying moisture, surface watering and subwatering. The methods of applying moisture from the bottom and the benefits derived from it have been discussed so fully that it is not necessary to touch upon them here. There is no question but that this sub-watering well done has many advantages over surface watering for carnation culture; but to do it well requires a greater outlay in money than many of us can afford. We must, therefore, study surface watering and get the best possible results out of it.

We all know that poorly drained soil will absorb less water than soil that is porous. Well drained soil offers a means of escape for the air which is displaced by the application of water, so that if our beds or benches are provided with good drainage we can in a large measure get the benefit of aeration of the soil, which is one of the main benefits claimed for sub-watering.

A compact soil loses more water by evaporation than a loose one, because the air spaces are small and more easily conduct the water to the surface by capillary attraction. On this account the surface of a compact soil remains moist much longer than the surface of a loose one. With such a soil on our benches it will be easy to commit the error of considering that because the surface is moist the bench needs no water, while the bottom may be so dry as to stop the action in the lower roots.

The greater proportion of a carnation plant is water, and the proper way for it to get that water is through the roots, as it has been proven that carnations are partial to a dry atmosphere. This dry atmosphere increases the radiation of moisture from the foliage and adds to the necessity of an abundant supply at the roots, or rather, what is better yet, an abundance of roots to supply the moisture needed by the plant.

Watering is perhaps never nearer an art than when the plants are first housed. The object at that stage is to have them take hold as quickly as possible, and they will not do this until a new lot of working roots have been formed to take the place of those left in the field at lifting. The remaining roots will have an abnormal power of absorption for the time being, and if the proper supply of water is at hand they will keep the top from wilting.

The plants should be taken up as carefully as possible, to preserve the roots, and if they are to remain in the boxes for any length time before planting they should be well sprinkled; then as they are planted the roots of each plant should be dipped in a bucket of water. The soil in which they are set should be moist to the bottom of the bench, the planting carefully done, and as soon as a section of the bed or bench is finished it should be given a soaking, heavy in proportion to the excellence of the drainage.

Where partial shade can be given the plants for a few days after planting it will help considerably, but a direct current of air should not be allowed to blow over them for at least a week after planting, as it increases the radiation from the leaves to an abnormal extent, and just at this stage might not only prove detrimental to the plants but in many cases would kill them. Overhead syringing will not hurt the plants for a week or ten days after being planted and will aid the roots in their endeavor to supply the top with moisture.

Prof. Britton made an apt comparison when he said "carnations are like some human beings, who, if they are supplied with sufficient nourishment, will not trouble themselves to work for it." In order to give the best results a carnation plant should be supplied with an abundance of roots. Over-fertilization and over-watering have the same retarding effect on root development.

According to the condition of your soil, the first watering will last the plants for a week or longer and the second and subsequent waterings should be given only as the soil and the plants may require, keeping in view the fact that a perfect equilibrium must be maintained between the root and the top of the plant to obtain the best results.

ALBERT M. HERR.

WATERING FIELD CARNATIONS.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—In a recent issue of your journal, Vol. XIV., page 1288, Mr. Herr mentions having watered his carnation field with the hose. He does not give the size of the field. In any event I should consider that an expensive method if it had to be done very often, counting the cost of labor and water. Could not such plantations be irrigated more economically? READER.

As to whether it would be less expensive to irrigate carnations in the field, and by irrigate I take it that "Reader" means surface irrigation, than to water them with the hose, would depend to a great extent upon the lay of the land. If the site available for the field culture of carnations should have an irregular surface, watering by any other method than that of the hose would be impracticable. Given suitable land, however, that is, land having a fairly uniform slope, and unquestionably surface irrigation by means of open furrows or ditches would be vastly more economical of time. Not only would it save time, but if the open furrows be filled with dry surface soil after the water has soaked away, the soil will retain the moisture thus applied much longer than when an equal amount is applied over the whole surface of the ground as with the hose.

The benefits, therefore, of irrigating by means of open furrows or ditches, aside from saving time, are as follows: First, the plant derives more benefit from the moisture applied. Second, the surface soil is not compacted. Third, the bloom of the plant is not removed by the application of water, and the plant is thus better able to resist the attack of fungus disease.

Hints on watering: A furrow may be made by drawing a hoe cornerways between each row of plants. As soon as the water has been absorbed the furrow should be filled with dry soil to prevent evaporation; a garden rake is a convenient tool for this purpose. The amount of water and frequency of application is determined by the character of the soil and the conditions of the weather.

WM. STUART.

The size of the field in question is two acres and the job an apparently endless one, but if properly handled it is not such a great undertaking. We put the water to the plants with a flat topped rose and give the row a thorough soaking, following it up with a hoe and loosening the soil so as to act as a mulch. If well done it will not be required more than from one to three times in a season; usually but once, as our droughts are not often of great duration. Last season I was $1500 out of pocket, at a low estimate, by not watering my patch, thinking, like Mr. "Reader," that the job would be too expensive to be profitable. This season I have had to water but once but would do it again if necessary in preference to irrigation, no matter how well adapted the field might be for the latter, as irrigation uses up a great quantity of water and by experiment I know that it does not give as good results as the straight watering with hose and rose. With water at 25 cents per 1000 gallons, a full 1000 gallons used to a row by irrigation and some 500 rows to water, the expense would, indeed, be an item. With water free of cost the matter might be reversed but even then the results would be in favor of the hose, at least in my soil.

ALBERT M. HERR.

WITH THE GROWERS.

BREITMEYER & SONS, MT. CLEMENS, MICH.

The Breitmeyer range of glass, which is known through the length and breadth of the floricultural world, stands upon an east side hill and presents an inspiring picture to those of the craft who approach from the car lines, which, however, drop one some distance from this splendid establishment where roses are grown by wholesale to be sold at retail through the firms' Detroit store, managed by Phil. Breitmeyer.

There are thirty-two houses in the group, a round 100,000 feet of glass, and they are nearly all devoted to roses, it being the experience that they can better afford to buy carnations than roses for use in the store. The carnations which are grown, two houses the past season, are nearly all their own seedlings including Pingree and Cerise Queen. They have several new ones of merit, particularly a red, but it is not at present their intention to put them on the market. They have about 16,500 carnation plants in the field, nearly twice what they expect to bench.

The Breitmeyer boys grow roses from year to year, prizing the plants more highly the second or third year than they do the first. In all their big establishment they have but one house of roses which was new stock this year. The Brides, Bridesmaids and Meteors are given very little rest. They are dried off slightly at about this time, pruned a little, the soil is scraped off the beds for an inch or two, a top dressing of soil and manure is applied and they are sent along again. Will Breitmeyer says they get more flowers, better flowers and earlier flowers from old plants than they do from new stock. Kaiserin is grown for summer bloom and is just now showing what it is worth in that line.

Beauties are grown here in what the Breitmeyers call "pits." They are a range of low and narrow houses in which the beds and walks are on the same level. There are several of these houses in which the plants are four years old and they will not be thrown out. The plants are coaxed to bloom until October, when they are cut down, dried off and permitted to rest until February when they are started up again. One large house is grown particularly to supply holiday bloom.

The Breitmeyers have always figured in the fall shows and they will doubtless live up to their record next autumn. They have benched the usual assortment and quantity of chrysanthemums and, if all goes well, they will have some specimen blooms with which to visit the big cities in November. Just now they have two or three houses of asters. The seed was bought as Queen of the Market but was not true to name, there being every possible color in the lot and very few which are of the type. They find early asters very valuable for retailing, realizing 75 cents a dozen for good blooms without difficulty.

Violets are grown here in considerable quantities in sub-irrigated beds but for the past year or two have not done as well as they had previously, and for some unknown reason. Little benefit has thus far been seen from the sub-irrigation. Nearly all the houses contain well tiled solid beds. Butted glass has been given an extensive trial but, because of leakage, is all being taken out and lapped. The establishment is heated by hot water with a battery of four boilers burning crude oil, only two of them being employed at one time, however. Mr. Breitmeyer, senior, is at present in Europe and the houses are in charge of his sons, Fred and Will.

FRANK HOLZNAGLE, DETROIT, MICH.

Frank Holznagle is classed as one of the very best growers whose stock is consumed in the Detroit market. He is at present rebuilding his range of 16,000 feet of glass, bringing everything up to date. He is using 16x16 lapped glass for which he paid $4.45 a box.

Carnations are the principal product here and Wm. Scott is the leading variety. Mr. Holznagle reports that he finds neither degeneracy in the sort nor a falling off in its favor with the public. He grows it to bring him an average of 2 cents the year round with $6 per hundred at Christmas. The moment any of his carnations fall below $1 in summer he throws out the plants, begins repairs and gets into ship-shape for replanting.

Cerise Queen is a coming carnation in Mr. Holznagle's opinion. He thinks the color admirable and the habit good, although the variety does not make so good plants in the field as do many sorts. He grows his own sport of Daybreak for white and has sold a great many of the plants to his neighbors. It has good strength but when extremely hot weather comes is not quite up to Flora Hill, which is grown in lesser quantity.

Mr. Holznagle is one of those conservative growers who do not believe in stocking up with every new thing which comes along, but he thinks well enough of G. H. Crane, America and a number of the other new sorts to give them considerable space under his glass. He has found this a remarkably good growing season and most of his plants in the field, and he has many more than he can use in his own houses, were ready to bench by July 15.

This grower has always been a factor to be reckoned with at the fall exhibitions, but this year he does not expect to figure in the chrysanthemum arena. His stock plants are in fine shape but his rebuilding operations have dragged so as to prevent planting before August 1 and he will make little attempt at obtaining specimen blooms.

ROBERT KLAGGE, MT. CLEMENS, MICH.

Robert Klagge has a model range of nine houses, the material for which was furnished by the Lockland Lumber Co., the owner himself doing all the work of erecting and in the most thorough manner. Of course he uses solid beds throughout; almost everyone does in south-eastern Michigan.

Mr. Klagge has only been in business a year or two, but he has been at it long enough to establish a reputation for his violets and make Mt. Clemens the Oconomowoc of Michigan. No better stock is grown than that which he sends into Detroit, much of it going to Breitmeyers', Mr. Klagge being, in fact, a brother-in-law of the Breitmeyer boys. He has five houses devoted to violets and benched the young plants in mid-July. The stock was from 2½-inch pots and was remarkably vigorous. His principal variety is Marie Louise. He benched about 10,000 plants. One bench here is given up to a trial of Harry Balsley's bottomless pots, with which Sonnenschmidt & Junge, of Indianapolis, were so successful last winter. He isn't particularly enthusiastic over them but everybody else is and is using them and he will not let anyone set the pace for him in violet culture.

Mr. Klagge has two houses of carnations which are still producing good blooms and he also has a house of chrysanthemums and smilax, but one of the best money makers on the place is his house of cucumbers. He grows the White Spine principally and gets a large yield and prices which pay him all through the season.

HEIM BROS., BLUE ISLAND, ILL.

The Heim Brothers' establishment now contains over 28,000 square feet of glass, but within a few weeks they expect to put up another carnation house 12x312, the benches being already erected and the plants thereon. The sash, purchased from Dietsch & Co., will go up in the fall and this will give them a total of about 32,000 feet. The Heim Bros. do their own building, glazing, painting and steam fitting, there being three brothers, George, Charles and Edward. The houses are heated with Fairbanks' tubular boilers.

The principal productions of their houses are carnations, violets and roses. Of the latter they have but one house 25x150 made up of Mermets, Perle and Bridesmaid. Of carnations they have about 21,000 outdoors, the majority of which are Tidal Wave and Daybreak, also 1000 each of Cerise Queen, Mrs. Bradt, White Cloud, Argyle, and 500 Mary Wood. The dimensions of the carnation houses, of which they have six, are as follows: Four houses each 20x90 feet and one 35x300 feet, and one in course of erection, 12x312 feet.

Princess of Wales, Marie Louise and California, the latter in the majority, constitute the 11,000 violet plants now in the field. The violet houses are 12x90 feet each, there being four, and another 9x265 feet. The violets, as well as the carnations, now in the field are in first-class condition. The water supply is excellent, there being a 106-foot well, the water being pumped by a windmill which is assisted by a steam pump whenever necessary. From the well there are mains leading in different directions into the field, which makes watering an easy task.

The firm of Heim Bros. was established sixteen years ago and is therefore well known about Chicago, as they ship all stock to the Chicago market.

STEPHEN TAPLIN, DETROIT, MICH.

Stephen Taplin has been in the florist and nursery business long enough to know a good thing when he sees it and he says that the Crimson Rambler has come to stay. "Treat it as you would a blackberry bush," is his advice to amateurs. It has stood outside at his place for two winters and went unscathed through the big freeze of last February, when pretty nearly everything else suffered. Clematis Jackmanni was another thing which escaped and so did Magnolia Soulangeana. "The finest specimen I ever saw," said Mr. Taplin, "is a plant I set out some time ago for Wm. Murphy, here in Detroit. It is over twenty feet high and early in July it had over 1,000 flowers."

This was a prosperous spring for Mr. Taplin. He reports bedding plants in great demand, geraniums and cannas being particularly sought after, but the latter he believes will gradually drop out of favor. He has several thousand double white primulas potted up and set in hot beds. He shifts them on and into their flowering pots in September but they can be potted up to Christmas and come in well for blooming plants or for cut flowers, for which latter purpose Mr. Taplin finds them excellent. Vallota purpurea is a little-grown bulb of which this grower speaks in warm praise. It is a brilliant crimson and blooms in late summer, with six to eight erect blooms on a stalk. It is easy to grow, being carried through the winter on the dry side but without being dried out enough to cause the loss of the foliage.

There is a great bank of azaleas in pots plunged in Mr. Taplin's garden. Owing to press of spring work they were not moved outside until July 15, which is later than usual. They will be permitted to remain where they are until frost approaches, to complete their growth and set their buds; then they will be brought in and kept as nearly at rest as possible to bring out the bloom.

Mr. Taplin's early bloomers, the tulips, hyacinths, magnolias, lilacs and all shrubs did not remain in flower so long this spring as usual. The sudden transit from early spring to mid-summer did the mischief. He thinks lilacs should be planted more extensively, because of their early bloom, the lasting quality of the foliage and the fact that a large plant may be obtained in little time.

The recent rains have occasioned a revival of Mr. Taplin's business in the nursery line. He holds original ideas in regard to planting certain kinds of stock and successfully practices what he preaches. Conifers he plants either in spring, just as root action begins or in July or August, after the new growth has hardened so that it will not wilt.

Mr. Taplin has a range of 50,000 feet of glass under which he grows a little of almost everything, from bedding and house plants, cut flowers and greens, to palms, ferns and orchids. There are many rare old plants in his collection and many a florist is able to pick up there just the things his market demands. Consequently Mr. Taplin has an excellent wholesale trade.

Notes on Sweet Peas.

In an article on sweet peas in the AMERICAN FLORIST for July 8, W. T. Hutchins says that no sweet pea in Mr. Eckford's set for 1899 has so disappointed him as the new white, Sadie Burpee, and that on the date of writing it was only eight inches high in his grounds. On reading the article I measured mine and found them from four feet to five feet in height and the highest vines are now, August 12, about seven feet. I consider it the best of the set, but as the season advances many of the black-seeded variety turn pinkish, as Mrs. Sankey, a black-seeded white pea, sometimes does, while the white-seeded variety has kept its color. Mr. Hutchins also advises amateurs to wait until they can get American grown seed of Eckford's novelties, as they are not so likely to have success with the seed from Eckford's grounds. With regard to this I have only to say that out of three packages of Eckford's novelties for 1899, containing sixty seeds, I had fifty-nine plants and I do not think that this percentage is often equalled by American or Canadian seed.

There is another point. When Salopian first came out, a "sweet pea expert," writing to a contemporary, said that it usually has three flowers to the stem, that the first flower to open turns brown before the second opens, and that it has gone to seed before the third opens. This has never been the case here. We look upon it as the finest red and I notice that at the sweet pea show in Cohocton, N. Y., on August 1 and 2 Salopian was the premium red.

The same writer in 1898 said of the Duchess of Sutherland: It is "a soft, changeable, very light pink which fades out in the sun." In the report of the Cohocton show for August 1 and 2 there is the following note: "Duchess of Sutherland is highly regarded as a light blend and most growers claim that it has precedence over Modesty, Sensation and Lottie Hutchins." All of the above goes to show that the reports of sweet pea experts are not always to be implicitly relied upon.

Burpee's Earliest of All is beyond a doubt the best pea of the Blanche Ferry color. It is better than Extra Early Blanche Ferry in earliness, length of stem, substance of flowers and in the number of flowers per stem. About twenty per cent of the stems have four flowers, while it is rare to see more than three on Extra Early Blanche Ferry.

Sadie Burpee has longer and stronger stems than Blanche Burpee and the flowers have more substance in the former.

If I were restricted to a dozen varieties, they would be Sadie Burpee, Lovely, Prima Donna, Prince of Wales, Mrs. Walker, Earliest of All, Lady Nina Balfour, Lady Grisel Hamilton, Salopian, Emily Eckford, Oriental and a primrose yellow sport from Blanche Burpee found in one of Eckford's sealed packages four years ago and which has been named Mabel Millar. Of this dozen, nine came from the grounds of Mr. Eckford, one from Oregon and two from California.

A Successor to the Baby Primrose.

Primula Forbesi, the baby primrose, which was popular last year, especially among the retail florists of Philadelphia, is to have a successor next winter in the Swiss edelweiss (Leontopodium alpinum) and those behind it are so confident of a popular run that they already have a large stock of young plants under way, and will put these on the market as soon as the season opens.

It is a pretty little flower and very popular among the Swiss mountaineers, being their emblem of purity, and is much sought after by tourists. It thrives at an altitude of 6,000 feet on the Alps and Pyrenees, mostly in dangerous rocky places where the gathering of it is attended with considerable personal risk, and those who are successful wear it proudly as a badge of bravery.

Like the English primrose, once so common in England, the craze for specimens of the edelweiss has been so pronounced of late years that it is now becoming scarce and measures have had to be adopted by the local authorities to prevent its extinction. The botanical authorities at Geneva, Switzerland, have been active in trying to prevent this undesirable result.

The edelweiss is not hard to cultivate. It will succeed in any ordinary garden soil not too rich and likes plenty of sunshine. The seeds can be produced from any of the leading American seed houses and are inexpensive. G. C. WATSON.

BATCH OF BREEZY PERSONALITIES FROM THE CITY OF BROTHERLY LOVE.—STORY OF THE STAY-AT-HOMES.—SEED HOUSES EXPERIENCE ACTIVITY. — VISITORS AND INVALIDS. — WITH THE RETAILERS. — ABOUT CRICKET AND CHESS.

Although the cream of the trade are absent this week on affairs of state, there are still enough of us left to carry a bucket if the town should burn, and those who are entirely outside the ropes can at least thump the tub, Diogenes fashion, in humble imitation of more important labors.

Harry Bayersdorfer is one of the important few who stayed at home. He has been doing double duty, looking after arriving shipments and getting off orders. He reports business unusually good, which is no doubt attributable to the fine line of novelties and staple supplies he has brought with him from the other side as well as to the energetic policy of the house in "keeping everlastingly at it."

The seed houses are having another little spurt of business, shipping out Romans, Paper Whites and lilies, which have now commenced to arrive. The demand for bulbs of all kinds is good this season, and at this writing many items are likely to be scarce. Quite a number of the growers are sorry they did not secure their Harrisii early in the season. "Seven to nines" are not to be got at anything like the old figures.

We had a visit this week from a Londoner in the shape of Edward Tichener, of the firm of Stuart & Co., of Covent Garden, well known seedsmen there and at Nice in the south of France. Mr. Tichener called on his way back from Washington. He is here on a little pleasure trip combined with a modicum of business.

Robert Lockerbie, successor to the Penn Rock Company, of Wilmington, also paid us a flying visit. He reports prospects good for fall trade in his bailiwick.

David Bearn is sojourning at Atlantic City. His health has not been good for awhile back, and it is hoped that the sea air and the change will limber him up a bit. He has the best wishes of hosts of warm friends for a speedy improvement.

Frank Whitely is at Orr's Harbor, Me., these six weeks and will probably stay until October. A bad attack of nervous prostration has compelled this extended holiday. His partner, Mr. Smith, is kept busy "as a cat in a bonfire" attending to the firm's affairs at Lansdowne and in the city.

Robert Stewart and A. F. Sampson, retail florists of Thirteenth below Chestnut have taken the bull by the horns during the dull season and shut up their places entirely. Their neighbor, Hugh Graham, keeps open, but is not at all sure but closing is the best scheme.

Genial John Habermehl (Capt. Jack) reports good summer business and thoughts of closing up are far from his dreams. It makes quite a difference being located away up town among the people who stay at home and know of the delights of Bar Harbor and the rest only through reading the Sunday papers.

By the way, I see Robert Kilt is trying to belittle my cricket playing at Stoke Pogis last week. He claims I'd be talking about that great catch all over town. As to that, I don't have to—the whole town is talking about it! And there is also some mention of the two great catches that friend Robert made himself! On the whole, I think we might as well own up that we are a pair of "peaches" at cricket! And yet they talk of putting new men in our places for the return match at Wissinoming. The ungrateful wretches!

George Stewart, Tuxedo, N. Y., an old protege of John Gardner's, was in town yesterday looking up nursery stock. He found it almost impossible to believe that Mr. Gardner's Stoke Pogis aggregation could have succumbed to the city cricketers, and went out to condole with his old boss under the sad affliction.

Up to a short time ago our respected and venerable president, W. K. Harris, thought that in addition to making the rubber branch, playing shuffleboard, making rhymes, umpiring cricket games, and other accomplishments, he could play chess. I witnessed the beginning of a game at the Franklin Chess Club rooms between the said admirable Crichton and John Welsh Young recently. William began with some fine moves; "Scotch gambits" and other mysterious phrases came "pat" to his tongue, and I said to myself, "Great is our Bard, there's nothing he can't do." It pains me to relate, however, that the redoubtable Mr. Young "done him up," and a heavy silence has been kept over the matter ever since. I relate the incident with great reluctance, and only in the interests of truth. As the Duke of York says, "It's well we're not perfect—else what would there be to live for." There's still one thing the Deacon can practice at yet awhile—the intricacies of the ancient game of chess.

APPLETON GOLD MEDAL AWARDED TO C. G. ROEBLING —OTHER MEDALS FOR THE SAME EXHIBITOR.—AN EXCELLENT DISPLAY. —MERRY PARTY BOUND FOR DETROIT.—BUSINESS JOTTINGS.

Saturday was a great medal day at Horticultural Hall. The rare honor of the Appleton gold medal was bestowed on C. G. Roebling for Cattleya Hardyana, Trenton variety. To describe the richness of this flower and do it justice is an impossibility. Young's variety of this same species won for Mr. Roebling a silver medal and Roeblingiana variety, a bronze medal. Bayard Thayer was given a silver medal for superior cultivation of Cattleya chrysotoxa with seven blooms and a silver medal for Nymphæa Brydonacea elegans and a certificate of merit went to J. E. Rothwell for Lælia (Brassavola) Digbyana. A superb plant of the latter was shown here a number of years ago by the late C. M. Atkinson. The hall was well filled with promiscuous displays, including a splendid collection of dahlias from W. C. Winter, phloxes from Rea Bros., W. N. Craig and W. C. Winter to whom the premiums were awarded in the order named; sweet peas and Lilium cordifolium from C. W. Hoitt, montbretias, Lilium tigrinum and Dahlia Souv. Mme. Morea from Mrs. J. L. Gardner, forced native plants from Miss Edith Noyes, gladioli from J. Warren Clark and various contributions from a number of other exhibitors. The fungus show was quite extensive and extended across one end of the hall. As usual it was the resort of a buzzing hive of pretty girls. Why do pretty girls always dote on the homeliest things they can scare up?

Monday morning at 11 o'clock one of the merriest parties that ever left Boston started for Detroit from the Union station, amid hand-shaking and good wishes from a host of their stay-at-home friends who had come to see them off. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Edgar, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. A. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. W. Miller and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bock, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Montgomery, E. M. Wood, Geo. A. Sutherland, Wm. Nicholson, F. R. Mathison, Warren Ewell and Wm. J. Stewart, all of this neighborhood, with Mr. and Mrs. R. Vincent, Jr., Baltimore; Farquhar Macrae and M Sweeny, Providence; S. J. Reuter and son, Westerly, and R. W. Greene, Warwick. At North Adams they were joined by H. F. A. Lange and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Brague and further west by C. B. Weathered and W. A. Manda.

W. Rosenthal has opened a branch store under the name of the Boston Cut Flower Co., at 5 Bromfield street. It is a very neat little establishment and well located to build up a good business.

The Florists' Exchange Co. moved from Pemberton square to a new location at the corner of Brattle street and Adams square.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—JOTTINGS ABOUT THE TWIN CITIES.—GROWERS PLANTING.

The dull season finds some trade though it is rather spasmodic and mostly funeral work. All roses and carnations find ready sale, while outside stock is a drug on the market. In roses Kaiserin is easily the best. But very few inside carnations are being cut now and scarcely any outside. Sweet peas are becoming scarce but there is little sale for them. Asters are of indifferent quality. White ones find a ready sale for design work.

The growers are now preparing to plant carnations and violets. The stock in the field needs rain badly, especially where grown on light soil. One of our best violet growers benched his plants in May, a radical departure in this section.

From present indications there will be a delegation of fifteen or more from the Twin Cities who will attend the convention.

Fred Franke has erected two modern houses and extended the cross section connecting. He grows principally roses and carnations. Christ. Hansen has divided his large house into two; underneath one he is putting up a brick shed, using railroad iron to support the greenhouse. Carlson & Lauritsen have completed their addition previously noted and are now building a violet house.

A. Ekstrand, who formerly rented greenhouses on Portland avenue, has rented the houses at Forest Lake, twenty miles out, formerly conducted by W. Strehlow and Mr. Strehlow has rented the houses of H. H. Schulte, on Grand avenue. C. Hansen, for the past five years with L. L. May & Co., has rented the range of houses owned by H. W. Bunde, of Dale, and will devote them to carnations.

Jacob Hartmann, of Minneapolis, has just completed a modern dwelling at a cost of $3000. He enjoys a very large cemetery trade besides growing a great many roses and carnations.

At E. Nagel & Co.'s a house of carnations from which they have been cutting blooms since last October is still producing a good crop of flowers. The soil is free from weeds and the plants are kept up in as good shape as during the winter. This, I think, is the secret of their success in growing. They have several thousand young plants of Asparagus plumosus nanus grown from seed raised on the place.

WITH this number we issue a supplement containing portraits of the officers and executive committee of the Society of American Florists. Extra copies, fifteen cents each.

CLEAN all benches annually to the extent of washing with hose and after same are thoroughly dry cover with thick coat of whitewash all over, using old brooms.

THE ladies of Galveston, Texas, will give a chrysanthemum show for charity November 14 and 15 and have prepared a premium list tooting up about $300. S. J. Mitchell, of Houston, will be the judge.

WHEN building let each man at the work carry a paint pot of white lead, and whenever a piece is put into the building see that it is covered with paint. If a shaving is taken off a piece, let the spot at once be daubed with paint.

DESPITE the fact that the output of iron in the first half of the year was 6,289,167 gross tons, an increase of ten per cent over the same period of 1898, there is a marked scarcity of the metal, and many small mills which have no contracts for a regular supply of pig-iron will be forced to close. There is at present no indication of lower prices.

Defective Dahlia Growth.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Under a separate cover I send you some top growths taken from my dahlias. You will notice that the growth buds are destroyed, and I would like to know the cause and remedy. I. M. B.

The defective growth or blasting of terminal buds have usually been conceded by old dahlia growers to be caused by a dahlia mite, but after examining the tops forwarded would say these were caused by the spotted cucumber beetle, which is now not more than half grown. If these beetles can be destroyed it will still save the flowers, late as they are. It is the same bug that eats round holes in the petals or rays. The blasting of the flower buds may also be caused by the dahlia mite and by dry hot weather, but as many varieties seem to be proof against all insects and conditions the best remedy is to grow vigorous varieties and give good culture, and every fall dry and burn the tops. W. P. PEACOCK.

Convention Accident.

As we go to press we learn with much regret of an accident to J. Austin Shaw at Detroit. While indulging in some games at the swimming baths of the Oriental Hotel Thursday evening he fell, striking his head on the marble floor, and fracturing his skull. Mr. Shaw is at present in a serious condition.

From Philadelphia to Detroit.

It was a merry party that boarded the special car last Monday morning enroute to Detroit. A number of the boys gathered to see us off, and "Be sure to bring back that cup" was the last admonition given as the train pulled out. The day was fine and the only drawback was the special car, which was not what was promised the committee. This was soon forgotten, however, and with the hearty good will of the company and the ever changing scenery the time passed all too quickly.

At Wilkesbarre the New York delegation, headed by Messrs. May, Weathered, O'Mara, Dean and others, boarded the car, which was coupled next to theirs, and we became as one party. John Westcott bore out his reputation as a provider of good things, and if anybody went hungry or thirsty it was their own liking. The train pulled into Buffalo an hour late, at 10 p. m., and there was the usual hustle for sleeping car berths. Matters were finally straightened out however. Messrs. Scott and Kasting were at the station on the arrival of the train and extended a hearty welcome to the delegation. After a long delay the Boston, or "Way Down East," members were seen aboard their car, which now took the place of that of the New York gentlemen, who went forward by another route. A symposium in the smoking room of a parlor car with Messrs. Stewart, Mathison, Ewell and Scott in the chief roles put new life into such tired travelers as were fortunate enough to be present. All finally retired, many not putting in an appearance until the busy city of Detroit was sighted, with the cheery faces of the reception committee. K.

Steam Heating.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have two greenhouses which I wish to heat by steam and would like to know the best way to do it. One is 25x100 feet, twelve feet to ridge, and runs east and west with side walls five feet high. I wish to make here solid beds about three feet high for carnations, three of the beds to be four feet wide, the others two and a half feet. Greenhouse No. 2 runs north and south, 20x60 feet, twelve feet to ridge, side walls five feet, and is intended for pot plants. What size of boiler will be necessary to heat these two houses? How much and what size of pipe will be needed? Can you recommend a good boiler? The boiler shed is forty feet from these greenhouses and the pipes from boiler must be carried through another greenhouse. M. R.

Very satisfactory results are usually obtained with a supply pipe running overhead to the farther end of the houses, with the coils on the side walls, but with solid beds it is desirable to have walks along the walls. For a house twenty-five feet wide, intended for carnations, it is a good plan to use three beds, each about six feet wide. In a house of this width one 2½ inch main and eight 1¼-inch pipes in the coils will be desirable where the temperature drops to 10° or 15° below zero. For a house 20x60 feet, in which a temperature of 60° is to be secured, a 2-inch main and ten 1¼-inch returns could be used. A boiler rated at ten or twelve horse-power would be found large enough, although if other houses are to be added within two or three years, it might be best to put in a larger boiler to start with. If of twenty or more horse-power, a tubular boiler might be used, but if a smaller size is desired, almost any of the steam boilers advertised in the AMERICAN FLORIST would give good satisfaction. While it would vary somewhat with the arrangement of the heating surface, the boiler selected for the houses described above should have from six to seven square feet of grate, about 150 square feet of heating surface, and would be rated for 1000 to 1200 square feet of radiation. OBITUARY.

MRS. J. J. HARRISON.

Mrs. Harrison, wife of J. J. Harrison, of Storrs & Harrison, Painesville, O., died suddenly August 16. Mr. Harrison, two sons and a daughter survive and have the sympathy of the trade.

EBENEZER S. LIVINGSTON.

The demise of E. S. Livingston, which occurred on August 7, was the third in the Livingston Seed Company, Columbus, O., within a year, a brother, W. D. Livingston, having died but a few months before their father, the venerable A. W. Livingston, who passed away November 10, 1898. Ebenezer S. Livingston was born in 1855 and has been identified with the seed trade since his early manhood, at Columbus, Des Moines, Ia., and London, O. He had been ill but a few days with typhoid fever. Mrs. Livingston and four children survive him.

WILLIAM GREENE COMSTOCK.

The founder of the firm of Comstock, Ferre & Co., Wethersfield, Conn., died August 4 at his home at East Hartford, aged 89 years. Mr. Comstock came of Revolutionary stock. His early manhood was spent in teaching school in New England. In 1832 he went into the office of the New England Review, published at Hartford, succeeding John Greenleaf Whittier as editor. The Review that year became a daily, the first issued in Hartford. In 1836, having sold the Review, the Comstock family removed to Wethersfield. Mr. Comstock and B. N. Strong bought the seed business of James L. Belden, which has been continued ever since and with which S. F. Willard, secretary of the American Seed Trade Association, is now identified. In 1845 Mr. Comstock divided his business, taking in Henry Ferre and Daniel Strong and incorporating under the name of Comstock, Ferre & Co. He was identified with most of the early steps in the development of the seed trade, but had given up active work some years since and had disposed of most of his stock in the company prior to his death. He left a competence to his six surviving children.

WM. M'MILLAN.

William McMillan, superintendent of the Essex county, N. J., park system, died at his residence in Newark on Tuesday, August 1. Mr. McMillan was born at Nairn, Scotland, sixty-three years ago, and came from a race of gardeners. Forty-seven years ago he came to this country and located on the estate of Lowell Mason, at Orange, N. J. From 1858 to 1871 Mr. McMillan served as gardener upon private estates at Orange, Throggs Neck, N. Y., Tubby Hook, on Long Island Sound and at Washington Heights, on the Hudson. In 1871 he was appointed superintendent of the public parks of Buffalo, which were then in their inception and little more than a tract of rough woods. He made them what they are. His incumbency lasted twenty-seven years, until the park management was drawn into politics and Mr. McMillan refusing to be made an instrument for public plunder, after a hard-fought battle in which the public press sustained him, retired. It is only a little over a year since he came to Branch Brook, Newark, and entered upon his duties as superintendent of the Essex county parks. His death is the first in his family. He leaves a widow and two married daughters. Funeral services were held at his house on August 2, and the remains were taken to Buffalo. Mr. McMillan was an acknowledged authority on forestry. He was a lover of nature and strongly prejudiced against artificial or display effects in landscape and park work. His masterly plea for natural simplicity and restful surroundings in public reservations, at the S. A. F. convention in Buffalo, and his witty sarcasm on that memorable occasion made a sensation that stirred the country and will never be forgotten by those who listened to it. In his personal tastes simplicity ruled. He was an unpretentious, kindly-hearted man. Those with whom he was brought into association loved him for his rugged honesty and he will be missed and mourned. His death is an irreparable loss to the profession that he honored and to the community in which he labored.

Pittsburg.

BUSINESS VERY QUIET.—A BUSINESS CHANGE.—A PAIR OF VISITORS.

Were it not for the occasional order for funeral work florists would have little to do. The warm weather has driven many people to the watering places, with the natural result that there has been a decided falling off in business.

The firm of Elliott & Ulam has been dissolved. The business will be continued at the old stand, 223 Fifth avenue, by Thos. M. Ulam & Co. Mr. Elliott has assumed charge of the greenhouses of Chesswick and will devote most of his time to growing cut flowers.

Ed. Reed and A. B. Cartledge, of Philadelphia, visited Pittsburg, arriving Saturday, and joined the Pittsburg and Allegheny delegates going to the convention. The party numbered about sixty.

G. O.

STERLING, ILL.—F. A. Belt has enjoyed an excellent trade for several months past and is building a new rose house.

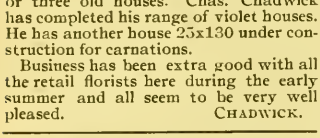
GOOD GROWING WEATHER.—BENCHING CARNATIONS AND VIOLETS.—ROSES PROMISE GOOD CUT.—BUILDING OPERATIONS DRAWING TO A CLOSE.



This has been an ideal summer, so far as outdoor culture goes, and carnations in the field have made a nice growth. There will be some early lifting this year and all the carnation growers will make special effort to get them planted as soon as possible from now on. Roses are planted with nearly all the florists and are looking very good; there promises to be a very large cut during the coming season. Violets will be grown in much larger quantities as nearly every grower will increase his output in this direction. Nearly all the plants are grown on the benches during the summer, some with and some without glass over them.

Building has been going on quite extensively the past six weeks. The Grand Rapids Floral Co. has removed the older plant and rebuilt, getting the houses all together and adding several new ones. Henry Smith has torn down and rebuilt several old houses and added 10,000 feet to his place.

Crabb & Hunter have nearly completed their two new houses. J. A. Creelman, of the Central Floral Co., is building a couple of houses for violets. F. A. Chapman is tearing down and rebuilding two or three old houses. Chas. Chadwick has completed his range of violet houses. He has another house 25x130 under construction for carnations.

Business has been extra good with all the retail florists here during the early summer and all seem to be very well pleased. CHADWICK.

THE Gardeners' Chronicle.

A Weekly Illustrated Journal.

ESTABLISHED 1841.

The "GARDENERS' CHRONICLE" has been FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS THE LEADING JOURNAL of its class. It has achieved this position because, while specially devoting itself to supplying the daily requirements of gardeners of all classes, much of the information furnished is of such general and permanent value, that the 'GARDENERS' CHRONICLE" is looked up to as the STANDARD AUTHORITY on the subjects of which it treats.

Subscription to the United States, $4.20 per year. Remittances to be made payable to H. G. COVE.

INNOCUOUS DESUETUDE SETTLES OVER THE TOWN.—NO LIFE IN MARKET AND NO GOOD ROSES.—ALL KINDS OF ASTERS.—BIG WIND AT ROGERS PARK.—NOTES.

This has been a dull week in the wholesale cut flower district. Those of the boys who may generally be counted upon to stir up some little breeze even in mid-August have been absent at the convention and those who were left at home have had little more to do than overcome the inertia occasioned by the spiritless conditions. Funeral work has been the sum total of local business and for this asters have been even more generally used than before. There are large quantities of these blooms available, some of them in good demand at $1.25 a hundred, and worth it, and others moving slowly at a nickel a bunch. Good asters go well because really good roses, particularly Brides and Bridesmaids, are not to be had; the best of the stock is not really good and there are very few roses of any kind. Carnations are seldom seen in quantity, but there is any amount of garden flowers on hand.

Out at Rogers Park on last Friday night the big wind did quite a bit of damage to glass, the greatest loss being to Adam Zender, whose big chimney was blown upon the roof of a house, occasioning a $500 crash.

A. Claus and his sister, Mrs. Jennie C. Wilkinson, of Springfield, Ill., were in town for a few days this week enroute home from a month's outing, including Waukesha and Mackinac Island.

Mr. Freyling, of Freyling & Mendals, Grand Rapids, was a recent visitor, accompanied by Mrs. Freyling and their son.

E. C. Amling is able to be down town again but is still taking good care of himself.

BARABOO, WIS.—Hugh Hills has been spending a vacation at his old home at Macomb, Ill.

BEARDSTOWN, ILL.—Frank Burtenshaw has considerably increased his facilities by adding another rose house.

BUTTE, MONT.—Law Bros. & Day are fitting up a new store to which they expect to remove shortly. They will be very nicely situated.

OWOSSO, MICH.—John S. Schleider, of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, is building a new store and conservatory, made necessary by rapidly increasing trade.

NO CHARGE FOR THE ADVICE!

WHEN HOUSING CARNATIONS AND ROSES REMEMBER TO APPLY Fostite

as a preventive against RUST ON CARNATIONS and MILDEW ON ROSES. The use of Fostite (containing Sulphate of Copper) is not an experiment; it is regularly applied by leading florists during a number of years. Price—5 lbs., 50 cts.; 25 lbs., $2.00; 50 lbs., $3.50; 100 lbs, $6 50; 220 lbs., $8.75. Put up for dealers—24 2-lb. packages for $4.00; retails for 25 cts.

FOSTITE is best applied by JOOSTEN'S MAGAZINE BELLOWS, pronounced best for applying all kinds of plant powders. Price for the greenhouse, $3.50; for the farm, $5.00.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
W. J. PETERS, Pres.; D. S. LAKE, Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

THE total acreage of orchards in England in 1898 was 220,220.

S. D. WILLARD, Geneva, N. Y., is introducing the White Imperial currant, a choice table fruit.

PROF. JOHN GIFFORD reports that a million small trees of numberless varieties have been planted recently on the Cornell University tract of 30,000 acres at Axton, N. Y.

ACCORDING to the government crop report, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana are the only states in which the condition of the apple crop is not below the average of the past fifteen years.

H. W. Jenkins, Booneville, Mo., reports that his new Dewey Cling peach stood the winter well and will ripen a fair crop about September 15. The fruit is smooth, round and white. The variety has fruited three years.

ATTORNEY A. B. CHOATE, of Minneapolis, in an address to the Minnesota Horticultural Society, delivered the opinion that, although no state has a statute which attempts to give protection to the originator of a seedling, by common law the originator has the sole ownership in a seedling and the right to prohibit its propagation and sale by others.

BIG BATCH OF BREEZY PERSONAL JOTTINGS FROM THE BLUE GRASS REGION.—MANY IMPROVEMENTS IN ORDER.—BUILDING AND REBUILDING QUITE THE FAD.—NOTES OF PLEASURE SEEKERS.

C. H. Kunzman, the president of the Society of Kentucky Florists, has been ill but is able to get about again and has gone to Atlantic City and Baltimore with his family for several weeks' outing.

The Anchorage Rose Company is replacing the outside board walls around their greenhouses with concrete walls with an iron pipe set every four feet in the concrete. They grow all their roses for cut flowers in solid beds and the plants are a mass of vigorous young shoots; as every shoot means a bud there will be a fine crop on in a few days.

Chas. Rayner has built a house 20x300 feet which he will devote to carnations.

Geo. Thompson & Sons are growing an increased amount of chrysanthemums and asters for cutting this fall.

Jacob Schultz has had his store redecorated throughout. He and August Baumer will attend the convention at Detroit.

Mrs. C. W. Reimers has returned from an outing at White Sulphur Wells.

Chas. Schluter lost all his glass by hail last spring, with no insurance. He was so discouraged that he thought of discontinuing business but has now taken heart and has replaced the glass in part of his range.

Miss Josie Schuh, the designer for F. Walker & Co., is spending a five weeks' vacation at Waukesha, Wis.

Mrs. Ed. Morat has had a long distance telephone put in her store. Her greenhouses were riddled with hail last spring, causing a great loss of stock.

Fred Haupt and family have returned from their eastern trip.

Geo. Schultz is negotiating for the purchase of twenty acres of ground upon which to build greenhouses for cut flowers exclusively for the wholesale trade.

J. D. Carmody, of Evansville, was a recent visitor and scored the florists here for not taking greater interest in the S. A. F.

The Society of Kentucky Florists will not have a picnic this year.

Nanz & Neuner are rebuilding five houses 20x150. The walls of the houses will be concrete. At the present prices the concrete at 40 cents a barrel is much cheaper than good lumber and of course far more substantial. They think cinders better than stone for this use, employing two parts of cinders to one of concrete. They will heat this range with water under pressure from two tubular boilers.

Jos. Coenen & Co. are rebuilding two houses 20x80.

Wm. Mann has gone to Atlantic City to spend several weeks.

E. G. Reimers and family are away on their annual outing at Green Lake, Wis., and are not to be expected back before the middle of September. Their departure was delayed somewhat this year by the installation of a new heating plant, the work on which Mr. Reimers wished to oversee. H. G. W.

PITTSBURGERS ARE GIVEN A PASSING WELCOME.—ON TO THE CONVENTION.—LITTLE DOING.—PLANS FOR PLANTING.—CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Convention talk has been the staple of conversation lately. The Pittsburg delgation, numbering about fifty, arrived here Monday night and were entertained at the Weddell by the local committee. All hands, including the local talent, which made a good crowd, left in high spirits on the Detroit boat after supper.

Those whom circumstances compelled to remain here are left with little to do save hold down their chairs and wonder how the bowlers are coming out.

Asters are beginning to be of better quantity and quality. Among the growers there are preparations with a view to getting in carnations toward the end of the month. Chrysanthemums are in some instances even better than usual. A few growers complain of the condition of their stock, although they usually are not at a loss to know to what cause to attribute it. The trouble is neglect of one detail or another. A.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. VA.—The premium list of the Ohio Valley Agricultural Association is out, with prizes for fruits, flowers, vegetables and ornamental plants, to be competed for September 12-14. S. M. Steele is secretary.

OUR PASTIMES

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and cycling readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; or to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

The Bowling Contest at Detroit.

A meeting of the managers and captains of the florists' bowling clubs was held on the steamer en route to Star Island. This was to straighten out all crooks and curves that seem to encircle contests of this nature. The following cities were represented: Buffalo, New York, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Detroit, Flatbush, Omaha, Chicago and St. Louis.

The first thing of importance after the election of P. O'Mara, of New York, chairman, and P. J. Hauswirth, of Chicago, secretary, was the adoption of the resolution that a bowler to be eligible must be a member in good standing of the S. A. F. and the local florists' club of the city from which the entry is made and must be identified with the florist business. It was also agreed that Lieut. Newberry, of Detroit, should have charge of the contest and see that it was conducted according to the rules adopted by the American Bowling Congress. Messrs. Holznagle, of Detroit, Wm. Scott, of Buffalo, and John Westcott, of Philadelphia, were named as a board of judges to whom matters in dispute should be referred. It was also agreed that six men should constitute a team and that the names of these together with not more than three substitutes should be handed to the board of judges not later than 12 o'clock of the day before the match. The following clubs contributed $10 each to a fund to be offered for prizes: Omaha, Philadelphia, Flatbush, Cleveland, New York, Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis. It was agreed to divide fifty per cent of this into prizes for an individual contest of single games for the benefit of those not rolling on any of the teams, the balance to be given $30 to second team in club contest; $20 to third team. If fund was found not to reach $100, the prizes would be made pro rata.

Drawings were then made to determine the order of play in the contest.

Everything passed off very pleasantly, there being no friction of any kind. Just before adjournment it was decided to form a permanent organization to be called the National Florists' Bowling Association. This was done by electing Robert Kift, of Philadelphia, president, P. J. Hauswirth, of Chicago, secretary, J. F. Wilcox, of Omaha, treasurer, which organization will now have charge of bowling and regulate so far as necessary the prizes offered other than those which the local club shall control.

At 10 o'clock Friday morning Lieut. Newberry read the rules governing the contest, cautioning against offensive coaching and defining a foul. John Westcott made a few remarks and Lieut. Newberry was thanked in advance for his services, and the great match was on. The following is the complete score:

The Gunners' Contest at Detroit.

The match for the Lockland pitcher and other trophies offered for skill with the gun came off as scheduled at the grounds of the Pastime Gun Club, about a half hour's ride from the center of the city. It was a fine ground with the exception that the gunners had to face a little too much to the west and were bothered somewhat by the sun. There was a crowd of about seventy-five enthusiasts who came along to enjoy the sport and offer encouragement to their favorite shots.

The first contest was at fifteen targets, unknown angles, for three prizes, a cleaning rod, a cigar case and a box of cigars. The following gentlemen scored for these prizes: H. M. Altick, 12; A. B. Cartledge, 12; C. D. Ball, 12; George Anderson, 12; John Burton, 12; W. B. Westcott, 9; Wm. Scott, 7; W. B. Scott, 8; W. Weber, 7; P. Scott, 2; W. K. Harris, 2; Ed. Reid, 8; T. Damerow, 9; W. B. Ague, 11; P. S. Randolph, 7; C. Y. Mellis, 5; W. F. Kasting, 3; H. H. Beard, 14. Mr. Beard was first and the ties for second were shot off at five targets as follows: J. Burton, 2; H. W. Altick, 4; A. B. Cartledge, 5; C. D. Ball, 4; George Anderson, 2. Mr. Cartledge won with five straight and Messrs. Ball and Altick shot off the tie for third prize, Mr. Ball winning with four to his opponent's three.

The team match for the Lockland trophy next took place and proved a very exciting event. It was at twenty-five targets, known angles. Philadelphia entered a straight team from their own club, while Buffalo and Pittsburg were given the privilege of adding a few substitutes from other cities to bring their teams up to the required number. Fifteen of the targets were disposed of first to get a line on the capabilities of the teams. This developed the following result: Buffalo, 50; Philadelphia, 59; Pittsburg, 61. This was close and exciting enough for anybody and sent cold creeps down the backs of at least one of the teams. Philadelphia was first up to break what they could of the remaining ten each and try to overcome the lead of the Pittsburg boys, but at the second try they only succeeded in breaking thirty-eight out of a possible sixty, making their total score ninety-seven. Buffalo then stepped to the traps and added forty points to their previous score, making their total eighty-nine. Pittsburg now came forward with a confident air and, shooting in great form, increased their lead and easily finished first with a total of 103. The score follows:

PHILADELPHIA.		BUFFALO.

An individual contest at twenty-five targets, fifteen unknown angles and five pairs of doubles, was then engaged in with the following result: Ed. Reid, 14; A. B. Cartledge, 17; J. Braik, 11; W. K. Harris, 18; W. B. Westcott, 11; C. D. Ball, 17; J. Burton, 19 A. B. Brown, 20; W. B. Ague, 10; P. S Randolph, 12; Wm. Altick, 18; F. N. Beard, 21. Beard was first with 21, Brown second with 20 and J. Burton third with 19. The prizes were a scarf pin, a box of cigars and a Tomlinson cleaner.

The above cut shows three of our No. 12 Steam Boilers installed in the Greenhouses of R. Vincent & Son, White Marsh, Baltimore Co., Md. (Capable of Carrying 60,000 Feet of Glass.)

A FEW EXTRACTS OF LETTERS FROM PROMINENT FLORISTS.

Wm. F. Gude, President Society American Florists, Washington, D. C.

For many years I have used the Furman Boilers, and shall always be pleased to speak a word in favor of vertical circulation and screw joints, as embodied in your Furman.

E. B. Clapp, South Boston, Mass.

It is with great pleasure I recommend your Furman Boiler. I have had your No. 7 in use for several winters and find it heats my houses in first-class style.

S. J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.

Your No. 10 Steam Boiler is heating over 30,000 square feet of glass (or twice as much as your catalogue rating), and does not require one-half as much attention as some of the wrought iron tubular boilers which are heating other sections. I am so well pleased with your boilers that I give you an order for two No. 12 steam boilers. At all times I am ready to speak a good word for the Furman.

Anson Wheeler, Concord Junction, Mass.

Am now heating four houses (24,000 square feet of glass) with two of your Furman boilers to my perfect satisfaction.

Allen B. Wells, Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

Last Winter the thermometer went 37 degrees below zero, and your No. 7 boiler kept my four greenhouses (roofs alone containing 6,200 feet of glass), on only 20 tons of hard coal. It gives complete satisfaction.

H. J. Whittemore, Winchendon, Mass.

I thoroughly endorse and recommend The Herendeen Mfg. Co. for boilers, fittings and advice.

Wm. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.

It gives me great pleasure to speak a good word for the four Furman Boilers I have in use. The No. 8 heats 10,000 feet of glass, has been running 9 years and only cost for repairs the price of two new grate bars.

Rhode Island Greenhouses, Pawtucket, R. I.

I want you to know my entire satisfaction with the two No. 12 Furman Boilers you installed for us. These boilers replaced three vertical boilers. In five months we have saved 23 tons of coal and the expense of an extra fireman. Your boilers far surpass any boilers that have ever come under my notice.

BUSINESS QUIET.—MONTHLY MEETING OF THE CLUB.—OUTING AT THE MURPHYS'. —MANY CARNATIONS.

Business remains very quiet and affords very little of interest to write about. Funeral work alone prevents utter stagnation. Weather conditions continue favorable for outdoor stock. White carnations have been somewhat short the past week but colored ones are plentiful. The supply of asters continues to increase and prices have dropped considerably.

The monthly meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held August 10 at President Wm. Murphy's place, twenty members being present. A committee was appointed to secure subscriptions from the standholders at the Sixth street flower market, the fund thus raised to be used to conduct the monthly shows during the winter. Two new names were proposed for membership. After the meeting adjourned Messrs. W. and C. C. Murphy escorted the boys over to Beachwood to inspect the carnation fields, and every one present wondered what they will do with all the plants; 300,000, Mr. Murphy tells me, were planted out in spring among the Murphys. The plants in general are looking healthy. The ladies provided an elegant spread while the Beechwood band furnished delightful music. E. G. Hill, of Richmond, attended the meeting; also Frances Pentland, of Lockland, and W. Pfeifer, gardener at the Longview asylum. H. SCHWARZ.

AURORA, ILL.—Frank Sahan, who has been with Jos. M. Smely, has gone to Omaha to return to the employ of Hess & Swoboda The season at the Smely establishment has been the largest in the history of the place.

AMERICAN ROSE CO.,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Santa Monica, Cal.

The success which has attended carnation culture at Redondo has attracted attention to the possibilities of that flower in other localities not hitherto tried. One of the new fields is in South Santa Monica, where E. J. Vawter, Sr., set out about three acres to carnation plants last April. The ground is apparently like the Redondo carnation fields. It is a short distance from the sea and has a slope to landward, where there is ample sun exposure and protection from the breeze. The soil is a loose sandy loam. Plants set out in April are blossoming liberally for so early a date thereafter, and there is a fair prospect for a big yield of blossoms next season. Most of the varieties that have been set out were originated at Redondo. An experiment in the culture of smilax and rare varieties of roses is being made on neighboring grounds.

WOONSOCKET, R. I.—Gilbert A. Aldrich has pulled down the old greenhouse which has stood for forty years at the front of his residence and will build a larger structure.

WATERBURY, CONN.—Chas. Walley & Co. opened a new store at 118 South Main street last week. It is handsomely furnished and a large crowd was present on the opening night.

LENOX, MASS.—J. F. Huss has presented the beautiful specimens of skeletonized leaves, ferns and seed vessels which have adorned his hospitable "den" to the New York Botanical Garden. Mr. Huss, with his wife and little Julius, will sail for Switzerland early in September and the kindest wishes of a host of friends go with them.

Home Again!

from an extended tour through Europe, I find my stock of Palms, Ferns, Dracænas, Pandanus and other foliage plants in better condition than ever, crowding every inch of my greenhouses, and to make room for specimen plants of all kinds, will sell stock at moderate prices.

Do not fail to get some of the truly grand new fern Washingtoniensis, of which I have an excellent stock. For descriptions and prices see page 1399 of the AM. FLORIST of June 24.

Arthur Judges, secretary and treasurer of the State Nursery Company, is expected home from Europe about August 15.

Chas. Horn has completed all necessary overhauling to his houses and is now taking life easy.

The State Nursery Company has completed an addition to their smilax house and look for a good crop for the winter trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller, of the Broadwater Greenhouses, enjoyed a few days' fishing recently.

T. E. Mills and family have returned from a ten days' outing on the Big Blackfoot river, fishing and rusticating.

At this date there is no rumor of a special car to the S. A. F. convention. Few of the boys caring to exchange a gold mine for the necessary railroad ticket. M. W.

LANCASTER, PA.—J. P. Siebold has leased two acres of ground on East Chestnut street and erected his range there, adding one house 10x30 for bulbs. His field carnations are fine. Mr. Siebold deals extensively in celery, handling 125,000 stalks per year.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.—Much interest in the fall flower show to be held under the auspices of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society is being manifested by the wealthy residents of the neighborhood, and several have already offered prizes for exhibits. Lord & Burnham have given $25, to be used as the society decides. Many others have signified their willingness to contribute toward the show and the members expect to raise $500 for prizes.

CAUSPERLEPTHA!

A SURE REMEDY FOR

Carnation Rust, Stem Rot and Black Spot on Roses.

Spray your plants when brought into the house with Causperleptha and get rid of these greatest of evils.

Having discovered and used this preparation for a number of years, I have repeatedly been asked to place it on the market for the benefit of all concerned. It is a sure remedy and has never failed to keep plants clear by constant application. One gallon diluted makes 128 gallons. It is perfectly harmless to plants and gives them a rich, glossy foliage. Directions with every can. No Florist should be without it.

PRICE PER GALLON $2.00.
Special Prices on larger quantities.

There are buyers for all kinds of stock advertised in the American Florist

New Haven, Conn.

Trade has been about as usual in early August except that funeral work has been in more demand. Flowers of all varieties seem to be very plentiful but gladioli and asters are in favor.

A. L. Thompson has nearly completed his two new houses, one 10x130 for carnations, and one 8x120 for violets.

Thos. Patterson, of West Haven, has finished a new violet house 10x80.

Recent visitors were A. F. Crawford, Meriden, and Howard Blauveldt, New York. G. H.

ANDOVER, MASS.—P. R. Burtt, of Lowell, will open a store here on September 1.

BOONE, IA.—J. Loehrer, formerly of Davenport, has leased the greenhouses of J. N. Gildea at this place.

NORTH ADAMS, MASS.—A. J. Schmutz has taken the establishment formerly conducted by John Morgan.

WICKFORD, R. I.—The Homogansett Greenhouse Company has opened a store in the basement of the Rockingham Hotel.

GALESBURG, ILL.—I. L. Pillsbury did not have enough violets and carnations last season and is building a new house 10x100 for these flowers.

CARLISLE, PA.—H. W. Lehman has experienced such a rapid increase in business recently that he is preparing to erect two new houses for general stock.

BEAVER, PA.—Thomas M. Fitzgerald has purchased six acres of land upon which he will build a range of houses as soon as the present occupant's lease expires.

Dear Sir:—Your Model Carnation Support is all right in every way, and will no doubt be considered as necessary as good plants with growers when better known. I consider it the best on the market; and if your other specialties are equally as good, they should make another addition to the money makers of 1900.

Our last club meeting was fairly well attended and the following gentlemen were appointed a committee on special premiums to be offered at the chrysanthemum show: George O. Brown, Robert Graham, John Donn, C. M. Wagner, I. H. Moss, William Christie, M. J. Hanigan, Robert Halliday and Wm. B. Sands. A letter was ordered sent to Richard Vincent, a member of the club and vice-president for the state of the Society of American Florists, as a greeting to the national society. MACK.

NORWALK, O.—J. C. Gooding has severed his connection with the Central Greenhouses.

EAST BRAINTREE, MASS.—John Streiferd has built a new office in connection with his greenhouses.

PATERSON, N. J.—E. McCornac is rebuilding his range, having purchased the interest of his partner.

EDDYSTONE, PA.—It is expected that M. E. Pierce, of Chester, will erect a large greenhouse establishment here.

MCCONNELSVILLE, O.—A. J. Hart reports trade for the year probably twenty-five per cent ahead of the year before.

BUSHNELL, ILL.—Mrs. S. H. Camp's greenhouse, the only one here, is being torn down. She will retire from business.

Clear Cypress Greenhouse Material.

This with us means the best growth of Cypress Lumber and the best grade of that growth; and from this grade all the sap—bright sap, which only experts can detect—as well as stained sap, knots and other defects cut out. Others do not equal our quality if they do beat our prices. It is not hard to see the reason: You can not buy gold dollars at fifty cents each. Experienced growers know that the best is not too good and cheapest in the long run.

The Development of Public Patronage in the Flower Trade.

BY JOHN F. SULLIVAN.

[Read at the Detroit Convention of the Society of American Florists.]

All trade, or what we call business success, depends for its existence on that potent force known to the world as public patronage. Practically this generation may be said to have seen its beginning in the horticultural line, for fifty years ago the public was little interested in flowers as a trade commodity.

It is the development of public patronage which I am asked to consider in the paper which I have the honor to read to you. Your committee could easily have chosen some one better fitted to address you on this important theme. I therefore confine my observations to our own times and ask your kindly criticism. An elaborate enlargement of this subject reaches back into ancient history; I am sure it is not expected of me on this occasion.

It is more than probable that the first practical interests in floriculture in this country originated in the catalogue system, and to Peter Henderson and others of his character are we indebted for this great and valuable plan of reaching the multitude. From the small efforts of a generation ago to the present, words cannot express what has been wrought. Our fathers would not have believed it possible. Now millions of flower catalogues go yearly to every city, town and hamlet of our great country, bearing on their pages accurate illustrations and complete descriptions of almost endless varieties of plants with cultural instructions for their successful growth. The firms are legion who have adopted this manner of keeping in touch with the constantly growing and almost universal love of the beautiful.

In no other way, it seems to me, could the great results of the present be accomplished, and yet the catalogue system is as potent to-day as ever, and its far reaching influence widens as the years go by. Nearly every horticultural establishment, small as well as large, is reaching the public in this popular way. How largely, too, are we indebted to those great mediums of modern civilization, the daily press, and other periodicals, which by their illustrations and growing attentions to our business, interesting reports of flower exhibitions, and descriptions of elaborate society events, in evolving floral decorations turn the eyes of all Christendom to the fashion and necessity of using flowers. What an influence has been exerted by the horticultural papers, the calendars, pamphlets, circulars and booklets which every enterprising florist adopts for the advancement of his business.

In late years one of the grandest object lessons has been found in the great flower shows which draw multitudes of people, increase public interest in the study of plants and flowers, and so develop public patronage. Who can estimate, in the great cities, the money value to the florists of these annual and semi-annual displays? Their power is constantly increasing. Look, also, at the influence of the great railroad systems of the country, with their beautiful lawns and carpet bedding, and that unique and delightful idea of bouquets on the dining tabels of the cars, at once appealing to the artistic taste and refined feelings and sense of the traveler and rendering more intense the enjoyment of the very food he assimilates.

What a wonderful development along these lines the past ten years has seen. Who knew the power of these great corporations tor good! Their influence is incalculable! What did the Centennial and the World's Fair not do for horticulture and floriculture? To the utmost parts of the land went the story of the beautiful effects in flowers, and valuable plants and arrangements of nature's glories, that are "the pride of the eye" to millions, to whom the influence of great exhibitions has come.

How much patronage, think you, in the great west was developed by the Omaha exposition of 1898? More by far than you have realized. So will it be in Paris next year and at the Pan-American in 1901. What a glorious power for good in this direction are our great public parks, systems of universal instruction, that speak in no uncertain way as to the elevating power of the beautiful. One need but to visit the lovely gardens of the parks to realize the intensity of interest the flowers create, and the practical desire for home adornment which they foster. Anything that will increase the aggregate of production must increase the patronage of the people. Give the children seeds and give prizes to those who accomplish the best results, as does a well known establishment in Dayton, Ohio. Would that every city in the land had such a noble and liberal power in behalf of floriculture! The patronage of the public would then develop so rapidly that every florist would be satisfied that his was the greatest and grandest labor of the age as well as the most profitable.

What will not the flora from our new possessions accomplish in this line, creating as it does a desire for novelties and appealing to the enterprise and curiosity of all our great private gardens. What estimate can you form as to the far reaching effect of this new incentive to public patronage! Have you noticed the wide-spread influence of the annual floral parades? From California to Boston, with natural flowers and artificial, not one of these has ever occurred which did not add to the great volume of the one thing needful to our profession—the patronage of the people.

It may not seem right that we encourage rivalry in floral decorations at the great society events, and yet this very rivalry is a wonderful developer. Madam St. John will not be outdone by Lady Vere de Vere, and John Smith, of Chicago, who made his money in pork, will have a finer wedding for his daughter than the Hon. Clare Gilbert, whose son is to wed the heiress of the renowned soap manufacturer, Gustavus Mulcaha. I tell you this potent factor which we call "society" is a power in our behalf. Births, christenings, marriages and funerals are all, of necessity, developers of patronage. But on these points time forbids our dwelling at special length.

Now, how shall the florist himself do his duty in his own behalf? Though much has been done in the past, the present generation is most interested in the development of patronage in the future, and how it shall be increased is the all important question. The grower will continue to exert his greatest efforts to give the flower loving world the very finest flowers and plants his skill and industry can produce, and by thus raising the standard of excellence in his product, he will as a natural and desirable result increase the desire of the people to possess that which appeals in a higher sense to the appreciation of the beautiful.

I have often thought that our clubs should make some effort to, in some practical way, reach the children of our schools. It may entail considerable work and thought to mature a plan that would be practical and acceptable to our school authorities, but as to the ultimate result of such a scheme I have no doubt. Could we not distribute plants and seeds among the school children under some superintendency of their teachers and offer prizes for the successful growers? Some few attempts in a small way in this direction have come to my notice and the reports of the results of the same are more than encouraging to the idea of enlarging and improving the scope of the work. These school children are to be the fathers and mothers of the near future and the beautiful lessons learned and the pure thoughts inspired by their association with, and close interest in plant life, in their school day youth will follow them in their later life, and thus we accomplish in the most certain way the development of public patronage.

On the basis of organized efforts, and applying the axiom "union is strength" we might accomplish much by the activity of our florists' associations, and incidentally, it here occurs to me, the great necessity for every florist in this broad land to belong to the florists' clubs. If, where one lives, there are not enough florists to organize and maintain a club separately of working force, then he should join the club nearest him, and give it his unstinted and cheerful support for no matter in how small a way he may operate, precuniary rewards will surely follow his membership in and hearty co-operation with the organization of which he wisely became a member. These societies—and many of them we already have—can still further exercise their power and influence by applying their energies as a body, and promoting in every way feasible more and more floral exhibitions. They will lend their encouragement, their moral and material support to any and all projects calculated to enhance the interest and command the attention of the public in the cause of floriculture. To accomplish this most effectually, it is necessary to form these close affiliations of florists directed by their united efforts towards the development of public interest in our individual work as exemplified in our great and worthy exhibitions.

But we must bend our greatest energies and efforts to increase our trade individually, which in the aggregate means public patronage, of which this paper purports to treat. The retail dealer whose public life brings him of necessity close to and face to face with his customers and the general public, has the greatest opportunity, and it is within his province more than any one's else to increase the taste and widen the field of usefulness and actual necessity of the commodities in which he deals. For, consider in general, the development of the flower trade in all its various branches has been more than co-incident and parallel to the natural growth of the country and measured by the amount of effort and results in other channels of trade the fact speaks volumes for the inherent love of our people for the beautiful and their keen appreciation of the sweet influence that flowers have upon our lives. The field is still large and the possibilities great for future development.

Now how shall the florist himself do his duty in his own behalf? This is a question of vital importance to us all, for we need public patronage and we must do everything in our power to honorably secure it. While the accession of new patrons and undeveloped avenues for advancement of our business should be eagerly sought and diligently pursued, still we cannot loose sight of the materials at hand to cherish and foster the patronage already secured, as all successful trades must have a normal, substantial and legitimate growth. The increase of trade to a retail florist would be comparatively easy if that alone was desired and if the margin between the cost and selling price was not necessary to our existence and prosperity.

The shrewd and thoughtful florist will make every effort possible to please his customers, will anticipate their possible wants and cater to their whims and desires, for the public is fickle; a little thing developes into a mountain; one mistake may never be remedied, and a customer lost forever. We must recognize and constantly bear in mind the great importance of the gentlemanly and ladylike attention given customers, the cheerful manner we approach and serve them, the faithful performance of our promises in the smallest detail, and after the necessary attention, the importance of a bright, clean and attractive store and the maintainance of every modern facility for transacting business. We will still further make it a real pleasure for the public and our customers to visit and deal with us, to constantly maintain the highest quality of stock and the maximum amount of it and as great a variety as our prospective trade will justify. We will exercise the greatest care in the tasteful, prompt and careful execution of even the smallest orders entrusted to us and encourage by the excellent character of our work in all its branches the appreciative recognition of our patrons, and then, to further consider the elements which contribute so much to our success, I am led to speak of the daily and weekly press, that great and powerful moulder of public opinion and trainer of modern thought, which has been in the past and is yet, greatly neglected by the retail florist.

The utility of this great medium for the advancement of our interests is, of course, hard to estimate correctly, but it is undoubtedly of very great value if employed constantly, intelligently and conscientiously. It is ever ready to receive from the florist, and to convey to the great public in a manner best calculated to catch and hold the attention of the reader, any news that is interesting and valuable, such as the introduction of a new plant and description of its peculiar merits and of notes on the successful growing of popular plants of any and all kinds, of the report and description of new and popular floral designs and its beautiful and pleasant effect in a decoration, calculated either for home adornment or when used for any event of public interest. I have found to my entire satisfaction that in large cities the daily press in not only willing, but is, indeed, eager to obtain from the florist and publish free of charge, any matter pertaining to our business that is instructive and educational in its character to the public, whose patronage we value so highly and which we are striving so hard to secure. In smaller towns I have good reason to believe that the florists there could easily, if they only would, enlist the services of their town paper, either daily or weekly as the case may be, to the purpose and happy result of interesting and properly educating their customers and the general public to very great advantage.

I am prompted to speak at such length upon the subject of the press because of the very wide field it occupies and its great opportunities for either benefit or injury to us. How often do we read in the daily press such absurdities as that of John Jones paying ten thousand dollars for the possession and control of a blue rose; of the employment of five thousand orchids in a wreath sent to the funeral of some noted person, and of a funeral in mid-winter where among other designs there stood a magnificent cross of hollyhocks ten feet high! It is not hard to understand why the publication of statements of this character is more liable to retard than to increase the public patronage.

But after all, who is not responsible for the existence and perpetuation of those worse than silly references to our noble, elevating and refined calling? It is the florist himself whose apathy in such matters is everywhere apparent; who reads as others do, these wild, ridiculous and nonsensical statements in the press which are uncomplimentary and indeed actually detrimental to his business with real amusement or utter indifference to their ultimate and inevitable effect. In view of the close and careful observations I have made of the work and great possibilities of the press in our behalf, I cannot too strongly urge upon all florists everywhere to realize the importance and wisdom of employing it more generally, for it is, I believe, the mose powerful and readily available single agency existing for the advancement of the florists' business; but you must go to the papers. Don't expect or require them to come to you. You are the most concerned.

Give them the reports of your work and your achievements in your own words; give plants and flowers their proper names and spell them correctly. When called upon for information as to the culture of plants and proper care of them, their history and particular merits, be sure that same is given fully and correctly. Attach the same dignity and importance to it that a lawyer or physician would give to their advice or instruction. By the observance of these suggestions meagerly outlined, and many others from time to time that will occur to us to increase the public patronage, and having thus secured the same, as we surely will, let us strive hard to merit a still further continuance and improvement of it.

But let us get our patronage honorably and it will surely stick and grow with us. Let the spirit of fairness and generosity characterize our dealings, and the stamp of honesty and fidelity to our customers mark plainly every transaction with them. Thus inspiring them with the utmost confidence in us, and the reward will be certain and satisfactory to the intelligent, industrious and conscientious florist.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

PLANTS IN POTS.

My plants are nearly in the same condition they were in at this time last year. They may be earlier in bloom, as I left off stopping earlier, though there is nothing certain about this. It is an experiment. I stopped late last season and missed the exhibition by several days. The plants have been in 10-inch pots about six weeks and just now are in condition to take manure water.

What Prof. Britton says in regard to the over-feeding of carnations applies equally to chrysanthemums. Undoubtedly over-feeding restricts root formation. The plants become like a man feeding on the fat of the land without taking excercise, easily falling sick and difficult to cure. We should continually look for active roots and be sure the plants have nearly exhausted the stock of nourishment in the soil before applying stimulating food. I like to see the roots making their way through the holes in the bottom of the pots.

Setting on a clean bench it will do no injury to them to root through, but on a soil bottom, or within easy reach of loam, they might make the most of their feeders there, and suffer when removed; still it is remarkable how much they will endure. I once allowed a plant of Thunberg to stand for two months in one place. At the last minute I decided to stake it out for exhibition and found a mat of roots nearly a yard across. It was carried into the exhibition and stood through as well as the rest.

If space be left for a top dressing of rich soil or manure, now is the time to apply it. I have noticed that finely sifted soil is not as good for a top dressing as coarser stuff. Fine soil is liable to exclude air, which is as essential to the well being of the plants as water; and also, for the same reason, we should see that the drainage does not become choked, in consequence of which the soil will become sour and the roots decay.

I use several changes in my material for making manure water. Soot water and lime water are added occasionally. I don't put the soot or lime in free but drain off the lime water, after being made in a tub; the soot is leached through a bag. Drainings from the cow barn and stable are the best of fertilizers. Occasionally I use a little nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia.

Training should commence soon after the shoots lengthen, as they rapidly do when stopping is discontinued. Usually nothing more is done for awhile beyond using old stakes to make a foundation to shape them out. These are to be taken out later and replaced by longer ones when it is seen how tall the plants are likely to grow. The same thing is done when a wire frame is to be used. I gave a full description of my frame last season.

All the change I intend to make in this year's shape is, that rather than have it of the old fashioned bee hive form, I shall make it more globular. I found it hard to get enough material to fill out a wide base. With a globular frame there will be less of this difficult space to fill.

T. D. HATFIELD.

VIBURNUM DILATATUM.

Viburnum Dilatatum.

This is one of the best hardy shrubs for the garden. It grows to but four or five feet in height and is certain to turn out a full display of bloom every year. The variety illustrated is that found in northern Japan. The southern Japanese type is not so hardy and cannot be so fully recommended. The flowers are white, produced in dense corymbs and are followed by an abundance of bright coral red berries in autumn. The foliage is fine and so far has not been troubled with any insect or fungous enemies.

FREMONT, O.—A. S. Horn has completed a new rose house 18x50 and has it planted.

After the Convention.

Our national convention for the year 1899, with its exchange of ideas, renewals of friendships, and many other pleasures, may perhaps be termed the crystal wedding celebration of the union between the oldest profession on earth and the newer idea of organization for mutual benefit. But now that the convention has become a pleasant memory, there will be a return to daily duties and the regular routine of hard work that is so essential to success in our business.

Rapidly growing plants should be spread out as much as the space will permit. Get them sturdy and shapely, well-colored and with perfect foliage, and, whether it be fan palms or Boston ferns, the results will be equally satisfactory, for the plant buying public is becoming a discriminating body and soon learns to know where the best wearing plants may be had. In this connection it may be stated that one hundred well-grown plants from a given space will produce infinitely greater satisfaction and ultimately larger profits than double the number of thin, drawn specimens that have been huddled together.

Pandanus Veitchii is an excellent house plant when properly grown, but when subjected to the two extremes of low potting and high temperature usually fails to give entire satisfaction, and the dealer frequently hears that the plant has turned yellow and rotted off.

From July 1 to the end of October is the season of most rapid growth for the pandanus and during this period they may be shifted along rapidly and will stand liberal feeding also, but when making a shift one should be careful not to pot them too deeply, always keeping the lower leaves above the surface of the soil. If this rule is followed and the plants are given plenty of light and air there will be but little complaint of their rotting off in any well regulated dwelling. The same methods will apply to P. utilis, though I think the latter plant will get along better with a less quantity of water overhead than is given to P. Veitchii.

Ficus tops root very readily when mossed at this season, the roots frequently appearing within two or three weeks from the time of topping if the plants are kept in a rather close and moist house. These tops should be taken off as soon as the roots appear through the moss and, after potting, should be kept in a shaded house for a few days until they become established, after which they will require plenty of light and air to keep the growth short and stocky. It is rather too late to plant ficus outdoors now, but that method is doubtless a good one to follow with earlier lots of young plants, the foliage thus produced being very tough, and the plants may soon be re-established in pots in the fall.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis makes a wonderful growth when planted out on a bench in rich soil, but where this fern is handled in small lots it may be grown very nicely in pots in the ordinary palm compost and treated the same as a similar lot of latanias or kentias, using a shaded house and giving plenty of water both to root and top. When the selling season approaches and the plants may be becoming rather pot-bound, do not hesitate to give moderate waterings of fertilizer to the Boston ferns, in order that the foliage may retain its naturally rich color, the idea, once prevailing, that ferns in general need little or no fertilizer having been long exploded.

Asparagus Sprengerii will again prove its usefulness during the coming season and, being one of the easiest plants to grow, will doubtless be much in evidence. Such a rapid growing plant naturally uses up an immense amount of nourishment, and, when well rooted, will assimilate frequent applications of liquid manure, while a light and airy house is its proper location.

Seedling palms will also demand attention, where such are grown, and, judging from the quantities of seeds that have been imported of late years, the growers must be becoming very numerous. It is good practice to pot off these seedlings as soon as the first leaf is fully developed, or when the second leaf is just pushing up, using preferably two-inch pots of the deep model, and after potting it is best to keep the seedlings rather close during the day for a time, but also giving some air at night to prevent rotting off. Frequent syringing during the bright weather will encourage the tender young plants to renewed root action, and after this is accomplished much more ventilation may be given. W. H. TAPLIN.

Philadelphia.

THE CONVENTION PRESENTS A PLEASANT RETROSPECT.—STORY OF THE UNBOUNDED HOSPITALITY AND THE HOMEWARD TRIP.—SOCIAL FEATURES A GREAT SUCCESS.—A WORD ABOUT BUSINESS.

The boys are all home, coming in groups of two and three or more, the largest parcel arriving at the terminal at 8 p. m. Monday. These left Detroit at noon Saturday, arriving at Niagara Falls in the evening after a hot and dusty ride. The Canadian country through which the route lay presented a dried up and withered landscape, no rain, we were told, having fallen for weeks. There was a continual line of fires. Dried grass and stubble fields were seen on every hand, either flame-swept or burning. Fences were burned away in whole sections, and nearly every bit of woodland passed was on fire or showed evidences of such destruction. At St. Thomas the spot was pointed out where Jumbo, Barnum's great elephant, was accidently killed by a locomotive. A very pleasant Sunday was spent at Niagara. Monday, one of the hottest days of the season, found the party speeding through the Lehigh valley, arriving home safe and sound but very tired and dusty from head to foot.

Everybody was delighted with the trip and the hospitality of the Detroit brethren. From the time Mayor Maybury extended his kind welcome until Vice-President Breitmeyer shook hands and bid us good bye at the station there was not a dull moment. There were carriage rides, trolley rides, special excursions to parks and other places, notably to J. Breitmeyer & Sons', where all were deeply interested in the foundation walls of at least one of the buildings. A delightful feature was the boat ride and supper, returning from which Brother Sanders, of Chicago, Warren Ewell and Fred. Mathison, of Boston, the Duke of York and others turned back the hands of time and showed that they have not forgotten the songs and scenes of their youth. The triumphal arch came in for its share of commendation, and altogether the Detroit boys were voted a very much alive lot of fellows. How Brother Rackham did hustle! Phil. Breitmeyer, too, was always on hand. Messrs. Beard, Holznagle and Flowerday, and a lot of others, were everywhere trying to add to the comfort of the visitors. Then there was Superintendent Plumber, of Waterworks Park, whose "Welcome S. A. F." in scarlet geraniums was so attractive and who made the party feel so much at home. Owing to the efforts of these gentlemen the social part of the Detroit convention was a great success and the memory of the visit will linger long and happily with the delegates.

Business is about as usual for the season. Stock is improving, roses of first grade now being in good shape and superior in form to those generally seen the latter end of August.

Robt. Scott & Son's driver had a tussel with an automobile a short time ago and came out second best, although the expense was on the other fellow. Beyond a bad scare and a repair bill of $15 the incident is closed. Get ready, however for the "autos"; they are coming.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS AND PROSPECTS.—A FINE SUMMER CROP OF LILIES.—A. T. BODDINGTON TO BE MARRIED.—INTEREST IN THE CONVENTION OF 1900.

Business is very dead here this week. Last week developed quite a fair demand and some were sanguine enough to regard it as the beginning of a steady fall business, but present conditions show they were mistaken. Two dollars and a half a thousand seems to be the prevailing price for fair average roses at present and even at that they move slowly. Lily of the valley asserted itself last week to the extent of $4 for special stock, but it takes a smart salesman this week to realize half that price on it. The heavy crop of asters is about finished. Instead, a moderate quantity of extra fancy disbudded blooms are being sent in with stems two feet or more in length and these, while well worth $2 a hundred, are not easily placed at that figure, and if the growers get $1 it is about all they can expect. Outdoor carnations, short-stemmed and encumbered with buds, are beginning to show up in quantity at the Thirty-fourth street market and elsewhere, the outside figure being about 25 cents per hundred. Steinhoff is sending to this city from 200 to 250 fine longiflorums daily, averaging two flowers to a stem, which bring all the way from 3 to 8 cents, according to size of sale, customer and other circumstances, the smaller figure predominating. These are apparently from cold storage bulbs and the enterprize displayed in having them in steady supply at this season of the year will scarcely be repaid as it should unless the market stiffens up. Those sent in July found a better outlet, with more regular and satisfactory returns. Indications for the coming month are a heavy crop of about everything, particularly roses, with the weather a strong factor in the case as regards demand and prices. The recent past seasons have shown conclusively that New Yorkers are more and more inclined to keep away from the city and all its frivolities so long as the weather is favorable to rural pastimes.

Friday, August 25, is said to be the day selected by Arthur T. Boddington, of the firm of Clucas & Boddington, as his wedding day. The happy young lady is Miss Lillian De Forrest, of Roselle, N. J., and the ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Boddington and his intended wife have the best wishes and congratulations of a host of friends all over the country.

Much interest is manifested on all sides with regard to the next convention of the S. A. F. Unless present indications are very deceptive there will be the grandest round-up on record of all branchess of the profession at New York, and this is just what the business in New York most needs.

Boston.

GOSSIP OF THE DETROIT TRIP.—ALL PLEASED.—BUSINESS AS IT IS.—SOME SUMMER RESORT TRADE AND OCCASIONAL FUNERAL DEMANDS ARE THE MAINSTAYS.—THE ANNUAL AQUATIC SHOW.—CERTIFICATES AWARDED.—ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF PLANTS AND FLOWERS NEXT WEEK.—VISITORS.

Boston is still living in the convention. Wherever a little group of the "boys" are gathered together the conversation is reminiscent, as the story of the pleasant experiences of the trip and of the convention is told over and over again by the returned travelers or the tale of loneliness during the absence of their fellows is rehearsed by those who were obliged to stay at home. It makes a most interesting narrative, that of the ride through the beautiful mountains and valleys of western Massachusetts, enlivened by the presence of the ladies and robbed of all the ordinary discomforts of travel by the kind dispensations of the weather clerk and the courtesy and foresight of the Fitchburg Railroad people; how we found Lange at Gardner, Bragne at North Adams and Weathered and Manda at Rotterdam Junction and finally the big jolly delegation from Philadelphia at Buffalo, long past the midnight hour. The whole history of the four days stay at Detroit is very interesting to the Boston people, who are delighted at the honor extended in the election of one of their number to the presidency and will give full expression to their appreciation by an unprecedented turn-out next year at New York. The unrivalled "Boston Twins" Mathison and Ewell were in the first party to return, reaching home Saturday evening in best of spirits and without impairment of their avoirdupois by their varied experiences. Others stayed over and spent a couple of days at Niagara Falls and a few are making more extended tours through the west and Canada. Among the latter are Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Edgar, who are not expected home until Saturday. Lawrence Cotter, who was forced, through sudden illness, to abandon the convention trip at the last moment, is now much better and expects to be all right soon.

The almanac, more than the weather, reminds us that the summer is nearly gone and that it will be time to work and time to look for fall business in a few days. The summer has not been different from its immediate predecessors in the extent or character of the flower trade. The sea shore and mountain demand has not been felt much except in the extra fancy lines which at this season of the year are uncertain stock. The remarkable dryness has had an injurious effect on outdoor flowers, asters being of poorer quality on the average than ever before in this market. All lilies as well as hydrangeas and other garden bloom, are in earlier than usual, from the same cause. Outside of funeral work but little is being done by the retail florists as yet. A call at M. H. Norton's, one day this week, after the usual closing hour found that gentleman in shirt sleeves, indulging in the rare luxury of a big funeral order; actually working in August! Crosses, pillows, and other evidences of his skill were perched on all sides and he hasn't gotten over his surprise yet. The wholesalers report almost nothing doing locally. The extra fine grade roses are called for at the summer resorts; the small, short-stemmed cut of Brides and Bridesmaids is well sold if the street boys take it at 50 cents per hundred. As to carnations, there is a good price available for the few good Scotts and Daybreaks that come in. Ordinary white varieties from outdoors bring lower figures, but they are unusually good, for their class.

Saturday, August 19, was prize day for aquatic flowers and asters at Horticultural Hall. Wm. Tricker was present, bringing with him from the Dreer nurseries at Riverton a fine collection of nymphæas, nelumbiums and other aquatic flowers and received first-class certificates for Nymphæa fulva and Nymphæa rubra punctata. J. W. Howard received a first-class certificate for Giant White Comet aster and Aster Daybreak. Other exhibitors in the aster classes were C. H. Souther and N. F. Comley. Mrs. John Jeffries was awarded a certificate for a sport of Nepholepis exaltata and Oakes Ames honorable mention for Cattleya Hardyana. J. Warren Clark, as usual, staged a fine lot of gladioli and E. J. Shaylor showed gladiolus hybrids for which he was awarded a silver medal.

The great annual exhibition of plants and flowers will take place on August 30 and 31. Liberal prizes are offerred for hardy coniferous trees, palms, greenhouse and stove plants, begonias, cannas, dahlias, zinnias and a host of other seasonable plants and flowers, and hothouse grapes.

DULLNESS STILL DOMINATES. — STOCK SHOWS SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT.—CARNATIONS BENCHED IN SOME BIG ESTABLISHMENTS.—MANY VISITORS ENROUTE FROM THE CONVENTION.—VACATIONS STILL IN ORDER.

This has been another dull week in cut flower circles but not quite so dull as its predecessor. There has been a slightly better supply of stock, although good Brides and Bridesmaids are still very scarce. Some pretty fair Beauties have been on the market. In carnations no really good flowers have been in, the cut being almost entirely from the plants in the field. The whites have sold promptly. There are still too many asters, although the best stock commands a fair price. It is noted that the demand has been for white and lavender.

Wietor Bros are believers in early planting and were the first in this neighborhood to move their carnations to the field, the first to begin benching and the first to complete that work, although planting fifteen houses is no half-hour's job. The varieties they have planted in are principally Flora Hill, Triumph, Jubilee, Armazindy, Bon Ton, Lizzie McGowan, Evelina and the new Crane and America. The plants are all in fine condition. Over 100,000 remain in the field.

The town was full of conventionites Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and all the week they have been dropping in at the wholesale houses and at the establishments of the growers Vaughan's at Western Springs, Bassett & Washburn's and Prince's at Hinsdale, Reinberg's and Budlong's at Bowmanville, Buettner's at Park Ridge, and Wietor's at Rogers Park have been among those who kept open house for all comers.

The next outing of the Chicago Florists' Club will be on Thursday, August 31, to the establishment of the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill. The train leaves the Union depot at 11:45 a. m., arriving at the grounds at 1 o'clock, returning, leave Joliet 6:30, arrive Chicago 7:45. Refreshments will be served in the fine old woods of the Higinbotham place. Ladies are especially invited for this excursion.

At Reinberg's they have twenty-eight houses planted with carnations, including nearly all the varieties now in general cultivation. The stock is in good shape and the monster establishment is getting into its winter form. The brothers have many field plants to dispose of this fall.

Paul Berkowitz, of Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, has been in town this week. He reports trade good and is much pleased with the results of his efforts at the convention.

J. F. Wilcox and wife, of Council Bluffs, Ia., called at the establishment of the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., as they journeyed homeward from the convention.

C. H. Frey, of Lincoln, Neb., with Mrs. Frey and son, passed through the city last week on their way home from Cape May.

The army worm has invaded the city and is doing much damage to lawns. Paris green and slug shot have been recommended as efficient remedies.

E. E. Pieser went up to the lakes after the convention and is now at Old Mission, Mich. G. E. Pieser will go east upon his return.

George Stollery has received many congratulations this week over his 208 game in the big contest at Detroit. It was the top mark.

C. W. McKellar went to his old home at Chillicothe, Ohio, after the convention for a few days' visit.

L. W. Wheeler is starting on his regular fall trip for Vaughan's Seed Store.

Samuel Pearce, 656 Clybourne avenue, is rebuilding four houses.

Visitors: John C. Elspermann, Evansville, Ind.; Harry Balsley, Detroit.

CAMDEN, N. J.—C. W. Turnley and Mrs. Turnley are at home from Niagara Falls, where they stopped enroute from Detroit.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Ex-presidents of the S. A. F. W. R. Smith and W. F. Gude are reported to have arrived in Glasgow, Scotland, August 16.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Chas. K. Swenson is building another carnation house 22x165 and James Young is putting up three even span palm houses 20x75. Both growers are heating with hot water.

CROMWELL, CONN.—A. N. Pierson's range of ten new rose houses 23x300 is to be one of the finest in the east. The structures are three-quarter span, iron, and have a double heating system, both steam and hot water.

MORRISTOWN, N. J.—H. C. Holmes has bought the land, 150x200, residence and four greenhouses which he has occupied for several years, paying $8,500. He will remodel the dwelling and is already modernizing the greenhouses.

NORTH TONAWANDA, N. Y.—This section was visited by a hailstorm on August 2. Fred. Meyers lost about 500 lights, J. H. Kendle about 300, while Christ Schnell and C. J. Pult with about 12,500 feet of glass lost none. Fred. Knicht, who recently rebuilt, did not suffer any loss worth mentioning. The Florists Supply Co. is rushed with orders for the new soil pulverizer.

Piping Rose and Carnation Houses.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—How can I heat by steam two houses for roses or carnations? They are 23x150 feet even span, running north and south. The side walls are six feet high. Each house contains three benches five feet six inches wide. How many pipes should be placed under each bench? What size of pipe is best? What size of pipe should be used for the main from boiler? The boiler is eighty-horse power. SUBSCRIBER.

If there is no glass in the side walls a 2½-inch over-head feed and ten 1¼-inch returns should suffice for most varieties of roses, where the mercury seldom drops much below zero. One flow and eight returns should answer for carnations. If under bench heat is desired, the pipes may be distributed to supply it, but it will be well to have at least two of the returns on each wall, and this would leave four and six pipes to be distributed under the benches in the carnation and rose houses respectively. To connect with the boiler a 3-inch main feed and a 2-inch return will be desirable. The connections to each house can be made with 2½-inch feeds and 1½ inch drip pipes.

Convention Jottings.

New York next year, Chicago, 1901.

It was diamond cut diamond in that glazing discussion.

The Detroit florists are elaborate entertainers at all hours.

As ever and always, the man in the gap was Robt. Craig.

Too many of the ex-presidents were among the missing.

The sage of Richmond was well to the front with new gospels.

The music and humor of Edgar Sanders spoke well for his years.

Is an association of florists organized to raise prices not a trust?

The swimming baths at one of the hotels were much enjoyed.

Fighting William Scott seems to be the name in these latter days.

Phil. Breitmeyer said little, but he meant it all and much more.

That triumphal arch was a new convention feature and a good one.

John Westcott was there and kept his bowlers in trim to win the cup.

Chicago bowlers are justly proud of the performance of George Stollery.

The Herendeen show card at the Cadillac was the subject of much comment.

M. Rice & Company had no exhibit at Detroit, but M. Rice himself was there.

The gauntlet is cast and florists are out to fight the glass and other trusts.

The Ionia Pottery Company was working mostly in the interest of white pots.

Twins Ewell and Mathison, of the Boston delegation, made fun for everybody.

Kreitling's decoration of the Chicago dining car was the subject of much favorable comment.

With such men as F. R. Pierson and P. O'Mara as sponsors the success of the New York convention is assured.

It was sad to see that crack team of Buffalo bowlers relegated to the third place so close upon the Pan-American scheme.

Sullivan's paper set a number thinking about matters which they had never thought of before in connection with their business.

Cement Joints—Gravity Heating System.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—You will oblige by informing me on the following points with regard to cement joints:

1. How are the joints made?
2. What kind of cement is used?
3. Are they as safe as the rust joints?
4. How long should they stand before use?
5. What is meant by the gravity system of hot water heating?

GREENHORN.

1. Cement joints are sometimes used for packing 4-inch cast-iron pipe. About one inch of the joint is first caulked with oakum or a piece of rope, as large as can be readily driven in. Next enough cement, or iron putty, to make a layer one-half inch thick, followed by another thin layer of oakum, or rope packing. The hub is then filled with rather thick cement, made from equal parts of fine, sharp sand and water lime. Care should be taken to have the pipe so supported that its expansion or contraction will not be hindered and in warm weather there is danger that the cement will set too quickly. To prevent this it is well, after five or six days, to fill the pipes with water and to cover the joints well with burlap or other material that can be occasionally moistened.

2. Any good grade of Portland cement will answer.

3. A well-made rust joint is much harder to break than the cement joint, although when no unusual strain is placed upon the cement joints they will last many years. Unless one is accustomed to making rust joints there is danger of cracking the hubs.

4. The joints made as above will hold if a fire is started at the end of a week, but if allowed to set slowly it will become stronger for weeks and even months.

5. All systems of heating with hot water may be spoken of as gravity systems, as the movement of the water in the pipes is due to the fact that as the water in one portion is warmed it expands and becomes lighter, while other portions on cooling contract and thus become heavier. As a result the excess of weight of the cold water causes it to displace any warmer water that is lower down in the system. It will thus be seen that the circulation is cansed, not because hot water rises, but by the falling of the cold water, which pushes the hot water out of the way. "Specific gravity is held by all intelligent heating men to be the force that causes water to circulate through the piping." A. T. Hoyt in AMERICAN FLORIST, July 22, 1899.

Roots of Roses Injured.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I would like to know what means to adopt in order to banish a small white worm which is cutting off my roses at the roots. The house has been planted about two weeks with Bride and Bridesmaid. Every morning there are five or six plants cut away in the soil. What should be done?

NEW BEGINNER.

"New Beginner" does not give any description whatever of the grub and there are several families of these which do more or less feeding on rose roots. The most destructive of all are the grub of Aramygus Fullerii, or what is generally known as the rose bug proper. This grub is milky white with a small brown head; average length from half an inch to five-eighths of an inch; it is quite soft, yet its digestive powers must be exceptionally good, for they can destroy more rose roots than any other living thing I have ever seen. There is another grub known as the wire worm; this fellow is from three-quarters to one inch in length, is straw-colored with brown head and has short legs which enable it to bury itself very quickly in the soil. He has a good appetite also. Then there is the grub of the June bug. This, when exposed to the light, usually assumes somewhat the form of a horse shoe and when full grown will average one and one-half inches long, with brown head, white or straw-colored body with the latter end of a dark gray color, particularly after a good meal of rose roots with some of the compost for seasoning. With the two last, the old adage is still the best, "ketch 'em and kill 'em." If "New Beginner" has the first described in his rose house I would not give him a nickle per foot for his products till he has exterminated them. His only chance to do this is to clean everything movable out of the house, make a big bon-fire and burn the lot, and then thoroughly lime wash every part of his benches and walls with hot lime and begin over again with new clean stock. I hope he has not this pest to contend with, but if he will mail three or four in a wooden or tin box with just enough moist earth to keep them alive, I will tell him at once if it is this "cuss."

Smilax Leaves Spotted.

ED. AM FLORIST:—Can you tell me what is the cause of the white spotting on my smilax leaves in summer, as per the enclosed sample? What can be done to prevent it? W.

The peculiar spotting on the smilax leaves submitted is the result of an insect which belongs to what is commonly known as the flea-beetle family. Just as soon as we have cooler weather these insects cease their ravages. How to annihilate this pest so that it will not bother smilax or other plants in summer time is a hard problem to solve. Among potatoes growing on some parts of this continent, a near relative of this insect causes much havoc among the vines, and in many cases seriously impairs the crop. The now quite well known Bordeaux mixture answers a double purpose, if freely used, in the case of potato growing, by checking insect injury and fungus diseases. One of the tricks resorted to by these troublesome insects for their self-preservation, is to dodge beneath the leaves—side step, as it were—upon the slightest agitation of the vines. It is thus difficult to hit the enemy with what is known as contact insecticides, and to use poison for internal application would be extremely risky and might prove dangerous.

Some years ago, when our personal summer trade demanded more smilax than it does at the present time, we constructed a cheap lath house outdoors, and planted some old smilax roots therein, trained the strings in the usual way, and on this plan circumvented the flea-beetle, and had fairly good smilax for cutting purposes, though we must admit the leaves were not so luxuriant as are those grown under glass; but what was of far more importance, the leaves were quite hard, thus making it more valuable, because less inclined to wilt in the hot summer months. J. P.

OBITUARY.

HENRI LEVEQUE DE VILMORIN.

H. L. de Vilmorin, one of the most conspicuous figures in European horticulture, died August 22. The house of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co. dates back beyond the time of Louis XV, when Pierre Andrieux was seedsman and botanist to that king. In 1745 the firm was located at the Quai de la Megisserie and that is its address at the present day. M. de Vilmorin, one of the senior members of the firm, was widely known as an authority on all horticultural subjects. He was an occasional contributor to our columns and last visited this country, with his son Philip, during the World's Fair year. Many of our readers will remember the World's Fair congress of horticulturists. On this occasion M. de Vilmorin spoke with much feeling of the pleasure he experienced in meeting with the horticulturists of America. M. Henri de Vilmorin was a Veitchian medallist of the Royal Horticultural Society of England and a knight of the French Legion of Honor. The Vilmorin family has lived for several generations on the beautiful estate at Verrieres, and those who have been so fortunate as to have visited the deceased at his home are most enthusiastic in praising the estate as covering everything desirable in horticulture, artistically and commercially, and express themselves as still more delighted with the modest and unaffected courtesy with which they were entertained. Our portrait of M. Henri de Vilmorin, which appears elsewhere in this issue, is copied from the Gardeners' Chronicle of June 13, 1896.

ADDRESS... GEO. M. WRISLEY, Windsor, Conn.

Marblehead and Thereabouts.

I was over in Marblehead, Mass., the other day and made a call on our friend, E. Hayden, one of those busy chaps who yet has a pleasant word for everyone; I always enjoy a call at his place. He intends making an addition of forty feet on two houses and to this he will attach a potting shed and boiler room. Two Florida boilers will be used to heat the entire place. Several hundred thousand pansy plants will be grown here this year. I find chrysanthemum plants are short all about this district; almost everybody wants a few.

At Elbridge Blaney's, in Swampscott, there is a new chrysanthemum house 20x60 in which the plants in solid beds are growing finely. There is one house planted to asters, the greater portion being Vick's Branching. These are a fine lot and promise a good crop, but Truffaut's planted under the same conditions, in fact, on the same bench, are badly diseased. This is also a common sight in the gardens, but I don't know that I ever saw so much of this trouble before. Blaney's carnations are in good condition, most of them being housed.

I had an interesting conversation with one of Lynn's veteran florists, S. T. Goodwin, the other day, about his trip to the Klondike gold regions. I wouldn't be surprised if he and S. H. Davenport took a trip to Porto Rico this fall.

William Walk, a former foreman at the Julhan place in Salem, is building a new range, consisting of two houses 25x100 and one house 18x80 with potting shed and office, the heating to be done by a fifty horse-power boiler. The construction throughout is in a manner that will commend itself on sight. Side and top ventilators will be used, regulated by a thermostat, of which Mr. Walk thinks quite highly. A general stock will be grown.

The Houghton Horticultural Society, of Lynn, will have an outing on Labor day, when a trip will be made to the Ames estate at North Easton. JAP.

SCRANTON, PA. — Thos. Harber has gone into bankruptcy, with liabilities of $1,850 and assets of $1,580.

LE MARS, IA.—W. F. Will has severed his connection with the Le Mars Greenhouses and gone to Chicago. Mrs. E. G. Will, who owns the place, will engage another manager and continue the business.

STAATSBURG-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.—James Macfarlane has located in a picturesque spot overlooking the Hudson river and has commenced the erection of a nursery and florists' plant, which he expects to have in working order by September 1. On August 18 there was rejoicing in the Macfarlane household over the arrival of a baby boy.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALEXANDER RODGERS, Pres; ALBERT MCCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

GOOD authorities predict another short crop with high prices for beans.

COLUMBUS, OHIO. — The Livingston Seed Co. is preparing a shipment of new field corn for Buda Pesth, Austro-Hungary.

E. SCHAETTEL, representing Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., of Paris, France, is expected to arrive in this country to-day, August 26.

H. A. EDWARDS & Co., Caribou, Me., have incorporated with $20,000 capital and will take over the business of H. A. Edwards, including the seed trade.

HENRY NUNGESSER & Co. have been incorporated at New York with a capital of $100,000. Directors are H. Nungesser, M. H. Duryea and G. F. Hoagland.

S. Y. HAINES & Co. will have charge of the execution of the government seed order for Charles Parker, and representatives of the firm are now in California completing the details of the work.

PORTLAND, ME.—Ellis M. Sawyer, son of W. C. Sawyer, the seedsman, died at Augusta on August 11, aged 35 years. Mr. Sawyer formerly conducted a florist business at Woodfords. He has been ill for over six years.

THE Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., issues a bulletin on crimson clover seed, giving information which seedsmen and horticulturists learned for themselves by practical experience long ago. This useless expenditure of the public funds should be stopped.

PETER HENDERSON & Co. suffered a $15,000 fire in the basement of their store, 35 and 37 Cortlandt street, New York, August 20. The fire was discovered by a patrolman at 2 a. m., and before it was extinguished twelve firemen had been overcome by smoke; all recovered, however. The loss on stock is estimated at $12,000, fully insured.

NEW YORK.—A letter from Winfried Rolker, who is now in Europe, states that Dutch bulbs in some lines are scarcer and of poorer quality than had been anticipated. This applies particularly to white hyacinths and to miniatures generally, which are very small and very scarce. Tulips will be a normal crop, excepting La Reine and Duc Van Thol, both of which are diseased and short crop.

Detroit.

QUIET SETTLES OVER THE CONVENTION CITY.—ONLY PLEASANT MEMORIES ARE LEFT.—SHAW'S HEAD WAS BADLY BUMPED, NOT BROKEN.—JOTTINGS.

The calm which succeeds the storm has settled down upon Detroit and with the exception of the arch of welcome and the happy countenances of the local florists nothing is left to indicate the passing into history of the convention. From every direction have come letters of congratulation expressing the satisfaction of the exhibitors, who all sold out their wares to good advantage, booked innumerable orders and made the acquaintance of many prospective buyers.

The Detroit bowlers are not satisfied with the record they made in the national contest. They were surely unnerved and plainly failed to do themselves justice, possibly owing to the presence of so many ladies; but they are already full of promises for 1900 at New York.

All the visiting florists have departed for their homes except Laureate Shaw, whose injury of last Thursday evening will probably prevent his writing any more poetry for some time to come. He is still ill in bed at the Oriental Hotel, suffering from concussion of the brain but not a fracture of the skull as was at first feared by his friends. He hopes to leave for New York before the end of the week but is likely to feel the effects of his injury for some time.

President E. M. Wood was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sullivan Sunday, taking the evening boat for the east via Cleveland. A large company gathered to do him honor. He is certainly popular with everyone of the Detroit florists, all of whom unite in wishing him a most prosperous official year.

The regular cut flower business of the city continues encouraging. A great deal of funeral work keeps the leading stores constantly active, but, owing to the drought, grasshoppers and black beetles, asters and other outside flowers are scarce.

Phil. Breitmeyer and family are enjoying a week's outing at the "Flats," the beautiful resort to which the S. A. F. sailed on that memorial Wednesday evening. J. F. S.

Baltimore.

FIRE INFLICTS HEAVY LOSS UPON FISCHER & EKAS.—SPECIMEN CHRYSANTHEMUMS INJURED.—AMONG THE GROWERS.—SOME FINE STOCK.

During the severe thunder storm Monday night, August 21, the building that runs along the west end of Fischer & Ekas' houses was discovered on fire; it was soon destroyed and the ends of all the houses burnt off. The building was used as a store house and contained all the stock of empty pots, about 25,000, forty tons of coal, all tools and twenty-seven boxes of 16x16 glass. In the houses the smoke killed almost every plant, a bench containing 15,000 rooted rose cuttings being the chief loss, as the houses were mostly empty. The house of chrysanthemums was not quite so badly damaged as the rest. This is one of the very few places growing specimen chrysanthemums for the show, and a magnificent lot of plants, most of which had been staked out, were plunged in frames running at right angles to the burned building. Those nearest the building, which were the largest plants, were badly scorched, and if they are made too late for the show the whole city will have cause to regret the Fischer & Ekas fire.

A visit to the group of florists about Erdman avenue and the Belair and Harford roads shows that there is not in the county a group as close together as Montgomery Bros., James Simpson, Matthew Richmond and Erdman Bros., with as great a quantity of really first-rate stock. Simpson has Pteris argyrea, one year from spores, in 6-inch pots with fronds eighteen inches long; lots of other pteris and Lomarea gibba, Blechnum Braziliense and other ferns showing the same luxuriant growth. One house is being rebuilt and extended. Montgomery Bros. are busy glazing two new houses 12x100 feet. They have a splendid lot of young kentias and other palms and chrysanthemums. Matthew Richmond has enough chrysanthemums to supply the town and everything about the place is in good condition. The field of carnations is particularly fine and even. Erdman Bros. have already planted two houses 16x100 with carnations. They are putting up a new house 34x80 where two small houses stood. J. G. Erdman has a house of smilax which is a rare sight just now and he has his cinerarias in thumb pots already. MACK.

"Indispensable"

THIS is the only word which describes the American Florist Company's Trade Directory. This book, 359 pages of facts tersely told, is issued annually and is an aid to business and money making which no wholesaler or traveling salesman can afford to be without. It contains the name of every Florist, Nurseryman and Seedsman, arranged both by states and towns and alphabetically. It will save many times its cost by enabling you to cover America with your catalogue and at the same time waste no printed matter or postage on dead names.

Trimming Thuja Hedge.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Please give instructions as to the best time to cut back a thuja hedge. These trees are five or six feet high. Would it be advisable to cut them back twelve inches? They are uneven in height. SUBSCRIBER.

There is no better time than the present to trim an arbor-vitæ hedge, spring not excepted. The earlier it is done now the better. To cut away a foot of top from a hedge five to six feet high seems a severe trimming, yet it is not likely to injure the hedge permanently. It will look a little unsightly for a year or two until new shoots fill up the gap left by the cutting, but even next season's growth should fairly fill it up.

Should it be desired that a lowering of a full foot of height be obtained the main shoots should be cut down fifteen inches. The more slender outside branches which are below this will be well above the cut in height, and these can be trimmed off to the proper level. It is these outside shoots which will fill up the bare places on the top of the hedge in time. Arbor-vitæ rarely pushes out fresh shoots from hard wood, hence it is that we look to the green shoots below the cut to refurnish the green top.

At the time of lessening the height the whole hedge may be trimmed, bringing the top as much to a point as possible without cutting below the foliage.

When hedges are large and bushy and are cut down a great deal they rarely fill up in a satisfactory way. It takes a long time for the green outside branches to bush out inwardly to the center, and such cut down hedges are rarely ever satisfactory after.

Trimming of hedges leaves the inner twigs much exposed, and this sudden exposure of these weak twigs often destroys them. Hence it is that the present time is a safe time to do the work. Heat is decreasing and cold not here yet, and the twigs spoken of become accustomed to the change and hardened before the approach of freezing weather. This is true of all evergreen hedges.

Diseased Crab Apple Leaves.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Enclosed herewith you will find diseased crab apple leaf. Please give name of the disease and remedy. D. C.

The crab apple leaf is affected with rust, a well-known fungus disease which is quite prevalent certain seasons. One stage of this fungus occurs on cedar trees, producing what is known as cedar apples. The spores, or reproductive bodies from the cedar apples are carried to the crab apple leaves by the wind or other agencies and by infecting the tissues produce the characteristic spots. The spores from these spots are in turn borne to the cedar trees, where they live through the winter. There is no satisfactory remedy for the disease and about the only way to get rid of it is to remove and destroy all cedar trees in the vicinity.

Expedition at New York Customs House.

Fred'k W. Kelsey, of New York, who has been interesting himself in correcting the evils at the New York Customs House, has received the following letter, under date of the Treasury Department, Aug. 6:

Replying to your letter of the 2nd inst., in relation to the appraisement of nursery stock at the port of New York, I have to inform you that the Collector of Customs and Appraiser at the port named were advised on the 26th ultimo that merchandise of the kind in question should be promptly appraised at the actual market value as defined by section 19 of the Customs Administrative Act; that but one package out of each invoice should be sent to the public store for examination and appraisement unless it should be found necessary in any particular case to call for additional packages to form a proper basis for determining the character, quantity and value of the entire importation, and that packages containing shrubs, trees and similar nursery stock which may be properly examined on the dock should not be sent to the public store for examination.

St. Louis Juniors.

The clerks of the St. Louis florists organized a bowling club August 21, to be known as the Junior Florists' Bowling Club of St. Louis. The following officers were elected: Frank Ellis, president; A. Y. Ellison, secretary; Wm. Holtz, treasurer. To be eligible for membership a person must be or have been employed by some florist. The proprietor of a store is not eligible. The following scores were made on the first night:

Echoes of the Tournament.

It is all over; the great match has been bowled! Still, after the lapse of a week, we can almost hear the bounding balls and the crashing pins, a sound that thrills the heart of the bowler, particularly when the whole ten join in to swell the chorus. There were scores of such cheerful situations, and, alas, more than scores of scores which were almost entirely devoid of such pleasant incidents.

It was a great contest, however. There were ten teams in all, sixty men who were striving to win glory and prizes individually and for their club. There were four teams mentioned as winners or for a place, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis and Philadelphia. Detroit was also in the running. Chicago, with that 157 average made in their game with Omaha a few days before, thought it was all over but the shouting, particularly as Asmus would be with them in Detroit. (Pity he got that bad sprain.) What was the trouble, boys? There is a great difference between 157 and 141. They should have brought the great Capt. Anson with them, as he appears to have been their mascot.

Then there were the champions. That cup was to go back to St. Louis, whether or no; they had become accustomed to it and could not live without its presence, giving evidence, as it did at all times, of their skill at the game. There is no question about their ability; they are experts in the art of bowling; what they lack is nerve, for it takes a steady head and hand when the excitement of a tournament is on, and here is where they failed. Their game was the most even of the lot, their second being twenty pins better than their first and their third seventeen better than their second.

Buffalo was picked as the winner probably oftener than any other club. They had confidence in large quantities and started off at a great pace, making 870, and thought that was simply "rotten" as anything less than 900 was almost an impossibility for them. The second game in the fifth frame showed a possible thousand as a grand total, but here their nerve gave out; they became too anxious and, like the man who runs too fast, they fell down, their total being but 890. This was a good game, however, and they led everybody. Philadelphia, their nearest competitor, was distanced by thirty-three pins. Their last game was to be a corker, but here lack of nerve developed and they soon had a very large case of "rattles" on their hands, from which we question if they have even now quite recovered. But one man kept his head; he was William B. Scott, who proved himself a bowler from away back. His score, 177, made under most discouraging circumstances, while it did not pull out his team, landed for him the grand medal for the best score for three games, 507, a record of which he may well be proud.

Philadelphia came to win; they formed a strong attachment for the trophy when it was with them over a year ago. Their first game was a great disappointment; their nerves were also out of order and they were oftener "up in the air" than on the alley. At the end of the first game it looked as if they were out of it, being then in fifth place, but their second game saw them get down to business and roll in their proper form; 936 was the total and it proved to be high game, winning the set of balls offered by the Crawford, McGreggor & Canby Co., of Dayton, O. Their last game also passed the 900 mark, this being the only team to attain this distinction. They won not only the honor of being the champions and the Evans cup, which is now their property, but the trophy offered by the officers of the city of Detroit, which has to be won twice and is a beauty. Individual members of the team also took prizes; D. T. Connor, for greatest number of spares and pins made on same, won a five dollar hat and a five dollar umbrella. He also gets a morocco leather ball case offered by Capt. A. C. Anson, of Chicago, for the second highest number of pins in all games. George Moss needed but to have made an easy spare, in his second game of 205, to have won the high game medal, called the Detroit Hotel trophy, which went to George Stollery, of Chicago, for his great game of 208. The set of six scarf pins offered by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company was also won by the Philadelphia team.

St. Louis wins the trophy of the National Florists' Bowling Association for the second highest average in all games and Buffalo, which rolled off a tie with Chicago, won the prize offered by the association to the team having the third best score. The scores in this game were as follows Buffalo, Kasting, 126; McClure, 145; Wm. Weber, 190; Wm. B. Scott, 130; Wm. Scott, 107; Philip Scott, 153; total 851. Chicago, Winterson, 123; Hauswirth, 112; Degnan, 131; G. Stollery, 142; Asmus, 144; F. Stollery, 151; total 803. Buffalo thus won third place by forty-eight pins.

In the individual rolling F. C. Weber and Theo. Bock appear to have both won first place and C. Risch will take third. One of Wm. Scott's sons, George is the name, I think, made 156 in this contest but, not being a member of the society, had to relinquish the prize. This was certainly a case of hard luck; young Mr. George is not yet 17 but is developing into a great bowler and will undoubtedly be on the next Buffalo team. Wm. Bowler Scott (his full name) is a most consistent player. He rolls a medium pace ball from a point between the corner and center of the alley; this is delivered with great accuracy, which is also displayed when spares are to be made. Referring to William's remarks on how the trophies were to be displayed, we would suggest that as there is but the one to show, he take a piece of the "black velvet," place it in the good sized wreath frame, which can then be filled with red flowers; good deep pink asters would do; then attach the medal in the center by some of the "silver strings" and hang the whole piece in the window, with the inscription "Won by my son, Wm. B. Scott, at the florists' national bowling tournament in Detroit." Fill up the balance of the window with palms in lieu of the other prizes and call it finished for this year. Ah! William, there's many a slip 'twixt the cup and (in this case) the window. K.

An Interesting Table.

I was very glad to see that "dem Phillies" brought back the cup from the bowling tournament all right. Now that it's all over I am free to confess we were a bit scared of Buffalo. Philadelphia has had but one first since 1892, at Providence in 1897, while Buffalo had three firsts, as will be seen from the appended table giving the results for the past eight years. We Phillies used to get

Omaha 1898	St. Louis 137	Phila. 132	Omaha 127	Chicago 126	Cleveland 112
Detroit 1899	Phila. 146	St. Louis 142	Buffalo 141	Chicago 141	N. Y. 133	Detroit 131	Pittsburg 122	Omaha 121	Cleveland 119	Flatbush 116

first more frequently previous to 1892 and we were afraid our supremacy was on the wane. However, a little study of the table will show that Philadelphia is still well in the lead. A fair comparison by points would be three points for first, two for second and one for third place. Judged by this standard the standing of the clubs which have got as far as third place in eight years may be expressed something like this:

1 Philadelphia
2 Buffalo
3 New York
4 St. Louis
5 Boston
6 Pittsburg
7 Flatbush
8 Omaha

In this comparison Boston and Pittsburg are tied for fifth place.

It is but fair to mention that Buffalo would have had a better showing had she not been disqualified at Omaha, where she had the highest score. When the prophets are making their guesses for New York in 1900 I commend a little study of this brief history. I did not observe that any of them had Philadelphia even among the "also rans."

Lenox, Mass.

John Francis Huss, superintendent of the George H. Morgan place, Ventfort Hall, has resigned his position and on October 1 will sail for Switzerland, where he will make his home with his aged mother. Before coming to American Mr. Huss assisted in laying out the parks in the city of Paris and was asked to assist in laying out Central Park, New York. He afterward laid out the Morningside Park in New York and was then engaged by Mr. Morgan to become superintendent of the Ventfort Hall place, which has no horticultural rival in Lenox. It is said that a relative of Mr. Huss has recently left him a fortune in Switzerland, his native country.

BAY CITY, MICH.—Rudolph Boehringer has returned from the convention greatly pleased with everything he encountered in Detroit.

COLLEGE POINT, N. Y.—Anton Schultheis, who sailed for Europe three months ago, returned home August 14. Mr. Schultheis is the president of the Krakehlia Singing Society, and the members of this organization gave him a right royal welcome at Witzel's Hall, where the society holds its meetings.

SOME GOOD DECORATIONS IN SIGHT.—A NEW CONSERVATORY ORDERED.—RETURNING CONVENTIONITES BRING A TROPHY.

Our florists are anticipating an activity in business owing to the preparations in progress for the reception of President McKinley, who is expected here August 28 to do honor to the Tenth regiment on its return. He will be the guest of Mrs. Robert Pitcairn and the decorations for the occasion will be elaborate.

Geo. Westinghouse has plans prepared by Lord & Burnham for the erection of a new conservatory, the old one being torn away. The structure will be principally of iron. The center will be a palm house and several wings will be added. It will be heated by hot water and the glass will be 16x24. The head gardener there is A. W. Weber, formerly of the Phipps Conservatory at Schenley Park.

The Pittsburg delegates returning from Detroit express themselves highly pleased with the reception accorded at the convention. P. S. Randolph brought the Lockland gunners' trophy. G. O.

Cincinnati.

BUSINESS FAIR.—CONVENTIONITES WERE PLEASED.—MEETINGS OF THE CLUB.—BUILDING IN PROGRESS.

Business has been moving along slowly but as well as we could expect at this season. The boys who attended the Detroit convention speak highly of the Detroit brethren and were well pleased with the convention in general.

A special meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held at J. A. Peterson's greenhouses on August 29, at 1 p. m. The next regular monthly meeting will be held at R. Witterstaetter's, September 7. Every one is invited to both these meetings.

George Bruner's Sons are building two houses 16x100 for carnations, and Ed. Fries is putting up five houses to grow general stock for market.

M. Rice, of Philadelphia, was a recent caller. H. SCHWARZ.

HOT WEATHER AND DULL DAYS.—OUTSIDE STOCK POOR.—VACATIONS.—WESTCOTT EXTENDS SYMPATHY.

It has been very hot and trade is very dull. Last week nearly everyone was at Detroit and there are few events to chronicle. Sweet peas and asters are about at an end but there are a few good roses and Scott carnations. There was a shower August 21, the first in a month. Palmer's lilies still make a good show.

George Schmid, foreman for W. A. Kasting, is enjoying his vacation; so is W. H. Grever, chief clerk for W. A. Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Fancourt, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., were recent visitors.

John Westcott, of Philadelphia, called Monday and extended sympathy.

Cleveland.

The pilgrims to Detroit came back to us all right and were received with open arms—all but the bowlers; the fate of the latter is not as yet determined, but it will doubtless be something slow and lingering.

Of business there is nothing to say. The weather, however, is exceedingly dry. According to official reports, we have had only about one-fourth of the normal rainfall for August and stock outdoors is suffering accordingly.

Martin Reukauf, representing Bayersdorfer & Co., was a recent caller. A.

MR. BENJAMIN HAMMOND Fishkill-on-Hudson, N. Y.

My Dear Sir:—In answer to your communication of the 10th instant, permit me to reply that I have used your "Greenhouse white" paint during the past 20 years both on my dwelling house and greenhouses with very satisfactory results.

In the case of my dwelling the paint stood the test of 10 years' wear remarkably well and was perfectly solid with a good body at the end of that period.

Greenhouses, as everyone knows who has had experience with them, are hard on paint. I have tried lead and oil and several brands of ready mixed paint, but have found nothing better than your "Greenhouse White."

Very truly yours, JOHN HOAG.

CAUSPERLEPTHA!
A SURE REMEDY FOR
Carnation Rust, Stem Rot and Black Spot on Roses.

Spray your plants when brought into the house with Causperleptha and get rid of these greatest of evils.

Having discovered and used this preparation for a number of years, I have repeatedly been asked to place it on the market for the benefit of all concerned. It is a sure remedy and has never failed to keep plants clear by constant application. One gallon diluted makes 130 gallons. It is perfectly harmless to plants and gives them a rich, glossy foliage. Directions with every can. No Florist should be without it.

PRICE PER GALLON $2.00.

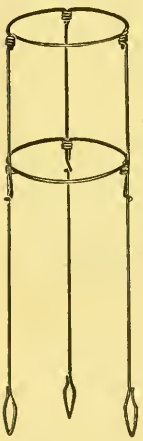
Erie, Pa.

Notwithstanding the advanced prices of building material, especially glass, E. C. Hill is building an additional rose house and the Schluraff Floral Co. will soon add a violet house to their plant.



John V. Laver, for the past nine years in the employ of Henry A. Niemeyer, has recently embarked in business with three modern houses, each 20x100. Mr. Laver will give his attention to carnations principally, though in course of time he will also grow roses and violets.

The noteworthy event of the season is the retirement of Henry A. Niemeyer from business. Alfred Bauer, for the past four years with H. W. Buckbee, of Rockford, Ill., has leased the greenhouses and store and takes charge of the establishment September 1. Mr. Niemeyer, whose health during the past summer has not been of the best, will take a much needed rest.

John Trost is thinking about adding another rose house to his plant. Trade, he says, has been unusually good all along. HOMO.

VIRGINIA, ILL. — Andrew Reither is rebuilding, enlarging and modernizing his greenhouses and heating syetem.

MR. THERON PARKER, Brooklyn, N. Y.,
Dear Sir:—Your Model Carnation Support is all right in every way and will no doubt be considered as necessary as good plants with growers when better knowo I consider it the best on the market, and if your other specialties are equally as good, they should make another addition to the money makers of 1900 Respectfully,
ALBERT M. HERR.

MR. THERON PARKER.
Dear Sir:—It gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carnation supports. I think that those I have had from you are about as perfect as anybody will be able to make them. They certainly fill my bill for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been looking for a long time. Wishing you every success in the sale of them, I am Yours truly E. ASMUS.

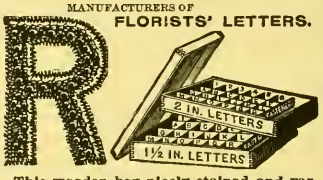
GREENHOUSE WOODWORK.



Open-air-dried Cypress Lumber is more durable, and better suited to Greenhouse conditions, than kiln-dried stock. But you cannot get it from those that are engaged in the business in a small way—even though their entire business is confined to greenhouse material—for it takes a long time tor the lumber to thoroughly dry and this means an investment in lumber that only those of large capital can make. The only way to have air-dried lumber is to buy green lumber and hold it until it dries. Those that order dry lumber from the producers of Cypress get kiln-dried stock. It is cheaper for them to kiln-dry than to hold the stock long enough to season it in the open air. We carry a large stock and fill all orders with open-air-dried Cypress clear of knots, sap and all other defects.

Convention and Other Notions.

The hail association was one of the first offsprings of the good old S. A. F. A Hail Association could have been started, no doubt, without the aid or the patronage of the S. A. F., but it did not materialize, and there are none who can truthfully say that the F. H. A. in its early youth was not very carefully nurtured under the sheltering wings of the parent society. It was a surprise to many when it was first made known that risks were accepted and membership enrolled in the F. H. A. to others than members of the S. A. F. It has long ago passed beyond the stage, we are afraid, when the two organizations could be a part and parcel of each other. Would it not be a becoming act for all those who have received financial aid from the Hail Association and have never contributed membership fees to the S. A. F., to become life members of the mother society? That would be paying grateful tribute to a worthy cause; at the same time it would be a graceful act to indulge in. It is possible that the membership in the Hail Association is twice that of the S. A. F., but they did not "show up" at Detroit. Those belonging to the F. H. A. and who do not belong to the S. A. F. know it and ought to feel derelict in their duties towards the older society. The consciences of those who belong to both are quite easy on that score.

A lot of valuable time was lost in counting the votes for the nomination of officers. The author of the amendment making the secret ballot to nominate a law ought to move for its repeal. It would be allowed to pass into oblivion where it belongs without a dissenting vote, we believe. Very little time was lost in the S. A. F. conventions prior to the introduction of the present plan of nominations. If a short speech was sometimes made presenting the respective candidates for the various offices for the consideration of the members desiring to vote, it rarely took longer than five minutes, and frequently the mention of the name was all the time that was taken. Possibly no person took account of the time spent in counting the ballots at the meeting held at Detroit, but it seemed very, very long to most members present; not taking into account the distributing of the blank ballots and the collecting of them after they had been marked. Altogether too cumbersome for America. It is more according to up-to-date ideas—open and above board—to nominate in open convention, besides saving much valuable time. Let's get back to the good old way.

What has become of the new Columbia rose, about which so much was expected last year? Little or nothing was said about it between sessions at Detroit, but with Liberty it was different; many were the favorable comments made about it and its prospective good qualities, and many orders were booked for next spring, one of which was for 5000. Lots of all kinds of stock changes hands on the quiet at all these conventions. It is a great pleasure, as well as very satisfactory, to come in contact with a possible customer, and to meet with our old and more or less regular customers is even more so. It is quite out of the question to attempt to estimate how much in money value changes hands at these conventions, some of which has actually been known to occur at the dinner-table between sessions and also during the time an exciting sporting contest was in progress, when the interested parties to the deal were apparently solely absorbed in the "shoot" or the bowling; but it is the coming together in annual conventions that makes just such practical and mutual benefits possible.

President-elect Wood may well feel thankful that the fates willed it otherwise than he should be the presiding genius at the meeting held at Omaha where the convention was somewhat slimly attended last year, and have selected him to shape the destiny of the organization during the coming year, when it will be held in that great metropolis, the city of New York. In numbers it ought to be the best attended for a number of years, and if trade in general, as it looks quite likely to be, is good, the enthusiasm must be immense, for the good times coming are as fully appreciated when realized by our craft if not a little more so than it is in other walks in life, and by all of us conscientiously working for the general improvement of the profession along all lines without endeavoring to minimize what has already been done much more genuine good will be accomplished.

President-elect Wood is ambitious to make his administration in the S. A. F. the banner one. It may be made so if everyone interested will put his shoulder to the wheel and help all he can. It is, however, likely to be a memorable one whether all who can help the good work along does so or not. To stand aloof at conventions and look for opportunities to criticise adversely is not the correct spirit to engender.

Why did not your talented scribe, George C. Watson, go back to the beginning of the bowling contests connected with the S. A. F.? The international one at Toronto surely was worthy of mention, especially so when New York and Philadelphia tied for first place and in the half-game roll-off Philadelphia came out away ahead.

It was a large surprise to many of Treasurer Beatty's friends when his opponent polled so many more votes than he did at the nomination for that important office, but it seemed to be a larger surprise for the opposition when at the election the numbers were so emphatically reversed.

We must commend the work of the Co-Operative Purchasing Committee which has done so much earnest and unselfish work for the benefit of the members of S. A. F., and the good accomplished is not likely to be soon forgotten and will be like bread cast upon the waters; it may be seen after many days.

Among the ex-presidents on hand at the meeting held at Detroit were, Robert Craig, E. Gurney Hill, John N. May, James Dean, Edwin Lonsdale, William Scott and Adam Graham. Those who were absent were so unavoidably, we hope.

National Export Exposition at Philadelphia.

An æsthetic feature in the adornment of the exposition grounds will be a profusion of seasonable flowers, evergreens and shrubbery, and the attractive arrangement that will be made of them. Plans have been formulated for this beautiful and cheerful display, the execution of which will give to visitors as they approach the building a most refreshing and alluring view.

Eight flower beds 50x15 feet will be planted down the middle of the esplanade from the main entrance of the grounds to the main building. The esplanade being eighty feet wide and paved with asphalt blocks, these large plots of flowers and foliage along its center line will add greatly to its beauty. Flower beds and potted plants will be artistically set on either side of the entrance to the main building, also along the sides of the main structure and between the Implement and Transportation buildings. Other open spaces will also be made attractive by the florist's art and evergreens grouped around the ends of the pavilions. All landscape work and floral decoration will be under the direction of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, which will also supply the flowers, plants and shrubs.

A beginning will be made by planting flowers which make a display throughout September and October, and of which there are many, of gorgeous coloring, blooming until cut down by frost. Steps will be taken to give protection from the early frosts, insuring a display throughout the delightful Indian summer weather that invariably follows the first cool days of autumn. Then chrysanthemums will be utilized for a most attractive display and later other half-hardy plants and shrubs. Evergreens will be a feature of the landscape decorations. There are many varieties having foliage ranging through all shades of yellow and green, which can be most effectively used in decorative combinations.

The arrangements are in charge of the following committee of the Philadelphia Florists' Club: George C. Watson, chairman; David Rust, secretary; Edwin Lonsdale, Robert Craig, Thomas B. Meehan, Jno. Westcott, Wm. Warner Harper, Robert Kift and A. Blanc. There are still some spaces left; should any one desire to make a display apply at once to the secretary or any member of the committee, or to Edward Campbell, the landscape gardener, who has been intrusted with the work of laying out and superintending the planting. The exposition opens September 14 and closes December 1.

Small Easter Lily Bulbs.

When the crop of the Easter lily bulbs is scarce and the larger sizes hard to get, the smaller 5 to 7 bulbs can be readily made to take the place of the higher grades and with quite as much profit. Three 5 to 7 when placed in a six-inch pot will readily produce from seven to ten flowers and make a more salable specimen than a single plant with the same number of blooms. For the Decoration Day trade Robert Craig & Son had a large block of such lilies, from one of which the accompanying illustration was made, which were satisfactory in every respect. They were a nice height and scarcely any of the pots produced less than seven flowers, the great majority bearing from nine to ten blooms. A Boston grower of lilies, mostly longiflorums, has said that "short and dumpy" plants were caused by their receiving a check from being cooled off on account of apparently coming in too soon, and that this was almost sure to cause failure. When once started they should be kept moving with a uniform temperature and there will be no trouble. This was the only point that he was particular about, and by using ordinary care in watering he has not as yet had a failure either with longiflorum or Harrisii.

Hydrangea Paniculata Grandiflora.

The notes which have recently appeared in your columns in relation to Hydrangea Hortensia lead me to refer to another most useful species, H. paniculata grandiflora. This one is probably of more value to the florist than H. Hortensia, producing, as it does, its large panicles of white flowers during August and later, when flowers of this color are usually scarce.

It is pretty well understood that, unlike H. Hortensia, this species may be pruned as severely as desired, with no loss of flowers. The result of close pruning is to lessen the number of shoots and increase the size of the heads of flowers. The florist will consider whether it suits him better to have a few large heads or a greater number of smaller ones, and regulate his pruning accordingly.

Left to grow naturally we get our first flowers in early August, but it may be a useful hint to some to say that a partly broken branch will bloom earlier than others. A slight twist or break given a branch will cause the flower heads to expand sooner, and in this way flowers can be had two weeks before the perfect ones.

To prolong the season, cut back some of the young shoots when about a foot in length, which, with us, is about the first week in June. New shoots will form, which will flower about the time the others are over. Still another way is to set out plants very late in spring. By the time their growth is well advanced the earlier ones will be well ahead of them, and this difference will be kept up throughout the season.

Of the typical form, H. paniculata, not H. paniculata grandiflora, there are two well marked varieties, and one of these, at least, should prove of value to florists. I refer to the early and the late flowering ones. The early one is through blooming before H. paniculata grandiflora comes in. The late one comes in with H paniculata grandiflora. Neither makes the fine display the latter does, but where white flowers are desired the early flowering H. paniculata would be found useful.

The hydrangeas are easily propagated either by green cuttings in greenhouses in summer or by layers in the open ground, the cuttings and layers rooting readily. By these means immense quantities are raised without much expense, which accounts for the low rates at which they are generally sold.

What would there be in the forcing of this hydrangea? Probably not enough to pay. It takes outdoor plants about three months of growth to reach the stage of open flowers. At this rate plants started in the greenhouse at New Years would bloom about the first of April.

Hybrid Delphiniums.

For the back of the hardy plant border there are very few plants that can excel the hybrid delphiniums. The tall stately, spikes of spurred flowers, varying in color from dark royal blue to light silvery blue with white and pink shadings, are distinct and effective. The first flowering period is from about the end of June until the end of July, but if the spikes are cut off as soon as shabby a succession can be had almost up to hard frost.

Delphiniums are very hardy and soon form large clumps if the soil is kept rich and moist by mulching or by the application of liquid manure during the growing season. Much benefit is derived from a good dressing of well rotted manure applied as soon as growth has been killed by frost. Named varieties can be increased by division and seedlings are easily raised. The latter, however, cannot be depended upon coming anywhere near to the named varieties, a large proportion usually reverting to the single type with half opened flowers.

Within the last few years there have been great improvements in the size and shape of flowers and length and fullness of spikes. There are a number of first-class varieties in cultivation, but, as with other families, various names have been given to what are practically the same sorts. We have ten varieties on trial now and have found them satisfactory in size and shape of flower, color and spike.

Augustus Sala, dark blue, shaded violet rose.

Comtessa, pale sapphire, shaded rose, white center; extra large flower and spike.

Excelsior, rich sapphire, center marbled rose.

Frau Emma Metzger, silvery blue, tinted rose; large double flowers on long spikes.

Mrs. James Helme, silvery blue, tinted rose; flowers rather small, but spikes are distinctively long and slender.

Mrs. Miller, cobalt blue, suffused rose.

Romola, azure blue, marbled and blended with violet rose; large, extra double flowers on strong spikes.

Thomas Emmett, bright blue, striped rose; spikes long, beautifully formed.

Wilkie Collins, royal blue; center dark violet rose.

Zangwill, blue lavender, shaded rose and sapphire; inner petals edged sapphire; dark brown center; extra large double flowers on large, branched spikes.

WITH THE GROWERS.

POEHLMANN BROS., MORTON GROVE, ILL.

The Poehlmann Bros'. establishment at Morton Grove, Ill., is among the largest in the vicinity of Chicago. It contains over 100,000 square feet of glass, of which the greater part is devoted to roses. The houses are erected upon a ten-acre plot of ground, within a few hundred feet of the C. M. & St. P. R. R. station. There are three brothers, Adolph, August and John, the two former having charge of the greenhouses, the latter attending to the selling at their down town store at 21 Randolph street.

There are thirty-three houses in the Poehlmann establishment sixteen given over to roses. Three of these are 20x125, six 18x125 and seven 18x140. The roses grown are the every-day sorts, Meteor, Bride, Bridesmaid, Perle and Beauty, but the healthy condition of the plants predicts a heavy crop for the fall and winter season.

Chrysanthemums take second place in this range of glass, there being ten houses of them, five houses 18x125 and five 10x125, one of which contains pot plants exclusively. Besides this house they have several hundred more plants in the walks, also in pots. In all they are growing forty-five varieties from as early as Lady Fitzwygram to as late as H. W. Rieman.

Carnations are still in the field, there being about 7,000 plants, mostly Scotts, the remainder are Flora Hill, Jubilee, Armazindy and Evanston, all fine looking, bushy plants. They still have two houses of old plants, but will soon throw them out, as they will begin housing the young plants about September 5. They will plant three houses 18x125. The balance of the glass consists of one adiantum house, 10x140, one for mignonette, 10x125, and two houses for violets, each 10x125 feet.

The place is heated by four boilers, each of seventy-five horse power, three being used for hot water and one for steam. Two of the boilers are the Devine pattern, the other two being the Kroeschell make.

The brothers have been busy all summer overhauling their place and have just finished reglazing twelve houses. The latest improvement is a new water-tight boiler pit twenty-eight feet long, fifteen feet wide by nine feet deep. The walls and floor are made of one foot of solid concrete. When finished the pit will contain two boilers and the cost will be $400. Coal is already being hauled for the winter. They have two 130-foot wells to supply the necessary water, which is pumped by a windmill assisted by a steam pump. They have mains leading to the field, with faucets every twenty-five feet, for watering the field plants.

Houses on Different Levels.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Will some one kindly tell me how to pipe my new house for hot water heating? My houses are three-quarter span, facing the south, with boiler at east end. The new house that I have built is also three-quarter span but faces more to the southwest and is three feet higher on the ground floor than the others. Now I want to use the same boiler for the new house. The flow pipes are on a level with the bottom of the benches in the old houses and all return under the benches. Now, in the new house I am compelled to use an overhead flow, on account of the doors, with the return under side benches. This will make the flow in the new house about nine feet higher than the flows in the other houses. Will this high flow pipe rob the flows of the lower houses? Any information will be appreciated. ANXIOUS.

As the sizes of the houses are not given no plans for piping can be outlined. The water will naturally flow more freely to the higher house, but if the flow to the new house is only as large as is necessary to furnish the required heat, and especially if it is provided with a valve by which it can be checked in part in mild weather, there will be no difficulty in securing the heat required in the old houses if the boiler has sufficient capacity. On the other hand use rather large flow pipes to the old houses and put in ample radiating surface. L. R. TAFT.

New Hybrids of Clematis Coccinea.

G. C. Watson's instructive article on that most charming flower, the clematis, naturally excites the enthusiasm of all interested. An interchange of experiences among the growers of this or any other species is always interesting and instructive. I, too, can speak a good word for Mme. Edouard Andre and Mme. Baron Veillard. I have grown them several years, finding them free bloomers and quite free from blight. The former blooms the earlier and is not as strong a climber as the latter. A good combination is to plant C. Flammula and Mme. Baron Veillard quite close to each other. They bloom at the same time and the commingling of the sweet-scented, star-shaped flowers with those of the lavender pink of Mme Veillard is effective.

I must confess that M. Koster disappointed me, but having grown it only one season, I will reserve judgment. It somewhat resembles Kermesina, but is not as rich in its coloring. Mr. Watson does not mention the hybrid C. integrifolia Durandi. I consider this one of the choicest varieties we have. I have never been able to ascertain what form was crossed with the bush species, C. integrifolia, to produce it. It resembles C. integrifolia when in bud by the pendant habit of its bloom, but when the flower is fully open it spreads out flat and is as upright and open as any of the Jackmanni class. It resembles C. integrifolia in that it does not climb by means of its leaf stems, but requires tying to some support. It grows about four feet high and under good cultivation will bloom from June to frost. My two plants commenced to bloom in June and at this writing (August 26) have over fifty flowers on them. They are four and five-petaled, about three inches in diameter and, on opening, a very rich blue in color, gradually fading to a metallic blue, somewhat the color of the flower stems of the Eryngium amethystinum. I have other hybrids of C. integrifolia which are departures from the type only in color, being shades of pink and not interesting except in collections.

I am glad to see Mr. Watson say a good word for our native Texas species, C. coccinea. My plant is making love to a patriarchal C. paniculata and twining in and out among its top-most branches, where its brilliant scarlet flowers will soon be peeping out among the wealth of fleecy blooms of C. paniculata. It has been my good fortune to be able to grow the new hybrids of C. coccinea lately placed upon the market by Geo. Jackman & Son, Woking Nurseries, Surrey, England, and they have produced quite a sensation among those who have seen them. Mr. Watson has described three of them—Countess of Onslow, Duchess of York and Duchess of Albany. In addition to these I am growing Grace Darling, a bright rosy carmine, star-shaped and quite a profuse bloomer; in fact, all are strong growers and free bloomers.

My plants are growing on a four-sided trellis, dome-shaped at the top, and as the numerous blooms meet and commingle at the top and reach up for light, the effect is novel and charming. The illustration is of the top of the trellis. The flowers of these hybrids are good keepers when cut and would work up beautifully in florists' designs. Another good feature about them is their long flowering period, a trait inherited from the parent, C. coccinea. Perhaps some florist may be induced to try them next season.

PLANS ALREADY ON FOOT FOR THE NEXT CONVENTION.—MANY SIGHTS TO BE SEEN.—CANNAS ARE THRIVING.—CUT FLOWER MARKET INACTIVE.—MUCH STOCK ON HAND.—BULB SHIPMENTS.—PERSONAL JOTTINGS.

Movements are already on foot to begin active preparations for the convention of 1900, and the initial meetings of the Florists' Club, as well as other local organizations, are likely to set the ball a-rolling lively. As with many other cities, the hardest matter for New York will be to decide where it will draw the line in entertaining and sight seeing, for there is material enough here at their disposal to keep the visitors fully occupied far beyond the limits of the convention time without allowing for any work at all. Here, more than anywhere else, it is probably true that the entertainments not down on the list will monopolize most of the time and attention of many of the visitors. Any one looking for horticultural information such as cannot be obtained outside of New York at any price might be directed to Vesey street, where he will find dormant sago palm stumps, very dormant ones, which, if the label is to be believed, bear flowers with "ever-changeable colors and will bloom six weeks after planting." What do you think of that?

A yellow canna, probably Burbank, possibly Austria, used quite generally in the planted hotel areas here this year is doing finely, much better than either of these varieties have done in past seasons. The blooms seem more persistent, and when several are open at once on a stem they make a dazzling show. Another noticeable feature of garden, vase and window adornment, which seems to be more and more general in New York each year, is the English ivy, which is used in incredible quantities and is very effective.

The cut flower market is still "dead as a door-nail" and one is constrained to agree with Charlie Carlin, who is just winding up his vacation, that "the excitement won't commence till the first grab of good violets comes in." There are lots of Japan lilies, lots of gladioli and hydrangeas, lots of roses, and about everything else, and it takes a high order of ability to turn them into cash just now.

The steamship Amsterdam, which arrived on Wednesday, August 23, brought the first large shipment of Dutch bulbs for the season. Her manifest showed 167 cases for Henderson, eighty eight cases for Elliott and seventy-eight cases distributed among several custom house brokers.

ANNUAL FLOWER AND PLANT SHOW OF THE MASSACHUSETTS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—SHOWINGS AN ADVANCE OVER PREVIOUS YEARS.—NOTES OF THE EXHIBITS.—OLD GUARD RATIFIES CONVENTION ELECTION.—CUT FLOWER RECEIPTS INCREASING.—RESORT ORDERS COME IN STEADILY.—DEATH OF AN OCTOGENARIAN.—THE FISHER CARNATION AND SIEBRECHT ROSE.—PERSONAL DOINGS.

The annual flower and plant exhibition in progress at the time of this writing, was in many of its features a decided advance over any of its predecessors. The upper hall was devoted to plants exclusively with the exception of one fine tank of aquatic flowers shown by Oakes Ames. This was a center of attraction for visitors who admired the whole collection, and for the professionals, who saw rare beauty in the new Marliaceæ seedlings, Aurora and Seignoureti, the Laydekeri alba and Carl Blomberg's hybrid Astræa. The general display of plants, such as palms, begonias, caladiums, ferns and the long list of stove subjects that are always seen at this show was interesting from the fact that the average all through showed smaller, more serviceable stock than has been the case heretofore. This was especially true of the crotons, of which fully two hundred elegantly colored specimens averaging about two feet in height were staged. Twelve dazzling dipladenia seedlings, large plants, profusely flowered, in various shades from white to crimson pink, were displayed by George McWilliam and attracted much admiration. There was a set of good caladium seedlings also from Oakes Ames, some well flowered saccolabiums, etc., from the Botanic Garden and a stately group of conifers from Francis Blake, F. Leith gardener. The principal exhibitors in the plant groups were: J. S. Bailey, Wm. Donald gardener; E. S. Converse, D. F. Roy gardener; J. E. Rothwell, Jas. Mutch gardener; W. H. Lincoln, Chas. H. Souther, Chas. Sandiford gardener; E. J. Mitton, J. Lawson gardener; Dr. C. G. Weld, K. Finlayson gardener, and Mrs. J. L. Gardner, W. Thatcher gardener. James Garthley came with a big specimen geranium and beat J. E. Rothwell's 4-foot specimen Acalypha hispida (Sanderi) for first prize for greenhouse flowering plant.

The lower hall was a bewildering blaze of brilliant color. Dahlias by the thousands, in show, fancy, cactus, pompon and single classes; phloxes, gladioli, cannas and asters filled every available space and made a gorgeous scene. Special advance was noted in the grand collection of hardy phloxes from Rea Bros., a seedling Nymphæa Arethusa from James Brydon, the wonderful Liliput zinnias from A. B. Howard, and in the cactus dahlias from several exhibitors. Lothrop & Higgins and H. F. Burt were the heaviest contributors of dahlias, but there were fine displays of more or less extent from W. C. Winter, Wm. H. Symonds, Mount Vernon Nursery, J. K. Alexander, W. G. Winsor, W. E. Endicott and S. Bloomfield, the latter showing six seedlings. Robt. Laurie, gardener to C. Vanderbilt, brought seven species of montbretias and a number of odd and unusual things. James Garthley had coxcombs, Jas. Comley gloxinias and lilies, J. Heurlin hardy perennials, J. W. Clark gladioli, Schlegel & Fottler cannas, C. H. Souther asters, and numerous other exhibitors showed promiscuous collections.

The display of foreign grapes was very extensive. George McWilliam, gardener to G. M. Whitin; John Ash, gardener to Miss E. J. Clark; Thos. Beattie, gardener to Mrs. R. M. Clark; Wm. McAllister, gardener to J. C. Whitin; Bruce Butterton, gardener to E. J. Berwind; H. Dumaresq and D. Brown were all represented in this section and the visitors were treated to a feast—of the eye—of Black Hamburgs, Muscats, Alicantes, etc., which made every mouth water. Prizes were not all awarded at time of writing. The weather was fine and the attendance very large.

The "Old Guard" ratified the election of E. M. Wood as president of the national society with a complimentary dinner to that gentleman on Tuesday afternoon at the Squantum Inn. Eighteen gentlemen were present, P. Welch having come all the way from Old Orchard beach and Louis C. Elson from East Gloucester for the express purpose of joining in this honor to their mutual friend. M. H. Norton presided at one end of the table and Ed. Hatch at the other and every one present was called upon for brief remarks. Congratulations on the honor which New England had received, praise for Mr. Wood's character and abilities and enthusiastic predictions for an unprecedented demonstration at the convention of 1900 in the metropolis were on every lip. The tables were finely decorated with flowers contributed by Lawrence Cotter and Welch Bros. All indications point to the largest delegation for next August that Boston ever sent out.

The present week sees a considerable increase in flower receipts at the markets and wholesale establishments, which in the absence of any augmented demand, makes the situation rather dubious as to prices. Roses, carnations, asters and gladioli are all coming in heavily. The seaside demand still continues unabated and seems to hold out more steadily to the end than usual, but it is confined to specialties and fancy grades, so it has but little influence on the price of ordinary stock, which in all lines is purchasable at practically the buyer's own figures. A few days more will see the end of the seaside business and then the American Beauty will get down with the common company.

B. G. Smith, a well known amateur horticulturist of Cambridge, died on Thursday, August 24, at the ripe age of 84 years. For thirty years he has been a vice-president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. He was treasurer of the American Pomological Society, president of the Massachusetts Agricultural Club and actively associated with a number of other bodies of like character.

The Mrs. Fisher carnation still holds its position in the affections of at least one grower here, Charlie Ingram, of Ingram & Lynes, who is sending good blooms, for the season, of this variety to Welch Bros.

A vase of Belle Siebrecht roses is seen occasionally in the wholesale stores, but so diminutive are they in size that it would take several of them to make a fair sized Bridesmaid. Unless this variety takes on some new vigor it will soon be extinct as a commercial rose in this vicinity.

James Galvin, formerly of Galvin & Co., wholesale florists, has secured a position with W. Rosenthal at the Boston Cut Flower Co., Bromfield street.

TRADE DEAD IN THE QUAKER CITY.—PROSPECTS BRIGHT, HOWEVER.—ROSE PLANTING AT AN END.—BENCHING CARNATIONS TO BEGIN.—ENCAMPMENTS, EXPOSITIONS AND ATHLETIC CONTESTS.

Business is very quiet, and, while the store keepers are not given to whispering, their orders for flowers are nowadays scarcely heard at all. Prospects are very bright, but like the "very near" strikes and spares which don't count, the beautiful future has little to do with the consumption of the stock on hand and "returns" are now sad to look upon. The asking prices of the best stock, and some of it is very good, are as follows: Beauties, $4 to $10; teas, $2 to $4 with a few extras $5; lily of the valley, $3 to $4; asters 50 cents to $1.50; a few carnations at 50 cents; gladioli and tuberoses, $1 to $3, hydrangeas, $2 to $3 per hundred heads.

The growers are now about all planted up with much the same assortment of roses as last season, a little more space, perhaps being devoted to Beauties. This should be a good season for carnations, as there has been an abundance of rain for the past month. The plants are looking well in the field and as it will soon be time to lift them the soil should be in good condition for their removal to the houses without loss of roots.

The G. A. R. boys will be with us next week, when the city will no doubt be bubbling over with patriotism and, we trust, with strangers in need of flowers. These large gatherings as a rule, however, are more of a hindrance than a help, as everybody wants to see the parades and celebrations and when they are over are too tired to think of anything but getting home.

The National Export Exposition is progressing finely and will open September 14 as complete, if not more so, as any other like enterprise in this country. The Florists' Club is attending to the planting of the esplanade from the main entrance to the building and promises to make the work a feature of this important thoroughfare. Edward Campbell, the landscape artist, is superintending the laying out and planting of the beds and David Rust, as secretary of the committee, is hustling and keeping the different exhibitors and contributors up to their work, so that this important decorative feature shall be completed in time for the opening. It promises to be a great exhibition and worthy of a visit from all who wish to keep abreast of the times.

J. L. Smith, of Lansdowne, of the firm of Smith & Whitely, was found unconscious at the rear of one of his greenhouses last Wednesday morning at about 5 o'clock. He was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital, where the doctors said he was suffering from narcotic poisoning. He is still unconscious at this writing. He is supposed to be the victim of foul play, as a large amount of money he had the afternoon before, together with valuable papers, is missing.

Thomas Cox, aged 73, father of Linnæus Cox, of Wissanoming, died on August 27, and was buried in the family lot at Cedar Hill, Cemetery, Frankford.

The cut flower hustlers of this city had a return baseball match with the Craig nine at R. Scott & Son's nursery, Sharon Hill, last Saturday. Rain came before the decisive fifth inning could be played and a future date is to be decided on to complete the series.

The Stoke Pogis and florist gentlemen of Philadelphia will play their return match at cricket at Chestnut Hill, September 7, Thursday. The result is awaited with fear and trembling. K.

CONVENTION PARTY RETURNS HOME.—BUSINESS GOOD.—QUITE A BIT OF BUILDING COMPLETED.—NOTES.

Our representatives at the convention are nearly all home again and are enthusiastic over the treatment they received from the moment they reached Chicago until they started homeward. Our party enjoyed every minute of the week and have many kind actions to repay upon opportunity.

Business is pretty good; in fact it has been so all summer. First-class stock is somewhat scarce but J. F. Wilcox is sending in some good young Beauties. There is room here for a good wholesale grower; such a one could sell everything at fair prices.

Most of the growers are busy planting. A. Donaghue is rebuilding one house 18x150 and others who have completed additions are: P. Paulson, house 20x100; Peterson Bros., house 24x100; Hess & Swoboda, two houses 18x100, one 12x100. GRIPPE.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.— The Society of Indiana Florists will attempt no fall show this year, the recent ones having lacked support.

ALL correspondence on horticultural exhibits intended for the Paris Exposition of 1900 should be addressed to G. B. Brackett, Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

IF "Subscriber," who makes inquiry with regard to the American Beauty rose, will kindly send his full name and address, we shall be pleased to furnish the desired information.

THE glass trust of Indiana, with a capital of $30,000,000 has collapsed through pressure of the courts. It is not improbable that the action of the S. A. F. at Detroit was heard of beyond the walls of the convention hall.

THE death is announced of Thomas F. Rivers, of Sawbridgeworth, Herts, England, on August 17. Mr. Rivers was a Victorian medalist of the Royal Horticultural Society and an authority of world wide reputation on fruits and roses.

PRESIDENT RUDD has appointed E. M. Wood as a delegate to represent the Society of American Florists at the meeting of the Farmers' National Congress which is to be held in Boston, Mass., October 3, 4, 5 and 6. A railroad rate of one and one-third fare to Boston and return has been made for this occasion.

EVERY florist and gardener should write to the Agricultural Department, Washington, D. C., for the bulletin entitled "Notes on Frost," which covers the entire subject in a manner more thorough and concise than has ever been attempted heretofore. No charge is made for the bulletin and a one-cent postal card will insure its delivery at your door. This is one of the most valuable bulletins, from a horticultural standpoint, ever published by the department.

An Encouraging Price.

William Dean Howells ran down to Boston the other day, according to the Chicago Journal, and says he was feeling very gloomy over the future of the nation because of the news that a well known New Yorker had become an English subject. At that moment he heard a sidewalk merchant exclaim, "Astors, thirty cents a bunch."

The Greek Beaten.

It has been estimated that any crack steamer leaving New York for Europe takes with it bouquets worth from five thousand to fifteen thousand dollars. In a few hours the passengers begin to feel queer and send the flowers out of their rooms. Then (according to the London Chronicle) they are collected by the stewards, carefully sorted over, and put into the ice-house, and when the vessel reaches her English port they are sold and the profits divided among the men. American travelers when they land often buy flowers from English flower-girls in the belief that they are English blossoms, when they are really the product of the gardens of New Jersey or Long Island.—Cleveland Town Topics.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Lager & Hurrell register Cattleya Gigas atropurpurea; well balanced flower; sepals and petals extremely dark; lip very large, intense purple. Cattleya Hardyana Robbiana; flowers very large; sepals and petals rosy mauve; lip deep crimson, veined on disc with yellow, the large yellow spots on each side traversed with magenta veins radiating from the center. A natural hybrid from Columbia.

American Carnation Society.

Crabb & Hunter, Grand Rapids, Mich., have registered the following carnations:

Irene, a cross between Albertini and Daybreak with the color of Albertini, a perfect calyx that never bursts and long stiff stems. It has a strong clove fragrance and is a good keeper, rather freer in bloom than Scott and a healthy grower.

Mme. Chapman, the Grand Rapids sport of Daybreak, in color between Daybreak and Victor, being a better tint than the latter; habit similar to Daybreak. ALBERT M. HERR, Sec'y.

Canadian Horticultural Association.

The Canadian Horticultural Association, the S. A. F. of the Dominion, will assemble in second annual convention in Goldsmith's Hall, at Ottawa, Ontario, on Tuesday, September 19, 1899, and will be in session through the succeeding two days.

The programme is modeled after those of the society embracing all America and will be opened with a welcome by the Mayor of Ottawa and a response by James McKenna, of Montreal, to be followed by the president's address and the reports of officers and committees and the appointment of exhibition judges. Interspersed through the business sessions there will be lectures, "Insect Enemies in Greenhouses," by Prof. Fletcher, Ottawa, and "The Use of Nitrogenous Fertilizers," by Frank L. Shutt, M. A., F. C. S., and the following papers: "Cemetery Decoration," by James McKenna, Montreal; "Building Commercial Greenhouses," by H. Dale, Brampton; "European Horticulture as Viewed by a Canadian," by S. S. Bain, Montreal; "Plants Versus Cut Flowers at Holiday Time," by C. Scrim, Ottawa. Requisition will also be made upon the question box and a number of diversions have been outlined.

The officers of the Canadian Horticultural Association are: President, Wm. Gammage, London; Vice-presidents, C. Scrim, Ottawa; Jas. McKenna, Montreal; Treasurer, J. H. Dunlop, Toronto; Secretary, A. H. Ewing, Berlin; Executive Committee, H. Dale, Brampton; C. Campbell, Montreal; G. Mills, Toronto; L. Manton, Eglinton; F. Mitchell, Innerkip; H. Gott, Simcoe; W. Manton, Davisville; O. Johnston, Kingston; J. Bennett, Montreal.

The American Rose Society.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—On behalf of the American Rose Society I wish to express our deep appreciation of the generous way in which those present at the meeting held at Detroit under the auspices of the S. A. F. rallied to the support of this society. Although, because of the fact that many were anxious to leave for the excursion, we had but a few minutes in which to present the claims of the society, yet those claims were so eloquently set forth by Messrs. Barry, Craig, Hill and May, that the following gentlemen subscribed as life members, namely: E. G. Hill, Wm. C. Barry, H. A. Siebrecht, E. G. Asmus, Paul M. Pierson, John N. May, Samuel Thorne, Benjamin Dorrance, Edmund M. Wood, Joseph Heacock, Alexander Montgomery, M. E. Hibbart, Robt. F. Tesson, F. R. Pierson, Philip Breitmeyer, Peter Reinberg, George Reinberg, Henry Dale, Fred. Mathison, J. M. Gasser, J. L. Dillon, Emil Buettner, J. C. Vaughan, C. W. Ward, O. P. Bassett. Besides these we have a long list of both active and associate members.

Though only organized last March we have a membership nearly half as large as the S. A. F., and we are daily growing in strength and feel much encouraged in the general interest that is being shown in our work, not only in the trade but by the amateur and daily press as well. Almost all the agricultural and horticultural papers have urged upon their readers the worthiness of, and called attention to the necessity for such a society. The daily press has also, quite to our surprise, taken the matter up and many articles have appeared commending the purposes of the society and wishing us success. I mention these facts only to show that we have struck a responsive chord, and that both the trade and the amateur lover of the queen of flowers, have at last awakened to a realization of what a great work such a society is capable of performing. To supplement the remarks of the gentlemen who so ably presented the needs of our society, I wish to say that it is in no sense a purely trade organization, but is intended also to help to stimulate the amateur in his love for the rose. The advantage to the trade arising through increased interest among the masses of the people needs no argument. We hope to encourage the production of new varieties and in every possible way to increase general interest in the subject.

To those who were not present at the meeting in Detroit or who did not subscribe to life membership, we wish this to be considered a personal appeal. As Mr. Hill so truly said, every florist owes more to the rose than to any other source of income, and can well afford to support a society devoted to its interests. Every grower of roses, or cut flowers of plants to any extent, should be willing to contribute fifty dollars, thus becoming a life member. Those who think they cannot afford so large a sum may become active members by paying three dollars per annum. A hearty and prompt response will at once put us on a footing where we can accomplish satisfactory results. There is no use to try and hide in the woods, we shall not forget you and we mean to keep everlastingly at it until the trade is a substantial unit in the folds of this society. PAUL M. PIERSON, Sec'y.

INCREASED PRODUCTION FINDS THE MARKET MORE THAN ORDINARILY DULL.—FLORISTS' CLUB VISITS JOLIET.—WITTBOLD GETS A BILL OF HEALTH.—MANGEL HOME AGAIN.

There are more and better roses than a week ago and fewer orders. The stock of bud-encumbered carnations is on the increase and the call is slow. Taken altogether the week has shown little encouragement to the perspiring grower. There are still large quantities of summer flowers on hand, particularly gladioli, most all poor, but dahlias, which were deluging the market at this time last year are few and poor at present. It seems that the returns were so little last season that the growers have very generally dropped them and the grasshoppers are devouring a goodly portion of what are growing. Several growers have been so overrun with grasshoppers that they moved their carnations inside earlier than they would otherwise have done.

On Thursday the Florists' Club and its friends, many of them ladies, were the guests of the Chicago Carnation Co., at Joliet. The party, which numbered eighty, took the 11:45 a. m. train over the Rock Island Route, having a special car, arriving at Cherry Hills at 1 p. m., where Mr. Thompson led the way through the Higinbotham woods to the refreshment tables, which were tastefully decorated with wild flowers, red geraniums and hydrangeas. President Sanders made a short speech in which he thanked Messrs. Higinbotham, Thompson and Hartshorne for their courtesy. After luncheon the party visited the greenhouses and carnation fields of the company. The new addition to the establishment will soon be finished and ready for planting. Many of the guests visited Harlowarden, which is the name of the beautiful private grounds of the Higinbotham home. The grounds are tastefully planted with cannas and other flowering plants as well as trees and shrubs. The estate comprises several thousand acres. Some of the out of town people who took part in the outing were Miss Watson, who is connected with the Memphis Floral Co., Memphis, Tenn.; Geo. Washburn, Bloomington, Ill.; Albert T. Hey, Springfield, Ill.; and G. Swenson, Elmhurst.

J. Mangel is at home from a two months' trip to England, France, Switzerland, Italy and even to Constantinople during which "he spent much money." He's already making things hum at the corner of State and Washington. This week he shipped a broken wheel to Germany; needless to say it was made of immortelles and cape flowers.

Wittbold had the state entomologist up from Springfield the other day to give his stock a clean bill of health. They have had some difficulty in shipping palms into Indiana and Michigan, several railroads having refused shipments which did not bear a certificate of inspection.

C. F. Klunder, who was formerly in the retail line on his own account, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States court, scheduling liabilities of $82,067 and no assets.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Newell, who were married at Des Moines, August 23, have been spending their honeymoon here. The groom is foreman for W. L. Morris.

Jas. J. Curran, manager for Van Bochove & Bro., Kalamazoo, Mich., and Mrs. Curran have been visiting friends at Forest Glen.

Albert Fuchs is still at Mt. Clemens, Mich., where he went after the convention in an attempt to get rid of his rheumatism.

M. Rice, after an extended stay in this vicinity, left early in the week for the east.

Harry Balsley returned to Detroit Tuesday well pleased with his western trip.

Visitors: Fred. Holton, Milwaukee; John Broadhead, Chattsworth, Ill.; Jos. Molck, Jeffersonville, Ind.; J. C. Ellspermann and Wm. Blackman, Jr., Evansville, Ind.; F. H. Fenner and C. A. Seeley, Marshalltown, Ia.; F. W. Taylor, of the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo.

Bradford, Pa.

With an additional rose house 20x100 now nearing completion W. C. Rockwell will be well equipped to do business during the coming season. While growing a general stock for his retail trade, Mr. Rockwell is particularly successful with violets, a part of which he often ships to the wholesale market. Just now both his roses and carnations are in the best of condition, while his chrysanthemums look as if they are trying to keep pace with the progressive times.

G. L. Graham is putting the finishing touches to an additional house and from all appearances he is at peace with the world. Mr. Valentine, who takes charge of Mr. Graham's downtown store, will shortly leave for Philadelphia and will combine business and pleasure.

Apropos of the glass plant contemplated by the S. A. F. for the benefit of its members, it is Mr. Rockwell's opinion that Bradford is the place for an enterprise of this sort. Natural gas, which in this region is practically inexhaustible, is an advantage. HOMO.

MANCHESTER, N. H.—Tappan & Spry have dissolved partnership. Mr. Tappan will continue the business at the old stand and Mr. Spry will erect greenhouses on Bridge street, one 18x100 and another 9x100.

BURLINGAME, CAL.—E. W. McLellan & Co. will open a wholesale cut flower and supply store early this month. This firm now has 75,000 feet of glass and will add 20,000 feet additional the coming winter. A general line of stock is grown.

WESTFIELD, N. J.—Chas. Dorrer reports the disappearance of an employe with two gold watches, a diamond pin, five gold rings and $30 in money. The lad accused of the theft is a German named Weber with peculiarly bald head and an anchor tatooed on each arm.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
ALEXANDER RODGERS, Pres.; ALBERT MCCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres.; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

AUG. RHOTERT, of New York, after a sojourn of eight weeks in Europe, returned August 24.

EUG. SCHAETTEL, of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., of Paris, arrived in New York last Saturday.

S. B. DICKS, representing Cooper, Taber & Co., of London, Eng., is expected in Chicago, September 5.

F. BARTELDES, of Lawrence, Kan, and C. R. Root, of Denver, Colo., were in Chicago during the week.

RICHARD P. STECKLER, of the J. Steckler Seed Co., Ltd., New Orleans, La., visited Chicago during the week.

SOME blight is reported on the muskmelon and watermelon vines in Nebraska, evidently caused in part by recent rains.

BERT. BROTHERTON, of Peter Henderson & Co., New York, passed through Chicago Thursday, enroute to the Nebraska seed fields.

IN Ohio the clover seed prospect has improved in nearly all sections. Tomatoes have been sunburned or have rotted in many southern countries, but the crop is generally good.

THE Wisconsin sphagnum moss swamps show healthy growths from two rainy seasons and the quality put up for the coming year's trade should be the best of the past seven or eight years.

THE bean crop does not improve. Some late planted fields show no pods yet and will be an entire failure unless very favorable weather follows. Five dollars per bushel is talked of for wholesale price.

Clover Seed Traffic.

The traffic in clover seed was recently discussed by railroad officials of Toledo, Ohio. It is claimed that the local clover seed shippers are using the cars and freight houses of the Toledo roads as warehouses for the storage of clover seed. This is done by arranging for the inspection of the seed in cars and the freight houses and seed shipments are thus held until the owners are ready to re-ship to other points. Cars are thus delayed, which are in demand for other business, and the railways are held liable for damages to seed which should be in the possession of consignee. An attempt is being made to form an agreement by which the shippers will be forced to store clover seed in elevators.

DES MOINES, IA.—At the State Fair this week Lozier, Fulmer and Rollinson carried off the bulk of the plant prizes in the order named. The fair was a success in every way. John T. Temple, of Davenport, officiated as judge. P. Lambert & Sons are rebuilding their entire plant.

MOLINE, ILL.— Seventy-five carriages were decorated in the floral parade at the street fair August 30. On one carriage alone were used 3000 American Beauties, most of which were supplied by Bassett & Washburn, of Chicago. Gladioli were liberally employed and some paper flowers were used. Julius Staack had a well arranged street booth and supplied many decorations.

THAT WE ARE NOT HANDLING BULBS THIS YEAR IS A MISTAKE, AND A SAD ONE TO THOSE WHO HAVE FAILED TO SEND FOR OUR PRICE LIST. SOME LINES OF BULBS WE ARE SOLD OUT OF, BUT HAVE A SURPLUS OF THE FOLLOWING:

Lilium Harrisii (St. David's stock), accredited the cleanest Lily bulbs imported this year from the many islands that comprise the Bermuda group. We have only 5 to 7-in. left and are offering them at—100, $4.75; 1000, $45.00.

Lilium Longiflorum. warranted Japan grown, ready for delivery; these bulbs are growing in demand constantly, owing to the fact of the flowers lasting much longer than the Harrisii.
5 to 7 in.—100, $2.75; 1000, $25.00. 7 to 9 in.—100, $6.75; 1000, $65.00.

Our Early White Romans are nicely grown, special care having been taken to have them satisfactory.
11 to 12 centimeters—100, $1.25; 1000, $11.00.

Calla Lilies. If we do say it, we think, without doubt, we have the finest Calla roots that were ever shipped from the Pacific Coast.
Bulbs averaging 2½ to 3 inches—per 100, $9.00.

Mushroom Spawn. A fresh consignment and each brick containing hundreds of mushrooms; easily grown; a treatise furnished free how to grow them for $ $ $ $ $—10 lbs for $1.00; $7.00, 100 lbs.

TERMS: Five per cent discount allowed on all orders accompanied with cash. New York City references required from others.

WM. ELLIOTT & SONS, NEW YORK.

How $16 Will Return You $240 IN A FEW MONTHS.

Buy one or more boxes of our Lilium Harrisii, containing 400 bulbs each, for $16.00; which, under ordinary cultivation should average five flowers per bulb; total, 2000 flowers; at $12.00 per 100 blooms, $240.00. (Last year's wholesale price before Easter.)

NO OVERDRAWN SEDUCTIVE PICTURE---FACT.

If, however, you wish to work on absolutely safe ground, cut these profits in two; then you will make money—which stops all further argument.

SHORT CROP OF BERMUDA BULBS.

A two-third crop of bulbs in Bermuda this year would indicate a further scarcity of flowers next Easter at higher prices than last and removes all danger of overproduction.

NO FLORIST who has any spare room can afford to LET THIS CHANCE SLIP.

DON'T WAIT FOR JAPAN BULBS.

They are too uncertain; often arrive late in bad order, give fewer flowers of poorer quality and frequently flower after Easter, when worth nothing. Crop also reported very short.

LILIUM HARRISII BULBS.

5 to 7 inch around, box of 400 bulbs.....$16.00; 3 boxes (1200 bulbs), $45.00; per 100, $4.25.
6 to 7 inch around, box of 400 bulbs.....$22.00, larger bulbs, more flowers.

BERMUDA LILIUM LONGIFLORUM. GUARANTEED STOCK.

5 to 7 inch around, box of 400 bulbs.....$18.00; 3 boxes (1200 bulbs) $50.00.

A few thousand 9 to 11 inch Harrisii and Longiflorum left, at $18.00 per 100. 11 to 13 inch, monster bulbs, at $40.00 per 100. These make extra fine pot plants with 10, 12 and more flowers, which sell readily at $2.00 and upwards wholesale.

Vaughan's Columbian Cinerarias

This mixture is this year finer and more complete than ever.

This is a mixture of the finest English, French and German strains; the flowers are very large, from 7 to 9 inches in circumference and in the most brilliant colors.

Columbian Cinerarias. This is the best mixture in existence; per trade pkt., about 1000 seeds, 50c., 3 pkts. for $1.25.

Cineraria Hybrida, large flowering mixed, trade pkt., 25c.

Cineraria Hybrida Nana, large flowering dwarf, mixed trade pkt., 25c.

Cineraria, large flowering double mixed, trade pkt., 50c.

Cineraria, large flowering double white, trade pkt., 50c.

Calceolaria Hybrida. Our mixture is composed of the choicest selections of the tigered, marked, spotted and variegated varieties, and we know it will give entire satisfaction. Trade pkt., 1000 seeds, 50c.

Cyclamen, Giant Flowered

Cyclamen Persicum Giganteum Splendens.

We have an extra fine strain of this grand market plant. Unsurpassed for size of bloom and variety of colors.

PANSIES

Vaughan's "International."

Received the only reward for Mixed Pansies at the World's Fair. It is to-day better and more complete than ever. It contains the cream of the stock of 10 Pansy specialists. There is no better mixture in existence, as all the florists who saw or used it can tell you.

Price, per oz., $10.00; ½ oz., $5.00; ¼ oz., $2.50; ⅛ oz., $1.50; trade pkt., 50c.

Vaughan's "Giant Mixture."

This mixture is specially made up by us from all the above separate colors of Giant Trimardeau, the Giant Bugnot and Cassier and several special strains which cannot be had any other way. If your trade demands large flowers there is no better mixture.

Price, per oz., $4.00; ⅓ oz., $1.00; ⅙ oz., 60c.; trade pkt., 25c.

SPECIAL OFFER. We furnish any five 25c., trade pkts. of Giant Pansies for $1.00.

Vaughan's Premium Pansies Mixed.

Embraces all the varieties of the Fancy German sorts. We have sold this mixture for the past fifteen years and it has given general satisfaction.

Per pkt., 25c.; ⅛ oz., 80c.; ¼ oz., $3.00; oz., $5.50.

CHICAGO PARKS BEDDING PANSIES, "Choice Mixed"—in many colors. Pkt., 10c.; ¼ oz., 30c.; oz., $1.00; 4 oz. for $2.00.

Giant White, Giant Yellow, Giant Beaconsfield, Giant Striped, Giant Emperor William, Giant Paris Market.

Each, per trade pkt., 25c.; (any 5 for $1.00) ⅛ oz., 35c.; oz., $2.00.

Giant Bugnot. Our strain of this is of exceptionally good quality, none better.

Trade pkt., 25c., ⅛ oz., 75c., oz., $5.00.

Gloxinia Hybrida, Vaughan's Mixture.

This mixture is made up by ourselves from the choicest spotted, tigered, edged, marbled and splashed sorts of the upright and horizontal type, and includes such new sorts as Emperor William and Frederick, Princess Louise, Defiance, etc., and we know that better seed is not to be had at any price. Trade pkt., 1000 seeds, 50c.; 3 pkts. for $1.25.

Chater's Prize Hollyhocks.

Our seed of this has been saved from the finest and largest double flowers only and will produce flowers extremely double and in the best, brightest and most distinct colors.

Sow now

Double Pure White, ¼ oz., 35c; 1 oz., $1.25; trade pkt., 10c.

Double Hollyhocks, good mixed, ¼ oz., 25c.; 1 oz., 85c.; trade pkt., 10c.

Vaughan's International Primula Mixture.

This mixture is composed of the most salable colors of Single Flowering Chinese Primulas, the best whites, pinks and reds with a sprinkling of other colors, enough to give a large variety of colors, the most important shades predominating. It contains some of the Giant sorts, some Fern-leaved, some blue; also some with dark leaves and stems. We have taken special pains to make this mixture as complete as possible and unreservedly recommend it to everyone.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
W. J. PETERS, Pres.; D. S. LAKE, Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

PROF. J. M. STEDMAN is engaged in inspecting the nurseries of Missouri.

GEO. A. SWEET's nursery at Dansville, N. Y., had a narrow escape from a field fire on August 18.

IN Ford County, Kansas, the grape yield this year will be the heaviest on record. Concord heads the list.

J. A. RAMSBURG, Frederick City, Md., has a block of 200,000 two-year apple trees and his peach block contains over 300,000 trees.

WM. H. BARNES, secretary of the Kansas State Horticultural Society, reports a grape yield seventy-two and one-half per cent of a full crop.

NURSERYMEN by scores will attend the twenty-sixth biennial session of the American Pomological Society to be held at Philadelphia next week, September 7 and 8.

Augusta, Ga.

The severe drought which has prevailed throughout this section for several weeks has finally been broken and we are now having copious rains. Notwithstanding the total failure of the fruit crop by the February freeze, the demand for nursery stock is very large, and many extensive commereial orchards of peaches and plums will be set out in Georgia the coming winter. The demand for palms is largely on the increase.

Forestry in the United States.

The Secretary of Agriculture is preparing for distribution at the Paris Exposition a publication which is to contain a resume of the achievements of the United States in every branch of science as related to agriculture in the nineteenth century. Each Bureau and Division will contribute to the work and the Division of Forestry will prepare an account of the efforts of private land-owners to apply the principles of forestry. There are very many ways in which these principles may be and have been applied and to all of those who have accomplished something in this line, even if ever so little, the Department extends an invitation to address Gifford Pinchot, forester, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., in order that all experiences may be considered in the preparation of this valuable report.

GREEN BAY, WIS.—H. Raymaker & Sons are building a range of houses 70x75 for vegetables and mushrooms.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.—James Morton will go to Waco, Texas, November 15 to 17 to perform his annual function as judge of the flower show.

KANKAKEE, ILL.—Faber Bros. are making haste in the erection of two greenhouses 20x60 which will cost about $1,500. They will be thoroughly modern throughout.

COLD SPRING, N. Y.—The next monthly meeting of the Dutchess County Horticultural Society will be held here Wednesday, September 6, on invitation of the Putnam County Chrysanthemum Society, whose rooms are given for the meeting. I. L. Powell will read a paper and a good time is promised.

Pastimes at Flatbush.

Nobody would imagine from the cheery atmosphere which pervaded the bowling alleys on Flatbush avenue last Thursday night, that the local club had come home from the Detroit tournament with nothing more valuable in the way of a trophy than the cheese medal that Louis Schmutz had magnanimously voted to present them with. Valiant Captain Mellis was absent but had he been there no doubt he would also have accepted gracefully the bandinage of the stay-at-homes who were, of course, ready to tell all about how it would have turned out at Detroit had they only been there.

There came from New York four visitors and out of four "pots" they captured three; even the big Telegraph cucumber put up for the man who should make the best score was scooped in by one of the New Yorkers; yet Flatbush good nature triumphed over all. Papa Zeller's smile was more beaming than ever, Louis Schmutz displayed his new brown slippers and his agility with customary vigor, Riley said not a word and Woerner philosophically asserted that it was "no use swearing." And New York magnanimity was shown when Traendly unselfishly presented the coveted cucumber to Louis Schmutz in honor of his fifty-fourth birthday which was ushered in just as the party broke up. Papa Zeller then mounted a chair and announced that the Arcanum cup would be given to the member making the highest average in September. Here are the scores made during the evening:

Pennville Notes.

Things are now a bit quiet; the boys are resting on their oars, as it were. They are receiving congratulations on all sides for their good work. The Challenge trophy is safely lodged in the case from which it was taken a year ago and looks handsomer than ever. None of the other prizes have arrived as yet but no doubt they will reach us in good season. The shooters are somewhat despondent but the victory of the bowlers is probably glory enough for the club for one year, they think, and next year they will try to redeem themselves. Pittsburg, it seems, gets another cup now here, which the club won at Providence. This, like the Lockland trophy, has to be won twice. Considerable bowling is indulged in but nothing remarkable appears on the slate. K.

Detroit.

TRADE GOOD, BUT THE DROUGHT MAKES OUTSIDE STOCK POOR.—SHAW HAS RECOVERED.—THE LAST GUEST DEPARTS.—RACKHAM ON VACATION.—JOTTINGS.

This town and vicinity is suffering from the drought that has prevailed for the past month and, as a consequence, all outside grown flowers are of very poor quality. Sweet peas of any kind are very scarce and the asters, which, in the early part of the season, were so fine, are now getting poorer and more scarce every day. Business is generally fair, with brisk demand for American Beauties, which are coming in good. There is also a fair supply and demand for other varieties of roses. Carnations, always sought for, are scarce, as usual at this time; some of the local growers are already planting their houses.

J. Austin Shaw has recovered sufficiently from his convention accident to return to his home in New York.

Geo. A. Heinl, of Toledo, prolonged his visit here till Wednesday of this week. He was the last of the S. A. F. to leave us.

Andrew Ferguson is removing his city greenhouse to his home establishment on Moran street and contemplates abandoning his present retail place on Willis avenue, but will open a store on Woodward avenue, in the retail district, this fall.

A. N. Kaier, of Woodmere, is building four new houses 15x100, using 16x24 glass lapped.

Geo. A. Rackham, now free from the work of managing the convention exhibits, left with his wife last Saturday for Mackinac and the resorts of the upper lakes. They will remain away for two weeks.

Frank Danzer has opened his retail store on Woodward avenue. Mr. Danzer is a Detroiter, but for four years has had charge of the cut flower department of the Livingston Seed Co., Columbus. He is well qualified to make a success of the business. J. F. S.

GENEVA, N. Y.—C. P. Close, assistant botanist and horticulturist at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station here, has received the appointment of professor of these subjects at the Utah State Agricultural College at Logan, Utah.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

REPORT OF SECRETARY.

On the first day of August, 1899, the 864 members comprising the Florists' Hail Association insured an aggregate of 11,209,865 square feet of glass, subdivided as follows: Single thick, 2,838,-569; double thick, 5,934,262 square feet; extra one-half, single thick, 254,535 square feet; extra one-half, double thick, 446,116 square feet; extra whole, single thick, 650,685 square feet; extra whole, double thick, 1,436,038 square feet.

The receipts for the year ending August 1, 1899, have been: From ninth assessment, $6,339; from new business, as per accompanying treasurer's report, $1,072.62; money refunded, $91.62; interest on investments, $241.78, and from reinsurance of glass, $67.20—making total receipts for the year, $8,712.22.

Disbursements have been: For losses, $5,337.39; for expenses, $1,220.88; money invested on account of reserve fund, $800—making a total of $7,358.27.

The cash balance on hand is $4,334.88, of which $649.25 belongs to the reserve fund, leaving $3,685.63 available in the emergency fund.

The reserve fund on August 1, 1899, was $6,000 in securities and $649.25 cash, making a total of $6,649.25, a sufficient guarantee that all losses will be promptly met, if claims are properly presented.

42,084 square feet of single thick and 32,438 square feet of double thick glass belonging to insured members have been paid for during the year.

The percentage of loss on single thick was 14 14651.17741 per cent and .05 1338345.2967131 on double thick. The record of hail storms for the past 12 years, so far as your secretary has been able to ascertain, is appended below:

It might be well to call attention to the fact that New York State, where the Florists' Hail Association has had a very small percentage of patrons, has suffered from 61 hailstorms, and only 7 losses have been paid, while Missouri, where an unusually large percentage of florists are insured, has a record of 35 storms and 67 losses paid. Further comparisons may be interesting.

The increase in insurance the past year has been fully up to the largest gain of any preceding year and the trade is slowly but surely learning by sore experience that to ignore hail insurance is a "pennywise, pound foolish" policy.

"Indispensable"

THIS is the only word which describes the American Florist Company's Trade Directory. This book, 359 pages of facts tersely told, is issued annually and is an aid to business and money making which no wholesaler or traveling salesman can afford to be without. It contains the name of every Florist, Nurseryman and Seedsman, arranged both by states and towns and alphabetically. It will save many times its cost by enabling you to cover America with your catalogue and at the same time waste no printed matter or postage on dead names.

EDITION OF 1899, POSTPAID, $2.00.

IN FLEXIBLE LEATHER BINDING, $3.00.

Purcellville, Va.

A. B. Davis & Son are completing a range of six new houses 25x120 which will give them over 40,000 feet of glass. They are growing 20,000 carnations of the newer sorts for cut flowers and rooted cuttings. In the field they have 40,000 dahlia roots in 100 varieties. Rex begonias are quite a feature with this firm, 75,000 having been propagated last winter, with plans for twice as many this year. They are growing 12,000 roses for propagating and do a wholesale business in rooted cuttings as well as a large catalogue mail trade. They report a fair share of prosperity.

MANHEIM, PA.—Abraham Hostetter is completing a large addition to his glass for carnations and violets, five houses being built, four of them 16x203 and one 16x25.

The MODEL Extension Carnation Support.

LANCASTER, PA., June 17, '99.
MR. THERON PARKER, Brooklyn, N. Y.,
Dear Sir:—Your Model Carnation Support is all right in every way and will no doubt be considered as necessary as good plants with growers when better known. I consider it the best on the market, and if your other specialties are equally as good, they should make another addition to the money makers of 1900. Respectfully,
ALBERT M. HERR.

FLATBUSH, BROOKLYN, N.Y. Feb. 18, '97.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Dear Sir.—Your wire stake is certainly a gem. Without hesitating we indorse it as an up-to date carnation support. Yours truly,
DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

W. HOBOKEN, N. J., Feb 18, '97.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Dear Sir:—It gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carnation supports. I think that those I have had from you are about as perfect as anybody will be able to make them. They certainly fill my bill for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been looking for a long time. Wishing you every success in the sale of them, I am
Yours truly E. ASMUS.

BATCH OF PERSONAL JOTTINGS FROM OHIO RIVER TOWNS.—WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S WHAT FROM THE BLUE GRASS REGION.

Mrs. C. W. Reimers is remodeling her store and building a conservatory in the rear. Mr. Reimers has disposed of his interest in the store and will devote his time to growing cut flowers for the wholesale trade. He is especially successful with American Beauty.

R. T. Darrett, one of the hail sufferers, has reglazed his houses and thinks he will drop the florist business and grow cauliflower and lettuce.

Richard T. Lewis has discontinued business but will still grow flowers in a small way for pleasure.

Jacob Schultz has some very promising seedling carnations and expected to rebuild some of his oldest houses for them but thinks he will save $1000 on material by waiting until next year.

A. Rasmussen, of New Albany, has built a new rose house 20x100 and a carnation house 15x100.

C. H. Kunzman has returned from the east and has been quite ill. He expects to bench his carnations next week.

John G. Bettman & Sons, New Albany, are building a carnation house 20x112 feet, even span with solid beds. They have decided to discontinue the growing of violets.

F. Walker & Co. will remodel their Fourth avenue store.

C. I. Warren, formerly in the florist business, has accepted the position of superintendent of one of our parks.

A. Steckler leased his place but the lessee failed and Mr. Steckler has re-entered business. He grows both plants and cut flowers.

H. G. W.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—David L. Gordon, who has been employed in the Eldredge greenhouses for the past three years, succeeded A. H. Stacey in the Madison street floral establishment, taking possession on September 1.

WILLING HANDS ARE ASSISTING FISCHER & EKAS TO STRAIGHTEN OUT MATTERS AFTER THEIR FIRE.—BUSINESS DULL.—BINDER THE PRIZE WINNER AT THE FAIR.

The Fischer & Ekas fire continues to be the chief topic of conversation. Every florist in the vicinity is interested in the plan for assisting them to get their houses in working order. Robert Halliday is at the head of the forces and he and quite a number of others, have already gone themselves, and sent hands, to help get the heating pipes properly replaced and finish up the repairs and glazing. A meeting of the club has been called to take action regarding the misfortune. The firm has lost heavily, only $1050 insurance having been received.

Business continues very quiet. Asters are the chief stock coming in, with somewhat scanty supplies of poor quality in both roses and carnations.

The county fair commenced August 29. In the floral department the competition was sharp, but W. Paul Binder, gardener to H. A. Parr, carried off most of the honors. F. G. Burger was judge in cut flowers and designs. MACK.

NORTH BERWICK, ME.—John H. Hammond, for many years a successful florist and gardener, died on August 24, aged 65 years.

BRANDON, MAN.—Fred. Mansoff did very well with the one greenhouse he put up last summer and is now building a rose house 20x50. As he expresses it, the wheat growers love flowers just the same as city people do.

We are the pioneers in Clear Cypress Greenhouse Material. We discovered that Cypress is better than any other wood for greenhouses from top of posts up and we introduced it, and fought for it against many prejudices, and finally succeeded in bringing it into general use.

Others have attempted to follow where we lead, others are trying to reap what we sowed, but we have the experience and are recognized as experts in greenhouse construction.

EVART, MICH.—Shore & Haigh are embarking in business with two houses, one 18x32 and one 18x100. They will grow a general stock.

More About the Bargain Counter.

About a year ago you will remember the columns of the AMERICAN FLORIST were thrown open to a discussion of the "Florists' Bargain Counter." Some of the brightest retailers in the business had their say as to the desirability or undesirability of a bargain counter, and the diversity of opinion was quite pronounced. On one point, however, there was considerable unanimity and that was that a store that catered to the very choicest trade would be hurt very materially by the introduction of anything that savored of cheapness. The idea seemed to be that a person of wealth expected to pay a good price for flowers and if not charged a proper figure would have grave doubts of their quality. What worried the first-class retailer, however, was the fact that the department stores like Wanamaker's were undermining the medium class trade, especially in plants, and the great question was, and is, how to meet that competition without sacrificing the fancy trade which has taken years and years of the hardest kind of work to secure.

Among those who had nothing to say about the department store competition here in Philadelphia was H. H. Battles. That he has been doing some thinking on the subject, however, is evidenced by his opening a separate store for the sale of low priced stock, which fact was announced in your regular Philadelphia correspondence some weeks ago.

Whether this new move will prove a solution of the problem of how to hold the trade for the best stock and at the same time cater to those who do not care to pay for the best is a question; but the experiment is an interesting one and will be worth watching by the trade at large.

In conversation on the matter with Mr. Battles the other day I tried to get at some of the details of his new departure; but I had to do it very diplomatically, as Mr. B. does not care to talk for publication. What he said, therefore, I can only give in a general way and with the understanding that the quotations are only my idea of what he was driving at, and not an authorized transcript of what he said.

I wanted to know why he called it the "Century Flower Shop?" Was he afraid to put his own name up?

"Not at all. I only want to thoroughly differentiate the two businesses. They are run on such different lines that it is of the utmost importance to my already established trade that the public should be quite clear on that point. Although neither myself nor my old employes will be seen much around the new store, I have no wish to hide my connection with it; in fact I shall recommend such of my customers as do not care to pay for the best to go there."

What effect will this new departure have on your regular trade?

"It will have a good effect. I will be in a better position than ever to give my customers the cream of the stock as I can buy in larger quantities and will cull more severely, having an outlet for much that heretofore I had to throw away."

Do you intend to follow the department store method of making a leader at a cut rate and regular prices on the balance?

"No. My aim will be to have little prices on everything. I will buy for cash and sell for cash. I will cater to the people who do not care to pay for the best. There are lots of them. Not only those with moderate means but many who are wealthy want cheap flowers at certain times and for certain occasions. In order to supply this want without sacrificing my established reputation I see no other way but a separate store, run on an entirely different standard, and with a different aim in view."

I see your store fixings are dainty and refined in your new departure; do you think it worth while in view of the cheaper trade you are to cater to?

"Most undoubtedly. The person who buys flowers at all is a refined person or on the road to refinement. It makes no difference how much is paid. The feeling is there to begin with. As Canon Hole puts it, 'He who has a rose in his garden has a rose in his heart.' So that beautiful pictures and dainty furniture, big mirrors and velvet hangings are just as much appreciated here as in a store which makes a specialty of the finest stock to be had. But if dainty that is not to say the most expensive. The low prices necessary would not stand a big outlay for fine fixings."

I suppose this will be a kind of market, a place to sell flowers and plants; there will be little room for the Battles brain work in an artistic way?

"Well, as to that, of course I expect to do good work, but I am not going to give the best service in that line without corresponding compensation. My aim will always be to educate my new customers by degrees up to an appreciation of the very finest work done with the very best of materials. I can do good work with low priced materials as economically as any one only I do not wish it understood that such work cannot be improved at an increased price."

How are you going to advertise your new store?

"In the usual way. I will run it so that it will advertise itself. A pleased customer is always the best advertisement. Of course I will distribute an opening announcement. A four-page circular is all that is necessary for that. Conciseness is always a strong point in business. Such a circular should be brief and detail the advantages of a cash store run on economical lines with the best equipment that capital, brains and experience can give, and inviting the patronage of those who appreciate such service at small outlay. All the stationery, tags, labels, boxes, will be uniformly printed in a distinctive artistic type, plain but attractive."

Why not use the Battles style—red tags, labels, etc., on snow white back ground?

"Not on your life! They are my trade mark. When a man wants the best for some special occasion he knows enough to send a box under the Battles label. When he wants something nice at a small figure the 'Century Flower Shop' label will be good enough."

At this point I think Mr. Battles began to suspect that I might be mean enough to make some interesting "copy" out of him and give his ideas away, so he was reminded that he had a train to catch and off he went. I was therefore unable to continue my researches further into this interesting subject for the benefit of the AMERICAN FLORIST readers.

Although not of the florists myself I am close enough to them to know some of the knotty problems they are at present wrestling with and if I may be pardoned for expressing an opinion I think there's something in the new scheme. As I see it there's everything to gain and nothing to lose. The one thing dovetails into the other very well. Of course some of the projected details may have to be modified as experience proves them wrong or inadequate and new ways will be suggested from time to time. But that the main idea is sound I think there will be little question.

Hybrid Pyrethrums.

These so-called hybrids are really all garden varieties of Pyrethrum roseum, but there are very few other hardy composites which can compete with these giant, colored daisies, with their fern-like foliage and showy flower-heads. For decoration of the border and for cutting, they are distinct as well as useful, from the beginning of bloom till the end of June; height one and one-half to two and one-half feet.

When well established the clumps will send up from seventy-five to 100 flower stems with three to four flower heads to each. The flower heads, however, will be finer if only one is allowed to develop on each stem. Plants that were not planted till July sent up from twenty five to thirty-five flower stems the following June.

Like their near relatives, the chrysanthemums, these pyrethrums prefer and winter much better on deep, rich, well drained land. They should be covered with straw or long hay as soon as the ground is frozen hard. A good dressing of well rotted manure between the plants, applied soon after covering, is taken off in spring, and an occasional watering with liquid manure given when flower heads are developing will add to their size and give clearer, brighter colors.

The single and anemone flowered varieties are the most graceful and therefore are preferred by some florists, but the double varieties are grand for the border, and can be used for cut flowers and designs wherever the China aster could be used. The color ranges from white to deep crimson and includes many shades of pink and red. Stock can be increased by division, the best time for which is when growth commences, after flowering.

If kept free from weeds, the soil loose round the plants and the flower stems cut off as soon as flower heads are shabby, there will be no trouble in keeping plants over the following winter, and a second crop of bloom will often develop before frost.

Taken altogether we have found pyrethrums very satisfactory plants to grow, and do not hesitate to recommend them for the border and for cutting. They are essentially florists' flowers.

Massachusetts. R. N.

A Leader in the Dominion.

Wm. W. Gammage, London, Ont., president of the Canadian Horticultural Association, was born at Tolland, Conn., May 31, 1863. His parents removed to Canada in 1868, his father locating at London as a market gardener, a vocation in which he soon built a good business. His love for flowers, however, led him to devote a portion of his time to their cultivation and through the ever increasing demand for plants and cut blooms he gradually drifted into the florist business. By 1885 the florist business had reached such proportions that gardening was dropped and his two sons were admitted to partnership. The firm name was J. Gammage & Sons. The business increased gradually until it became necessary to open a store, now one of the best equipped in Canada, doing a large wholesale and retail trade. The stock sent out has won a good name all over the Dominion. The elder Mr. Gammage died in 1890, at the age of 82, and four years later the demise of his brother left the whole responsibility for the business on the shoulders of our present subject. Mr. Gammage believes that the Canadian Horticultural Association has a brilliant future before it, and interest is high in the approaching meeting at Ottawa.

CARNATIONS.

CULTURAL NOTES.

September 9.—Carnations that are not yet housed, unless the plants are very small, should be brought in as quickly as possible. The small plants will make healthier growth outdoors these cool nights than they can possibly make indoors and, being small, will not produce a crop until late in the season whether planted now or later, so it is the better plan to let them get all the size possible in the field.

A diseased plant will also recover its health quicker outdoors than in and will lift to far better advantage after it has recovered to some extent. This, of course, does not apply to plants affected by any sort of insects and, as most insects can be combatted better in the houses than outdoors, the quicker such plants are brought in the better.

It is generally acknowledged that the best season for lifting plants is between August 15 and September 15; it has certainly been my experience that the best results are obtained by benching all plants of reasonable size before the middle of September.

Perhaps the greatest contrast on my place last season was between two houses of Gold Nugget. One planted the last week in August was as good a house as one could possibly wish but the other, planted in October, was a constant source of disappointment until toward spring, when it rather superseded the first house; but by this time carnations were abundant and cheap.

These late benched plants were larger and had every attention to procure a good crop of bloom, but they simply would not go to work until they were ready. I could not attribute their slowness in starting to any other fact than that of their having been subject to several slight frosts before being housed. This evidently put them in a semi dormant state of growth and, while they made excellent stock for spring cuttings, they did not make much new growth before February. I also attributed part of their slowness to their being heavily set with buds, all but a few of the most advanced of which we left when lifting, counting on a goodly number of blooms for Christmas. They came in all right but were hardly good enough to be classed as seconds.

Always a firm believer in early planting this experience has made me a strong advocate of it. My conclusions are that carnations do best if lifted as soon after September 1 as they have attained good size; under no circumstances should they be allowed to remain out late enough to be caught by even the lightest fall frost. Allowing the buds to remain on the plants when moved is a penny wise and pound foolish policy, as under no conditions will these buds make first-class flowers. It always pays better to take all buds off and let the plants develop their bloom entirely under indoor culture.

If you leave small or sickly plants in the field do not allow them to take care of themselves; they will need just as much care and attention as earlier in the season. If this is faithfully followed up, care and the September weather will often bring stock into fairly good shape which looked like an utter failure earlier in the season. When it does get in good shape hustle it into the house at once.

ALBERT M. HERR.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

CULTURAL NOTES.

September 9.—Extra care is necessary just now, when the buds are commencing to form, to prevent the soil from drying out too much. If the beds are permitted to dry out enough to cause the plants to wilt the young buds will receive a setback from which they cannot recover, even with the best of care. A great many imperfect blooms can be traced to neglect during this critical period.

Constant watering will have laid bare some of the surface roots in spots on the beds and these should be covered with some light material to prevent the sun and winds from damaging the young feeders. One syringing on bright days we find to be sufficient now but this should be given early in the morning so that the plants may dry off before nightfall. If any of the plants require water at the roots they should also receive it in the morning. The reason for this is that the foliage is much more dense than it was a few weeks ago and if allowed to remain wet over night many of the leaves will turn yellow.

In giving liquid fertilizer avoid applying it on very hot days or when the soil is too dry, for under those conditions the plants will take up more than they can properly digest. It is well to bear in mind when feeding chrysanthemums that fine foliage is of as much importance as fine flowers and that strength and substance can only be obtained by gradual and careful cultivation.

Any grower who has chrysanthemums in quantity will now be kept hustling every minute in the day, looking after the buds, taking out side shoots, removing suckers and looking after every little detail that the plants require.

Plants that are being grown to single stems in pots should be in as light a place and as near the glass as is possible without causing them to become drawn. It is expected that they are in their flowering pots before this so that the principal work from now on is to encourage them in every way, at the same time striving for stocky plants with good foliage.

Market plants that have been grown on benches or in beds outside will need their flowering pots now and should also be neatly staked and tied if they require it. Several of the early ones will soon be showing the buds and will need disbudding, although not so close as with plants intended for exhibition.

Watering Field Carnations.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—In reference to the query under this head in your issue of August 19, page 94, on which you have requested my opinion, I will only relate some of my experience in this line.

The best method of irrigation will depend largely on the surface of the ground, whether level or sloping. An abundant supply of water is necessary in any case. Supposing the field to be practically level and the water delivered through a three-quarter inch opening, two methods of application present themselves, viz, sprinkling and surface application. The details of the first named method will occur to anyone familiar with the use of a hose. Sprinkling is reasonably satisfactory if thoroughly done, but herein lies great danger. One is apt to stop when only an inch of the surface is wet. As a result, most of the water is lost by evaporation and the roots are attracted to the surface by the superficial wetting, only to be dried out later on. The amount of water ordinarily delivered through a hose nozzle is only equal to a very light, drizzling rain that we would expect to continue at least two hours to give good results, even with the accompanying atmospheric conditions. In my opinion, more harm than good results from the ordinary sprinkling, even on lawns.

There are several ways of applying water by the second method, two of which may be considered, viz., surface flooding and furrow irrigation. By the first plan the water is allowed to spread over the surface and if delivered through a hose, the nozzle is first removed. The water may be distributed quite well by using a hoe to back it up with temporary earth dams where needed or to remove obstructions. The water should be run rather fast at first over a considerable surface and later allowed to run very slowly. If this is not observed, the water will soak down to an indefinite depth, if the ground is open in texture, and will probably fail to reach any considerable distance. By this plan a thorough watering is given but the surface is apt to bake and be more or less puddled. Furrow irrigation can be accomplished in two ways. If the surface is nearly a dead level, furrows or ditches as deep and wide as the crop will permit, may be opened between rows and stopped with an earth dam at either end. These are then filled with water as many times as may be necessary. Usually one or two such waterings are sufficient for the whole season.

I am inclined to believe that in the case of carnations, in rows fourteen to eighteen inches apart, better work could be done by opening rather shallow furrows with a hand plow (wheel hoe) close to the rows and on either side, plowing away from the plants. The water can then be run in these furrows until the ground is thoroughly soaked. It will often happen that there will be considerable overflow from the lower ends of the rows but if the fields are planted with reference to irrigation, this surplus water may be used on lower plats.

No special appliances are necessary if the water can be delivered directly to the highest point of the field by means of iron pipes or hose. In case these means are not immediately available, much expense may be saved by conducting the water in troughs made by tightly nailing together boards of rough lumber. Water may be carried cheaply a very considerable distance by this method by lapping the troughs and by elevating them on boxes or other devices slight inequalities of the ground may be easily overcome. If the troughs leak, throw in a handful of sand or clay at the upper end.

If an abundance of water is available, these troughs, slightly modified, may be used to good advantage in distributing the water in the field. Bore one-inch augur holes every few inches in one side and near the bottom. Directly above each hole attach a wooden button, slightly over an inch wide and three or four inches long, by means of a screw; this to be used as a gate or valve to control the supply of water. Place these troughs across the head of the field on a slight incline and admit the water at the upper end. By aid of these one man can attend to the watering of a very large field.

By the last described method of watering, one can usually walk dry shod over the whole field when the water is being distributed and direct its course, the ground receives a thorough soaking and the plants receive the full benefit of all the water applied. The cultivator should be started as soon as possible to fill the furrows and prevent evaporation.

In the accompanying illustrations Fig. 1 shows the method of irrigating a field of strawberries at the Wisconsin Experiment Station. The rows in this case extend north and south. The west side of the field is considerably higher than the east side, but by elevating the troughs as shown, it was possible to water the whole field at once without the necessity of conducting the water in expensive iron pipes directly to the field. Fig. 2 shows a section of one of the troughs used and Fig. 3 the supports used for the troughs.

Anticipating Prosperity.

The atmosphere and the events of September remind us that the vacation season, with all that it means to the florist, has passed and we realize that we are now close to the time when customers will be dropping in again in quest of something to make the home pretty and cheerful within when the outdoor attractions that have monopolized their attention for the past months are rapidly disappearing. Are we fully prepared to take care of them?

The days of idleness through July and August furnished the time and opportunity for a thorough renovating of store, office or reception room, but if this has not been done we should do it now. A customer will be influenced unfavorably if he finds untidiness prevailing and he will make a mental comparison of your enterprise with that of your neighbor who has been attending to these things and the comparison may be disastrous for you. Every vestige of the wear and tear of last season's work should be obliterated. A thorough cleaning out of every corner and repairing of every damage, followed by a coat of paint and wall paper carefully selected as to tint that will show your goods in the most favorable light, should be a regular annual event in every well ordered florist establishment. Nothing is more effective for interior color than a pale sea green. With this for a background your Bridesmaids and Scotts will shine and dazzle the eyes of the customer and, in fact, look so fresh and bright to your own eyes, even, that you will put a top price on them in the most selfreliant manner.

See that the lining of the refrigerator is intact and the drainage clear, and your heating arrangements in good order so that you will not be called upon to pull everything to pieces at Christmas to make sudden repairs. Examine window platforms and plant stands and make sure that no decayed or rickety woodwork is in hiding there. Throw out that old chair with the dilapidated seat and substitute in your reception room something more in keeping with the kind of furniture your good customer is accustomed to at home. Be assured that he or she make note of such things even though they say nothing to you about it.

Speaking of reception rooms, maybe you have none; perhaps you don't believe in them and still are satisfied to receive your customers in the workroom or shed with its festooning of old wire forms and other promiscuous material. If so, pardon us for telling you that you are behind the age and one does not need to consult the stars or any other oracle to realize that the days of your prosperity are numbered. By all means have a neatly furnished spot in which to receive your customers. If for lack of room or other economical reasons you are forced to do this in a very small way, still do it. Even a common folding screen to shut off the indispensable working department is much better than nothing. A rug on the floor and a little table furnished with writing materials, blank cards, and a directory of the town, etc., will all cost but a trifle for which results will quickly repay you with compound interest.

As to the contents of the salesroom, quality and arrangement count for more than quantity. One perfect plant on a neat stand or jardiniere will accomplish far more in bringing you visitors than a cart load of promiscuous and rubbishy stuff in unwashed flower pots and a few fresh ferneries and new flower baskets will attract when a shelf full of tin foiled harps and crosses would only repel. See what the advertisers in the AMERICAN FLORIST have to say about nice new things in these lines, get into communication with them and, if you are prevented by distance or other reason from going to see for yourself what your fellow craftsmen in the larger progressive cities are doing, these advertisers will advise you, for they know about it. And if you are so unfortunate as to have a quantity of last year's material left on your hands, faded and dusty, just put it well out of sight and wait for a favorable opportunity to work it in somewhere for it were far better and cheaper for you in the end to burn it up than to make the fatal mistake of attempting to open up the fall trade with last year's leavings.

A FEW DAYS OF FAIR BUSINESS.—GOSSIP OF THE WHOLESALE HOUSES.—DEATH OF ALFRED HENDERSON.—FIRST MEETING OF THE CLUB.—CHANGES AMONG COMMISSION MEN.—FOREIGN VOYAGERS HOMEWARD BOUND.—CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

A few days of cool weather has sent the city people scurrying back from seaside and mountain and the railroad stations are almost impassable with heaped-up baggage. The flower business felt the change at once in two ways—the increase of customers and the decrease of greenhouse product which, combined, gave the wholesale market a brief opportunity to gather itself together and furnished the ever-alert consignor a basis for a stiffer back-bone in his relation with the commission man. But these conditions have lasted only for two or three days and at present writing news comes of an approaching hot wave that will wilt backbones as well as collars and will restore the summer balance in short order. About the wholesale markets the principal topic of interest is the alignment of growers, without whom there would be no wholesalers and to whom the steadily lengthening list of commission houses and consequent rivalry presents an irresistible temptation to fluctuate and gain a shrewd advantage at each turn. In the retail stores there is little transpiring of general interest; everybody is ready for business when it comes and in trim to welcome returning patrons. The seed store people have forgotten, for the time being, the custom house delays, the undersized Dutch bulbs and the scarcity of lilies, in discussing the news of Alfred Henderson's death. Other than this nothing sensational is in sight.

The first meeting for the season of the New York Florists' Club will take place at the club rooms, corner Broadway and West Twenty-seventh street. The story of the Detroit convention and the experiences, serious or amusing, of those who went there will be the theme for the evening. In view of the approaching New York convention, this subject will be timely and its discussion valuable, and it is probable that plans for the great event will be considered in a general way.

The latest addition to the wholesale commission firms is Young & Nugent, who have bought out the Decker-Blauvelt Co. and will occupy the store recently occupied by that concern on West

Twenty-eighth street. Twenty-eighth street is about to have one more wholesaler in the person of G. E. Bradshaw, who is moving to number 53 from his old location on West Thirtieth street, and expects to open about September 15.

Alfred Dimmock expects to sail from England for New York, possibly accompanied by his family, about September 15. This is considerably later in the season than his previous trips, and is necessitated by the heavy business Messrs. Sander & Co. are handling this fall.

Among the many beautiful floral pieces at the funeral of Alfred Henderson was a richly made broken column from the employes of Peter Henderson & Co. It was six feet high and composed in part of cattleyas, miltonias and other orchids.

At Thos. Young, Jr.'s, a new pink rose is making quite a sensation. The stock is controlled by Benj. Dorrance, Dorranceton, Pa. John Nugent is no longer in the employ of Mr. Young.

The Lord & Burnham Co. was the lowest bidder for the contract to build the new plant house in Prospect Park, Brooklyn.

Winfried Rolker is understood to have sailed from Southampton September 1, per steamer Columbia.

A few chrysanthemums are being received by several of the wholesalers.

CARMODY AND THE OTHER VETERANS LAY SIEGE TO PHILADELPHIA.—BIG CROWDS, BUT LITTLE BUSINESS.—STOCKS IMPROVING. — MEEHAN'S CARNATIONS. — THE CLUB MEETING PRESENTS A NOVELTY.

This week the town has been given over to the Grand Army. They captured its streets, houses, parks and people. Verily, the city has been theirs; the suit of blue with the badges and brass buttons insured the wearer the right of way. J. D. Carmody, of "biler" fame, that "meat saw" celebrity, whose oratorical accomplishments are quite in keeping with his other achievements, is in town. He wears a blue coat and brass buttons, and is justly proud of the fact that he went with the first call to serve his country and is thankful that he came back whole to live and serve his fellow countrymen with the best "bilers and ventilators for heatin' and coolin' greenhouses." Chas. L. Watrous, of Des Moines, Ia., another "vet," is also in the city taking part in the reunion and presiding at the sessions of the American Pomological Society, of which he is president. While the store fronts, hotels and many private residences were quite elaborately decorated with flags and bunting, there was not much for the florists. J. Habermehl & Brother used up considerable laurel weathing and there was some decorating of a public character, but the trade generally did not receive much benefit from the encampment. The city was full of visitors, but most of them were merely sightseers.

Business moves along in the regular way, there being nothing worthy of special mention except, perhaps, the opening of the Century Flower Shop, H. H. Battles' new venture, which occurred last Monday. The store is very nicely fitted up and, as every place of the kind should be (but, alas, is not), is very inviting. An added attraction is a smart delivery wagon.

The rose stock now coming in shows improvement, each week's flowers seeming better than the last. Beauties are beginning to get some stem and an added form that make them at least presentable. Some new comers are carrying a lot of roses in pasteboard boxes and baskets all huddled together without sorting; that reminds one of the way things used to be done. We have progressed, but it seems there are still some who have much to learn.

Thos. Meehan & Son are sending in some nice carnations from their new plants. These plants were set on the benches from 3-inch pots about the first of June and have made a splendid growth. They are in condition to go on blooming until next spring. The houses during the middle of summer had a slight sprinkling of whitewash and in addition to the regular ventilators every tenth row of glass was removed, thus insuring an abundance of fresh air. Meehan & Son are much pleased with this plan and say that outdoor planting and subsequent lifting has lost all attractiveness to them.

Mr. Whitely, of Smith & Whitely, has returned from his extended summer vacation much improved in health. Mr. Smith, who had such an unpleasant experience with highwaymen last week, is now at home and in a fair way to recover. His assailants as yet have not been apprehended.

The improvements at Pennock Bros'. store are almost completed, the frescoing of the walls being the last touch necessary. Their new oak, marble-topped counters are very swell and an approach to the office makes one involuntarily feel around for his bank book to make a deposit, so rich and bank-like does it appear.

The September meeting of the Florists' Club was not very well attended, the outside attractions being too great for many of the boys. President McKinley was on view in the Academy of Music next door and, while President Harris is just as good a man, every inch of him, the other William caught the crowd. Brother Carmody was present and told in his inimitable way how he and other fellows fought the "rebs." We wonder if he didn't learn to "orate" telling these army reminiscences. C. D. Zimmerman and James Brown, of Buffalo, and J. P. Keller and Richard H. Tacke, of Lexington, Ky., were also present. Nominations of officers to serve for the ensuing year were made and resulted in a continuation of power for those now in the chairs. H. F. Michell is to tell of his recent trip to the Pacific coast at the October meeting. John Walker told of some of the things that happened in Detroit during the recent convention. He did it in his best style, that is, in song, he having prepared an amusing story of the trip and its accomplishments, which he sang to the tune of "There'll be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-night." His effort was well received by those present and who all joined in the chorus. He received the thanks of the club and it was directed that the words be sent to the trade papers and a copy to the Detroit Florists' Club. A resolution was also passed thanking the Detroit club for their many courtesies to the Philadelphia delegates.

George E. Campbell has returned from a trip to the California coast, where he says he had a delightful time.

W. J. Smyth, of Chicago, was in town last week and as a result many choice plants from stocks in this city will soon be westward bound. Mr. Smyth speaks well of the retail trade in Chicago and says the outlook for this season promises the largest year in history. K.

Chicago.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—FIRST WEEK OF AUTUMN.—STRIKE OF BOILER MAKERS CAUSES TROUBLE FOR FLORISTS.—MEETING OF THE CLUB.—NOTES AND COMMENTS.—VISITORS.

The fall season is starting in very satisfactorily for stock, which has increased rapidly this week, has not exceeded the demand and prices have been fully up to the quality of the product. The temperature has been extremely high for roses and much of the cut is poor on that account but there have been some fair Beauties and Meteors. The cut from carnations in the field is now quite heavy but most of them bring as much as 50 cents per hundred and many are worth much more. Outside flowers are on the wane.

For eight weeks the boiler makers and helpers of Chicago have been on strike to compel their employers to make such changes in their scale as would, so the employers claim, make it impossible for Chicago concerns to compete with manufacturers outside the city. This has caused much inconvenience to florists as Kroeschell Bros. had a number of florists boilers under way in their shops upon which no work has been done in two months and work has not been started upon a number of others which were ordered for delivery by September 15. The firm has done everything possible to avoid loss to its patrons and is pleased to report that the prospects are that the strikers will return to work within a few days. Of Kroeschell's men 125 have been out.

At the meeting of the Florists' Club Friday evening, September 1, resolutions were adopted thanking the members of the Detroit Florists' Club for their numerous courtesies during the S. A. F. convention in that city. The matter of a trade float for the parade in the coming Autumn Festival was given some consideration, but action was deferred until the next meeting, when it is hoped there will be a better attendance. A number of names were removed from the membership list for non-payment of dues.

John Poehlmann's vacation time is at an end for he is now receiving fair quantities of very good stock from the Poehlmann establishment.

George M. Garland has established a Chicago office with the Illinois Cut Flower Co., 51 Wabash avenue.

Phil. Hauswirth, Mrs. Hauswirth and Miss Kreitling are enjoying a trip to New York and Boston.

W. J. Smyth has been gathering pointers and novelties in the east for the past week or two.

Bassett & Washburn report an unprecedented call for the season for American Beauties.

Wietor Bros. report a very good sale for their field grown carnation plants.

C. W. McKellar has buckled down to business after his vacation.

A. G. Prince has been unwell this week.

Visitors: Louis Bauscher, Freeport, Ill.; Prof. John Craig, Iowa Agricultural College, Ames, Ia.; Alfred Rehder, representing Moller's Deutsche Gartner-Zeitung, Erfurt, Germany; Mrs. M. M. Ayres, St. Louis; George Souster, Elgin, Ill.; J. A. Valentine, Denver.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.—John Kucklo shot his wife and himself on August 31. He died. Mrs. Kucklo was Mrs. Childs, widow of a former florist, and had some property. They had been married only a few weeks.

FUEL should be secured before the cold weather arrives.

KLONDIKE is said to be an especially good canna for pot culture.

DURING the next few months it will be well to look out for the palm swindler.

EASTER of next year occurs April 15, practically two weeks later than it was this year.

GLAZING and other greenhouse repairs should now be completed as speedily as possible.

THE Florists' Hail Association has insured 300,000 feet of glass since the S. A. F. meeting at Detroit.

GOVERNOR STONE, of Pennsylvania, has appointed Edwin Lonsdale, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, as a delegate to the Farmers' National Congress, which is to be held in Boston, Mass., October 3–6.

ITALY, it is said, is protecting herself systematically against hailstorms by firing cannon. Several hundred villages on the slopes of the Alps and of the Apennines have established firing stations, where two or three cannons are kept which are fired at a signal from the weather observer. The results are said to be astonishing. In none of these villages did hail fall this summer, while neighboring districts have suffered from the usual number of storms. Perhaps the United States government could be induced to adopt some similar course for the protection of greenhouse property.

Philadelphians Thank Detroit Florists.

At the meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, held Tuesday evening, September 5, the following vote of thanks was extended to the Detroit Florists' Club:

In view of the splendid hospitality the members of our club, in common with other delegates to the S. A. F. convention, experienced at the hands of the florists of Detroit and their friends, it is proper that we give expression to our feelings on the matter, and it is Therefore moved that a hearty vote of thanks be and hereby is extended to them for their warm and generous welcome. The many courtesies lavished on us individually and collectively are gratefully remembered and highly appreciated, and we thank one and all most heartily and will ever cherish the memory of the delightful time we experienced in the city of Detroit in 1899. And our secretary is hereby instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the Detroit Florists' Club.

FINAL RESOLUTIONS AT DETROIT.

The Committee on Final Resolutions begs leave to submit the following report:

WHEREAS on the occasion of this, the Fifteenth Annual Convention of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists, the Florists' Club and the good citizens of Detroit have more than fulfilled the most sanguine expectations of every member present arising from the cordial invitation extended a year ago for the society to visit this beautiful city by the lake, with respect to the heartiness of the welcome given us at this time; the most generous hospitality accorded us, and the sincere endeavor of everyone to cater to our creature comfort and delectation, making our stay here one of great pleasure long to be remembered. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the officers and members of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists feel deeply grateful for, and do hereby acknowledge, all the courtesies so freely and fully extended.

Resolved, That we also tender our heartfelt thanks to his Honor, Mayor W. C. Maybury, for his words of welcome and kindly greeting, his sound advice imparted, and altogether eloquent address, which will long remain fresh in our memories.

Resolved, That we appreciate the tokens of greeting from the officials and good people of this beautiful city that meet us on every side as exemplified in the outward demonstration of same appearing on the municipal building and the other numerous less ostentatious displays observed throughout the city.

Resolved, That we are under special obligations to the chairmen of the various committees of the Florists' Club of Detroit; that we highly esteem the kindly thought that prompted the erection of the magnificent and artistic triumphal arch and other decorations that greet us on our approach to and in the meeting hall, and especially do we sincerely thank the chairmen of the entertainment, bowling and shooting committees for their unremitting attention and earnest efforts —which have contributed in no small measure to the success of one of our most delightful annual gatherings. We are also indebted to many of the officials and citizens of Detroit for their munificence, shown in connection with the recreative features of this convention.

Resolved, That we cordially thank the members of the Detroit brethren who, individually, so generously entertained the visitors, and particularly in this respect would we mention the names of John Breitmeyer & Sons, Fred. Breitmeyer, R. Klagge and Stephen Taplin.

Resolved, That the thanks of the society be tendered to the superintendent of exhibits, George A. Rackham, whose indefatigable labors have culminated in one of the best and most representative trade exhibitions occurring at our annual meetings. His never failing courtesy and his unwavering attention to the minutest detail are highly appreciated.

Resolved, That to the committee of ladies of the Detroit Florists' Club we are deeply obligated for the unstinted courtesy and considerate attention shown to the visiting ladies, whose presence in such large numbers has been one of the most charming and enjoyable features connected with this convention.

Resolved, That to the daily press of Detroit is due our heartfelt thanks for the the well illustrated, accurate and entertaining accounts of our exhibition and deliberations.

We cannot close our report without again adverting to the unbounded generosity of our hosts, individually and collectively, and for the most perfect manner in which every detail connected with our stay in the city of Detroit has been carried out; and we assure our brethren here that the memory of our visit, and our friendly relations with them on this occasion will remain with us evergreen and everlasting.

OBITUARY.

ALFRED HENDERSON.

Alfred Henderson, eldest son of the late Peter Henderson, passed away at his summer home, Spring Lake, N. J., on Tuesday, September 5, at 3 a. m., aged 47 years. The first symptoms of the spinal disease which eventually carried him off manifested themselves about twelve years ago, but the sound constitution he inherited, coupled with his exemplary life, enabled him to continue in active business long after most men would have succumbed.

Alfred Henderson was born in Jersey City, N. J., on March 23, 1852. He was educated at Hasbrouck Institute in Jersey City, and subsequently took a course at Packard's Business College in New York city. After completing his education, he underwent a thorough training under his father at the greenhouses in Jersey City and the seed store in New York, then Henderson & Fleming. In June, 1871 when he had just passed his twentieth year, the firm of Peter Henderson & Co. was established by his father, he and Wm. H. Carson being the associate partners. In 1876 Mr. Carson withdrew, James Reid becoming the third member of the firm. The latter died in 1887, and Charles, the younger son of Peter Henderson was then admitted to partnership. Upon the death of their father in 1890, the business was incorporated, an interest being given to some old employes in charge of departments, so that although for the past two years Mr. Alfred Henderson had been unable to give much, if any, time to the details of the business, yet so well had he organized it that his daily presence was not required. It might be said of him as he lovingly wrote of his respected father: "He laid the foundations of his great business so broad and so deep that it may not be presumptuous in us to hope that it will prove a monument to his business sagacity long after the existing management has passed away."

Alfred Henderson had a keen, analytical, well balanced mind, an unusually sharp and accurate judgment of men, an unfailing wit, pungent yet kindly, quick at repartee and fond of the society of men of affairs, who like himself could drop them for friendly intercourse and lively badinage. But he was essentially a domestic man, passionately devoted to his family, and leaves a widow and four children to mourn a fond and devoted husband, a loving and indulgent father.

His tastes were literary in a large degree. He was an omniverous reader and was endowed with a wonderful memory so that to converse with him was a pleasure. His wide reading and native mental power manifested themselves in everything he wrote. His style was terse yet comprehensive, abounding in rich, figurative language full of poetical conceptions. His passion for euphony in language was a pronounced characteristic. This is apparent in the splendid memoir of his father written in 1890. When it is considered that at that period he was suffering intense physical pain, it is to be wondered that he was able to concentrate his mental powers on the work, taken, it is true, as a labor of love. His last contribution to current horticultural literature was an article on "A Century of American Horticulture" published in "A Century of American Commerce."

His business industry was wonderful; in the early years of the firm he worked during the busy season from early morning until late at night. He was very popular with the private gardeners and the men who met him in those days have a vivid and fond recollection of his unfailing good humor and a keen appreciation of his ability as a raconteur.

During late years he devoted much of his time to devising advertisements and the business of placing them. It was freely admitted that he was without a peer in the trade in this particular. He was painstaking to a degree, original, and had a thorough technical knowledge of the art. Mr. Henderson was an active member of the Society of American Florists and the New York Florists' Club and was an honorary member of the National Rose Society of Great Britain.

He was a true friend, a firm and just employer, beloved by his employes, a brave and patient sufferer whose spirit never quailed and whose mind was never clouded, who preserved to the last, through vicissitudes of sickness that were calculated to appal the bravest and depress the most buoyant, a serenity that was sublime, a philosophy that was exalting and a buoyancy that was contagious. He was made of the stuff which produces heroes, a worthy son of a worthy sire, who hands down to his son, Peter Henderson, a heritage of name and fame of which he may feel justly proud.

FLORISTS' CLUB RE ELECTS ITS OFFICERS. —A BALANCE LEFT AFTER PAYING CONVENTION BILLS.—SEARCH FOR PERMANENT QUARTERS. — TRADE AND THE WEATHER.—NOTES.

On Wednesday evening our club meeting was very largely attended, it being the occasion of the annual election of officers, which resulted in the choice of the same efficient and popular gentlemen who have served during the first year of the club's existence, as follows: President, Phil. Breitmeyer; vice-president, Geo. A. Rackham; secretary, Robt. Flowerday; treasurer, B. Schroeter. All the bills incurred in connection with the S. A. F. convention were paid and a good balance was left in the treasury which will form the nucleus of a fund which will be devoted to securing permanent quarters for the club, equipped with bowling alleys and all the facilities of first-class club rooms. Our club is in a flourishing condition, with over seventy active members, and the necessity for such a meeting place is very apparent. A committee has been appointed to find the quarters most suitable and will report at our next meeting.

Trade during the past few days has been rather quiet, with a fairly good supply of stock. A rain a few days ago was a great relief but was insufficient to soak the ground, which was as dry as powder in many places.

The Michigan Floral Co. has discontinued the retail business formerly conducted at 184 Grand River avenue.

James Taylor, of Mt. Clemens, is building a new house 16x130 using double strength glass 16x16 lapped. J. F. S.

Springfield, Mass.

The Amateur Horticultural Society will hold a dahlia exhibition on September 19 and 20. It was originally planned to hold the show one week earlier, but the extremely hot, dry weather necessitated a postponement. This is the first show devoted exclusively to dahlias ever attempted here, but the wide interest taken seems to insure success. One local enthusiast in this flower, O. C. Trask, boasts of 230 more or less distinct varieties, and many others have large collections. Of the professional growers exhibits are promised from W. P. Peacock, Acto, N. J.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; H. F. Burt, Taunton, Mass.; W. Atlee Burpee, Philadelphia; John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., and others.

BUTTE, MONT.—Law Bros. have succeeded Law Bros. & Day.

MONTAGUE, MICH.—John Ham has bought a new place and will build a range of glass for vegetables.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—Rutgers College is building a new greenhouse 20x68 feet for the use of Prof. Byron D. Halsted.

LINN, KANS.—L. H. Cobb has removed to Perry, Oklahoma, and will conduct a general florist, nursery and seed business under the name of L. H. Cobb & Co.

MARSHFIELD, MASS.—The display of flowers and plants at the annual fair of the Marshfield Agricultural and Horticultural Exhibition Society during the past week was very good.

CHESTNUT HILL, PA.—Among recent visitors in town were, James P. Keller and Richard H. Tacke, Lexington, Ky.; Eugene Geisreiter, Sacramento, Cal.; Miss G. P. Sanborn, Augusta, Me.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALEXANDER RODGERS, Pres; ALBERT MCCULLOUGH Vice-Pres; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

W. ATLEE BURPEE was a New York visitor this week.

ADDITIONAL rains are said to have fallen in the Nebraska seed districts.

ROCKY FORD melons, says a Chicago daily, are in the market, and they are the best ever.

ONION seed promises to be about half a crop, harvesters reporting a yield of about 150 pounds per acre.

THE spinach conditions have evidently improved, latest quotations showing only a small advance in prices.

FROM Holland the indications are for good crops in most items, although turnips and rutabagas are reported short.

LATEST German advices are to the effect that beets, turnips, leeks, parsley and mangel wurzel are reported short; carrots and kohlrabi very short.

IN our issue of August 26, through Winfried Rolker of New York, some statements were made with regard to the Dutch bulb crop. These statements are confirmed by the consignments received this week.

Boston.

STATE OF TRADE.—ROSES ARE IMPROVING.—UNLIMITED SUPPLY OF GARDEN FLOWERS.—NO DAHLIAS ON SHOW.—THE PARK REPORT.—A GOLD MEDAL.—NOTES.

No material change from last report is noticeable in the local situation as regards business or values. There is certainly nothing, however, on which to base a claim of any improvement over past seasons at this date unless hopefulness can be classed as such. The confidence in the coming season seems very strong hereabouts. Stores now keep open full time and all hands are on duty, cheerful and expectant.

Roses grow fatter and stronger as the season advances. Carnations are not conspicuously abundant but there are fine Semple asters in sufficient quantity to meet all emergencies and many buyers seem to prefer them at this season for street wear and other purposes for which carnations are customarily used. For those who want big show for little money there are gladioli, hydrangeas, Japan lilies and other garden productions in unlimited quantity. Clematis paniculata is beginning to open its great clouds of snowy bloom over porches and verandas and to see it makes one wish for a big wedding decoration order and the privilege of using it. Yet, useful and effective as it is, not a scrap of it is to be seen in our florists' windows, the owners of which seem all to have got into the same rut and to lack sufficient enterprize, individually, to get out of it and do something novel.

It is singular and almost unaccountable that, although dahlias by the thousands were exhibited and admired at Horticultural Hall last week and must be obtainable in vast quantities now and for some time to come, yet no city florist appears to think it worth the while to make a display of them. There are reasons why the old formal show dahlias might never come into favor as florists' flowers but they do not apply to the cactus dahlias which, at the rate of improvement now going on, will soon out-chrysanthemum the chrysanthemum in dash and bold decorative effect and whose glorious colors the chrysanthemum can never begin to approach. With such material as this, skillfully arranged, a window display that would draw a throng is easily within reach—and that is what window displays are for, is it not?

The twenty-fourth annual report of the board of park commissioners of the city of Boston is just received. It contains some beautiful illustrations of park views and that portion devoted to Superintendent Pettigrew's review of the work in detail of the past year is especially interesting and would be most instructive to the student in landscape art. It is pleasing to learn that the end of the construction period is now in sight and that the principal cost in the future will be for maintainance only.

George McWilliam was awarded a gold medal for his magnificent exhibition of seedling dipladenias last week.

Visitors in town: Mr. and Mrs. Phil. Hauswirth and Miss Kreitling, Chicago, Ill.; E. O. Orpet, So. Lancaster, Mass.; J. R. Fotheringham, representing F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.; H. S. De Forest, representing Hitchings & Co., New York City.

BEACH CITY, O.—C. R. Shisler has completed his new greenhouse for general stock.

WATERLOO, N. Y.—Edney Smith is erecting a fine barn on his premises north of the Maple Grove Cemetery.

AUSTIN, MINN.—A. N. Kinsman returned home from the Detroit convention after having made the trip of 1200 miles on his bicycle.

SOUTHINGTON, CONN.—G. W. Mathews is making numerous improvements in the Bristol Street Greenhouses, bringing the place right up-to-the-hour.

CHARLEVOIX, MICH.—John W. Lewis, who has worked in various establishments in Michigan, has gone to the Philippines as a private in the 34th Regulars.

MURPHYSBORO, ILL.—E. I. Bradley is preparing to build a house 16x175 adjoining his present range, but the new structure will be devoted to vegetables, a new thing for the vicinity.

CARROL, IA.—A. Ries & Son have sold their greenhouse business to A. N. Nielson, formerly with J. F. Wilcox, of Council Bluffs, Ia. A. Ries, Sr., will carry on the seed business and the young man will locate in Chicago, with Vaughan's Seed Store.

American Pomological Society.

The twenty-sixth biennial meeting of the American Pomological Society was held in the hall of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, at Philadelphia, Thursday and Friday, September 10 and 11. The sittings were held in the large lecture room, while the display of fruits was arranged in the spacious foyer around the grand staircase. Some palms donated by Robt. Craig brightened the lecture room. The exhibition was thronged all day by admiring visitors. There was no charge for admission, the only thing required being an attention to the admonition, "Hands off, please." The society had its inception in this city and was first called the American Fruit Growers' Association. This was in 1847; in 1850 the name was changed to the present title and the first exhibition and meeting was held in Philadelphia in 1852, presided over by Henry Brinckle, a president as well of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

The display of fruits this year proved to be one of the best in the recent history of the organization. The exhibit made by the New Jersey Horticultural Society was a great credit to that organization, which staged over 700 plates, including apples, pears, quinces, plums and similar fruits. The apples were noticeably perfect and a show of themselves. Perhaps the most brilliant feature, however, was the collection of grapes. This was particularly fine, and was declared the largest and most perfect collection ever seen in this city. The largest single entry was from the vineyard of C. C. Corby, Mount Clare, N. J., who filled sixty plates with as many varieties. The clusters were of extraordinary size for native grapes. Twenty-five of the varieties were white. Geo. W. Fisher, of the same place, also had a fine lot, filling a table with plates of exquisite clusters. Ellwanger & Barry, Rochester, N. Y., made an exhibit of 103 varieties of pears, embracing the best known sorts and many new ones. H. A. Chase, Mount Pocono, Pa., had a table of fine apples and pears. The Pennsylvania Agricultural Station, State College, Pa., made a large display of apples, pears and grapes. Rakestraw & Pyle, Willowdale, Pa., made a fine exhibit, mostly apples. Roland Morrill, Benton Harbor, Mich., staged some choice peaches. His Albertas were of extraordinary size and seemed in a class by themselves. An attractive feature was a collection of chestnuts and other nuts. Grapes on common stock in tubs which were bearing abundantly were shown by Parry's Pomona Nurseries, Parry, N. J. There were a number of excellent minor exhibits which made the display complete and one of great interest to all students of pomology.

The opening session of the convention was held in the lecture room with President C. L. Watrous in the chair. Rev. Dr. McCook opened the exercises with prayer. Robert Craig, of this city, then made an address of welcome which was responded to on behalf of the society by P. J. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga. Treasurer L. R. Taft then made his report, which showed the society to be in good financial circumstances. President Watrous next delivered his address, which was listened to with great attention.

"Philadelphia's Contributions to the History of American Pomology" was the subject of an address by Thomas Meehan, of this city. His remarks were reminiscent and showed the great interest taken by horticulturists of this neighborhood in the work of the society.

J. H. Hale, South Glastonbury, Coun., spoke on "Culture," declaring it to be a most important feature of pomological work.

The afternoon session convened at 2 p. m., when the following papers were read by the authors, several of them provoking interesting discussion:

"Present Status of Smyrna Fig Culture in California, with Special Reference to Blastophaga," Dr. L. O. Howard, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

"Nomenclature and Systematic Pomology," by Prof. F. A. Waugh, University of Vermont, Burlington, Vt.

"Origin and Development of Buds in Certain Fruit Plants," Prof. Wm. R. Lazenby, University of Ohio, Columbus, Ohio.

"Relations of Color to the Growth of Flower Buds of the Peach," Prof. J. C. Whitten, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

The evening session was taken up with the paper of G. Howard Powell, of the Delaware Agricultural College, Newark, Del., "Importance of the Plant Individual in Horticultural Operations." Herbert J. Weber, Division of Vegetable Physiology and Pathology, U. S. Dep't. of Agriculture, gave a stereopticon lecture on "Systematic Plant Breeding," after which Walter T. Swingle, also of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, also illustrated with lantern slides his paper on "Fruit Culture in the Mediterranean Countries." K.

NEW YORK.—Captain O'Mara has called the members of the bowling club to meet at the alleys on Monday afternoon, September 11. Important business will be transacted.

St. Louis Juniors.

The Junior Florists' Bowling Club held its third meeting last Tuesday. The extremely warm weather kept many away and cut down the scores. The following record was made:

Name	1st	2d	3d	Av.
Wm. Holtz	126	88	101	105
A. Meyer, Jr.	88	105	95	96
Ed. Gerlach	102	72	102	92

Pastimes at Flatbush.

Last Thursday was a banner night as to crowd at the bowling alleys, there being eighteen bowlers present. Among the visitors were Messrs. Valentine, of Denver; Kretschmar, of Nyack; Le Moult and Traendly, of New York city; Siebrecht, of Astoria, and a former member, Geo. Huitmuller, whom all were glad to see once more. The cucumber, which is now a regular weekly trophy for the highest score, went to Alfred Zeller, who made the phenomenal record of 204 in the shade.

On Chicago Alleys.

After the meeting of the Florists' Club, Friday evening, September 1, a number of the members adjourned to Anson's Alleys. Captain Anson sympathized with the members of the Detroit team present and was pleased to learn that one of our men, George Stollery, had been so successful. Two regular games were rolled and one that was not regular. For the irregularity of the latter blame must be attached to the scorers, Ed. Winterson and Walter Kreitling. These veteran bowlers have a way of counting which would be a boon to any team in a national contest. They are so accustomed to giving large measure in business that they cannot help following the same course when it comes to chalking up the figures for the men on their respective teams in a bowling contest. A. L. Vaughan complains bitterly because the scores in this game were not given to the press, as he (with a number of others) made records which would have compelled the admiration of the bowling world. Too bad, Lloyd! The scores in the regular games were as follows:

Name	1st	2d	Name	1st	2d
Winterson	117	142	Bruner	119	113
Vaughan	150	136	Degnan	141	116
Enders	104	113	Barker	79	104
Hauswirth	152	135	Samuelson	97	104
Kreitling	105	135	Woodward	111	168
Henderson	103	141

Cricket at Philadelphia.

The cricket devotees among the florists of this city and vicinity engaged in another match Thursday afternoon, September 7. It was the return game between the Stoke Pogis and Florists of Philadelphia; the first contest, a few weeks ago, at Stoke Pogis farms, resulted in a victory for the florists and Stoke Pogis at once issued a challenge for they believed they could do the trick if given another chance. The game was played on the grounds of the gun club at Wissanoming, which had been especially prepared for the contest. A lunch was provided and John Westcott furnished a bowl of his famous punch, which it is said is worth going miles to sample and perhaps accounts for some of the fine scores. Bowling and batting were better than in the first game. The special feature was the batting of Lockerbie, who was substituted by Mr. Watson for himself, and who made thirty-eight runs and was finally retired, apparently to recuperate. David Rust was the next best run getter, of the florists, having ten to his credit. Moro Phillips made twenty-three and J. Lord nineteen and were the only two players of the Stoke Pogis team to get double figures. Only one inning was played by each side so that the match was declared a draw. Another game will be arranged to decide the championship in the near future. The score follows:

FLORISTS.	Runs	STOKE POGIS.	Runs
Thatcher	1	John Gardner	0
Dodd	4	Geo. Gardner	1
Lockerbie	38	Neal Gardner	1

Lynn, Mass.

The early planting of carnations seems to have been generally adopted here and most of the growers have benched their stock and have it looking well.

Gibbs Bros. have built a boiler house and potting shed and will put in a forty horse-power boiler. They report fall trade starting early.

S. H. Davenport will put in a twenty-five horse-power boiler and will make his steam with coke.

Wyman & Sons are renovating thoroughly. They have a fine lot of Boston fern.

C. Tassinari has started the Lynn Flower and Fruit Store at 69 Market street.

W. F. Newhall is reglazing three houses.

JAP.

Cleveland.

Business continues dull with no immediate prospect for improvement, save one, the bankers' meeting; the decorations for this will probably be quite extensive. We have had no rain for one solid month and outdoor stock is suffering extremely. Carnations are very small, and unless watered, will be of normal size hardly anywhere.

A.

NAHANT, MASS.—Joseph Troudt, for the past eighteen months foreman for Thomas Roland, will remove to Andover, Mass., and enter business on his own account.

SALEM, MASS.—Wm. T. Walke has his new range nearly completed. Considerable trouble is being experienced here with grasshoppers. One lot of chrysanthemums plunged outside were completely stripped of foliage by them.

St. Paul.

C. A. Smith is erecting the finest rose house in the state. It is 35x110, built on a side hill. There are six benches rising one above the other, terrace like. Butted glass, 18x18 is used. Roses are the principal stock grown here and Mr. Smith still clings to the old time favorite, Bennett, and considers it one of the most profitable. It must not be forgotten, however, that many of his Bennetts are on fifteen to eighteen-inch stems, rivaling the Beauty. The Meteor he has discarded as it takes too much heat to develop it. Mr. Smith built his first houses here twenty-five years ago but despite his seventy years he is as active as most men at fifty. FELIX.

OTTAWA, ILL.—This city will have a street fair and big floral parade October 7. Over $25,000 has been raised.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Thos. Miller, a well known colored gardener, died at the Hartford hospital on August 27, aged 31.

LYNN, MASS.—Wm. Miller is the latest victim of the "palm swindler." How the brightest of us do get caught occasionally!

FREEPORT, N. Y.—Recent additions to Fred. Lenker's establishment give him 11,500 square feet of ground surface covered with glass. Mignonette and violets grow finely here.

SO. LANCASTER, MASS.—The large three-quarter-span rose house recently erected by Lord & Burnham for Nathaniel Thayer, A. Meredith, gardener, has been filled with roses and chrysanthemums. The house is built with a pit both front and back and is a model in its way.

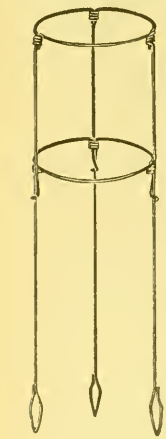
BUSINESS SHOWS MORE LIFE.—WITH THE GROWERS.—IMPROVEMENTS IN ACCOMMODATIONS.

Business has brightened up a little but the continued hot weather causes the roses and carnations to still come in rather small. The month of September has brought a number of weddings; one very large church affair taking place at St. Paul's Cathedral on Tuesday of this week was called a "white chrysanthemum" wedding on account of the many large, long stemmed asters used.

J. L. Weiland, one of our best chrysanthemum growers, has dropped that flower this fall, devoting his space to roses and carnations. Fred. Burki, of Bellevue, has four large houses of chrysanthemums coming in good shape. He has seven houses of carnations and eleven of roses.

A. W. Smith has secured a much larger store a few doors above his present location on Sixth avenue.



J. B. Ferguson is remodeling his store room, placing large mirrors above his counters. He has been adding to his stock of palms and decorative plants and will have a fine display when he opens up for business. G. O.

OCONOMOWOC, WIS.—Mrs. H. C. Buchler is very ill with typhoid pneumonia and her physician despairs of her recovery.

KINGSTON, R. I.—The members of the Newport Horticultural Society visited the Agricultural College and Experiment Station here on Labor Day, September 4.

PONTIAC, ILL.—Jay Miller, the 19-year old son of W. J. Miller, died September 4 after a long illness. Miss Pauline Menke, of Hope, Ind., has become Mr. Miller's assistant. He has planted his carnations, about 1500, and is already cutting some fine Brides and Bridesmaids from early stock.

The MODEL Extension Carnation Support.

LANCASTER PA., June 17, '99.
MR. THERON PARKER, Brooklyn, N. Y.:
Dear Sir:—Your Model Carnation Support is a right in every way and will no doubt be extensively used as necessary as good plants with growers when better known. I consider it the best on the market, and if your other specialties are equally as good, they should make another addition to the money makers of 1900. Respectfully,
ALBERT M. HERR.

FLATBUSH, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Feb 18 '97.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Dear Sir:—Your wire stake is certainly a gem. Without hesitating we indorse it as an up-to-date carnation support. Yours truly,
DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

W. HOBOKEN, N. J., Feb 18 '97.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Dear Sir:—It gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carnation supports. I think that those I have had from you are about as perfect as anybody will be able to make them. They certainly fill my bill for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been looking for a long time. Wishing you every success in the sale of them, I am

Helpful Reminders.

In the pigeon-hole of your desk labeled "Fall Orders" are, or should be, memoranda of plantings of shrubs, perennials and various things that were put off for attention this fall. Now is the time for success. If you have not already provided the stock do so at once. Prepare the places for them. Dig large holes and wet well before planting so that when the job is finished the surface of the ground will be dry. Where there is much foliage pick most of it off and cover the loose soil with leaves or straw to prevent rapid evaporation of moisture and the forming of a crust after a rain. This work done before October 1 is much more certain of success than it done later.

Beware of the penny wise and pound foolish practice of saving fuel on occasional cool nights and allowing the temperature to go too low. Be ready to fire and exercise as much care in autumn as in winter.

Where callas were potted August 1, as they should have been, they can be put inside now in a uniformly warm temperature. They should have plenty of water and good drainage and will come on rapidly as you need them, before the early Harrisii.

Primula obconica should have had its last shift now, and will soon be blooming luxuriantly; it is a great help for short white in October and November when white carnations are always scarce.

If you have an old plant of white abutilon in open ground cut it back and clean it up ready for fall bloom; there is nothing like it for daily cutting where a short white is wanted for covering designs; turn the petals back after stemming.

Do not forget that Clematis paniculata takes well on the flower market, but it must be cut and placed with ends in fresh water overnight before using or shipping; sprays should be at least two feet long.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

SPECIMEN PLANTS.

This is a critical time with specimen plants. Extreme care should mark our use of stimulants, as injury beyond recovery might result from an overdose at this time. We need to become acquainted with the plants, as we would individuals. Some take more plant food than others. It would be a hard matter to over-do it with W. H. Lincoln, while Ivory and G. W. Childs are hard to handle in this respect; Ivory becomes stunted, G. W. Childs, palein the color of the leaves. The probability is that all the feeding roots are dead—in fact, when artificial fertilizers are used, plant food in condensed form, ready to hand, the plants will not search for it and will not develop good root systems. When this condition is discovered the only thing to do is to let them go dry, and only water when absolutely necessary and then only with clear water.

All the growing shoots are now made, and the majority of them should be in place. We can see now the position on the plant each should have and shape them accordingly. Still some shoots will grow later and longer than others, so that to keep the specimens shapely we shall have to rearrange them frequently, for it does not do to let them get hard. It is a mistake to leave a plant until nearly exhibition time and then stake it out. In a case of necessity it may be done with fair results, but it should be done before.

Disbudding will soon commence. I am able now to disbud Mrs. Kalb, but this variety will probably be too early for the week of November 7. For an early exhibition, say the first week of November, the buds should be showing prominently by September 20, and showing color four weeks later. At least two weeks are required, after they show color, before maturity. Plants not showing buds before the first of October will hardly be in.

I gave the plan of allowing several buds to develop on a shoot a trial last season in order to get a mass of color. In this respect I succeeded, and for my own part was satisfied, but I hardly found one to agree with me. Most visitors preferred fewer and large flowers. I dislike to see plants looking thin, as they often do when disbudded closely.

Where wire frames are used we must bend as many shoots as possible to the lower part of the frame. We shall not set too many there; the greatest danger is congestion at the top. Plants grown wholly outdoors in pots should be carefully cleaned and housed. If any fungoid diseases show, a little sulphur scattered about will prove beneficial. Fumigation once or twice will kill all aphides brought in with the plants. It should be done before they get a foothold, and especially before the foliage softens as it always does when the plants are housed.

Those planted out should be potted and staked into shape. About the first of October a little fire heat should be given on damp days, just enough to keep the air moving. T. D. HATFIELD.

The Exhibition at Toronto.

For the last two weeks the Toronto Industrial Exhibition has been in full swing and the show of plants and flowers, when one considers the hot and dry weather, was very good. I noticed that, as usual, the bulk of the prizes for greenhouse and other plants were taken by the various public parks and gardens, few of the florists being in a position to compete with them. Joe. Graham, gardener at the Government House, did very well, taking two firsts, three seconds and two thirds. Manton Bros. took first for twelve stove and greenhouse plants in flower, first for fifty ferns in 3-inch pots and a number of second and third prizes in other departments.

The large prizes offered for the best group of plants caused keen competition and the banks of plants were not only in good condition, but so tastefully arranged as to require very careful judging. The prizes were disposed of as follows: First, $50, to the Horticultural Gardens; second, $40, Manton Bros.; third, $30, Government House; fourth, $20, Grainger Bros.

Robert Brooks, of Fergus, took third prize for flowering begonias, second for twelve tuberous begonias and third for six fuchsias.

The cut flower display was very good. Wm. Rennie succeeded in taking three firsts for dahlias. Jno. Dunlop took first for a handsome bridal bouquet, composed of Bride roses, Asparagus plumosus, with sprays of lily of the valley, swainsonia and Asparagus Sprengerii. A. Gilchrist took both first prizes for carnations and the first for Semple asters. First prize for twenty spikes of cannas went to Wm. Rennie, as did the two first prizes for some fine asters. Jno. Dunlop headed the list in all the prizes given for roses and also for the floral design for the table.

For the funeral design Grainger Bros. took first with a very well executed anchor and capstan. Dunlop took second with a rather peculiar design, a pair of scales, very well executed. The third prize went to J. Simmons for the conventional harp.

It would occupy too much space to enumerate all the prizes given but I may mention some exceedingly fine petunias and Phlox Drummondi which won four first prizes for Wm. Rennie. There was a grand display of gladioli; first for twenty varieties went to A. Gilchrist; first for ten varieties to Wm. Rennie. Three exceptionally fine spikes of Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora gained first prize for J. B. Gallenger, of Southena, and Manton Bros. took first for best fifty vases of cut flowers. There was not a large collection of sweet peas nor were they as good as usual. F. Davis, of Guelph, showed the best and succeeded in taking the two first prizes.

The collection of hardy plants was the best I have yet seen at the exhibition.

Exhibition at Red Bank, N. J.

The third annual exhibition of the Monmouth County Horticultural Society was held at Red Bank, N. J., August 30 and 31 and was a marked improvement on former years. The various groups of foliage and decorative plants were much admired and the exhibits of cut flowers, fruits and vegetables were extensive. A special prize was awarded to Mr. Woods for a lot of bees in a glass case where they could be seen working; also to N. Butterback for a collection of squash, to O. McIntosh for a collection of vegetables, and to G. H. Allaire and Arthur Berrand for collections of outdoor grapes. J. T. Lovett's exhibition of cannas, perennials and dahlias were a marked feature. W. A. Manda, South Orange, was to the front, as usual, with an elegant lot of orchids and other novelties. Siebrecht & Son had a fine lot of oncidiums. The judges were: H. A. Siebrecht, New York; Wm. Turner, Tarrytown; Wm. Bartholomae, Kingsbridge, N. Y.; and W. G. Eisele, Long Branch, N. J.

The principal prize winners in the plant classes for members were H. A. Kettel, N. Butterbach and W. Kennedy. In the classes open to all J. T. Lovett was the principal winner. In the classes for fruits and vegetables W. Kennedy won seven firsts and five seconds; H. A. Kettel, five firsts, two seconds; N. Butterback, four firsts, seven seconds; Geo. Kuhn, four firsts, six seconds; O. McIntosh, four firsts, three seconds; A. Brighton, two firsts, two seconds; A. Smock, Jos. Turkington, R. Murphy and H. Jackson, one first each.

CARNATIONS.

CULTURAL NOTES.

September 16.—One of the frequent sights at this season is a variety of carnation upon which the lower leaves on some of the plants die off and dry up. Sometimes only a few leaves die and again half the lower part of many plants will be filled with dry leaves. This can hardly be called a disease as it can usually be assigned to weakness in the variety. Plants like this may meet with a check in replanting but they need not be unprofitable, as with a little extra care they will outgrow their weakness.

The best way to treat plants in this debilitated condition is to let them alone until they have regained some of their strength. They should be very carefully watered, but otherwise should be disturbed as little as possible. Do not attempt to pull the dead leaves off for at least six weeks after housing; they are better left alone until about November 15, by which time the plants should be in good growing condition. The best way to clean off these dead leaves is to syringe the plants heavily so that the leaves will be soft; then by talking the stalk of the plant in one hand and pulling the leaves off upward they can be taken off easily and with no danger of "skinning" the plants.

This advice may not agree with some florists' ideas of cleanliness, but I have tried the method of going over such plants every few weeks with disastrous results and I have tried letting them alone with benefit. Where one has plenty of plants it would no doubt pay better to pull these weak plants out and replant the house. I have done this with a house this season but where this cannot be done the grower need not feel particularly blue, as with care they will come out all right.

There is danger in these cool September nights, before fire heat is put in. If the plants go to bed frequently with wet foliage, it will not be long before you have a beautiful attack of "spot." I have said it before, but I repeat it, that as soon as the plants are established in the houses all syringing should be stopped and the plants watered between the rows and early in the day so that they can dry off thoroughly before night. This is especially important between now and the time you put on fire heat.

Green fly can at no time be so successfully fought as now; there are not many flowers to be spoiled by smoke, and I have as yet failed to find anything quite so effective as smoke produced by clean tobacco stems, consequently for the next month we shall smoke the houses once a week. After the plants come into full bloom we cut the smoking down to twice a month.

Buds should be carefully thinned out for it the plants are allowed to produce a full crop of blooms as soon as housed the after crop is sure to suffer. Going over the houses once a week and cutting out all but two or three of the strongest buds gives you flowers that will find a market in competition with chrysanthemums and at the same time stores up the energy of your plants for a good Christmas crop. This thinning out the buds must be discontinued the latter part of October or you will be cutting into your Christmas crop. Particular care will have to be used in removing the buds of slow blooming varieties. Disbudding should of course, be followed up from the time the first bud is left to open until the last one is cut.

ALBERT M. HERR.

WITH THE GROWERS.

FRED. STIELOW, NILES CENTER, ILL.

Fred. Stielow is, without doubt, the pioneer cut flower grower of the west, having begun operations here in 1874, coming from Boston, where he had been producing flowers for that market but also shipping to New York and Chicago. Appreciating the opportunity for a cut flower grower in the vicinity of Chicago, Mr. Stielow settled down at Niles Center where he went into business under the firm name of Stielow & Kuske. There were then a number of other floral establishments in and near Chicago, but all confined their energies to pot plants. After some years Mr. Stielow sold out but started again within a stone's throw of the original establishment. He has increased gradually until he now has a range of nineteen houses, eight of which are devoted to roses, of which he grows only three varieties, Bride, Bridesmaid and Meteor.

Carnations are now being housed. There are ten houses devoted to this flower. Mr. Stielow has tried many varieties, but has retained only a few. His favorites are Lizzie McGowan, Alaska, Wm. Scott, White Cloud, Daybreak and Flora Hill, mostly white, as will be noted.

Marie Louise is the only violet grown here, Mr. Stielow having tried several others only to discard them. Several varieties of chrysanthemums are grown, about 1100 plants in all, and they look very promising.

Mr. Stielow is still busy with glazing, having rebuilt all his houses last spring. Several improvements were made in the establishment, the most noteworthy being the use of the Garland gutter. Mr. Stielow is already of the opinion that he would not be without it now for twice the cost. Another improvement is the Chicago ventilating machine of the John C. Moninger Co., from whom the sash were also procured. The glass, 16x20 A, was purchased early in spring at a very low figure, the new used on the south side of the houses with the old glass towards the north. The houses are built on the short-span-to-the-south plan. The establishment is heated by three Kroeschell boilers, using both hot water and steam.

The product of the houses is consigned to the Chicago market, and always finds a ready sale at very satisfactory prices.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The annual fall show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society was held this week at Savoy Hall. The great feature in the flower department was the dahlia display of H. F. Burt. W. H. Tarbox also made a fine display of dahlias in the various classes. Asters were shown by Neil Ward, W. H. Tarbox, Wm. Hill and Jerome Hunt, and Wm. Hill staged a good group of ferns. Outside the above mentioned the contributions were from amateurs and showed the usual degree of excellence.

HYDRANGEAS AS GROWN BY W. DOWNS, CHESTNUT HILL, MASS.

Hydrangea Otaksa.

The plants shown in the illustration are those exhibited by W. Downs, gardener to H. Dumaresq, at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's show. Mr. Downs' method of growth is somewhat different from that generally followed. The plants are kept in a barn cellar all winter. The old wood is cut back to three or four eyes and the plants are put out of doors as early as possible where they can get plenty of sun light, being covered over when there is danger from late frosts. They are never under glass. After the flowers begin to show color the plants are moved under the shade of apple trees. Sheep manure is the stimulant used mainly.

Commenting on Mr. Meehan's statement in a recent issue of the AMERICAN FLORIST, to the effect that cut backs on hydrangeas will not bloom, Mr. Downs says that he finds no trouble whatever on that score, it being essential only that the wood be thoroughly ripened in the fall. To facilitate this the plants are carried in every night and out every day in the fall, until the wood is hard and the leaves yellow and dropping and on the advent of severe weather are placed in the barn cellar for the winter, as above noted.

The plants shown in the illustration are six years old, bearing from seventy-five to one hundred and sixty heads of bloom each, the trusses on those bearing the lesser number being frequently eighteen inches across.

ANDOVER, MASS.—Paul R. Burt, of Lowell, has opened a branch store in the Musgrove Block here.

RACINE, WIS.—N. C. Clemenson has lost most of his outdoor stock through the ravages of the army worm.

WATERTOWN, MASS.—Jos. O. Wellington has been making extensive improvements in his forcing houses, including new heating apparatus.

FLORISTS' CLUB GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS.—SHAW WAS ON DECK.—WHOLESALE HOUSES IN SHIP-SHAPE.—BETTER BUSINESS IN SIGHT.—DOINGS OF THOSE OF THE CRAFT.

On Monday evening the Florists' Club opened the business season of 1899-1900 in due form. The attendance was very gratifying with one exception, the absence of both president and vice-president. An able "pro tem" was secured, however, in the person of ex-president O'Mara and business proceeded without a hitch, under his experienced direction. J. Austin Shaw, who was present, gave a glowing narrative of the Detroit meeting and was loudly applauded and congratulated on his recovery from his injuries. Messrs. O'Mara, Weathered, Withers and Traendly also added interesting testimony. Secretary Young was instructed by a unanimous vote to express formally to the Detroit club the gratitude and thanks of the New York organization for their generous hospitality. A letter was read from Chas. Henderson thanking the club for the floral emblem sent to the funeral of their late fellow-member, Alfred Henderson, and Messrs. C. B. Weathered, S. C. Nash and J. P. Cleary were appointed a committee to prepare suitable resolutions on Mr. Henderson's death.

The smell of new paint still permeates the entire neighborhood of the wholesale quarter and there is many a well-daubed suit of clothes in and about Twenty-eighth street to testify to the industrious efforts of amateur interior decorators. It will be some time before the fragrance of the rose and the lily fully overcomes the scent of this general house cleaning, but it is a great improvement. Last week saw some indications of better business conditions but the present week, starting out with bad weather, does not look so promising and stock has for the time being fallen back to the old summer schedule of values, roses, bringing in bulk not over $4 and $5 per thousand. A few fancy carnations are being received and cattleyas are more plentiful at 40 cents.

A miscellaneous lot of garden tools and implements damaged in the fire at Peter Henderson & Co.'s was sold at auction by order of the fire underwriters on Friday, September 8.

A. Herrington returned on the steamer Campania on September 2. He is sending some very fine mahogany red chrysanthemums to Thos. Young, Jr., under the name of Pride of the Market.

The proximity of the East river is possibly responsible for the great interest manifested at the Cut Flower Market, in the coming international yacht race. Mathews is backing the Shamrock.

The Rosary has been removed from its old location to 388 Fifth avenue.

H. A. Siebrecht has gone to Newport.

SIGNS OF AUTUMN IN THE QUAKER CITY.—A NEW COMMISSION HOUSE.—HOME COMING OF THE BURTON FAMILY.—PLANTING ON THE ESPLANADE.—SOME FINE EXHIBITS.

Now that the Grand Army veterans have gone and the marching rhythm of brass bands no longer fills the air, we have begun to settle down and look for business. We are not bothered much as yet but have hopes, for the signs of activity in homes silent throughout the summer and the swelling throngs with sunbrowned faces in the shopping districts all point to the fact that summer is over. The stores are adding new lines as each week passes and growers with choice stock have little difficulty in disposing of everything at fair prices. Roses of all kinds are in very good form for the season and some quite fair carnations are now making their appearance. Beauties being $6 to $10; teas $3 to $5; carnations 50 cents to 75 cents. Asters are on the wane.

There is a new commission man in town. Wm. J. Moore, who for a number of years past has had the handling of the cut flower stock of Robert Craig & Son, has opened a commission business in his own name at 36 South Sixteenth street. Mr. Moore is a hard worker, well up in the business and a good salesman. With these qualities there is every prospect of success.

Geo. Burton returned from his European trip last week and reports having had a very pleasant time. Albert Burton, who has been summering in Nova Scotia, is also back and much benefitted by his outing. Isaac Kennedy, another of the Burton family, who has been "away down east" for a rest, is also again in the harness. Roses should now come from the "Hill" with stems just a little longer and buds a shade nearer the standard, if that is possible.

The planting of the flower beds in the center of the esplanade, the main avenue leading from the entrance to the principal buildings of the great Export Exposition, which opened in this city last Thursday, was completed on time and was about the only feature of the exhibition which could claim this distinction. The buildings proper were ready for the exhibits but, like all other affairs of a similar character, the tardy exhibitors were much in evidence. The undertaking promises, however, to be a great success and will soon be in complete running order. The Florists' Club undertook the decorating of the grounds, the plants necessary to be furnished gratis by its members. The exhibition company is to pay the expense of maintenance. Edward Campbell, of Ardmore, the celebrated landscape architect was placed in charge of the work and David Rust appointed secretary of the committee having the matter in charge for the club. Messrs. Thos. Meehan & Son filled one of the fine beds down the center of the esplanade with evergreens, as did also the Andorra Nursery Company. Robt. Craig & Son filled their space with cannas and suitable border plants. John Westcott planted a section with ornamental foliage plants and palms. A. Blanc made a very interesting exhibit of cacti in his section, many of the specimens being quite valuable. A. Knapper planted a side bed very prettily with ferns and Hugh Graham's exhibit of tropical plants formed an interesting and showy group. Messrs. Campbell and Rust worked hard to make the work of the club a feature and other members were equally zealous. K.

ORDERS MORE PLENTIFUL THAN STOCK.—GOOD PRICES THE RULE — DEATH OF CHARLES GAGER VAUGHAN.—DOINGS AT REINBERGS' —AFFAIRS AT LINCOLN PARK. —BRUNS EN ROUTE FROM EUROPE.—MANGEL BRANCHES OUT.—BUSINESS CHANGES AND OTHER MATTERS OF INTEREST.

Beginning with last Saturday business has been too good for the stock in the market and both roses and carnations have been in short supply and prices good, fair field blooms of the latter selling at $1 per hundred, at which rate they ought to pay the grower handsomely. Shipping trade is very good and the scarcity of other stock has brought the aster back into favor, for, although there are more of the poor qualities than can be sold at a profit, the best blooms sell readily at from $1 to $1.50 per hundred. Sweet peas are about at an end, J. S. Forster, of Evanston, being about the only grower who is cutting them in quantity. For almost the first time since spring the fakirs are taking a vacation.

THE LATE ALFRED HENDERSON. (SEE PAGE 175 OF LAST ISSUE.)

J. C. Vaughan has the sympathy of many friends in the unexpected death of his youngest son, Charles Gager Vaughan, aged eighteen years. The young man and his elder brother, Leonard, were on a camping vacation in Montana, when, during one of their trips, far from camp and seventy miles from a railroad, Gager was taken ill. Over rough trails Leonard carried both packs two days, making twenty miles in that time. An old Indian buckboard with two horses was finally secured and an effort made to catch a train soon to stop at the Indian agency, Browning, Mont., but an eminence of the Blackfoot valley was reached only in time to see the train steam away. The agency physician treated the patient for appendicitis and he recovered so far as to be able to start for home, arriving in this city September 7, after a painful journey. Exposure to the rains and cold in camping, and long tramps and hard wagon rides while ill, brought on gastric troubles which aggravated the situation. Conveyed home in an ambulance with physicians in attendance, his condition was at no time considered critical; but he never gained strength, and died September 9. C. G. Vaughan was a popular student at the Armour Institute and a champion athlete.

At any time one must take at least two looks to see the whole of the Reinberg place, for 800,000 feet of glass is too big a range to be taken in at a glance, but now one who wishes to comprehend the whole must take a separate look, a long one, at each house, and there are very many of them, for the big establishment is in fine shape and fast settling down for its winter's work. The place never looked better. The roses are making good growth and promise splendid crops while the new varieties of carnations, which are nearly all represented here, afford much to study. Peter Reinberg is particularly pleased with America. He expects carnations to be in great demand this season and sees an era of prosperity ahead of the trade. Unless he is counting his chickens before they are hatched he will see the Paris exposition and a good part of Europe next summer.

Six of the new houses at Lincoln Park are finished and planted and the other six, which are above the storage and work rooms, are well under way. This is the fourth time that building has been necessary in the twenty-three years that C. J. Strombach has been in charge of the work, but this time the construction is so thorough that he thinks the houses will stand as long as he does. The Garland gutter is being used and there is little wood in the range except the sash bars and benches. The outdoor displays are good this year, particularly the aquatics. The Victorias are better than ever, one plant, which Mr. Strombach raised from seed, having twenty-three mammoth leaves. There will be a fine display of chrysanthemums this fall, the plants having made good growth since they were moved into the new houses.

H. N. Bruns sailed from Hamburg, Germany, on September 10 and is expected home September 24. He has been absent nearly four months and while in Germany bought 200,000 lily of the valley pips; he forced 100,000 last year. The Bruns establishment has been cutting fair lily of the valley for about two weeks, about all that is obtainable in Chicago.

The Bohemian National Cemetery is sending some very good field-grown carnations to the wholesale market. They grow chrysanthemums, carnations and Beauties and have a particularly good red sport of Tidal Wave, of which they have a whole house this year.

J. Mangel, who has made a pronounced success with his down town store, corner State and Washington, will open a store in the residence district of the south side about October 1, southeast corner Forty-seventh street and Lake avenue.

Jos. Fink & Son, 383-389 Herndon street, have dissolved partnership, Frank J. Fink retiring to begin business for himself, at 530 Nielson street, as a grower. He has four houses, giving him 6,700 feet of glass.

W. H. Hilton now occupies the store formerly conducted by E. J. Thiele at 179 Michigan avenue.

Reinbergs shipped 1000 American Beauties to Colorado Springs, Colo., September 10.

The contents of the Omaha Exposition, including plants, have been purchased by the Chicago House Wrecking Co.

H. Schiller reports the summer trade excellent at every one of his three west side stores.

E. C. Amling is now well enough to be down town each forenoon.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is receiving a few chrysanthemums daily.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—A VARIETY OF STOCK.—TRADE FAIR.—AWARDS AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.—VARIOUS MINOR JOTTINGS OF INTEREST.

A tour of the wholesale marts finds business moving along at a fair jog and the out-of-town summer trade holding its own at a much later date than in any recent year. The material offered is as varied in quality as assortment. In roses a large proportion of inferior stock is being received. This applies principally to Bridesmaids and Brides as American Beauty averages first-class for the season and the best grades still maintain their summer value. Carnations in colors are in demand and a grower with good Scott, Daybreak and scarlet or crimson varieties would have no difficulty in placing a good cut regularly at tempting figures just at present. White carnations are very inferior, as a rule, but they are not missed in the prevailing abundance of white asters, which take their place for most uses. As soon as the asters desert us carnations will be good property, even if inferior. There are plenty of white Japan lilies in market, which come in very usefully for the man with a funeral order, and no end of gladioli, mostly light colored and hence useful for the same purpose, especially when half hidden by a veil of Adiantum cuneatum.

There was an exhibition at Horticultural Hall last Saturday, devoted mostly to fruit and vegetables but dahlias and herbaceous plants were there in attractive array and awards were made to H. F. Burt and Lothrop & Higgins for the first named and to W. N. Craig, J. Heurlin and Rea Bros. for the latter. Oakes Ames received a certificate of merit for Cypripedium Kimballianum and gratuities were given to E. J. Mitton for Cattleya labiata, J. E. Clapp for chrysanthemum flowered sunflowers, Rea Bros. for phloxes, etc.

John M. Galvin, who has held the position of City Clerk of Boston for a number of years, has given notice of his resignation to take effect October 1, and will devote his time to his mining interests.

A notice is out from the clerk's office of the U. S. District Court regarding the petition for discharge of James A. and John A. Galvin, of the late wholesale firm of Galvin & Co., in bankruptcy.

J. G. Jack will conduct a series of lectures and field meetings at the Arnold Arboretum during the autumn for the benefit of all who desire to study the trees and shrubs of New England.

At the meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society on Saturday, September 3, fifty new life members were received.

Houghton & Clark have leased the store under the Hotel Berkeley, on the corner of Berkeley and Boylston streets, and will remove there October 1.

BUSY DAY RESULTS FROM RECEPTION TO NAVAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE CITY.—MEETING OF THE CLUB.—WARM DEBATES.

September 12, the anniversary of the battle of North Point, was the date selected for the reception given to Captain Dyer of the cruiser "Baltimore." The city was filled with music, soldiers and enthusiasm, and, as a consequence, the pockets of the retail florists were filled more or less completely and their windows and refrigerators emptied. Sam'l Feast & Sons had the banquet decorations, which were executed in their usual good taste. The chief feature was a model of the "Baltimore" nearly seven feet long, perfect in every detail. The hull was formed of cape flowers, the gun shields of white roses and the whole rested on a sea of ivy leaves. A concealed storage battery did the lighting. The design was placed conspicuously on the speakers' table.

Three new members, Jno. A. Cook, Jos. Cook and Thomas A. McCormick, elected at the last meeting, proves the Gardeners' Club still alive. There was some argument at this meeting over selling flowers at the show, the matter being finally settled, almost unanimously, by deciding to have flowers on sale for the benefit of the club, instead of the old way of selling the privilege. The committee intrusted with the Fischer & Ekas matter reported everything again in good shape there. They read a letter in which the firm expressed its appreciation of the assistance given them. There were some interesting discussions toward the close of the session. MACK.

RESUME OF THE SITUATION AT THE TENNESSEE METROPOLIS.—A GOOD SEASON IN SIGHT.—FOUR VERY GOOD FLORAL ESTABLISHMENTS.

While the first ten days of September were scorchers, there is now a prospect of cooler weather and florists are preparing for an increased business. In a few days our many private schools will receive their hundreds of pupils and this always gives an impetus to the floral trade. The cooler days have also brought back the summer sojourners but "society" is as yet inactive. All through the season mortuary work has been the sustaining factor, several very large funerals causing a big demand.

For such a dry, hot season, stock is looking very well. Roses are still small but there are some good La France and Kaiserin in the market. Beauty shows up fairly well and promises fine for the winter. Asters are pretty good and an abundance of beautiful Clematis paniculata has helped out wonderfully. The long drought has held back dahlias and these flowers will come in just in time to be destroyed by the first frost. Chrysanthemums are looking fine. All of the best varieties are being cultivated and this flower has suffered no decadence in popularity in this locality.

There are four fine floral stores now, pretty well bunched on Church street, and they do the majority of the floral trade of the city. Geny Bros., who are the latest comers, report a fairly good summer. They have a very pretty store in the Tulane Hotel and are specially good on carnations. They have their own greenhouses. Curry & Co., who enjoy a fine patronage, have made extensive preparations for the winter trade and their stock is in fine shape. Joy & Son are hustlers and have a fine showing for their labors. Mrs. C. A. Birn and Mrs. E. Kramer, are not growers and purchase all of their stock. Both have a good trade and turn out some excellent work. M. C. DORRIS.

MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY.—PLANS FOR THE WINTER SEASON.—MONTHLY EXHIBITIONS A SUCCESS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held September 7 at the greenhouses of R. Witterstaetter, about twenty members being present. The committee reported on the money subscribed for the monthly shows, which are to be continued during the winter season. A. Sunderbruch, R. Witterstaetter and Benj. George have received $150 in subscriptions and there are others to be heard from. It is to be hoped that $300 will be raised so as to enable us to offer $50 each month for awards.

After the business meeting Mr. Witterstaetter invited the boys to his wine cellar, where samples of liquids awaited our coming. After inspecting the range of houses and carnations a lunch was served and it is safe to say that all enjoyed themselves.

Tuesday, September 12, the board of directors met at the residence of E. G. Gillett to map out the new schedule for the ensuing year. It was decided at this meeting that our genial friend, Theo. Bock, of Hamilton, be invited to serve as judge at these shows. The committee will bring in its final report at a special meeting to be held September 23.

Charles J. Jones has returned from Philadelphia, where he attended the G. A. R. encampment with his friend and comrade, President McKinley.

H. SCHWARZ.

ATHOL, MASS.—Jas. Sutherland will go to Boston, October 1, to enter the employ of his uncle, Geo. A. Sutherland.

IONIA, MICH.—Miss Sarada Dysinger, of M. & S. L. Dysinger, of Albion, Mich., and Mrs. Eliza Sprague, of Holly, N. Y., also a florist, are visiting their brother, Geo. Dysinger, here.

BROCKTON, MASS.—Copeland & Cooper have dissolved partnership, Mr. Cooper retaining the store and Mr. Copeland the greenhouses in West Bridgewater, which he will hereafter conduct in his own name.

WE are indebted to Robt. Craig & Son for a copy of the richly illustrated National Export Exposition souvenir of Philadelphia.

PLANTS of Acalypha Sanderi in the open ground this season have made better growth than those under glass. How these plants will thrive when taken up and potted has yet to be determined. The plant evidently likes full exposure to air and sun.

IT is said that a good new, free-flowering ageratum will be offered next spring by Dreer and Vaughan. The plant originated with James Gurney, of Tower Grove Park, St. Louis, Mo., and has been named Stella Gurney. In habit it is dwarf and compact, with deep blue flower-heads.

Transportation to Ottawa.

The secretary of the Canadian Horticultural Association has received the following information from the Dept. Passenger Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway:

Rates account Central Exhibition, Ottawa, will apply from stations Toronto and east.

Members west will have to pay regular round trip rate to Toronto.

Rates from Toronto will be $7.80. A special excursion will be run on September 18, rate $5.35 from Toronto good to return until September 25.

Trains leave Toronto for Ottawa at 9 a. m. arriving in Ottawa 5 p. m., and 9:30 p. m. arriving in Ottawa following day at 9:30 a. m. A. H. EWING, Sec'y.

Cemetery Superintendents Convene.

Seventy-five members, gathered from eighteen states, attended the thirteenth annual convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents at New Haven, Conn., September 6 and 7. There was the usual list of addresses, among the speakers being A. W. Hobart, Minneapolis; G. C. Nailer, Wilmington, Del.; E. C. Beecher, New Haven; R. J. Haight, Chicago; Timothy McCarthy, Providence, R. I., and others.

The officers elected are: President, Wm. Stone, Salem, Mass.; vice-president, Geo. M. Painter, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary and treasurer, H. Wilson Ross, Newton Center, Mass.; advisory committee, Frank Eurich, Detroit, Mich.; William Salway, Cincinnati, O.; M. P. Brazill, St. Louis, Mo.; executive committee, Frederick Green, J. C. Dix, T. C. Carroll, all of Cleveland, O.

The association now has 147 members; the receipts for the past year were $792.14 and the balance on hand is $12.40.

The Rosarian's Work.

If the reconstructed American Rose Society is to be a live and prosperous organization, as now seems probable, it will be in a great measure due to the recent awakening of American rose growers to the fact that the queen of flowers is much more than merely a useful subject for cut flower forcing purposes and that the development of their favorite involves the consideration of something besides the local questions concerning the culture of the half dozen or so varieties which are commonly grown for the trade of the cut flower shops and the city sidewalk peddlers.

With the exception of the long list of generally unsatisfactory and short-lived budded varieties of so-called hybrid perpetuals of foreign origin, the hardy rose has scarcely been introduced to American flower lovers. The advent of the at once popular Crimson Rambler may be said to mark the turning point and the few pioneers, like Jackson Dawson, who have for years been working unappreciated and getting results uncared for, have now the satisfaction of seeing a score of enthusiastic followers who, with a limitless field, favorable climate, abundant material and a new ambition inspired by trade rivalry and the progressive spirit that puts the American in the van of progress in whatever he earnestly undertakes, as in the case of the chrysanthemum, the canna and the carnation, may be relied upon to follow up the work so well begun and to achieve results that will overshadow in importance, anything heretofore accomplished in American floriculture.

The Crimson Rambler is indeed a grand acquisition, but this, as well as the pretty and interesting progeny of the Wichuraiana and multiflora crossing, as far as seen, is but as the stepping stone to something better in the evolution of our garden favorite to its highest type. The rose will never take its proper place until it has been developed so that we shall have good varieties—climbing as well as bush—blooming continuously from June until November and as vigorous and hardy at least as far north as is Jacqueminot. Who can say that a Crimson Rambler that will not do this is an impossibility? Now that our hybridizers are fairly well started we shall see. And the Rose Society, lifted out of its former restricted field and standing on a broader and better basis, will be no small factor in the great evolution.

The Nomination of S. A. F. Officers.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—In a recent number of your valuable paper the undersigned took occasion to criticise the nominating system by secret ballot now in use in the S. A. F. as being too cumbersome for America, and by which is wasted too much valuable time. I notice your New York contemporary takes exception to what has been said along these lines, and defends the present system in words to this effect:—"That the secret ballot has been adopted in the United States, as in all other lands dominated by the English-speaking race, than whom surely there exists no people more keenly alive to their rights of liberty, of free speech, and of representation, is surely answer enough to this critic who desires to take the S. A. F. back to antiquated methods." The italics are mine.

The writer of the quoted paragraph evidently confounds elections with nominations. A nomination no matter how brought about, is never equivalent to an election—especially when two nominees are candidates for the same office. As proof take the contest for treasurer at Detroit. This system now in use may be in vogue and work satisfactorily in other organizations, as stated by your contemporary; if it is, I do not know where it may be found in popular operation, and I have been connected with quite a number of organizations, but do not know of any where it is operated at all excepting in the National Society.

It is to be regretted if true, that there are people who object to hearing the better qualities of others publicly expressed and allow their personal jealousies and antagonisms to be aroused thereby, but your contemporary has so declared. The undersigned has heard many nominating speeches in his time, but they have never had that effect upon him, nor has he ever had any of his acquaintances or friends make complaints in this connection. Nor has he felt that the nominator was insincere when speaking of the personal good qualities of candidates when being placed in nomination, as stated by your contemporary, no matter if he did feel like voting for the other fellow. We endeavor to cultivate a more generous and up-to-date spirit than that. We always listen courteously to all the good things that may be said about another, even if he is an opponent, without any rankling whatever. Too many of us wait until our fellowman is dead before a thought is given towards saying anything good about him. Of what benefit is laudation to a man under the sod?

Nomination speeches are made in all conventions where officers are to be elected, so far as I am aware, from that for the presidency of the United States down, antiquated though they may be. Nominations by secret ballot curtails "free speech," which is altogether un-American. Let's get back to the good old way. SOLOMON WISE.

A Problem of Return Water.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I am putting in a new steam boiler but cannot get down low enough on account of the sewer to get the returns back into the boiler. Can you suggest any means by which I can catch the return water and put it back into the boiler without raising unnecessary steam? Have got about forty pounds pressure of city water. Can it be utilized to advantage in running any kind of pump to force the return back into the boiler? I. F. C.

While there are various methods of getting the return water back into the boiler, when low pressure is carried none of them are entirely satisfactory and should not be used unless absolutely necessary. If the coils cannot be raised to a height of fifteen inches above the water in the boiler, and if the boiler cannot be lowered without danger from flooding by surface water, it might answer to use the water pressure to run a small rotary pump with which to remove the surplus water from a small reservoir below the level of the boiler room floor. L. R. TAFT.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE MEAGHER.

Many old acquaintances will be pained to hear of the recent death of George Meagher, of Baltimore. For forty years he had been in the employ of the Halliday family, first under Robt. Halliday, then under Robt. J. Halliday and lastly under William J. Halliday. As flower buyer for Robert J. Halliday he was personally acquainted with every grower about the city and "Johnny," as he was familiarly called, was as well liked as he was widely known. His faithfulness to his employer was proverbial and he was wonderfully proficient in his calling.

MACK.

J. H. LUKENS.

Deceased was educated a civil engineer and, after carrying on this work for a number of years, drifted into the florist business, erecting a range of houses in Burlington, N. J., which he operated to the time of his death, in his sixtieth year, September 9. Mr. Lukens was well informed and a close observer. He was most painstaking and thorough in all that he undertook and was very successful in the cultivation of freesias, his product being by far the best reaching the Philadelphia market. His cultural methods were the subject of a special article in this journal about two years ago. The lily of the valley that he offered was also of the first grade. The business will be continued by his son. K.

PHILIP H. ALBURGER.

Philip H Alburger died on Saturday, September 9, after a short illness, aged 64 years. Deceased was brought up to the butchering trade and followed it with his father for several years. About thirty years ago, being fond of flowers, he built a small greenhouse and shortly afterwards, with his brother, Edward, established a commercial business. About fifteen years ago his brother withdrew from the firm. Mr. Alburger was a patient, hard worker, always up to the times, and had built up a lucrative trade, principally cemetery work, his location being opposite the South Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia. A new range of houses was in course of erection at the time of his demise. He had a kind and genial disposition and, while he did not often get to the meetings of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, of which he was a member, he was much liked and popular with those who knew him. He leaves a widow but no children. Mrs. Alburger will continue the business, the present force of employes being very efficient. Interment took place in South Laurel Hill on Tuesday, September 11, and was largely attended by his fellow craftsmen and members of the club. There were numerous floral emblems, that from the Florists' Club being a handsome cross of ornamental foliage with a cluster of choice flowers in the center. At a special meeting of the club the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, We have learned with deep regret of the death of our fellow member, Philip H. Alburger,

Resolved, That we hereby express our deep sense of loss at this dispensation, and further,

Resolved, That we put on record an expression of the high regard and esteem in which we held him. His kindly nature and well known hospitality and goodness of heart endeared him to us all and we feel deep regret that we shall have his cheerful presence among us no more in our business haunts and at our periodical gatherings and

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family.

RAIN OF GREAT BENEFIT TO OUTDOOR STOCK.—CARNATION PLANTS SMALL.—STATE OF TRADE.—THE CLUB NOMINATES OFFICERS.—PLANS FOR MANY CHANGES.

We have had a soaking rain and carnations are in fair shape for lifting. A few growers report more or less red spider on susceptible varieties like Daybreak, Jubilee and Victor, but it seems that stock is quite free from rust and bacterial disease. The plants, however, are extremely variable as to size. Some stock is but little smaller than in normal seasons and it runs from that report down to very poor indeed with some growers.

Business shows some signs of waking up, but little is going on at this time, although the general prosperity in other lines holds out good promise for the future. Roses and carnations are rather poor. A good deal of mildew is to be seen and carnations, being from outside, usually show the signs of the long drought. There seems to have been even more than the usual amount of dissatisfaction with the returns from outdoor asters, responsibility lying between the aster disease and the frisky aster bug.

The lease on the present quarters of the Florists' Club expiring shortly, a committee has been appointed to inspect the facilities in other localities. Nominations for officers for the ensuing year were made at the meeting of September 11 and results were as follows: President, E. H. Cushman; vice-president, Wm. Brinker; second vice-president, A. Schmitt, James Eadie; secretary, A. H. Graham; assistant secretary, S. N. Pentecost; treasurer, H. A. Hart. The election will take place September 25. Some change of methods, looking to practical business results of benefit to the Cleveland florists, was discussed informally at the last meeting, the past year having been virtually devoted to the search for amusement. A.

Nashua, N. H.

Never did stock look better than it does this season. Whatever may be the condition of carnation plants elsewhere, here seems to be enough to go the round with plenty to spare. A white carnation seldom heard of in the middle or western states is Freedom. It is a general favorite here, many claiming for it all that its name implies. Size, however, is one of the qualities it lacks.

Geo. E. Buxton has added one carnation house 16x75 to his plant and has given his entire place a thorough overhauling. His establishment consists of seven houses, with over 17,000 feet of glass, most of which is devoted to carnations. Besides growing the very best of the latest introductions, he has several good seedlings of his own.

Aug. Gaedeke & Co., as usual, have things in fine condition. Both their rose and carnation plants look as if they are going to yield many fine blooms. Acalypha Sanderi and Begonia Gloire de Lorraine are grown here to perfection. HOMO.

IOWA CITY, IA.—Hohenshuh & Wieniecke have dissolved partnership, the latter continuing the business under the name of Wieniecke's Arcade Book Store.

LEWISTON, ME.—The renowned palm swindler paid us a visit and as usual did the trick successfully. Ernest Saunders was the unhappy victim, the cost of his practical experience being about $50.

ADIANTUM.

This very popular decorative green will this year be grown at the "Rosebank" Nurseries under a new system which greatly increases the yield, while adding largely to the beauty, strength and freshness of the fronds.

The management of the "Rosebank" Nurseries offers to the trade a superior article at the particularly low price of 85 cents per hundred.

A limited number of contracts for regular shipments throughout the season will be made with responsible parties for this fern at this price.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALEXANDER RODGERS, Pres; ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Secy and Treas.

VISITED CHICAGO.—L. L. May, of St. Paul, Minn.; J. Comont, representing James Carter, Dunnett & Beale, of London, Eng.

IN Florida it is now unlawful to offer for sale any garden, melon or vegetable seeds unless the same are in packages bearing on the outside in plain letters a guarantee certificate of when, where and by whom the seeds were grown.

IN the course of several months, if there is no appeal against decisions in pending proceedings, a report is likely to be forthcoming in the affairs of the F. E. McAllister Co., according to a statement received from the National Florists' Board of Trade. It is believed that a dividend of about fifteen per cent will be made, but it is still a question whether New York creditors will be paid before foreign creditors.

BUSINESS FAIR.—ONE BIG ORDER.—THE FIRST FROST.—A VISIT TO HOLZNAGLE'S.—CARNATIONS DOING WELL.—AFFAIRS AT SCHROETER'S.—MISS CURTISS IN BUSINESS.

Business has been generally fair, many funerals and a few weddings furnishing the principal occasions for the use of flowers. The big order of the week was for the reopening of a large dry goods store, 5000 roses and carnations being used in the decorations and gifts of roses being made to the ladies. Sullivan had the order and the firm were well pleased with the results of this feature of the opening. It is hoped that other firms will follow their example and thus increase the popularity of flowers and widen their field of usefulness.

A visit to Frank Holznagle's place quickly dispels the idea that all carnations suffered by the drought of the past season, for here is as fine a lot of these plants as one could wish. One house has been planted about a month with Scott and Cerise Queen. Another large house recently planted contains Daybreak and its white sport, Sweet Briar, Buttercup and Scott are all taking hold nicely. This place, consisting of eight large houses, has been entirely renovated during the past summer. Three of the houses were rebuilt completely and the other houses were reglazed and painted. A new hot water boiler has just been connected and a large and improved work shed is nearing completion. Mr. Holznagle is justly proud of a house of Meteor which is certainly extra fine. Two other houses are planted with Bride and Bridesmaid. One house is devoted to chrysanthemums and another to violets, which are entirely free from disease and look the perfection of health and vigor.

B. Schroeter is building a house 20x100 using 12x24 lapped glass and will plant it at once with carnations. His store on Miami avenue is being painted and redecorated and the greenhouse attached is being stocked with palms and ferns to meet the demand of fall trade which he reports is already starting up nicely.

Miss Curtiss, who has had charge of Andrew Ferguson's retail store for the past five years, will continue the business on her own account at the same place, Mr. Ferguson having abandoned the retail business to devote his entire time to his greenhouses.

Thursday morning we had a light frost which was a note of warning and everyone is hastily getting perishable stock inside. J. F. S.

Indianapolis.

CONDITIONS RIGHT FOR BENCHING STOCK.—AMONG THE GROWERS.—MEETING OF THE CLUB.—JOTTINGS.

Most of the Indianapolis florists are now busy housing carnations for we had a few good rains last week that made conditions just right for that kind of work. Notwithstanding the extreme hot summer most of the plants made a good growth.

Wiegand & Son, Alfred Pahud and Conway & Co., have their new houses under glass and mostly planted. Bertermann Floral Co. have two large houses completed and planted, and will have another smaller one, intended for violets, ready this week. A large amount of glass will also be added to the city greenhouses during fall and early winter to be used for bedding plants.

The September meeting of the Society of Indiana Florists was to be held September 5 at Garfield Park. Unfortunately, however, the day proved to be the hottest of the season and only four of some thirty members had, by 8 p. m., braced up sufficiently to appear upon the scene. Those that stayed at home certainly made a mistake as plenty of fresh air and other cool things were on hand.

The florists seem to take less interest than usual in the State Fair, which will open September 18, and present indications are that the floral display will be rather small.

Wm. G. Bertermann left for Mackinac and the lakes September 13.

"Indispensable"

THIS is the only word which describes the American Florist Company's Trade Directory. This book, 359 pages of facts tersely told, is issued annually and is an aid to business and money making which no wholesaler or traveling salesman can afford to be without. It contains the name of every Florist, Nurseryman and Seedsman, arranged both by states and towns and alphabetically. It will save many times its cost by enabling you to cover America with your catalogue and at the same time waste no printed matter or postage on dead names.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

W. J PETERS. Pres.; D. S. LAKE. Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

W. W. WHITNEY, a Southern California fruit grower believes that California can make a success with the Zante currants which are being abandoned in Greece.

IN Russia the method of preventing the root-killing of apple trees is the use of the true Siberian crab, Pyrus baccata, as a stock and Prof. N. E. Hansen recommends it to nurserymen of the north for trial.

New England Park Superintendents.

The second annual meeting of the Association of New England Park Superintendents was held this week at Providence, R. I., the initial meeting having been at Boston last year. The first event was a banquet at the Casino in Roger Williams Park on Tuesday evening and there were numerous other pleasures apart from those of the business sessions, at which a constitution was adopted which provides membership privileges for all those who are actively and directly charged with the direction and maintenance of public parks, including superintendents, assistant superintendents, park engineers, foresters and landscape architects, also any person who by gift is developing and improving lands with the purpose of presenting the same to a city for a park, the same being open to the public use. The society is to act as an auxiliary to the American Park and Outdoor Art Association.

Officers elected were: President, J. A. Pettigrew; secretary, G. A. Parker; treasurer, J. A. Hemingway, and one vice-president from each of the New England states. It was voted that the next meeting be held in Worcester, Mass.

Those present were: J. A. Pettigrew, J. B. Shea, and W. J. Stewart, Boston; Jackson Dawson, Arnold Arboretum; G. A. Parker, Theo. Wirth and H. J. Koehler, Hartford, Conn.; H. H. Williams, Upper Falls, Mass.; C. S. Anthony, Taunton, Mass.; C. F. Lawton, New Bedford, Mass.; J. A. Holmes, Cambridge, Mass.; H. A. Hastings, Springfield, Mass.; Henry Frost, Haverhill, Mass.; R. H. Deming, Timothy McCarthy and J. D. Fitts, Providence, R. I.; C. E. Keith, Bridgeport, Conn.; Walter Hubbard, Meriden, Conn.; J. C. Olmsted, Brookline, Mass.; W. H. Richards, Concord, N. H.; N. Norton, Plymouth, Mass.; H. S. Fuller, New London, Conn.; W. H. Wyman, No. Abington, Mass.; James Draper and J. A. Hemingway, Worcester, Mass.; J. A. Dunn, Gardner, Mass., and R. J. Haight, Chicago.

American Pomological Society.

During the closing sessions of the twenty-sixth biennial meeting of this great organization of fruit growers, a number of important papers were presented and officers re-elected as follows:

President, C. L. Watrous, Des Moines, Ia.; vice-president, Thomas B. Meehan, Germantown, Pa.; secretary, W. A. Taylor, Washington; treasurer, L. R. Taft, Agricultural College, Mich.

Eleven cities asked for the meeting of 1901 and the decision was left to the executive committee, with the chances favoring Buffalo.

The committee on the awards of the Wilder medals, the only prizes given at the society's exhibitions, consisted of Dr. F. M. Hexamer, New York; H. E. Van Deman, Virginia; John Craig, Iowa; G. B. Brackett, Washington, and A. G. Cully, Connecticut. The report rendered by Dr. Hexamer was that silver medals be awarded:

To the New Jersey State Horticultural Society for the large and highly meritorious display, comprising 696 plates in twelve different classes.

To Ellwanger & Barry, Rochester, N. Y., for 100 varieties pears.

To the Arkansas Experiment Station for excellent display of apples, including fifteen varieties seedling apples.

To Michigan sub-Station, South Haven, for its educational exhibit.

To Pomona Nurseries, Parry, N. J., for fine collection edible nuts.

To Roland Morrill, Benton Harbor, Mich., for unique exhibit, showing the results in peach growing by following the most approved methods of culture; illustrated by specimens of fruit and accounts of sales.

To John Charlton, Rochester, for Charlton grape, cross of Brighton and Mills, combining quality of both.

To Arkansas Experiment Station for fifteen various seedling apples correctly named and synonyms given.

Bronze medals were awarded:

To C. L. Watrous for collection of native plums, including the newer varieties, prominently among them the New Ulm, Buroota, Brittlewood and Silver.

To Howard A. Chase, Wiscasset Farms, Mt. Pocono, twenty-four plates apples, six plates pears, two plates plums.

To George E. Murrell, Fontella, Va., for thirty-one plates apples, one quince, eight grapes.

Honorable mention was given to Peder Pederson, Cairnwood Orchards, Bethayres, for forty-two plates fruit and nuts.

To W. B. K. Johnson, Allentown, for thirty-five plates apples, pears, quinces.

To New York Experiment Station, Geneva, for collection of native plums.

To Lyman Phelps, Sanford, Fla., for collection Japanese persimmons.

To Luther Burbank, Santa Rosa, Cal., for grapes and seedling apples, but so damaged in transit that merit could not be determined.

To Experimental Farm, Ottawa, Ont., for collection of fruits, resulting from crosses between Pyrus baccata and cultivated apples on crabs, showing remarkable variation.

To Iowa Experiment Station for specimens of the native crabs, showing considerable improvement in size and form over wild type.

To Pennsylvania Experiment Station for collection of thirty-five plates apples and grapes.

To Greening Bros., Monroe, Mich., for banana apples.

To C. C. Corby, Montclair, N. J., for Corby grape and Montclair grape.

To C. R. Hartshorne, Brighton, Md., for Bloomfield apple.

OUR PASTIMES

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and cycling readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; or to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Baltimoreans Organize.

After the last meeting of the Gardeners' Club of Baltimore an adjournment was taken to the alleys, where the winter's organization was perfected by the election of I. H. Moss, president, and Robt. Halliday, secretary. MACK.

At Cleveland.

The disastrous drubbing administered at Detroit, has exercised a chastening and subduing effect upon the spirits of the doughty bowlers of the Forest City. As a result they are hiding their diminished heads for a brief season and attempting to recuperate. Later, when the weather settles down to a permanently cooler basis, they intend to come out of hiding and go at it again. A.

St. Louis Juniors.

The following scores were made at the meeting of the Junior Florists' Bowling Club last Tuesday evening, September 12:

Name	1st	2d	3d	Av.
Wm. Holtz	126	150	119	132
Wm. Adles	106	110	146	121

At Denver.

J. F. Wilcox, of Council Bluffs, has been sojourning in Colorado for the last few weeks and, although the weather has been uncomfortably hot for bowling, the Denver players could not forego the opportunity to try issues with him. The score recorded September 6, is as follows:

Name	1st	2d.	3d	Av.
J. N. Jakobson	181	196	226	201
J. F. Wilcox	208	163	203	191

At New York.

James Weir, Jr., Commodore of the Shelter Island Yacht Club, has won within the past few days three Atlantic Yacht Club cups with the yacht Eidelon. The Weir family seems to have plenty of skipper blood in them. Mr. Weir's nephew Johnnie, son of the well-known "Johnnie" Weir, of Brooklyn, is always on board and looks forward to the time when he will be a commodore, too.

The bowling club had an enthusiastic rally last Monday afternoon and the following scores were recorded:

Name	1st	2d	3d	Av.
Burns	153	170	162	162
Schultheis	152	152	136	147
Lang		188	94	140
Roehrs	128	137	142	136

Berry	119	129	123	124
Donlan		115		115
Friendly	125	108	111	114
Bunyard	117	126	93	112

The annual meeting of the New York Bowling Club will take place at 7 p. m. on Monday, September 18, at the alleys, Fifty-seventh street and Sixth avenue. Election of officers for the coming year will be in order.

At Flatbush.

The bowling last Thursday evening was serious business, not a visitor being there to disconcert the local artists. There was further cause for congratulation in the fact that there were two cucumbers up for prizes and they went, one to Riley, the pride of Flatbush, for a score of 212 and one to Paul Dailledouze, his understudy, for a score of 170. A correction was announced in regard to the Arcanum cup, which was understood by some to go to the member making highest score for the month, but the cup, being the club's property, cannot be so disposed of. The winner keeps it only as long as he is able to defend it and the man making the highest score the following month becomes its custodian and it stays on his mantel, in turn, until he loses it in like manner.

Milwaukee.

The firm of Binzel & Kellner has dissolved partnership, A. E. Binzel purchasing the interest of August Kellner. The business will continue at the old stand without interruption.

Volk & Stewart have dissolved partnership, but the business will be conducted under the present name, although Mr. Stewart withdraws.

Visitors this week: Fred Rentschler, Madison; Geo. Rentschler, Janesville; John Rindfleisch, Beloit; Mrs. Guillaume, La Crosse; Adam Zender, Rogers Park, Ill. C. B. W.

FORT SCOTT, KANS.—W. C. Zimmer has removed here from Eve, Mo., and started in the florist and nursery business.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—Henry Leahy has brought suit against the Central R. R. of New Jersey for $5,000 damages for the wrecking of his greenhouses on the night of April 27, when a car jumped the track.

DENVER, COLO.—At the Festival of Mountain and Plain and State Fair to be held September 25 30 there will be a good display of plants and cut flowers, premiums having been provided for twenty-three classes.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—The Hampden County Horticultural Society has decided to hold no chrysanthemum show this year but will unite with the Amateur Horticultural Society in the dahlia show to be held on September 19–20.

W. A. WETTLIN, Hornellsville, N. Y.

New Haven, Conn.

Business is increasing, for a goodly number of people are returning to town from their summer houses. Prospects indicate a good fall trade. Carnations of all varieties are very scarce, but roses are very good and plentiful, the choicest varieties bringing only $1 per dozen. Asters are very fine and meet with ready sale.

Gustav Ginter, of 97 Elliott street, is building a range of three houses 15x60, with store in front, on Sylvan avenue, opposite the entrance to the cemetery.

J. K. Allen, the New York commission man, was in town Friday of last week. Other recent visitors were: Mark Aitkens, Springfield, Mass.; S. E. Banks, Westport, Conn.; S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia; F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J. G. H.

Paducah, Ky.

C. L. Brunson & Co. have just completed quite an addition to their establishment. They have erected a fern house 110 feet long, now stocked with a fine assortment varying in size from thumb pots to 8-inch specimen plants, all in splendid condition. They have also rebuilt two plant houses each 110 feet long, making them higher, lighter and warmer. They will add nursery stock and are now preparing to plant several thousand plants. The greenhouse stock has never been in such fine shape. They have increased their stock of Beauties one half, also carnations, having added the best standard varieties. They have over 5000 chrysanthemums in better condition than usual. The past season has been a record breaker and the prospects are for a still better trade this season.

LENOX, MASS.—It has been definitely decided that there will be no floral parade here this year.

TRADE SHOWS THE IMPETUS OF SEPTEMBER.—A TEMPORARY REMOVAL.—KASTING IN TOWN.

Business is picking up and there is a slight improvement in stock. Roses sell at from $1.50 to $2 per doz.; carnations at from 35 cents to 50 cents per dozen; asters, from 50 cents to $1 50. Lily of the valley has been rather poor this week but sells at $1 per dozen.

Randolph & McClements have removed to 135 S. Highland avenue while they are remodeling and enlarging their store room, which will be finished with latest improvements. They are also adding a new story to their packing and potting department.

W. F. Kasting arrived in town Saturday. He is still wondering how it came to pass that the Buffalo bowlers only came in third at Detroit.

Robert Harrison, assistant superintendent of Schenley Park is off on his vacation. G. O.

South Manchester, Conn.

The exhibition held here by the Connecticut Horticultural Society on September 7 and 8 was the first ever given by this society outside of Hartford, and the display of flowers is said to have been the best they have made. Of dahlias over 3,000 blooms were shown and a talk on their cultivation was given by Rev. W. T. Hutchins. Lothrop & Higgins, H. F. Burt, C. M. Rogers, W. A. Power and Jos. Albison were the largest contributors of dahlias, T. J. McRonald, greenhouse plants, M. Wakeman, gardener to F. R. Cooley, ferns, and John Lewis Childs, gladioli.

LANCASTER, PA., June 17, '99.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Brooklyn, N. Y.,
Dear Sir:—Your Model Carnation support is all right in every way and will no doubt be considered as necessary as good plants with growers when better known. I consider it the best on the market, and if your other specialties are equally as good, they should make another addition to the money makers of 1900. Respectfully,

Wm. F. Gude, of A. Gude & Bro., and Wm. R. Smith of the U. S. Botanical Gardens, both ex-presidents of the S. A. F., returned from Europe September 12. They spent some time at Skibo Castle in the Scotch highlands, as the guest of Andrew Carnegie, and were royally entertained. They traveled through other portions of Scotland and visited numerous large estates, also the Botanical Gardens at Glasgow and Edinburg.

August made a record for hail storms in the District of Columbia. A. Gude & Bro., at Anacostia, were the heaviest losers, a new house with 6,000 feet of glass being wrecked.

Trade has been very good, long stemmed loosely arranged cut flowers being most in demand. P.

CANADIAN HORTICULTURISTS.

Second Annual Convention, Ottawa, Ont.

The second annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association was held in Goldsmith's Hall, Ottawa, Ont., September 18 to 21. At the opening session an address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Payment, which was responded to by Mr. McKenna, of Montreal. Alderman Black, chairman of the municipal reception committee, addressed the meeting and extended an invitation to the members to participate in a drive around the city and to the experimental farm.

JAMES M'KENNA.
President-elect Canadian Hort. Association.

The address of the president, Wm. Gammage, of London, was read and accepted. The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted as read. The secretary reported that the membership had not decreased; no member had died. The treasurer reported the finances in a flourishing condition.

Messrs. W. Manton, of Davisville, and Jas. McKenna, of Montreal, were appointed judges of trade exhibits. A letter of regret was received from Prof. Frank L. Shutt, who was to have delivered a lecture on the uses of nitrogenous fertilizers. At the evening session a lecture was delivered by Prof. Fletcher, of the Ottawa Experimental Farm, on insect enemies in greenhouses and the best method of combating them. Much practical information was imparted and greatly appreciated.

A motion was made to amend Clause 6 of the constitution to limit membership in the society to persons in the trade but, on a vote being taken, was lost.

At the morning session on Wednesday Harry Dale read a very instructive paper on the construction of commercial greenhouses, which was greatly appreciated and provoked much discussion, many questions being asked and answered.

At 2 p. m. Wednesday the members, accompanied by Mayor Payment and Alderman Black, were taken in carriages for a pleasant drive through the principal thoroughfares to the experimental farm, where Prof. Fletcher and his assistants took charge of the party, conducting it through the horticultural department, after which a lunch was spread and the usual toasts drank, every person present being pronounced a jolly good fellow.

At the evening session the committee appointed to devise ways and means to institute a trade paper recommended the following: That public subscriptions for a guarantee fund to the amount of $400 be asked among the members of the association; that the paper be the official organ of the association; that the paper be called the Canadian Gardeners' and Florists' Exchange; that it be issued bi-weekly; that its size be about ten by twelve inches and four pages. The recommendation was adopted.

S. S. Bain, of Montreal, read a very interesting paper, "European Horticulture as Viewed by a Canadian." Much useful information was imparted. The paper on cemetery decoration by Jas. Kenna, of Montreal, resulted in a lively discussion and much practical benefit.

Montreal was chosen as the place of next meeting.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, James McKenna, Montreal; vice-president, Harry Dale, Brampton; vice-president for Quebec, J. Bennett, Montreal; secretary, A. H. Ewing, Berlin, Ont.; treasurer, J. H. Dunlop, Toronto; executive committee for three years, W. Wilshire, Montreal; C. Scrim, Ottawa; J. Graham, Ottawa; for two years, J. A. Simmers, Toronto. Messrs. Ewing and Dunlop were re-elected to their respective posts. A. G. S.

The President's Address.

GENTLEMEN:—It is a pleasure to again have the honor to address you as your presiding officer, an honor not soon to be forgotten since it is the second time you have placed confidence in me. The assistance and support I have had from one and all has made my term a most pleasant one, and I thank you for your liberal and unanimous support. Young as this association is, its influence is already manifest, and we are pleased to note that it, too, has shared in the wave of prosperity that is spreading over our fair Dominion.

JOHN H. DUNLOP.
Treasurer Canadian Horticultural Association.

You will pardon me if I again impress upon you my sincere belief in the benefit we receive both individually and collectively from our conventions and our association. It may be a hobby, but the world has been moved forward little by little by men who have concentrated all their energies on one particular study, and we are pleased to say that we have with us all the most successful horticultural students and business men of the day.

The secretary and treasurer will give you full information of our membership, financial standing and other matters so that I will confine my remarks to the general work and objects of the association. The past season has been one of unusual activity, and we look with pride upon those with us who, since our last meeting, have placed upon the market new and worthy varieties of roses, carnations and other plants. A certificate from this society to worthy and meritorious introductions would be a curb to over-zealous and unscrupulous advertisers and a guarantee to purchasers that the article had been passed upon and indorsed by competent judges.

The words of welcome to which we have just listened cannot but enthuse and have a lasting and beneficial influence upon our discussions and deliberations at this meeting, and when we return to our homes and daily avocations it will be with the feeling that our time has been well and wisely spent, that the small sacrifices we made to attend this meeting have been amply repaid. The friendship formed, the pleasures participated in, the interchange of thought and ideas, the discussions of methods, the deliberations on more vital subjects will all bring us closer and more harmoniously together. Aside from the educational portion of our meetings the social has a large claim upon us, for by our natural exuberance of friendly feeling on such occasions we rub off the rough edges and forget our petty jealousies.

The whole floricultural world is before us, to be talked about and to be written about, for we are yet in the kindergarten of horticultural knowledge. The practical and interesting subjects will attract members to our meetings. Let our proceedings impress the public with the nobility and dignity of our profession, for our prosperity is largely in our own hands. If we do not educate the public we cannot expect to have the demand. It is by experience that we regulate the future. With these properous growing times in Canada, this wave of prosperity brings with it an increased demand for our productions. What were luxuries become necessities, and so it goes on. Year by year we increase our capacity, year by year we improve our quality, and yet, year by year do we not copy our neighbors? How many of us have the courage to carry out the conceptions of originality we form? The love of flowers is so well-nigh universal that every season the wonder grows that more originality is not displayed in choice and selection. There is a bright and prosperous future for those of us who will get out of the rut of conventionality.

Again, I would impress upon you the necessity of putting forth our united efforts to encourage exhibitions. They are a great factor in educating and bringing before the public the latest fashions in floral arrangements. Nor can I let this opportunity pass without urging upon you the great and growing need for a Canadian trade paper, and I hope when the discussion is brought up at this meeting you will see fit to devise a plan for operating such, no matter if it be only a small beginning. An exchange of Canadian news and an advertising medium is now a necessity.

During the year your executive decided to ask the government to readjust the tariff on certain articles of interest to the florist trade, and appointed a committee to wait upon the officials. While we were not successful in obtaining the desired changes, our efforts have not been fruitless, for a circular was issued at our suggestion enumerating and classifying florists' stock. All ports are now to use this in appraising consignments and thus eliminate delays and the annoyance of amending entries.

I do not propose to tire you with a long address. We have a lengthy programme, and it will be of more interest to you than anything I can offer, but again I wish to thank you for the support and assistance you have given me. It is two years since I took it upon myself to call a meeting with the object of organizing this association, and I assure you that the liberal response and hearty support you have given will ever remain fresh in my memory and be considered an obligation. It affords me pleasure to thank you to-day and to see that the seed so planted is growing vigorously. It is my earnest hope that it will thrive and grow into a powerful tree.

While in years to come it may be strong enough to branch, let us for the present concentrate all our energies to embrace all branches in one united body. I have all confidence in the future prosperity of this association and of the trade in general and the country at large. On every hand we see fields which are sure to develop, into which we may enter and, by striving with steadiness of application, social tact and the power of inspiring confidence in our tenacity of purpose, win unto ourselves high position in any walk of life.

Before concluding let me again draw your attention to our experimental farms and the opportunity there afforded to make the acquaintance of innumerable plants, trees and shrubs not met with in commercial places. They are there for our instruction as well as for that of the public, so take advantage of it when you can. It is necessary that both grower and retailer should be able to give practical instructions to their customers. Intelligent and correct information should always be given on the care of plants. We can assist the horticultural societies in their work, and in towns and villages where there are no park commissioners it is our duty to encourage and assist the committee in their efforts to beautify the parks.

I hope that full expression will be given on all topics that will arise at this meeting, and particularly on the proposed alterations to our constitution.

served several years on the board of directors of the Montreal Horticultural Society and Fruit Growers' Association of the Province of Quebec.

Mr. McKenna was one of the organizers of the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club, serving two years as president and ten years on the executive committee. For two years he was vice-president of the Society of American Florists for the Province of Quebec. Mr. McKenna is an ex-alderman of Cote des Neiges, having occupied a seat in the council for nine years. He is a widower and has a family of three daughters and four sons.

Herbaceous and Tree Paeonies.

Very few of us who are along in years but can well remember the old red pæony of our childhood. Pæonia officinalis rubra was probably brought by the earlier settlers from England and planted in nearly every country dooryard and garden. It is often seen now in the eastern states growing within a few feet of the houses and its first double, rich crimson flowers are as much of a delight to the youthful members of the family as they were centuries ago. Later on double white and other varieties were introduced, but it was not till within the memory of this generation that new varieties had increased by the score and hundred. The herbaceous pæony is a native of Asia, southern Europe and northwest America, while the tree pæony or shrubby species (Pæonia Mautan) comes mostly from China and Japan. The varieties of the herbaceous pæony have of late years been immensely multiplied and improved, till one European nurseryman catalogues about 800 varieties. We have now all shades of color, from the most intense violet purple to the purest white—from the size and shape of a half-opened Jacqueminot rose to that of an immense water lily some seven or eight inches in diameter. In many we have the most delicate and delighful perfume, while none are in any way disagreeable. We have single as well as double varieties and the season of blooming, from the earliest to the latest, extends over five or six weeks. The single varieties are just as hardy as the double, generally among the earliest and, although frail, are very beautiful in a cut state. They appear to be very popular just now and the demand for choice varieties is greater than the supply. Single ones will sometimes become double. One of the finest single whites (Bridesmaid) has been nearly double for the last two seasons.

Of the many enthusiastic cultivators of the pæony in France, Germany and England, perhaps no one did more to bring this valuable plant to the notice and appreciation of the public than the late James Kelway, of Langport, England. With his son, William, after collecting the best varieties obtainable, he commenced a regular system of hybridization and of raising new varieties from seeds. Many of these seedlings in beauty of form, sweetness of perfume and delicacy of coloring are close rivals of the rose, the orchid and the water lily. I do not remember anyone in the eastern states who, twenty-five years ago, had as fine a collection of pæonies as the late Charles M. Hovey, near Boston. Some of my varieties, obtained from him about that time, are fully equal in many respects to any of the new ones. Hon. Marshall P. Wilder, too, was a great lover of the pæony and some of his near friends can well remember of being presented by him with a choice bloom from his garden at Dorchester, Mass. A few years ago there lived another gentleman in Dorchester, very old, very eccentric and very retiring—the late John Richardson. Mr. Richardson told me that he had been an invalid during most of his life; that when a mere child—when other children were engaged in childish sports—he chose to be alone in his little garden, sowing seeds and watching them grow into plants. Whatever he raised of value during his long life I do not know, except that when nearly ninety he raised a lot of pæonies from seeds—from seeds of plants in his own garden—and the most remarkable thing about them is that they are all nearly alike in being very late, very vigorous and free flowering, double and firm in texture and generally of a soft pink or flesh color, though one, John Richardson, is of a very deep pink, one dark crimson red and one, Milton Hill, is flesh, suffused with blush and carmine. This last was awarded a first-class certificate by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in 1891. Mr. Richardson bequeathed his pæonies to John C. Hovey, but as that gentleman died soon after, unfortunately many of these pæonies have never been propagated to any extent or offered to the public. Five of the varieties have, however, been propagated and they are so vigorous and multiply so rapidly that they will soon become common and be very popular as late varieties, both in this country and Europe.

No plant is more easily propagated than the pæony. By dividing the roots in autumn, every fragment bearing a bud will live and even the pieces of roots with no eyes upon them, if planted out by themselves or dumped into a pile of soil, will generally show tops the second year. Hence, to avoid mixture, it is important not to plant immediately upon land from which pæonies were just dug, for the pieces of roots left in the ground are likely to spring up the second year and cause a confusion of names. We generally plant the very small pieces of roots by themselves, as they do not require so deep a trench as the larger plants. They will grow on land which is high or low, wet or dry, but for nursery purposes we have found a good, dry, upland loam the best—made rich the year before with manure. Peat muck applied three or four inches deep to good upland loam, with a mixture of potash and fine bone, would be my ideal land for small roots of choice pæonies. We plant them pretty close, say six to eight inches apart, in rows eighteen inches asunder. More space would be better for large plants, but to propagate choice varieties rapidly I would prefer well prepared dry land, very small roots, close planting and a division of the roots every second or third year at the most. I should also prefer to do all my dividing and planting early in the fall, say from September 15 to the middle of October, so that a new set of roots may be formed before winter. The pæony in its nature is much like the hyacinth and lily and should be well established before winter in order to give the best results. And yet many intelligent nurserymen and florists recommend planting them in the spring, but it is a bad practice and should be discouraged. They should be planted deep enough to permit of the top bud being covered to a depth of two or three inches after the soil has settled. Although the pæony will apparently do well in a thin soil, with no cultivation, it is better every way to have the soil worked to a good depth, either by plowing two or three furrows deep or, for permanent planting, by trenching the soil to a depth of two feet or more, to secure prize flowers. Some of the rare varieties which I bought from the estate of the late John Hovey in Cambridge, Mass., had roots two or three feet long, as large as a man's arm, which shows the nature of the plant when it has its opportunity; but in sending away plants we never send such roots as these. In shipping plants either by express or freight we generally cut the roots pretty close, considering those very long ones superfluous. In planting roots in nursery rows we use a very long, narrow spade to make the drills, setting the plants in an upright position, then fill in the fine soil carefully and press firmly and we have never lost one in a thousand planted in this way. Although the pæony is perfectly hardy anywhere in the United States or Canada, still we think it better, on beds recently planted, to give a light covering on the approach of winter, either of evergreen boughs, coarse hay or litter; but care should be taken not to cover with hay full of ripe seed, as we should regret it the next year in weeding time.

Raising pæonies from seeds is the easiest thing imaginable. Gather the seeds from day to day as fast as they ripen, keep from drying and plant in open ground or, better, in a frame in the fall; cover well with evergreen boughs or any coarse material; be sure there are no field mice near the beds and you will be surprised to see how regular and even they will come up in the spring. Some keep the seeds in a closed vessel (covered in the ground) over winter and plant in the spring. I can see no difficulty in planting in the fall just before winter sets in, but care should be taken not to let the seeds get too dry before planting. The little plants should be set out the following autumn into nicely prepared dry ground and many will flower the third year. The seeds from very choice varieties would likely produce something extra and many new kinds of merit will thus be obtained; but where "every crow considers its own children the whitest" there is danger of being too enthusiastic over one's own seedlings. Before naming and sending them out, better wait and see if they possess decided merit over others of the same season and color.

There appears to be a little confusion in regard to names, especially among European growers, several varieties sometimes coming under the same name; then the description of color will not hold true always, as those classed as white may prove flesh or rose and the singles may be semi-double. This should receive careful attention from growers, for it is important that so valuable a flower as the pæony should have a correct nomenclature. Growers are often careless, too, in regard to mixtures. In a thousand double white ordered three years ago from a prominent Holland grower, 200 at least were a mixture of everything. It is almost impossible in a large collection to prevent mixtures, although we go over our plants carefully every year when in bloom to mark every one not true to name, still mixtures will creep in.

In regard to the tree pæony for our latitude, the general impression appears to be that it is too tender and difficult to grow and that the cultivator of these is liable to disappointment. They are very particular in regard to soil and situation. With me they do best in a very warm, dry location, in a soil made deep and rich by cultivation. The old Banksii is perhaps as satisfactory as any and will sometimes surprise and delight the grower with the beauty and profuseness of its flowers The new Japanese varieties when in bloom are magnificent, but they are frail and last only a few days. They are generally propagated by grafting, but when on their own roots can easily be divided in the fall, and should always be protected in winter.

Why such a flower as the pæony should be so generally neglected is beyond my comprehension. To see the amount of money bestowed upon roses, chrysanthemums and orchids, the cost of growing these luxuries, the enemies and diseases which beset them on every hand, and then compare them with the pæony, which grows as easily as grass, never winter kills, has no disease, never dies of old age—a truly plebeian flower, growing and flowering as well in the dooryard of the poor man as in the garden of the rich, and once planted always there, "a delight and a joy forever."

But its day is dawning; inquiries are coming in from all over the country. Park commissioners, cemetery superintendents, seedsmen and florists generally are apparently waking up to the importance of this grand old flower, and it is in the hope of aiding such in giving information as to its culture, habits and possibilities that I write this article, trusting that abler hands than mine will continue the discussion of the plant till the pæony is placed where it belongs—among the foremost flowers in the land.

Some of the best modern pæonies are shown in the accompanying illustrations. Janus is a single-flowered variety of light purple color; Festiva Maxima, pure white with carmine stripes in center; Nico, purplish cherry; Habid, deep pink; Francois Ortegal, purplish crimson.

ROSES.

CULTURAL NOTES.

The unsettled condition of the weather during the month of September is a constant menace to the welfare of the rose. Extremely cool nights, in some sections even dropping to the freezing point, followed by tropical temperature during the day, are anything but helpful in keeping the plants in the best condition preparatory for their winter's work.

Fortunate indeed is the man who is able to step into his boiler room in the evening, turn a valve, strike a match and let the fire burn. After watching the boiler for about a half hour, until the steam or hot water, whichever it may be, begins to circulate, he regulates his valve and then may retire for the night and not dream about the coal dealers. Such are the blessings of natural gas.

What a pity that all hard-working florists cannot have the advantages of its use! Fire heat is very necessary during this changeable weather. Too often it happens that we are caught unawares. The cool nights come on before the boilers are ready for firing The penalty for such negligence is sure to follow in the shape of black spot, mildew and kindred diseases. A word to the wise is sufficient. If your heating apparatus is not in working order, do not delay a single day.

Plants that have been staked some time ago will need some attention. New shoots are reaching out in all directions; keep right after them, tying them into shape. A mulch may now be applied to the rose benches. We usually pass the fertilizer through a 1-inch screen, and then spread it evenly on the beuches to the depth of one inch. This mulch should be stirred about once every week without fail, for by so doing you keep both the manure and soil fresh and pure and this means much towards the welfare of your stock.

Do not be in a hurry about cutting flowers for the market. It seems like the same old story over again every year. It is natural for roses that were planted in June to be in with a full crop of buds in September, but at that time the market is very unsteady, with prices averaging low. Our practice has been to disbud one-half to two-thirds of the shoots, leaving only those on strong, stiff stems. By so doing we save the plants and get the best part of the crop later in the season when the market is in better shape to receive it.

The question is often asked, "What is the proper time to nip off the buds?" Some nip them off as soon as they can be seen; others wait until they show color, but neither course do we deem correct. It is best to wait until the buds are the size of a pea, and then nip off the shoot just below the top leaflet. B.

ROSES MAKING POOR GROWTH.

En Am. Florist:—My Bride and Bridesmaid roses, which were set in the benches about May 15, seem to be in perfect health and making good growth, but the foliage is very small. The canes do not seem to come as large as I have seen and the leaves are not of the heavy, leathery kind we aim for. They are planted in about five inches of compost—a box of which I mail—and have been carefully attended to as to watering and spraying. The weather has been unusually hot for the past three weeks, 95° to 98° every day outside and about 110° inside the house, with everything wide open. Can you suggest the cause and a remedy for my trouble? State also whether the compost is good. F. P. D.

Alabama.

My impression is that the soil is not rich enough in humus. I would advise putting a mulching of good manure, say about one-half to three-quarters of an inch thick, over the surface of the beds. The ammonia from this will be washed into the soil as frequently as the plants are watered. This mulch will answer for five or six weeks when a new one can be put on; by that time I think it likely, with the cooler nights and the additional stimulant, that the plants will begin to make much stronger growth. The very hot weather described has, of course, been somewhat detrimental to strong growth, but I think that most of the trouble lies in the soil. John N. May.

Notes on Violet Culture.

This was an unusually dry summer and the violets in the field did not grow as vigorously as they generally do, or, to be more correct, the plants did not make as many runners as they would have done in a more favorable season. We went over our patch once in July and once in August, taking every runner off. The plants have three to four well developed crowns, the leaves are well ripened and now is the time to take them up and plant them in the beds already prepared. Of course everyone has his own formula for doing this.

For our part we like a good, stiff loam, mixed with well-rotted stable manure, the bed well firmed before planting. We set our plants eight inches apart in the rows, which are ten inches apart, keeping the crowns well above ground. As soon as a bed is finished we give it a good soaking. When the plants show that they have commenced to get hold of the soil we commence feeding with manure water, for I think the richness of the color depends a great deal upon the abundance of proper food.

We leave the glass off until the temperature goes quite low and after the sash are put in position we leave the ventilators open day and night until there is danger of freezing. Violets like a changeable temperature better than a stationary one and often during the winter the temperature is down to 33° and 34° early in the morning. Chautauqua.

A BAYERSDORFER EXHIBIT.

A Bayersdorfer Exhibit.

The scene illustrated herewith as "A Bayersdorfer Exhibit" is one which is not seen as frequently as it should in connection with our commercial establishments. A good display at the horticultural exhibition or an S. A. F. convention is creditable and almost indispensable to an enterprising house, but the firm that neglects to recognize its employes to the extent of an occasional good time fails to make the best of its opportunities. Who will doubt that the happy party above depicted will work all the more faithfully on the morrow after the day's pleasure provided for them by their employers?

CARNATIONS.

PREPARATION OF NEXT YEAR'S FIELD.

To get the best results in growing carnations in the field the preparation of the soil for next year should be begun now, but the treatment, like many other points in carnation culture, is largely a matter of soil and locality.

If possible select a piece of ground that has been in sod at least one season and apply a liberal dressing of clean stable manure, from one to 300 tons per acre according to the natural fertility of the soil and the quality of the material used.

Plow the field immediately after dressing it and sow either rye or oats on the plot. This gives a good covering over winter and, plowed under in the spring, adds to the fertility of the land. It also helps to put the fertilizer in the soil in such shape that it can be used to advantage by carnations.

Some of our Lancaster county farmers grow tobacco on the same ground for a number of years and tobacco is acknowledged to be very wearing on the land. They employ the treatment just recommended and where the carnation grower has only a limited acreage this method will give the best results; the sowing of rye or oats supplies a succession of crops to a certain extent.

Even with this care it is acknowledged that five years is about as long as the same crop can be grown continuously with any measure of success and that it is then absolutely necessary to put the land to some good grass, in this section clover being given preference. This is not cut but allowed to stay on the field and then in the fall the land is heavily manured and plowed. This puts the field in condition for another five years of carnation culture.

Wherever it is possible it is the better plan to select a new piece of ground each season. With some soils it might be best to omit the sowing of rye or oats and simply plow in the fall and let the field lie exposed to the action of the frosts and weather during the winter so as to break and loosen the soil. This plan is preferable if there are carnation pests in the field, especially cut worms, as they can be frozen out by leaving the plowing until it actually begins to freeze; they will be in a partly dormant state and when turned up will be killed by the frost.

Albert M. Herr.

AMERICAN VARIETIES IN ENGLAND.

Writing of carnations W. J. Godfrey says, in the Gardeners' Chronicle:

Flora Hill, of American origin, is a large, handsome bloom when well grown and is very free flowering. The plant is of good constitution, but it will not succeed under indifferent treatment.

I consider the following not anything like so well known as they should be. They are all Americans and after several years' trial have proved first-class. Triumph is a deep, rich rose-pink, quite distinct from any English variety, of large size and good substance. Victor is a lively pink, many shades lighter than the preceding. It is really a sport from the popular American variety, Daybreak, and, like its parent, is a good grower. This variety should be more popular than it is. Bridesmaid is also well worth growing. In the yellow varieties progress is slow, but improvements are being made. America has sent us over many, but none seem to be good. They either produce poor blooms or are shy bloomers and indifferent growers. Still, I think that before long really good yellow carnations will be obtainable throughout the winter.

Watsonia Ardernei.

This splendid addition to our bulbous plants will be hailed with delight by all lovers of flowers, as also by those interested in them only from a commercial standpoint, when it becomes better known. I first made its acquaintance last spring through the well known firm of Sander & Co., of Bruges, Belgium. My experience with the plant thus far has not been sufficiently extensive to enable me to state just how far it may be of value to the florists, but I am pretty certain it can be flowered successfully for the Easter trade, if not for Christmas, when we attain to that familiarity with its requirements which can only be developed by persistent endeavor. The roots bear a strong resemblance to those of the gladiolus, as do the leaves. The flower spike is from three and one-half to four feet high, and the pure white flowers about two inches in diameter, the length of the blooms being equal to their diameter. As an outside garden or border plant, in large clumps, it must be a strikingly beautiful object, as well as useful for cutting. Watsonias are best treated in the same manner as gladioli, as they are not hardy enough to withstand the winters of our New England climate.

K. FINLAYSON.

Rose Pests and How to Exterminate Them.

BY E. M. WOOD, NATICK, MASS.

[Read at the Detroit Convention of the Society of American Florists.]

The study of entomology may be divided into two classes—systematic, the pure science, and economic, the applied or practical science. In presenting this paper I shall deal with the practical side of entomology, using only such scientific terms as are necessary to a clear understanding of the subject.

All insects with which the florist has to battle belong to the various orders in the class known as hexapoda. The hexapoda are six-legged, air breathing creatures, having a distinct head, thorax and abdomen. They have one pair of antennæ, three pairs of legs, and usually one or two pairs of wings. There are an immense number of species in this class, probably more than all species of animals and plants combined. Classification of insects is based on the arrangement and structure of the mouth parts, the character of the wings, the relation of the first thoracic segment to the rest of the segments and the degree of metamorphosis or change through which an insect passes in the complete cycle of its existence. Metamorphosis is of two kinds, complete and incomplete. Incomplete signifies that the young when hatched from the egg look like the parent, or in other words, there is no difference in structure between the young and the adults. Complete means that the young do not resemble the parent; that is to say, there is a complete change in the appearance of the insect while passing from the young to the mature state.

Insects that undergo no change in appearance pass through an existence of three stages, egg, nymph, or young, imago or adult. Those passing through a complete change exist in four stages, egg, larva or caterpillar or grub, pupa or chrysalis, imago or adult. The caterpillar or grub stage and the adult stage are, of course, the only ones in which the insect is capable of doing any damage.

In the practical application of insecticides, to be effectual, we must know how insects feed. They may be divided into two general groups, chewing and piercing and sucking. Chewing insects may be killed by applying arsenical compounds, either in dry or liquid form, directly to the foliage of the plants. But with piercing and sucking insects it will readily be seen that poisons applied to the foliage would have no effect, as this class eats only the sap of the plant; consequently we apply a liquid which will come directly in contact with the body and close up the breathing pores, or use some of the various methods of vaporizing. Having once learned how an insect feeds, we can then adopt the proper method for its destruction.

There are a large number of species which attack roses; but I shall discuss in this paper only the important ones, which, to the practical florist, are those whose destructiveness amount to dollars and cents. I have used the classification as given by Dr. Harris and, unless otherwise stated, it will be so understood.

In the first order, coleoptera, or beetles, are two rose pests of importance, the rose bug, or rose chafer, and white grub, or May beetle.

The rose chafer, incorrectly called bug, is a diurnal or day working insect. It is seven-twentieths of an inch long, its body is slender and entirely covered with very short and close ashen yellow down, the thorax is long and narrow, the legs are slender and of a pale red color; the joints of the feet are tipped with black and are very long. These beetles come forth from the ground during the second week in June and remain from thirty to forty days. At the end of this time the males die. The females deposit about thirty eggs in the ground, when they return to the surface and, after lingering a few days, die also. The eggs hatch out in twenty days and by the following June appear as fully developed beetles. The grubs go down below the frost line during the winter, come up and pass through the pupa state in the spring. Thus a complete metamorphosis is effected in one year. The rose chafer has generally been considered destructive to outdoor roses only, but of late years it has appeared in greenhouses. Their ravages may be partially checked by dusting with Paris green or hellebore.

The June beetle is of a chestnut brown color, smooth, but covered with little impressed dots. Its average length is nine-tenths of an inch. In its perfect state it feeds on the leaves of the trees, particularly on those of the cherry tree. The grub is a white worm with a brownish head and, when fully grown, is about as thick as the little finger. It is said that this grub takes three years to mature. When brought in the soil into the greenhouses it creates great havoc among the roses by eating the roots. When once established in rose beds the only methods of destruction practiced with any degree of success are digging around the roots of the plants and removing the grubs, or sprinkling over the soil a thin coating of soot and lime. This, when watered, gives off ammonia which destroys the grub. But with proper precaution this trouble need not be necessary, for knowing that the various kinds of grubs go down deep in the soil in the winter to escape the frost, it is evident that the rose grower should obtain his soil late in the fall after the grubs have gone down, or early in the spring before they have come up. Should he neglect to do this, the only way he can get soil free from vermin is by sterilizing it with steam before planting. This will kill all animal life, including the much dreaded eel worm so common in some rose growing localities.

The order hemiptera, or true bugs, contains the well-known greenfly or plant lice and the rose leaf hopper, which is often mistaken for thrips.

Concerning the greenfly Theodore Wood says, "Perhaps of all the beings which we are accustomed to rank together under the title of injurious insects, there is none, save the locust itself, whose destructive powers are greater than those of the aphides, plant lice or green blight, as they are indifferently termed, and none capable of causing more terrible and wide-spread damage to the crops upon which man so largely depends for a livelihood. There is scarcely a plant or a tree, whether wild or cultivated, which escapes their ravages, stem, leaves, fruit, and even the very roots themselves, being alike attacked and drained of their life juices by the insatiable little creatures, whose numbers compensate for their individual weakness and render them one of the direst pests to which civilized man is subject. It may seem a wildly exaggerated and unjustifiable statement if we say that, but for certain opposing agencies, the aphis would overrun the entire world, that it would leave scarcely a green leaf upon the earth and would cause such terrible devastation that all terrestrial life would wholly disappear and the globe become one vast desert and utterly without living beings of any kind. Incredible as the assertion may seem, however, such results are no more than must logically follow if the aphis could be allowed to remain perfectly unmolested during a period of but a single year."

Reaumur estimated that one aphis may be the progenitor of almost six thousand million individuals during the few weeks over which her life extends. But it is unnecessary to dwell further on what the aphis might do if unmolested. It is sufficient for the rose grower to know that with tobacco in its various forms he may at all times keep his plants free from the pest.

There are three natural enemies of plant lice which keep them from multiplying to excess, the larvæ of the hemispherical beetles familiarly known as lady birds or lady bugs, the larvæ of the golden-eyed, lace-winged fly, the maggots or young of the various two-winged flies belonging to the genus syrphus.

The rose leaf hopper is often mistaken for thrips. It lives upon the leaves of rose bushes and is very injurious to them. In its perfect state it is rather less than three-twentieths of an inch long. Its body is yellowish white, its wing covers and wings are white and transparent, and its eyes, claws and piercer, brown. Their numerous cast skins may be seen adhering to the lower side of the leaves. Leaf-hoppers can be easily destroyed with pyrethrum fumes or a commercial preparation called "XI All."

In the order hymenoptera, stingers and piercers, we find two rose pests, slugs and rose gall flies. The rose slug is transparent, jelly-like, greenish above and yellowish below. It eats the upper surface of the leaves, leaving patches of the lower surface and the veins. These slugs usually feed by night and remain hidden on the lower surface of the leaves by day. When ready to pupate they crawl down or drop to the ground and burrow beneath the surface, where each makes a little cell and then transforms. The adult fly is shining black with smoky wings and with the fore and middle legs grayish or dirty white. It is about one-fifth of an inch in length. There are two broods a year, one in June and one in August. The last brood passes the winter in the ground. Syringing ought to keep them off the bushes. If they should appear they can be destroyed with a solution of whale oil soap or with kerosene emulsion.

The gall fly is of a brownish red or cinnamon color with four little longitudinal grooves on the top of the thorax; the lower part of the antennæ is red and the remainder black. The insect measures from one-eighth to three-sixteenths of an inch in length. Great numbers of these gall flies are bred in the irregular woody galls of the stems of rose bushes. There is no known remedy. As soon as the galls appear the affected parts should be cut off. There is a natural enemy of the gall fly, a parasite, which does much to keep it in check. The parasites are flies which lay their eggs in the galls. The maggots which hatch out from the eggs eat the young of the gall flies.

The order lepidoptera, moths, gives us one of the worst pests of all, the leaf roller. Leaf rollers are the young of small cinnamon-brown colored moths. The wings expand to about an inch. The moths lay their eggs on the leaves and in the tips of the rose buds. The caterpillars which hatch out from these eggs eat the center out of the bud or roll up the leaves. After destroying the leaves they pass into the pupa state and finally emerge from this as moths. They do a great deal of damage during the spring and summer months, but there seems to be no satisfactory remedy for their complete destruction. By careful hand picking they may be kept in check. Should they become very troublesome, Paris green or hellebore should be dusted over the bushes.

The order, called by Comstock, physopoda contains the thrips. The members of this order have four wings; these are similar in form, long, narrow, membranous, not folded, with but few or no veins, and only rarely with cross veins; they are fringed with long hairs, and are laid horizontally along the back when at rest. The metamorphosis is incomplete. The mouth parts are probably used chiefly for sucking; they are intermediate in form between those of the sucking and those of the biting insects. They are so small that it would take a dozen or more placed end to end to measure an inch. They are extremely lively, leaping or taking flight with great ability. These little insects are generally considered one of the very worst pests that the rose grower has to contend with. They have been known to completely ruin a whole crop of roses. Their plan of destruction is to enter the bud and suck the sap from the base of the petals, thus causing the flower to come curled or crumpled and deformed. I understand that this pest is very troublesome in certain localities this season and is causing much damage to roses, especially American Beauties. To all those growers who have thus far been unable to cope successfully with this little enemy I can say that in pyrethrum and also a commercial preparation called "XI All," they have remedies which will entirely rid their greenhouses of this pest. I shall shortly give directions for the use of these preparations.

The red spider is not a true insect. According to Comstock it belongs to the order acarina, mites, in the class arachnida, spiders. Everybody knows the red spider. Plants can be kept free from this mite by careful and persistent syringing. If from any cause the pests should become troublesome the plants should be sprayed with whale oil soap. Sulphur on the heating pipes will also keep it in check. This, then, completes the list of the more important rose pests; we will now direct our attention to the means for annihilating them.

Paris green, the poison most generally used for chewing insects, is a combination of copper and arsenic, containing about fifty-five per cent arsenic. It is slightly soluble in water but if a little lime is added the arsenic becomes practically insoluble. Applied at the rate of a quarter of an ounce to four gallons of water it will not injure the foliage. It may be applied dry, using one part, by weight, to one hundred parts plaster.

London purple, a by-product from aniline dyes, costs less than Paris green. It contains about the same per cent of arsenic but in a much more soluble form, thus rendering it more liable to burn the foliage. The percentage of arsenic varies so greatly in London purple that, although it costs less, it cannot be recommended in preference to Paris green.

White arsenic is soluble and burns the foliage. It should not be used on rose bushes.

Hellebore is made from the roots of a plant. It is less dangerous than the mineral poisons and kills both by contact and by being eaten. It may be applied in liquid form at the rate of one ounce to three gallons of water, or dry, using one part to five parts plaster.

Pyrethrum is made from a plant of the genus pyrethrum. There are three brands on the market, Dalmatian powder, Persian insect powder and hubach. Persian insect powder is probably the best. It should always be obtained fresh as it loses its destructive properties on being exposed to the air. This powder is an effective remedy for the destruction of leaf hoppers and thrips. The house to be treated should be closed tightly and the powder sprinkled on hot coals carried on a shovel. The fumes are harmless to the operator but are death to the insects. To carry on the operation on a large scale it would be advisable to burn the powder on oil or alcohol heaters.

Kerosene emulsion is made as follows: Kerosene two gallons, soap one-half pound, water two gallons. Heat the mixture of soap and water to boiling and add the kerosene. Churn the mixture with a force pump and spray nozzle five or ten minutes. Dilute to fifty gallons with cold water. Kerosene emulsion is very liable to injure the foliage and should be used only with great caution.

Whale oil soap should be used at the rate of one-fourth pound to a gallon of water. Anything stronger than this will injure the foliage.

The simplest way of using tobacco is to burn the dry stems but this method is not much used in rose houses, as the smoke fades the flowers. Rose leaf extract is very satisfactory but is inconvenient to use on a large scale. Steaming the stems is economical and effective for large houses.

Lime, wood ashes and soot help to keep down pests if incorporated with the soil before planting. In this connection I may mention that in 1884 I imported soot, being the first in this country to introduce it for greenhouse purposes. I have found a mixture of lime and soot the only effectual remedy for the destruction of myriapods, commonly called thousand legged worms. The lungs in these worms are situated on the under part of the body. The ammonia rising from the compound enters the lungs, causing the death of the worms.

Hydrocyanic acid gas gives promise of becoming a valuable insecticide, but has not yet been used with success in rose houses, as the gas injures the young shoots.

Bisulphide of carbon has been used successfully on red spider and greenfly. It is liable to injure foliage, is a poison, is extremely inflammable and so cannot be recommended.

The commercial preparation called "XI All" fumigating liquid, which I have referred to, is manufactured in England. When heated over a spirit lamp it gives off fumes which are sure death to aphides, mealy bugs and every kind of thrips. This preparation is undoubtedly the best thing known at the present time for the destruction of all those pests for which the much exploited hydrocyanic acid gas is recommended. Moreover it accomplishes the desired end without the slightest injury to the most delicate plants. The cost is high, $6 for sufficient liquid to fumigate 2,000 feet, or a modern rose house 22x100, but, taking results into consideration, I am not prepared to say that it is expensive. Mr. Brydon recommended "XI All" to me. He says it is sure death to the worst kind of thrips.

While the foregoing insecticides may not prove effectual in completely annihilating pests after they have become firmly established, still, if precaution is taken to use them in time, they will at least prove preventative.

Old Cyclamen Bulbs.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Please state whether it is practicable to keep cyclamen bulbs the second year. Should they be given a period of rest or kept growing steadily? In what manner should old bulbs be started? J. S.

FROM THE COMMERCIAL STANDPOINT.

We do not consider it worth while bothering with old bulbs. If special care is taken good results may be obtained, but I have never found it to pay, as if seed is sown at the proper time and the plants skillfully handled, the young plants will be as a rule far superior to old stock. However, good specimens may be grown from the old bulbs if the inquirer will dry them off gradually, leaving them in the pots and withholding water by degrees until quite dormant, then take the plants —pots and all—to some cool, shady place outdoors, cover them to the depth of about two inches with coarse sand and leave them there for four to six weeks; then take the old bulbs, shake out the soil and re-pot. They should next be placed in a frame, watered sparingly at first and afterward cultivated the same as young stock. This is the old way of thirty or forty years ago, and it is good enough, only that it spreads over two years that which can be accomplished in one. J. M. KELLER.

AN EXHIBITION GROWER'S ADVICE.

It does not pay to bother the second year with cyclamen bulbs that have been starved or neglected the first season; but if they have not received a check while growing the first year, they will start and make fine plants the second, and produce twice as many flowers as seedlings. They will probably require a larger size of pot than that used for seedlings at the final potting. To get the best result from cyclamen bulbs the second year they must be dried off gradually and ripened until they lose all the old leaves. It will not do to neglect them while they are undergoing the drying-off process; give them a good sunny bench with sufficient water to keep the roots alive and prevent the bulbs from shriveling. About the middle of June it will be time to repot them; shake them out of the old soil, being careful to save all the roots that are alive, and transfer to pots two sizes smaller than those in which the plants were previously flowered. They like a good, fibrous mixture to grow in, one-half good sod broken up and one-half loam, with a fair allowance of well-rotted cow manure, charcoal and bone flour. The pots should be well drained, as one of the main points in the successful culture of these plants is to preserve the soil in a sweet condition. They will not require much water until they start to make a good growth, but a light syringing night and morning helps them to break away. Shade during the hottest part of the day, and pot on all the plants as they require it. They should be grown in a frame during the summer months, placing them near the glass and throwing the lights off mornings and evenings. JOHN BARR.

Comment at the Baltimore Gardeners' Club.

There was a large attendance at the latest meeting of the Baltimore Gardeners' Club and after the routine affairs of the evening had been disposed of Edw. Kress read a paper in which he related his experience in growing and marketing geraniums. His views provoked no little debate, Mr. Burger contending that a grower of bedding plants who makes geraniums a specialty can make money at $6 per hundred for his plants, not including the pots. Mr. Christie announced his belief that the growers of geraniums do not get over $65 per 1000 for their stock, that is, net, allowing for losses. Mr. Graham advanced the opinion that really well-grown geraniums would bring 15 cents each.

A requisition upon the question box brought out the query, "How can one cure violet spot?" Mr. Graham responded that he eradicated the disease by picking and destroying every leaf which showed it. Mr. Kress reported that it had developed badly upon the plants in three of his frames. He dried them out until the plants wilted, then removed all the diseased leaves, applied a top dressing and watered, finally getting the plants into perfect condition. President Flitton stated that he plants his violets in the field in summer, horse cultivates and moves them into frames before the September rains. He sets the frames where they get the early morning sun and has never had a case of spot. Mr. Seybold suggested that sour soil had much to do with spot.

In reply to a query as to the best method of exterminating cut worms it was suggested that poisoning them with a mixture of Paris green, bran and sugar is most efficacious.

"Should private gardeners encourage putting up more glass?" was a question which provoked diversified responses. One side claimed that the result was invariably an effort to recoup by selling flowers, while the other party maintained that the stocking up benefited the trade more than the selling flowers hurt it.

"How to use lime on carnations" was the way one query read and "dust freely in the air slaked state" was the reply. However, some doubt was expressed as to the usefulness of lime on all kinds of soil.

The gentleman who wanted the name of the white carnation best for summer was told that there was little choice between Mrs. Fisher and Flora Hill.

Jubilee and Fire Fly were named as the best red carnations but Mr. Halliday said Matt. Richmond, a sport from Tidal Wave, excells them. MACK.

Premiums for Twin City Florists.

At the Minnesota State Fair last week there were very many floral displays and, in the classes open to all, the leading commercial growers were well represented. Following are the premiums awarded to those in the trade:

Asters, five varieties, first premium, L. L. May & Co.; second, Jacob Hartman; third, R. J. Mendenhall.

Carnations, six varieties, first premium, E. Nagel & Co.; second, R. J. Mendenhall; third, Jacob Hartman.

Roses, six varieties, first premium, L. L. May & Co.; second, R. J. Mendenhall; third, E. Nagel & Co.

Floral designs, first premium, L. L. May & Co; second, E. Nagel & Co.; third, A. S. Swanson; fourth, R. J. Mendenhall.

Basket, first premium, L. L. May & & Co.; second, R. J. Mendenhall; third, Jacob Hartman.

Coleus, six varieties, first premium, E. Nagel & Co.; second, Jacob Hartman; third, L. L. May & Co.

Begonias, first premium, E. Nagel & Co.

Specimen palm, first premium, L. L. May & Co.; third, Jacob Hartman.

Collection of geraniums, first premium, E. Nagel & Co.; second, Jacob Hartman.

Vase at fountain, second premium, Jacob Hartman; third, R. J. Mendenhall; fourth, E. Nagel & Co.

Pyramid bouquet, first premium, E. Nagel & Co.; second, Jacob Hartman; third, R. J. Mendenhall.

Hand bouquet, under nine inches, first premium, R. J. Mendenhall; second, E. Nagel & Co.; third, Jacob Hartman.

Bridal bouquet, first premium, L. L. May & Co.; second, E. Nagel & Co.; third, Jacob Hartman; fourth, R. J. Mendenhall.

Collection of greenhouse and stove plants, first premium, L. L. May & Co.; second, R. J. Mendenhall; third, E. Nagel & Co.; commended, Jacob Hartman.

Foliage and decorative plants, first premium, R. J. Mendenhall; second, E. Nagel & Co.; third, Jacob Hartman.

Collection of climbing vines, five varieties, first premium, Jacob Hartman; second, E. Nagel & Co.

Hanging baskets, first premium, L. L. May & Co.; second, E. Nagel & Co.; third, Jacob Hartman.

PALM GROWERS ARE EXPERIENCING A DEMAND BEYOND THEIR FONDEST HOPES. — GOOD STOCK AT HAND. — STORE TRADE AWAKENING.—THE MARKET.—FAKIRS IN EVIDENCE.—COMMISSION MAN MAKES A TELEGRAPH CODE. —A BUSINESS CHANGE.—VISITORS.

The palm growers seem to be right in it at the present time, for their choice stock is being picked up rapidly at top prices. Several of them have said that even while they expected business to be good they did not anticipate the rush nor the demand that has developed so early. The quality of the plants offered is, as a whole, better than ever. They grade higher; quality seems to have been kept in view and there is more attention being paid to specimens. Plants running from $20 to $35 each are to be seen, and are not standing still by any means. The buying is mostly from out of town, those from a distance taking advantage of low freight rates while the weather is favorable. It is astonishing what long distances plants may be shipped if carefully packed and arrive in good order. Lemuel Ball shipped some palms by freight recently that were a month on the way and received word that their condition when unpacked was entirely satisfactory.

The store trade is increasing perceptibly, for, while there is nothing of note taking place, the people are giving evidence that they are at home. The little table ferneries are being sent in and the summer plant boarders started homeward. Stock continues to improve. Beauties with stems thirty inches long bring $1.50 per dozen; twenty-four inches, $1.25, and shorter lengths 75 cents to $1. Teas are a little stiffer; $5 is now asked for the best Kaiserin and Carnot; $4 will, however, command very good stock. These prices are for the selected twenty-five or fifty of a kind, the regular orders delivered every morning. The ordinary run in quantity is easily obtainable at $2, and the fakir who pays more than $1 per hundred would be ostracized by his fellows. Carnations sell at from 50 cents to $1 per hundred. Lily of the valley is scarce at $4; asters are about done; dahlias are at their best; $1 per hundred is the price. A few single violets are coming in, but aside from the fragrance there is nothing to recommend them.

The fakir element is evidently preparing for a vigorous fall campaign. It is rumored that a counter has been rented in one of the department stores by one of the profession. All the old stands are blooming and these, with the new ones now running and others contemplated, should help to keep down the surplus. In speaking of these merchants, a man who appeared to know the law on the subject, said that every stand occupying an inch of the sidewalk does so illegally. The sidewalks belong to the city. The property owners on Chestnut street below Broad are not allowed to place any goods outside the building line; on other streets they are allowed to use two feet from the house line for a display of their own wares, but to rent this space to another is against the law.

Edward Reid has prepared a new telegraph code for the use of his customers. It is especially arranged for the commission business, and has been given considerable time and thought. It appears to be very complete. He has had it copyrighted. The main feature is that one code word expresses both the name of the flower desired and the quantity. The different kinds and colors of flowers are arranged by themselves with a code word for each usual quantity desired. By this plan a telegram for quite a large order requires but a few words, which are easily found.

DULL TIMES.—FEW ORDERS AND LIGHT RECEIPTS.—NEW STOCKS IN MARKET.—DEWEY DAY A DETRACTION.—PLANS FOR THE NEXT CONVENTION TO BE MADE.—JOTTINGS HERE AND THERE.

There is a general complaint among both wholesalers and retailers of dull business this week. Fortunately the receipts of stock in most cut flower lines are light and the accumulation on account of dull business is not serious. Roses are, as a rule, fair for the season and a certain proportion of them are remarkably good. These latter maintain a reasonable price but the balance takes its chances. Carnations continue scarce. Chrysanthemums are popping up here and there but no sensation is caused thereby. Cattleyas are more abundant. Windows are decorated, as yet, mainly with palms. An occasional vase of blazing tritomas commands attention from the passer-by, and more or less attempt at autumn effect is seen in the use of prematurely brilliant foliage mingled with sprays of Japan maple and clusters of chrysanthemums. The approaching Dewey celebration does not impress the trade here as calculated to make any special call for flowers, in fact, the more general opinion seems to be that this event will detract from the interests of the flower trade while the excitement lasts.

The trustees of the New York Florists' Club have been called to meet at 3 p. m. next Monday to formulate plans and systematize arrangements for the S. A. F. convention of 1900. The unanimity in the trade here, in all its departments, in reference to this event is something unprecedented.

H. A. Bunyard received this week the first case of southern smilax for the season and it was disposed of at sight.

One of the wholesale establishments on Twenty-ninth street and one on Thirtieth street were utilized for caucus purposes on Tuesday by the two great political parties.

Cleary had a good sale at Dreyer's in Woodside on Wednesday. Next week he sells a lot of big palms, pandanus, etc., at H. C. Wille's, West Hoboken.

A negro coachman of Julius C. Ammon, One Hundred and Twentieth street and Seventh avenue, is accused of looting his employer's residence of a large amount of valuables during the latter's absence in Europe the past summer.

Mrs. M. H. Moore, of Highland, N. Y., sent the first violets of the season to Ford Bros. on September 14.

The promoters of a new company to be called the American Galax Co., held a meeting here on Tuesday and adjourned till Friday without taking definite action.

SMILING FACES IN THE WHOLESALE DISTRICT.—TRADE IS GOOD.—A DIVERSITY IN STOCK.—AT THE CLUB MEETING.—PLANS FOR FLORISTS' FESTIVAL FLOAT.—FERTILIZER, VIOLETS AND OTHER MATTERS.—PERSONAL JOTTINGS.

It is the consensus of opinion among the wholesale dealers that trade for the past three months was the best in many summers and not a dissenting voice is heard when it is commented upon that fall buying began earlier than usual this season. The fact is that business has been good ever since the first of the month and the prospect of an amicable adjustment of the difficulties surrounding the fall festival, ensuring a period of thronged streets and social activity, affords a roseate prospect for the near future. At the present moment one who is willing to pay the price can get almost anything he wants. Violets are in, but not in quantity, and so are chrysanthemums. Asters have shortened up. Roses and carnations have decreased in quantity but they have improved in quality. There are lilies in the market. Dahlias are to be had. There is some lily of the valley and plenty of greens. Shipping orders are numerous, the local retailers have come back to life and prices are firm.

There was a fairly good attendance at the last meeting of the Florists' Club. A committee of five was appointed with full power to act in the matter of a float for the coming autumn festival, as follows: Charles Samuelson (chairman), Phil. Hauswirth, John Gormley, Walter Kreitling and Ed. Winterson. It was announced that subscriptions for this work were coming in freely. The following were admitted to membership, John Reardon being their sponsor: George Collins, Albert Lees, Frank Hansen and James Novak.

J. V. Merrion has taken a contract to remove the manure from the sheep pens at the Union Stock Yards and will offer the fertilizer to the trade, through McKellar & Winterson.

The Illinois Cut Flower Co. is receiving good violets from B. F. Hawkes, Wheaton, Ill., and a few chrysanthemums from the Niles Center growers have sold readily at $1.25 a dozen.

After visiting many adjacent points, including Milwaukee and Oconomowoc, Wis., Alfred Rehder, of Moller's Deutsche Gartner Zeitung, departed yesterday for St. Louis.

Charles Klehm and Miss Kirchoff were married on Wednesday. They have many friends who wish them no end of joy.

Albert Fuchs is at home from Mt. Clemens, where he has been since the convention, somewhat recovered from his rheumatism.

McKellar & Winterson are receiving wild smilax from Caldwell The Woodsman, Evergreen, Ala. It will go well for fall festival decorations.

John Leach, who has been with C. A. Samuelson for some time, will have charge of Mangel's new south side store.

Klehms' Nurseries are sending good speciosum and longiflorum lilies to Kennicott Bros. Co.

B. Wills, Anchorage, Ky., is sending violets to McKellar & Winterson. They are grown in frames but are pretty fair stock.

Phil. Hauswirth and wife, and Miss Kreitling, returned last Monday.

E. C. Amling has welcomed a baby boy into his home at Oak Park.

It is now Walter Kreitling & Co., at the old stand.

E. E. Pieser has returned from his vacation.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—LAST OF THE HORTICULTURAL SHOWS.—MRS. DAWSON QUITE ILL.—SALE OF STALLS AT THE MARKET.—MANY PERSONAL JOTTINGS.

Roses still small, frequently mildewed, and not over plenty; American Beauty and Pres. Carnot the exceptions, the former still holding up its summer figure of twenty-five dollars a hundred for the best; carnations scarcer and poorer as the process of transferring from field to houses goes on; asters keeping up fairly well in quantity and quality; lily of the valley moving steadily—that is about how the market stands at present and there is nothing in sight for the next two weeks to materially affect it, one way or the other. Prices of most varieties in market rule about the same as at the corresponding time last season.

The last of the weekly horticultural shows for the season of 1899 was held on Saturday, September 16. There were some excellent displays of perennial asters, that of Mrs. E. M. Gill being awarded first prize.

Mrs. Jackson Dawson is seriously ill, having had a stroke of paralysis on last Thursday. The blow came to the family at a time of joyousness, Mr. Dawson's son William being home on a visit from Schenectady with his wife and little six-months-old Jackson Dawson, Jr., the entire family being at home together for the first time in two years.

The sale of stalls at the cut flower market on Park street took place on Saturday, September 16. Auctioneer Carroll officiating. The premiums paid were in most instances a slight advance over those of last year. The market luxuriated in a new coat of paint for the occasion.

Wm. Love, Jr., is running the houses on Withington street, Dorchester, once more and Neal Boyle, formerly of Clarence place, is with him.

Gordonia Altamaha is finer this season than ever before at the Arnold Arboretum, notwithstanding the severity of last winter. It is one of the most beautiful plants in the grounds.

James P. Leen, who makes florists' letters in a small way, was burned out last Thursday in a fire which occurred in the building on Marshall street where he was located.

E. M. Wood has gone on a yachting trip to Castine, Me., with his friend, B. F. Keith.

W. H. Long has returned from a month's vacation in the Catskills, looking as fresh as a daisy.

Humulus Lupulus Aureus.

A sport of the common hop (Humulus Lupulus) with golden yellow leaves, this plant forms a very striking contrast to the beautiful variegated hop introduced from Japan a few years ago. The beauty of this plant is best brought out when it is planted with green leaved climbers or with a background of dark green trees or shrubs. So far only small plants have been obtained —Die Gartenwelt.

Floral Fete at Saratoga.

Upward of 100,000 visitors were in Saratoga, N. Y., to witness or take part in the sixth annual pageant at the Saratoga Floral Association. Twenty-five thousand lanterns hung from the elms along the boulevard. The conclusion of the fete was the floral ball at Convention Hall, which was attended by between 7,000 and 8,000 persons. The interior decorations included eight tons of green trimmings, 30,000 gladioli, 20,000 hydrangeas and 15,000 of other flowers.

About Hydrangeas.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—Referring to the excellent illustration of hydrangeas in your issue for September 16, I desire to state that I pursue the same method employed by Mr. Downs. My largest plant is about six years old and this summer bore 165 good-sized blooms. It was five and one-half feet in diameter. I use them for outdoor summer decoration.

I am glad that you have taken up this subject, as there had been comparatively little practical matter published regarding the culture of hydrangeas and I have never been satisfied until now that I pursued the best course. The illustration referred to, showing such a number of plants nearly all of equal merit, should convince one that the best method in their cultivation has been adopted. The main key to the situation is in the statement that it is essential only that the wood be thoroughly ripened in the fall.

Nebraska and Iowa Give Thanks.

At a meeting of the Nebraska and Iowa Florists' Club at Omaha, Thursday evening, September 14, the following vote of thanks was extended to the Detroit Florists' Club:

Resolved, That we tender our sincere thanks for the elaborate entertainment of our delegates during the meeting of the S. A. F. convention in Detroit, in providing fine trolley rides, boat rides, fish suppers and entertainments. We thank one and all most heartily and will always cherish the memory of the delightful time we experienced in Detroit. And that our secretary be instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the Detroit Florists' Club.

The following vote of thanks was extended to the Chicago Florists' Club:

Resolved, That we, the Nebraska and Iowa Florists' Club, herewith tender our most sincere thanks for the kindness extended to our delegates to the S. A. F. convention at Detroit by the members of the Chicago Florists' Club in providing all necessities for the inner man also music and amusement on the journey from Chicago to Detroit, which will long be remembered and highly appreciated. And that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Chicago Florists' Club.

A Novel Suit.

A novel and interesting suit was begun yesterday before Judge Metzger by John Coleman, represented by F. Deedmyer, Esq., against Daniel E. Gorman. The plaintiff owns a lot on which there is a double house on the north side of High street, near Herdic street. On the opposite side of the street are the greenhouses of Mr. Gorman. The plaintiff alleges that the transparent glass sides and roof of said greenhouses are constructed at such angles that at all times when the sun is shining the beams thereof are reflected so that they strike Coleman's lot and the dwelling house and appurtenances, with such strength, force and brilliancy as to render the rooms in the front part of the house and the porch uninhabitable, useless and unfit for occupation and dangerous to the health of the occupants of the dwellings.

The plaintiff therefore prays for relief as follows: First, that the said building be declared a nuisance; second, that the defendant be compelled to remove the same, and third, that he be restrained hereafter from maintaining buildings constructed of transparent glass on said premises. Saturday was fixed as the day to hear arguments on the matter. The novelty of the suit consists in the attack on the general belief that the law allows a man to build according to his own taste on his own lot. There have been many complaints of adjoining buildings cutting off the light of day, but so far as known this is the first one which alleges that a party is passing on to his neighbor more than the quantity allowed by generous nature. It was stated on the part of the defendant that his buildings were erected before that of the plaintiff.

[The above appeared in The Sun, of Williamsport, Pa., September 5. Evidence was given by the plaintiff September 16 in support of his contentions, and this was corroborated by his physician. Defendant's testimony was deferred until this week. The result is awaited with interest.—ED.]

A Question of Piping.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have a greenhouse 14x100 feet and wish to divide it so that I can secure 65° in a room thirty feet long and 50° in the other portion. How shall I pipe these rooms to heat by steam? I also have a propagating house 6x50 feet and wish to divide that into two rooms each twenty-five feet long for roses and carnations. How should these rooms be piped?

YOUNG FLORIST.

A 2-inch main will supply steam for both houses, and this can be reduced to 1½-inch after the rose house has been taken off. The cool house can be heated by means of six 1¼-inch pipes in addition to the overhead flow. The drip pipes can be carried through the rose house. The rose house will need eight pipes in the coils, in addition to the 2-inch supply pipe. By means of valves either house can be regulated as desired. In the propagating house use a 1¼-inch supply on the south wall and for the under bench piping use four 1-inch pipes in the rose house and three in the carnation house.

L. R. TAFT.

All About Piping.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have three greenhouses, of which two are 17x65 feet and the third is 18x50 feet. Will you kindly furnish advice upon the following points regarding the best method of heating them?

1. Can a stationary boiler be used to heat by hot water under pressure?

2. If so, what size of flows and returns, and how many will be needed to maintain 70°; outside temperature 15° below zero?

3. With the same boiler, how many flows and returns, and what size of pipe, are necessary to heat by steam?

4. Will pipe that has been given a coat of asphaltum paint radiate heat same as if not so painted? B.

1. Very good results can be secured with an ordinary steam tubular boiler, but if the entire shell is filled with tubes it will be more satisfactory.

2. In houses Nos. 1 and 2, two 2½-inch flow pipes and fourteen 1½-inch returns and in house No. 3 two 2½-inch flows and fifteen 1½-inch returns, will be required for hot water.

3. One 2½ inch main and twelve 1¼-inch returns will answer for houses 1 and 2, and one flow and thirteen returns in house No 3, if steam is used. If desired, the above piping can be so arranged that hot water can be used in mild weather and steam when it is zero or lower. Steam and water gauges and a safety valve will be needed for the steam plant and an expansion tank for hot water, with valve so that either can be cut off. Air cocks should be placed at the lower end of the coils for use with steam, but if the down-hill system is used for hot water and the expansion tank is connected with the highest part of the main, no air valves will be needed for a hot water system. To change from water to steam, merely draw off the surplus water, open the valves leading to the safety valve and close the one below the expansion tank. If a closed system is used it can be so arranged that to change from hot water to steam it is only necessary to draw down the water.

4. The best radiation can be secured when the pipes have a rough, dull surface and, although fair results can be obtained when they are coated with asphaltum, it will be of benefit to paint them with lamp black and oil. L. R. TAFT.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN WELLS.

The wife of John Wells, well known at Gault, Ont., where Mr. Wells had a thriving business, died very suddenly September 11, of heart disease. She was a most estimable woman and her demise leaves her husband with the care of seven children.

D. B. MURDOCH.

Word has reached Pittsburg of the death of David B. Murdoch at Queenstown. Mr. Murdoch and his family left home in August for a visit at his father's birthplace in Ireland and the news of his demise comes as a shock to his wide circle of friends. Mr. Murdoch retired from business some years ago.

W. J. DAVIDSON.

Wm. J. Davidson, well known throughout the east, although he retired from business many years ago, died September 10 at the home of his sister, Mrs. Robt. Veitch, New Haven, Conn. He was of Scotch parentage but was born near London sixty-six years ago, coming to New York in 1855. In 1863 he started in the seed trade on Nassau street, selling out to Peter Henderson. He leaves one son. His brother, James Davidson, is with the H. A. Dreer Co., at Riverton.

Westerly, R. I.

Nothing daunted by the disastrous explosion last spring of one of his boilers, S. J. Reuter put a small army of men at work, the wreckage was cleared away and two modern greenhouses and a fine boiler house, great improvements on the former structures, are now nearing completion. His stock is invariably choice and commands the best prices in the Boston wholesale market. Mr. Reuter's plant consists of over 60,000 fect of glass, chiefly devoted to roses and carnations. Meteor, Bride, Bridesmaid, Kaiserin, Golden Gate, Pearl and Beauty are grown with marked success, both grafted and on their own roots. Of carnations Flora Hill and White Cloud are doing finely, being the standard whites, while Frances Joost, Daybreak, Victor and Wm. Scott are the pink varieties, with enough red, yellow and striped ones to make a complete list. Mr. Reuter enjoys a fine retail trade and during the summer months, in addition to his store in Westerly, he has a place at Watch Hill, a fashionable summer resort a few miles beyond Westerly. HOMO.

TITUSVILLE, PA.—Wm. Bay has entered into partnership with W. I. Relf and the firm is building a new house on the Relf property. They will run two stores, one here and and one at Cambridge Springs where Mr. Relf will be in charge.

Orchids
The management of the "Rosebank" Nurseries in offering Orchids to the trade is prepared to make and substantiate the following claims:
I. During the season of 1898-99 its Orchids were the freshest, the best packed and the most perfect flowers coming into Chicago.
II. Never since the establishment of these nurseries has an imperfect, poor or faded Orchid been shipped out.
III. The packing of Orchids for shipment is done so well that they have been shipped from Cincinnati to Salt Lake City (54 hours) with perfect success.
IV. The "Rosebank" collection of Orchids is the most extensive in the country.
V. These nurseries are the only source from which Orchids can be procured outside of New York.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALEXANDER ROGERS, Pres; ALBERT McCULLOUGH Vice-Pres: S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

ONION seed reports from California continue unfavorable.

GRASS seed in many lines is reported short in Europe this year.

THE demise of Alfred Johnson, a well known English seedsman, is chronicled.

FALL bulb trade starts in with a good showing of orders from dealers who do a retail business.

CARL CROPP, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, has gone for a brief stay in the Nebraska seed district.

WHAT the bean crop will be is still a matter of conjecture. In some cases the samples will be light in color.

THE prospects for good business in the London, Eng., seed market are said to have improved very materially in the past few weeks.

VISITED CHICAGO:—S. Y. Haines and wife, of Minneapolis, enroute to Washington, D. C., in the interest of Charles Parker, contractor for the government seed supply; H. W. Buckbee, of Rockford, Ill.

St. Louis.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY MARS THE CALM IN THE MISSOURI METROPOLIS.—MURDER OF A FLORIST.—CLUB MEETING, WEATHER AND TRADE.

The sensation of the fortnight is the murder of Wm. C. Pape and the suicide of Henry Frey. Mr. Pape, who was superintendent of parks for St. Louis, was entering his home one evening when Frey shot and mortally wounded him; then, seeing escape impossible, put a ball into his own brain. Mr. Pape had been in the trade for many years, was prominent in politics and a popular man. His funeral was very largely attended and the floral tributes were profuse. F. W. Pape, who has conducted his father's establishment for some time, has been appointed to succeed him as superintendent of parks.

The September club meeting was poorly attended, but the members had a jolly time with the newly elected president, J. F. Ammann. It was reported that our club picnic cost us $30.

The weather has turned damp and cool and the growers are all busy moving in their stock.

Business is quiet, but good flowers are scarce. S. E.

Cincinnati.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—CARNATIONS BENCHED IN INCREASED QUANTITY.—NOTES.

There has been a slight improvement in business over last week and our wholesale houses report a fair shipping trade. The quality of stock is fast improving. Asters are not over plentiful, but extra good stock is being shipped in from Michigan. Carnations are about equal to the demand, with the exception of white. Choice roses have been selling well, while poor grades move slowly. There has been little call for tuberoses this season, in fact the street fakirs don't want them.

Our carnation growers are about through planting and, judging from present indications, there will be a plenty of this flower around this market this season. Among standard varieties, Daybreak, Scott and Flora Hill are still in the lead.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was in town this week. H. SCHWARZ.

NEWS NOTES.

OMAHA, NEB.—J. J. Hess is rejoicing over the arrival of a nine pound boy in his family.

GRAND FORKS, N. D.—Frank Kent has a handsome new refrigerator, made for him by the White Enamel Refrigerator Co., St. Paul.

WATERLOO, N. Y.—Edney Smith met with a painful accident recently, falling from the rear porch at his home, cutting his face severely.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.—Mrs. E. V. Denton has opened her florist store in the Stillman Building for the season and gave a reception September 22.

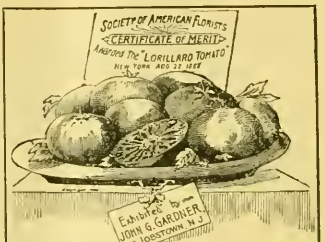
WILLIAMSTOWN, MASS.—A movement is on foot for the purchase of Torrey's Woods with the object of preserving them for the public benefit.

INDEPENDENCE, IA.—The Bissell Floral Company has ceased to exist, Mr. Cilly disposing of his interest to E. M. Bissell, who will continue the business.

LEOMINSTER, MASS.—J. Fuller is building an even span house 20x115. The material is largely iron; the heat, hot water. He reports business good all summer.

SILVER CREEK, N. Y.—T. F. Vander Meuelen, of Dunkirk, has purchased the greenhouses near the station here, at chattel sale and will add them to his range at Dunkirk.

GLENVILLE, N. Y.—Cooke & McCord recently purchased the ground on which their greenhouses stand and are making improvements and additions. They have a store on Main street, Tarrytown.



ST. CHARLES, Mo.—Jos. Gelven & Son are building two thoroughly modern greenhouses at Sedalia, Mo. The plant will be in charge of Charles Gelven, Mr. Gelven senior retiring until his health is improved.

BEARDSTOWN, ILL.—Frank Burtonshaw has completed his recent additions and improvements on his greenhouses but is now about to put up another fifty-foot house for lettuce. His stock is all looking well.

CHESTNUT HILL, PA.—Visitors recently in town were: Geo. M. Stumpp, New York; E. N. Peirce, Waltham, Mass.; Fred. Lemon, with E. G. Hill & Co., Richmond, Ind.; J. A. Valentine, Denver, Col.; Mr. Woodruff, Independence, Iowa.

WORCESTER, MASS.—H. F. A. Lange has just completed two large violet houses, heated by hot water, and is now building two houses, covering 4,300 square feet, for carnations. These will be steam heated. His stock is in fine condition and trade is good.

HIGHLAND, N. Y.—The violet growers here are well pleased with the appearance of their stock. Mrs. M. J. Moore has 18,000 plants and J. W. Feeter 15,500. The latter grower shipped the first violets from this section September 11 and has been shipping every day since.

The Nursery Trade.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
W. J PETERS Pres.; D. S LAKE. Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

PROF. JOHN CRAIG is compiling certain facts in regard to American plums in the publication of which nurserymen will take much interest.

IT is remarkable that in the Niagara district, where peach buds sometimes all succumb to cold 12° below zero, there has been a heavy crop this year.

THE European apple crop is reported below the average and American apples of the first grade will again find ready sale at Liverpool and Hamburg.

J. E. ACKERMAN, Passaic, N. J., invites proposals for supplying about 4000 shade trees for street planting by the city and mails specifications upon request.

THERE are 7,533,358 apple trees in Kansas and Sec'y Barnes, of the State Horticultural Society, estimates this year's yield as forty-seven per cent of a full crop.

THIRTY-SEVEN varieties of apples and twelve of peaches were awarded premiums at the Minnesota State Fair. The Jewell Nursery Company and C. Wedge were leading exhibitors.

PARTIES owning 2500 acres near Galveston, Texas, are preparing to turn the property into a peach orchard and it is reported that the Alvin Nursery Co., Alvin, Tex., has made a contract to plant and cultivate the orchard for four years, turning it over to its owners in 1903.

American Pomological Society.

The state vice-presidents of the American Pomological Society, selected at the recent meeting at Philadelphia, are:

Arkansas, N. G. Vincenhiller, Little Rock; Connecticut, J. H. Hale, South Glastonbury; Delaware, Alexander Pullen, Milford; District Columbia, W. Saunders, Washington; Florida, G. L. Taber, Glen St. Mary; Georgia, P. J. A. Berckmans, Jr., Augusta; Illinois, H. M. Dunlap, Savoy; Indiana, J. Troop, Lafayette; Iowa, Charles G. Patten, Charles City; Kansas, W. H. Barnes, Topeka; Maine, M. M. Munson, Orono; Maryland, J. W. Kerr, Denton; Massachusetts, W. C. Strong, Waban; Michigan, C. J. Monroe, South Haven; Missouri, J. J. Evans, Harlem; New Hampshire, C. C. Shaw, Milford; New Jersey, Ira J. Blackwell, Titusville; New York, F. M. Hexamer, New York city; North Carolina, J. Van Lindley, Pomona; Pennsylvania, Howard A. Chase, Philadelphia; Virginia, George E. Morrell, Fontella; Vermont, F. A. Waugh, Burlington; West Virginia, H. W. Miller, Pawpaw.

A striking feature in connection with the literary part of the meeting was the entire omission of San Jose scale discussion. It is hoped that the San Jose scale, so far as a "time killer" at conventions is concerned, is dead and buried. There has too often been a useless waste of time on this subject, especially when the discussion got into the legislative rut.

One of the most important fruit displays was that made by Ellwanger & Barry, of Rochester, N. Y. This firm has always been famous for its success in growing pears and the collection shown annually at the meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society has been a leading feature. It was fitting that the committee on awards should mark their appreciation of this fine pear exhibit by giving it a silver medal.

To westerners and northerners the nut exhibit by the Pomona Nurseries, Parry, N. J., was an instructive feature of great value. The best types of the Japan, Spanish and American chestnuts were represented by specimens of the leaves and fruit. The walnuts were also represented by samples of the Persian, English, Japanese and American species. This exhibit was also awarded a silver medal.

It was generally conceded that as an all-round hustler, Secretary Taylor should be given first rank. To him was due a great share of the credit of bringing out the younger coterie of horticultural experiment station workers. In this way the newer lines of scientific work were joined up with the older features of pomological interest. Among the younger men present were Beach, Corbett, Stinson, Whitten, Craig, Waugh and Irish. C.

Indianapolis.

TRADE GOOD BUT STOCK SCARCE.—VISITORS IN TOWN.—AN ACCIDENT.—A BEAR HUNT.—NOTES.

All along the line business is reported as increasing. The stores, especially, have been very busy. Flowers of good quality are rather scarce, as the outside stock suffered badly during the long drought. Roses which were planted early are just getting into crop, but it will be some time yet before any quantity of carnations can be cut. Good carnations were plentiful at this time last year, and found ready sale. In this vicinity early flowers are an important point in favor of indoor culture.

Last Saturday night a lady caught her foot in the hitching strap attached to John Heidenreich's horse and, in falling, was so badly injured that she was taken home in an ambulance.

James Gurney, of Tower Grove Park, St. Louis, was a recent visitor. The parks were shown to him by Robert McKain. Mr. Gurney was greatly interested in a bed of Acalypha Macafeena in University Park, of which "Mac" is especially proud.

Messrs. Heller, of New Castle, and Hill, of Richmond, also paid a visit to Indianapolis last week. Mr. Hill reported his gigantic carnation house as completed, and the Indianapolis boys are planing a trip to inspect it and other improvements of Mr. Hill's place.

J. C. Powers, park superintendent and president of the Society of Indiana Florists, has gone bear hunting to obtain some specimens for the bear pit in Riverside Park. Unlike ordinary hunters, he uses gold out of the city treasury instead of lead to secure his prey.

OUR PASTIMES

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and cycling readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; or to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

At Pittsburg.

After the club meeting Thursday night, September 14, the bowlers indulged in practice on the Davis alley. It was W. F. Kasting's last evening in Pittsburg and he made his farewell with the high score, 200, to his credit. G. O.

At New York.

At the meeting on Monday afternoon, September 17, officers were elected for the coming year for the New York Florists' Bowling Club, as follows: President, Patrick O'Mara; vice-president, Theo. Roehrs; secretary, J. W. Withers; treasurer, Alex. Burns; captain, Frank Traendly.

At Chicago.

Following the last club meeting, the bowlers indulged in two games, making the following averages:

Swigart	181	McKellar	130
Winterson	158	Henderson	115
Kreitling	145	Samuelson	106
Pruner	138	Degnan	97
Enders	137	Palinsky	78
Wilson	134	Reardon	73

Slowtown Items.

Brother O'Mara says he arrived at the scene of the last convention in time to welcome the boys from the "proverbially slow town." We might also add that he stayed long enough to congratulate them on their success. The race is not always to the swift, brother; it is endurance that counts.

The bowlers are putting in an idle hour or two on the alleys now and again. Thursday and Saturday evenings generally find a few of the faithful on hand, and some exciting games have taken place, although no match games are being recorded. High games for the past three weeks have been, Kift 221, Anderson 204 and Hamilton 213.

The last cricket match of the season is to be played at Stoke Pogis, Thursday, September 28. The train will leave Broad street at 1:15; wagons will take the cricketers to the field and the game will commence at once. K.

Detroit.

FLORISTS' CLUB RECEIVES MANY LETTERS AND RESOLUTIONS OF THANKS.—DROUGHT IS BROKEN AND PLANTING PROGRESSING. —PERSONAL MENTION.

Our club meeting on Wednesday evening was made very enjoyable by the reading of a great number of letters from other clubs and individuals in all parts of the country expressing thanks and appreciation of our efforts to make the convention pleasant and agreeable to them. Even a small part of the many very nice things said of us and our city would suffice to make us all feel proud and well satisfied with the results of our endeavors.

The drought was at last broken by copious rains on Monday and Tuesday and the ground is now in nice condition for lifting carnations, so that this work will soon be finished by all the local growers. At Woodmere, F. Kolbe is planting his new houses with 7000 carnations on solid beds, the principal varieties being Scott, Cerise Queen, Flora Hill and Tidal Wave.

Chas. Warncke is redecorating his office and equipping it with new cases and counters. He reports a fair trade for the season.

Dennis Conner, who has been spending the summer here, left September 17 for his home in Philadelphia, where he has secured a position.

Mrs. Geo. Rackham is recovering from the effects of a surgical operation.

J. E. Killen was a visitor this week. J. F. S.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—FIRST CHRYSANTHEMUMS.—KASTING SELLS OUT.—OTHER MATTERS OF INTEREST.

The cut flower stores show a little more activity this week. The quantity of flowers has also improved. Some white chrysanthemums have made their appearance, Fred. Burki sending in the first lot, which found ready sale at $3 per dozen. Some extra fine Bride and Bridesmaid roses are sent in from the Oakwood Rose Gardens. Prices are about the same as for the previous week.

A meeting of the Pittsburg and Allegheny Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held on September 14. It was decided there would be no picnic this year, but the club will give a banquet or dance in the near future. Secretary Langhans was instructed to express to the Cleveland and Detroit clubs the gratitude and thanks of the Pittsburg and Allegheny Florists' Club for the courtesy and hospitality shown them during the recent convention. Charles Beckert, Allegheny, was proposed for membership.

W. F. Kasting has sold his wholesale commission business known as W. F. Kasting & Co. to Geo. L. Huscroft, of Steubenville, Ohio, who will give it his personal attention.

J. B. Ferguson, had his opening last Saturday, and expressed himself well pleased with the prospects from the amount of business done. G. O.

SAGINAW, MICH.—August Buchholz was found dead in the cellar at Wm. Roethke's greenhouses and the indications were that he had been killed by contact with an electric wire. He was twenty-two years old and served in the Spanish war in the Thirty-third Michigan volunteers.

Buffalo.

TRADE OF THE WEEK CONFINED TO FUNERAL WORK.—CHANGES AMONG RETAILERS.— WEDDINGS IN PROSPECT.— NOTES.

The rain cut off trade early this week, except funeral work, the obsequies of J. F. Schoelkoff and Ald Chas. Kiefer calling for many designs.

There have been numerous changes in employes in the several retail stores. Kemmeler, from Palmer's, is now at Rebstock's, where many improvements are being made. Porter is at Scott's and "Joe," from Anderson's, is at Palmer's.

S. A. Anderson will wed one of Buffalo's fairest daughters early next month and Carl Kumpff's nuptials will be an event of this week.

Geo. Schmid, formerly with Kasting, is now with the Westinghouse Electrical Co., Pittsburg. W. A.

Salem, Mass.

Several years ago Mrs. J. M. Julyn took hold of the establishment of L. W. F. Dodge and has built it up remarkably. She now has a business which is, to say the least, a credit to her. I spent a very pleasant half hour looking over the place in company with Mrs. Julyn's proficient assistant, Dennis McNamara. They have five houses, steam heated, in which they grow a general stock for retail. There is a fine bench of Boston fern and the carnations are all planted. Violets will be a specialty this season, Mr. McNamara being one of the best growers of this very popular flower. Business is good.

At John Mack's, at Beverly, I found repainting in progress. TAP.

When corresponding with advertisers, mention the AMERICAN FLORIST.

Peoria, Ill.

There is in Peoria some 120,000 square feet of glass, owned principally by Cole Bros., J. C. Murray and C. Loverage. Cole Bros. have the largest place, some 75,000 feet. Murray has 25,000 and Loverage 20,000, with three smaller places.

Carnations in this section are looking well and nearly all are in the benches. Cole Bros. lead with six houses and have on trial most of the new varieties. They have 100 plants of a very nice sport of Tidal Wave, pure white and very prolific. Their Beauty house has made a good showing and promises well with its 3,000 plants. They have seven houses of teas.

At Murray's a house of carnations benched in August is coming along in fine shape. They are the standard kinds, about 5,000, with some new ones on trial. Mr. Murray's houses have all been repainted and repaired throughout.

C. Loverage, the new florist, has everything spick and span with all the latest ideas in rose houses, for he makes a specialty of roses. His plants look well, especially the grafted ones. He grows 4,000 carnations. PEORIAN.

London, Ont.

The horticultural department of our Western Fair was the best on record, and although it lasted ten days the plants looked well to the end. Gammage & Son were the principal exhibitors and succeeded in winning seventeen first, three second and three third prizes. A. H. Ewing, of Berlin, judged the plants, and J. H. Dunlop, of Toronto, the cut flowers. Gammage & Son also put up a trade exhibit, from which they took a large number of orders.

E. Meredith is busy building a carnation house, Dicks has finished his planting and others are in the midst of carnation benching. Stock all around is good and the indications are that trade will be better than ever. W. G.

Butted Glass.

This is no longer an experiment, it has come to stay. There are various ways of making Butted Roofs, but the best way is with the Clipper Bar.

With this bar you can make a roof that is absolutely free from drip, and glass cannot be torn out by the wind. Butted glass makes a tight roof, a warm house and saves fuel. It lasts longer, looks better and costs less than the old-fashioned roof. But do not think that this is the only bar we sell, for it is not; we furnish what people want and there is nothing in greenhouse material that you cannot get from us, and all of open-air-dried Cypress clear of bright sap, stained sap, knots and all other defects.

UTICA, N. Y.—The firm of Pfeifer & Kaufer was dissolved January 1, Wm. F. Kaufer retiring. Wm. P. Pfeifer now has a range of 11,000 feet of glass, having built two new houses this season, one 16x60 for roses and a violet house 10x60.

Seasonable Plant Notes.

The increased call for decorative plants, flowering and foliage, for everyday home adornment and for gifts on special occasions where heretofore cut flowers have been used almost exclusively, is apparent to all florists doing a general retail trade and the question of how or where to procure a regular supply of desirable material in this line becomes a serious problem to many. Plant growing requires not only a high degree of skill of quite a different nature from that needed for the production of the few varieties of standard cut flowers but—what is a more formidable obstacle—a large area of glass. Crowded plants are never of the best quality in appearance or in constitution, as those who have to buy them have frequently learned to their sorrow.

For those who have the necessary land, the right soil, the capital and confidence in the future of the plant trade, there can be but little risk in building freely in preparation for the plant business of the future. It has been predicted by the pessimistically inclined that in a short time we will see the plant business overdone and in the same condition as is rose growing in the neighborhood of some of the large cities, with twice the amount of glass in operation that the demand for the product would justify. No doubt this is true, but in just the same sense as it is true of the cut flower growing business. The same process of grading and selection will quickly make the gulf between the careful, skillful grower and his slipshod, untrained competitor which similar conditions in the rose growing industry have brought about and, as in the case of the latter, the financial results will be in the exact ratio of the grade of the goods produced. We have not heard yet of a grower of the "best roses" in his neighborhood who has been forced to the wall through the unprofitableness of his business although we may have heard him do a good deal of growling and that florist, be he retailer or wholesaler (the latter, of course, contiguous to his market) who will aim successfully to present to his customer only the best in plants need have no fear as to the future of this department.

And here a word of warning to those large growers of palms and similar decorative stock who, possibly counting too much on their monopoly of this business in the past, send out palms whose size consists largely in the long, drawn-out stems resulting from close confinement in warm and overcrowded houses and which, buyers are learning to realize, lack the firmness and constitution to withstand for any time the dry air and other drawbacks of the store or dwelling house. "Penny wise and pound foolish," too, are those growers who, when palms or pandanuses have from one cause or another developed brown-tipped foliage, trim off the tips with a pair of sharp scissors and then send out these plants as first-grade stock. Such material must be disposed of, of course, but why misrepresent it or put full prices on damaged stock? There is always a demand in certain localities for such if the price is made an object to the buyer who, knowing what he is getting, can then find no fault. Buyers of first-class plants at first-class prices will do well to watch out for clipped foliage.

Hydrangeas should now be potted up. With proper care and conditions in the field during summer, they should now be luxuriant, stocky clumps of fine green foliage that will require close work to get the roots into an 8-inch or 9-inch pot. The best place for them for the next three months is the cold frame and, if sufficient protection against hard freezing can be given, the longer they stay there the better. They will flower better and, best of all, they will last much better in your customer's window than those that are hot-house grown.

As to azaleas left over from last spring, whether they have been kept in the original pots or planted out, they should now be got where they can be protected at short notice. Some thoughtful growers now prefer importing their Acacia paradoxa and metrosideros in the spring, stipulating, as a matter of course, that the invoices shall not arrive before Easter. The plants when received are put out doors at once and after a summer in this climate appear much more thrifty and hold their flower buds better than fall imported plants. But there are far-seeing growers who see no reason why this stock should not be worked up here from cuttings, just as good and maybe better than foreign grown specimens and benches of young stock in many of these specialties are now frequently seen.

In palms the progress in home production from seed has been so rapid during the past two or three years that many small growers who have heretofore procured their stock from the large dealers are at it and have young material under way. In this line kentias are keeping easily in the lead as to popularity on account of their general utility and their persistent toughness. Arecas cannot be depended upon to an equal extent, to please the customer and bring her back for another investment. If the raphises only had more grace they would make popular house plants, they bear ill usage so well.

Asparagus Sprengerii seems not to attain the popularity as a hanging plant that its graceful drooping green would indicate, but in a cut state it is becoming a staple rapidly in the better class of florists' establishments. When selling a bunch of carnations put a spray or two of this green with them and note how quickly customers will come back and call for it. Rubbers are selling well this season but the branching form is much preferred to the single stem and now that these are becoming better known and more generally distributed buyers are beginning to demand them.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine is easily the leader in winter flowering plants of recent introduction. There is considerably more stock of it in sight this season than last but not nearly enough to meet the demand that is sure to be experienced for this beautiful plant. A difference of opinion exists among growers as to its proper treatment at the present season, some believing that by keeping the flower buds nipped off they will promote more active growth in the plant and others, one of whom is Mr. Edgar, who made such a success of it last year, claiming that the flower stems are the real and only growth of the plant in the flowering season and that they should not be interfered with.

Good old Euphorbia Jacquinæflora is a flower seldom seen now-a-days but the older florists well remember its lovely racemes of bright vermilion which served so good a purpose in the trimming of basket handles, etc., in the days of the old-fashioned Christmas and New Year's baskets, and will agree that it is good enough to revive for use now, when evidences of dissatisfaction with the limited variety of commercial flowers are so unmistakable. Cuttings taken last spring should now be single-stemmed plants three to four feet tall and, if in pots can be transferred to flats where planted thickly together for economy in space and labor of watering and will be in bloom for Christmas. With these and with their relative, the poinsettia, it is a good plan to avoid a high temperature. More stocky stems and better heads will result.

Browallia speciosa major, which was illustrated and described in these columns two years ago, is fulfilling the bright promise made for it at that time. Only a few growers have it, as yet, but it is sure to come prominently to the front. W. W. Edgar has a bench of it in pots which presents a lovely sight with its profusion of large bright blue flowers.

For fern dishes lay in a stock of Aspidium tensemense and Polystichum setosum. They are both in the first rank for this purpose, healthy, vigorous, pretty, and, best of all, everlastingly tough.

The Springfield Dahlia Show.

The Springfield Amateur Horticultural Society, Springfield, Mass., held a dahlia show September 19 and 20. Adhering to its strictly amateur rule of encouraging the exhibits of individual members there was no schedule of classes and no judging for premiums. As a special attraction several large growers sent exhibits; these held the leading place. Altogether there were about 7,000 blooms arranged either in bouquets or for individual effect.

Lawrence Peacock, of Atco, N. J., who, as a wholesale grower, does not propose to enter in specified classes any more, sent a fine display of bunches of about 100 leading sorts. Lothrop & Higgins, Bridgewater, Mass., sent about 400 of the choicest sample blooms, besides bouquets of pompon and single varieties. Their exhibit, for quality and latest introductions, was never excelled in this country. Their assortment of cactus varieties was the drawing card of the show.

The writer was one of the judges at South Manchester, Conn., the week before, where Lothrop & Higgins ran neck and neck with H. F. Burt on a schedule that was difficult to fill, but which both filled admirably. It was expected that Mr. Burt would be in equal evidence at Springfield, according to promise, but he was doubtless prevented by a show at home. But the writer did not enthuse so much over the somewhat crowded arrangement of the classes at South Manchester as at Springfield where each blossom in fresh and beautiful form, less stiffly arranged, showed each its own color and character.

By what magic the many new cactus varieties have been created in such perfect form is the wonder. Mr. Peacock's exhibit was the more interesting to the writer because he had just been to Atco to see the thirty-five acres of dahlias from which they came. Crating a hundred bunches is quite a different matter from boxing specimen blossoms in layers, and they necessarily suffer by transportation. To have seen a hundred such bunches freshly picked would mean the top notch of enthusiasm. But I was glad, in talking with Mr. Peacock, to learn the points of just judgment between his line of work and that of the two smaller growers at East Bridgewater and Taunton, Mass. Mr. Peacock is strictly a wholesale grower. His customers are dealers who go to the fields to select the best all-round sorts. Except for his own amusement many of the cactus varieties are valueless on account of shy bloom. On the other hand, even though these gilt-edged specimen blossoms, such as we saw at Springfield, are more or less deceptive to the average buyer, still our dahlia amateurs are now far enough along to want them "for better or for worse," and it is to us a matter of keen interest that the East Bridgewater and Taunton growers are importing everything that can add to the beautiful effect of an exhibit.

Our Springfield amateurs have altogether about 3000 hills of dahlias. L. D. Robinson, Jr., is our largest dahlia man, having 1500 hills, of 400 sorts. His table presented a fine show. We have several who have 200 and 300 hills each. C. L. Simons arranged his in sawdust with fine effect. Mrs. J. W. Shillingford won great praise for her singles. Alexander Hughes, a colored member, filled two tables with great credit, his vases of Agnew and Kaiser William being in splendid exhibition form. C. Candrian is very successful with singles and has a fancy collection. Joseph Aumer, who is our tuberous begonia expert, surprised us with a potted collection of giant cockscomb. The writer built all his blossoms from 300 hills into a pyramid for the center of the hall. There were creditable exhibits from C. L. Burr, J. W. Adams & Co., O. C. Trask, James H. Atkinson, Miss Conaty, P. H. Holmes, of West Brookfield; Mrs. M. L. Mann, of Florence; E. H. Newell, W. H. Fellows and Mrs. Frank T. Russell.

Something has been said about the American Dahlia Society having its show in 1900 at Springfield, and we are ready to greet it with our smiles.

This has been a very trying dahlia year, but frost is holding off so that in the last week of September we are having our best bloom. We fully realize the pressing need of a new dahlia classification, but we doubt if it can be manufactured to order, or be given recognized value by any vote taken in one meeting of the American Dahlia Society. We hope there will come in from all parts of the dahlia world such a range of suggestion that the classification that is finally adopted may have the weight of universal judgment.

W. T. HUTCHINS.

New Diseases of the Violet.

VIOLET BUD NEMATODES.

We desire to call attention to a new violet disease—if disense it can be called—which, if it should become established,

FIG. 2.—Plant infested with the violet bud nematode, showing healthy roots, diseased and abortive flower buds, and wiry, dwarfed and distorted shoots and runners.

would doubtless prove to be more serious and destructive than spot or any of the fungous or insect enemies now known to attack violets. The trouble was brought to our notice by a gentleman in Vermont, who sent some of his plants to us in order to find the cause of their peculiar behavior and the remedy. The following extract from the letter which accompanied the plants is a good description of the effects of the disease: "Our violet plants all run blind or lose the principal crown and refuse to flower, and the very few flowers they do give are inferior. The trouble seems to increase as time goes on and, although we selected our stock for cuttings this spring, the disease, or whatever it may be, seems more prevalent than ever."

FIG. 3.—Violet bud nematodes (magnified 125 times).

The leaves of the plants received were yellowish and sickly looking, hard and brittle to the touch, and broke with a pronounced cracking sound when bent between the fingers. The edges turned upward and the lobes overlapped, causing the leaves to appear cup-shaped (Figs. 1 and 2). In every instance the crown bud was wanting (Fig. 1). There were numerous runners and wiry shoots, which showed the plants' efforts to overcome the trouble, but the new growth was dwarfed and distorted, which showed that it, too, was suffering from the same trouble. All the plants had good roots, which were free from root nematodes, or eel worms, and practically free from fungous diseases (Fig. 2). Longitudinal sections were made through the crown bud, the growing point or bud of the runners and the abortive flower buds, and vast numbers of nematodes, or eel worms, were found working between the folds of the young growing buds. Figure 3 is a drawing of some of these worms and their eggs, these being magnified about 125 times. These worms are approximately .0007 of an inch in diameter and from .01 to .024 long. They can, however, be seen by the naked eye after being properly mounted and located by the aid of the microscope or a good hand lens.

The injuries on the violet are in some respects similar to those produced on begonias by a species of nematode, and it is probable that the species in the two cases are closely related. The work of the species in question, however, is different from that of any we have ever seen and it is very probably a new species.

The worms appear to live only in the buds and young growing parts of the plant—at least none could be found in any other portion of the plants or in the soil surrounding them. The dwarfing and distortion, and more frequently the death of the parts attacked, are caused either by the presence of the worms or by their feeding on the juices of the plant at the tender growing parts.

To prevent the introduction and spread of the pest all stock should be carefully inspected before shipping or before planting and every plant showing the slightest symptoms of the trouble should be destroyed. Should the trouble appear all affected plants should be promptly rooted out and burned, and the soil in the beds should be removed to a depth of six to eight inches immediately if possible, but by all means before new stock is planted. Before putting in the new soil it would be well, we believe, to thoroughly coat the woodwork of the beds with whitewash.

WOOD FUNGUS ATTACKING VIOLETS.

The fungus, Merulius lacrymans Fr., which produces the dry rot so common in wood, has heretofore, so far as we know, not been reported as attacking living plants. However, the fungus appeared in our violet houses at Garrett Park, Maryland, several years ago and has caused more or less damage each season. It is invariably found close to or on some portion of the woodwork in the beds in which the plants grow and flower, but so far no trace of it has been found in our cutting beds. In his experiments with dry rot (merulius), Hartig found that the spores of the fungus will not germinate either in water or in ordinary nutritive solutions, but that when alkalies, such as are supplied by urine, are added, they germinate very readily. This explains the abundant growth of the fungus on the inner surface of the boards along the walks just at or a little below the surface of the soil, the conditions here being, no doubt, ideal for the germination of the spores.

The fungus spreads from the woodwork in the beds to the adjacent plants by means of rather coarse white mycelial threads (Fig. 4), which grow through and over the surface of the soil. These threads frequently reach the base of a plant and there develop into a rather thick, fleshy hymenium (Figs. 4 and 5), which is frequently covered with minute globules of moisture. At first it is snow white and more or less smooth on the surface, but as it grows older it changes to a yellowish or grayish white and the surface becomes rough, tongued, or almost toothed (Fig. 5). The parts attacked rot or decay, however, and the plant is usually killed long before the fungus reaches this stage of development. The injurious effects are, no doubt, due to some deleterious substance secreted by the fungus.

Strong Bordeaux mixture seems to have little or no effect in checking the fungus. In fact we have seen a case where it developed a strong, healthy hymenium all over the surface of a cypress shingle that had been thoroughly saturated with a strong copper sulphate. As it is a wood fungus, it can be avoided by using some other material in the construction of the benches. Brick or concrete sides might be used, but of course these take up more room and are more expensive than boards. We are at present considering several different methods of construction with a view of finding a substitute for wood which will be cheap and convenient and at the same time remain free from the attacks of the fungus in question. P. H. DORSETT.

STOCK IMPROVES BUT TRADE DOES NOT.—RETAIL MEN CLEAR THE DECKS FOR ACTION.—LITTLE EXPECTED OF DEWEY CELEBRATION. — PLANTS IN FAVOR. — NOTES AND COMMENTS HERE AND THERE IN THE METROPOLIS.

Receipts of flowers at the wholesale markets are increasing and quality is improving generally, except in the case of roses, many of which are coming in with a fall overcoat of mildew, but no increase in trade is noted. In fact none is looked for until after the Dewey celebration is over, and prices are about as they have been for some time. Already the rivalry as to who sent or who received the first chrysanthemums or the first violets of the season is getting to be a chestnut, and the question as to who has the best will soon be a more practical subject, for, more than ever before, it looks as though success or failure for both grower and wholesaler would this year depend upon the grade of the goods carried.

From Long Branch and the Catskills, from across the Atlantic and over the Hudson, the retailers are rounding up, and a call at any one of the prominent establishments is pretty sure to find the proprietor on the bridge and in command. Not that much is going on yet, but old customers are returning rapidly to town and they have a way of dropping in during the day just to see what is in prospect, florally, for the coming season, and it is wise to have things in order and the proprietor on hand to welcome them. "Dewey days" will not bring any business to the flower trade, in all probability, and little is expected until after the excitement is all over, but it is true that this event, quite different in this respect from the average holiday, is bringing residents and their friends to town earlier this season than their wonted time, and once here they will probably remain. But few floral orders are received, the principal inquiry being for plants and each customer asks for assurances as to the keeping qualities of such as are offered. Quite a number of aspidistras are seen, and in a nice jar they look well, especially the variegated kind, and the most conscientious dealer can recommend them unreservedly as almost indestructible. A few stately bay trees, outside, and a bank of araucarias with a bright dracæna or two to add color, inside, constitute the principal adornment of some establishments. A good many dahlias, of which some lovely colors are seen, are used when an opportunity is offered in the cut flower line. A bunch or two of violets may be found now in almost any pretentious establishment. Large kentias are said to be hard to find.

Siebrecht & Son were large buyers in the wholesale markets last week, they having been favored with the two big wedding occasions of the season at Newport, of which an account is given in another column. Hanft had a good wedding decoration at the Savoy last Tuesday, also.

Alex. McConnell has been down at Lakewood considerable of the time this summer superintending some fine landscape work there which he has in charge and incidentally adding a little pleasure to the business in hand.

W. P. Sears and family returned last Saturday on the St. Paul after a pleasant three-months' European trip.

Weber & Fields' opening last week called for quite a quantity of flowers, and "glad hands," horse-shoes, etc., were handed up on the stage in rapid succession.

Henry Hurrell, whose wife and two children went abroad last July, received on Thursday the sad news of the death of his year-old son.

Julius Roehrs has just received a shipment of 300 large bay trees, which is believed to be one of the largest consignments of the kind on record.

Eugene Thorne is sending to John I. Raynor Bride and Bridesmaid roses of a quality rarely attained at this early date.

The sixty-eighth fair of the American Institute is on this week at 19 and 21 West Forty-fourth street, closing Friday night.

A. Herrmann reports the sale of cycas leaves and metal goods as unprecedentedly large this season.

Owen P. McDonald, 611 Madison avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy.

The New Jersey Floricultural Society will hold a social and smoker at Linsley Hall, Orange, next Wednesday evening.

John Osborne has opened a retail flower store at 157 East Twenty-eighth street.

Foley, of the Bowery, has opened a branch at Twenty-eighth street and Eighth avenue.

Visitors: Robert Craig, Philadelphia; J. F. Huss and family, Lenox, Mass., en route to Switzerland; R. H. and Benj. James, Bermuda.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—RUMOR OF A FLOWER MARKET. — GOINGS ON AT EDGAR'S.—SOME WELL-GROWN PLANTS. MEDALS AWARDED AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.—BOSTON FERNS, BABY PRIMROSES. —VISITORS.

A fair amount of stock is being handled each day at the various cut flower markets and at prices that may also be called fair for the season. Outdoor stock is still in good shape, the frost having held off nicely so far and it is fortunate that the indoor flowers are not coming along too fast as the demand is light all around. Country buyers are beginning to appear, looking over the available material for stocking up properly for the coming good times, and out-of-town growers are also met daily in and about the wholesale establishments, putting the proprietors through a course of cross examination to see just what they can be induced to promise. Nothing sensational is in the air excepting a half defined proposition to locate a big flower market on the site of the abandoned Park Square station. But, as the flower market in Park street has just arranged a five year lease in its present location, support can hardly be looked for from that quarter and it is also understood that the solid opposition of the big influential Back Bay district will be thrown against any scheme to locate a market of any kind so close to them, the prospects for the suggested plan are rather slim.

W. W. Edgar has added a new and commodious stable to his establishment and equipped the entire place with electric light. He will now build a cold storage shed 125 feet long to accommodate the increased quantity of stock he will carry this winter. In the houses Gloire de Lorraine is coming into profuse bloom and makes a charming picture. A bench of Dracæna terminalis attracts the eye because of the clean and handsome appearance of the plants. They were grown in a deep hot bed with two feet of manure under them and they have not a flaw. It looks as if that was the way to grow them. Cibotium Scheidii in 6-inch pots gives promise of being a superb window specimen fern. Quantities of adiantums are being put in 4-inch pans, three little plants to a pan and they make an exceedingly attractive and dainty feature for the center of the dining table. Among several new ferns that are being tried here and look promising are Adiantum Æthiopica elatum which looks like A. tenerum but seems a stronger grower, Gymnogramma grandiceps superba, which is a finely crested golden variety, and Pteris Drinkwaterii which has hard foliage, is a vigorous grower and will make a handsome specimen plant.

Last Saturday, at Horticultural Hall, a silver medal was awarded to Geo. McWilliam for Lælia-Cattleya Catharine L. Whitin, a hybrid between Lælia purpurata and Cattleya Harrisoneæ, and certificates of merit were given to J. E. Rothwell for Cypripediums Uehleineanum and H. Ballantine. The annual fruit and vegetable show is on for this week. The next exhibition of any extent will be the chrysanthemum show, which will be held November 7–10. The annual election of officers of the Horticultural Society will take place on Saturday, October 7.

A. Leuthy has a good stock of Boston ferns of the "genuine variety" and a big stock of fine young palms coming on. His greenhouses are equipped with cement walks throughout, which no self-respecting grower should be without, since they can be laid for a trifling sum. Mr. Leuthy mixes two parts of common cement with one part of Portland cement and then adds gravel in the proportion of four parts gravel to one of cement.

Fred. Palmer has a large stock of baby primrose which he believes will sell all right here as soon as it becomes better known. His cyclamens are very good and Chrysanthemum Ivory will be in early.

Visitors in town: R. W. Clucas and wife, New York; Walter Mott, Philadelphia; Carl Jurgens and C. J., Jr., Newport, R. I.; C. F. Gibbs, St. Johnsbury, Vt.; J. McHutchison, representing Aug. Rhotert, New York, and H. S. DeForest, representing Hitchings & Co.

BUSINESS IS ENLIVENED —STOCK IN MARKET —DAHLIA EXHIBITION AT THE EXPORT EXPOSITION.—SOME VERY FINE DISPLAYS.—NOTES OF THE EXHIBITS.

Business continues to improve, cool weather for a few days past seemingly acting as a tonic, putting new life and increased action into things generally. Brides and Bridesmaids can now be offered without excuses, although Kaiserins are preferred as yet to Brides, being so much larger and longer stemmed. Beauties are moving lively at good rates, first choice commanding $1.50 per dozen with $1.25 and $1 for the next sizes. Scott & Son say their Liberty houses are looking fine but the flowers will not be put on the market much before Christmas. Carnations are in good demand and are fast getting into shape. Robt. Craig & Son are sending in some fine Ethel Crocker. This variety will be a leader the coming season if its present appearance counts for anything; $1 per hundred is the price now for selected stock of all colors.

The exhibition of the American Dahlia Society, held in the congress room of the National Export Exposition, opened under favorable auspices on Tuesday. The hall was nicely decorated with evergreens and autumn leaves, which made a suitable background for the gay colors of the September queen. There were four large tables with cross sections in the center which occupied two-thirds of the space, the center being arranged with chairs for the meetings. The H. A. Dreer Co.'s exhibit was a most generous contribution. It consisted of a display of water lilies in two tanks, with palms and other plants for a background. They also made two pretty groups of ornamental foliage plants, two tables, one of tuberous rooted begonias and another of canna flowers blazed their bright colors in opposition to their vari-colored neighbors. Francis Canning exhibited a collection of choice greenhouse plants which was much admired. W. P. Peacock, of Atco, was the largest exhibitor of dahlias, as no one can compete with him, his thirty-five acres of full blooming plants giving him almost a monopoly. His system of cultivation, together with the soil, which seems in his neighborhood to be just right for this flower, enables him to cut blooms in quantity at all times during the season. He exhibited about 400 varieties, many of them new. In fact this collection was an exhibition of itself. W. Atlee Burpee staged a number of fine vases containing many new kinds. Wm. Henry Maule also had a fine display contained in 300 vases. H. F. Michell filled a large table with new and popular sorts, and there were a number of private collections from amateurs which showed that the interest in dahlias is spreading and that they will be more generally grown in the future.

The society held a brief session Wednesday afternoon, with J. Hampton Leonard, the vice-president for New Jersey, chairman. The report of the judges, James Campbell and Harold Otters, upon the exhibit was approved. The awards were: Burpee prizes, limited to amateurs, largest and best display, best collection twelve blooms, twelve varieties and best arranged vase for decorative effect, Thomas Holland, Malvern; best twenty-five blooms, twenty-five varieties, Francis Canning, Wynnewood. The Henry F. Michell prizes, for largest and best general display, to L. K. Peacock, Atco, N. J.; second, to Wm. Henry Maule, Philadelphia. The Maule prizes for vases of twenty-five blooms were awarded to L. K. Peacock for Clifford W. Bruton, Grand Duke Alexis and A. D. Livoni; to Julius Reck, Villanova, for Frank Smith. The A. Blanc prizes were awarded to L. K. Peacock for Storm King as the best white; to W. H. Maule for American Flag as best of the fancy type; to Peacock on Emily as best of the show class; to W. H. Maule for the best gilt-edged variety and for Baron Schroeder as best of the cactus type. Special prizes awarded were: To Francis Canning for display of decorative plants; to H. A. Dreer, for tuberous rooted begonias in variety, for the new pink anemone Queen Charlotte and for the display of aquatics. Other business of the meeting was to accept the invitation of the Springfield Horticultural Society to hold the next year's exhibition under its auspices. Admiral Dewey was elected an honorary member.

The cricket match at Stoke-Pogis last Thursday resulted in a draw. While the result of the series is not decisive, the social features of the games were so pleasant that cricket is likely to be permanently placed in the fall outing list.

Mr. Lemon, of E. G. Hill & Co., was in town last week and in speaking of carnations said that for the three leading colors the following varieties are most largely planted: White, White Cloud and Flora Hill; pink, Triumph and Scott; red, G. H. Crane and America. K.

Springfield, Ill.

At the State Fair this week the displays in the floricultural classes were excellent. There were some very well grown flowering and decorative plants on display and in the cut flower and design sections competition was keen, the leading exhibitors being Brown & Canfield, the South Side Floral Co., and Louis Unverzagt. In palms, ferns and stove plants Unverzagt and Brown & Canfield were about even, but in cut roses the latter took all the firsts In the section for cut carnations the South Side Floral Co. staged some excellent blooms and captured most of the prizes, although Brown & Canfield won with Jubilee and Gold Nugget. The South Side Co. was easily leader for gladioli, geraniums, petunias and verbenas, their specialties. There were some fine showings of baskets, bouquets, designs and table arrangements.

Brown & Canfield were first for a collection of bulbs, for which they received a silver medal, and in the plant classes they took seven firsts and nine seconds. In the same classes Louis Unverzagt won nine firsts and six seconds and the South Side Floral Co. two firsts and one second.

In the cut flower classes the South Side Floral Co. had seven firsts and four seconds, Brown & Canfield eleven firsts and five seconds and Louis Unverzagt one first.

In floral designs Brown & Canfield took five firsts and two seconds, Louis Unverzagt three firsts and three seconds and the South Side Floral Co. three seconds.

TRADE QUIET AND WEATHER BAD.—STOCK IN MARKET. — STORE OPENINGS AND OTHER DOINGS.

Trade is very quiet but nothing more could be expected in view of the disagreeable weather. Chrysanthemums and violets are to be seen but are poor. Carnations are scarce. Beauties are now to be had in various lengths and qualities and teas are good but rather scarce. Anderson and Adams have each used salvia for window decoration this week and the effect was good.

There were four store openings this week, which called for a generous supply of palms. One decorator used autumn leaves with good effect.

W. F. Kasting is busy looking after the finances of the approaching Odd Fellows' carnival and street fair.

Active preparations are being made for building the propagating and growing houses for the Pan American Exposition.

Visitors: Mr. Rolker, of A. Rolker & Sons, New York; E. A. Butler, Niagara Falls. W. A.

Trade seems to be picking up daily, though prices continue much the same.

Mrs. Otto Schuler returned from a trip to Paris last Wednesday. Her son, who accompanied her, remains there to study sculpture for two years.

Mrs. M. J. Thomas has just returned from a very delightful European tour.

The last club meeting was very poorly attended, owing to the heavy rain. A display of dahlias by Richard Vincent, Jr., was very good, the flowers being of many varieties and mostly extra fine form. MACK.

IN our issue of August 12 H. Cannell & Sons are apparently mentioned as the introducers of the following geraniums: John Forbes, Gertrude Pearson, Phyllis, Virginia, Shelly, Alfred Tennyson, Crabbe and Mrs. Gordon Linzee. J. R. Pearson & Sons write stating that these varieties were raised and sent out by their firm.

THE Royal Horticultural Society of England has bestowed an award of of merit upon Begonia Mrs. Leopold de Rothschild, a distinct sport from B. Gloire de Lorraine, which appeared in 1897. It has foliage similar to the type but the infloresence is shorter and the habit of the plant more compact. The flowers are larger and lighter in color.

Countermanding Orders.

A recent decision of the supreme court of Washington has it that to be effectual the countermand of an order of purchase must be made before delivery of goods to carrier. That notice was deposited in the post office is not sufficient. The mail is here considered as the agent of the party sending the notice of countermand.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—PRONOUNCED SCARCITY OF STOCK.—PRICES STIFFEN.—BIG ORDERS.—A DEAL IN ASTERS.—WEBERS TO HAVE NEW HOUSES.—A BIG CITY ORDER.—THE GOLDEN GATE STARTS WELL.—PERSONAL JOTTINGS OF INTEREST.—MANY VISITORS.

This has been a record breaking September. Trade has boomed from the start and for the past two weeks it has been impossible for local wholesalers to supply the demand, the scarcity being particularly pronounced in the early days of this week. Shipping trade was never better in September. Big orders were numerous. On Tuesday Bassett & Washburn sent 2000 roses and a lot of greens to LaCrosse, Wis., for a wedding decoration and on the same day Reinbergs sent out 1000 roses in a single order. There was other large buying, Meteor roses seeming to be in especial favor. The heavy orders were in themselves enough to cause prices to stiffen had it not been for the scarcity of stock. Among the local growers asters are over, carnations are not yet yielding anything to speak of and roses seem to be off crop, the new plants having given their first cut while the old plants are not yet in with most growers. The bad weather has also reduced the cut. Thus it is that roses easily bring $4 to $6 and as high as $8 for selected lots, Beauties $1 to $4 and carnations $1 to $1.50. Qualities are improving all along the line.

McKellar & Winterson have handled unprecedented quantities of asters, their consignments for the first three days of this week averaging 15,000 a day. The stock comes from growers in Ohio and Pennsylvania and has moved at prices ranging from 50 cents to $2. The same growers' consignments during the summer glut barely brought express charges.

Weber Bros. have their entire place in chrysanthemums this year and in a few weeks will be sending a big cut to Budlong. The Webers' lease expires next spring and they intend to lay off after the chrysanthemums are gone. It is likely that the place will shortly be rebuilt for them.

C. A. Stevens & Bro. had their fall opening this week and the decoration created quite a stir in the flower market, 500 asparagus and several thousand Meteors being required. The order was divided between the leading retailers.

Hauswirth made a wreath for the funeral of Mrs. Peck, mother of the United States Commissioner General to the Paris Exposition, using 800 two-cent purple asters among stiff sprays of adiantum.

Reinberg Bros. are cutting a few Golden Gate. They are short but good and give promise of some fine blooms. Just at present the supply is limited to a few dozens a day.

The Skabcura Dip Company has named its new insecticide Nikoteen Aphis Punk and will shortly put it on the market. J. V. Merrion will go east in the interests of the company in the course of a month.

August Jurgens is cutting some of the best lily of the valley on record and has no difficulty in getting 5 cents and 6 cents for it.

G. E. Pieser has returned from a brief outing at Lake City, Minn., and things have settled down at Kennicotts' for the winter's run.

Wietor Bros. are now cutting about 1800 Meteors a day and have good quality in Beauties.

J. B. Deamud, of the Illinois Cut Flower Co., attended the State Fair at Springfield during the week in the capacity of judge in the floricultural classes.

J. A. Budlong has just installed a new eighty-five-horse-power boiler and is ready for winter.

The health of Mrs. Phil. Hauswirth, who has been quite ill the past week, is now much improved.

Violets are in demand, the leading retailers having many calls for them.

The careful growers in this vicinity have now been firing for three weeks.

POOR DISPLAY AT THE STATE FAIR.—ONLY HALF THE PREMIUMS SOUGHT.—NOTES OF THE EXHIBITS.

Generally speaking the Indiana State Fair was a great success, nearly 75,000 people paying admission, but floral hall appeared empty to a painful degree. In spite of skillful stretching of the stock on hand not half of the space was occupied. Not only in quantity but in quality, also, the exhibit fell short of that in former years. In foliage plants A. Wiegand & Son were without competition; two rustic vases filled with foliage plants were the most admirable part of their exhibit. They received first premium on palms, vases and arrangement of show plants and second on ferns, crotons and variegated show plants. W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, the Kaiserin king, was the only exhibitor of cut flowers, securing first premium for roses, dahlias and gladioli. A vase of Kaiserin, luxuriant in foliage, perfect in bloom and with stems from two to five feet long, was the leading feature on his table. John Rieman and Huntington & Page competed with designs. First premiums were awarded to John Rieman for the best two floral arrangements, best two baskets, best three bouquets, best show arrangement and best wedding arrangement. The crack piece of his exhibit was a harp of white carnations, prettily ornamented with pink carnations, cattleya blooms and fine green. Huntington & Page took second prize for two floral arrangements and show arrangement. In their exhibit a tastefully arranged fan of medium size caught the eyes of many visitors. Robt. McKain, Wm. Langstaff and J. J. B. Hatfield were the judges. There were three judges and four exhibitors and from a premium list amounting to $496, only $294 have been paid out.

Messrs. Haugh, of Anderson; H. Rieman, of Connersville, and W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, visited Indianapolis during the fair. H. JUNGE.

Newport, R. I.

The great Cantacuzine-Grant wedding took place as scheduled on Sunday and Monday and Siebrecht & Son, who did the floral work, carried out their part of the programme in superb fashion. All Saints Church is a plain structure and well adapted to set off floral decorations and drapery. An avenue of palms extended from the entrance through the center aisle to the altar, a bunch of white roses and lily of the valley at the base of each palm and garlands of green and white overhead. Garlands of green with loose bunches of American Beauties adorned the columns and the windows were banked with American Beauties and Adiantum Farleyense. Bride roses in profusion were used on the chancel rail and on the wall in the rear in conjunction with Asparagus plumosus and festoons of the same combination extended from each side of a chime of floral bells overhead. Many blooming orchids were also suspended from above. The bridal bouquet was of white orchids, orange blossoms and jasmine.

At the cottage, where the reception took place, the decorations were of a similar character, many gigantic palms, tree ferns, etc., being used. White and green in profusion were used in the decoration of the reception room. At each side of the bower where the couple received was a tall column of white roses and in the arch overhead a lover's knot of white orchids. Similar columns adorned the entrances. In the room where the rest of the party received American Beauties were the prominent flower and a bank of highly colored caladiums filled the fire place. The decorations were all under the immediate supervision of F. W. Smythe.

This was the second event of the kind for Siebrecht & Son within a week, the decorations for the Winslow-Havemeyer wedding the previous Monday having been furnished by them. American Beauties, lily of the valley, stephanotis and Kaiserin roses were used in large quantities. The dining table was a bed of lily of the valley with a central vase of white roses and the mantel was festooned with grapes and bright fruiting shrubs.

William Findlay has sold out to Peter King.

AUTUMN BRINGS THE FLORISTS TOGETHER. —NORTHERN TOURISTS.— ADVANTAGES OF THE SOUTH.

Our society has held no meetings for the summer but upon reassembling a few evenings ago we were treated to entertaining accounts of what some of our members saw in the north upon recent trips. President E. Valdejo went as far as Cincinnati and enjoyed the experience very much. He tells us the plant trade is carried on in a much larger scalethere than here and that the stock is chiefly grown under glass. He said that we have the advantage for palm growing and with this Harry Papworth agreed. Mr. Papworth attended the S. A. F. convention and visited many cities in the north and east. He stated that nowhere did he find florists growing so many kinds of plants as we do here. He told us that, while our climate makes it impossible to compete with the north in raising certain stock, we should be able to supply the north with palms, ferns and bulbs which have heretofore been bought in Europe.

Our field chrysanthemums are in fine form and appear to be just right for our best market, which is in November. Roses have been doing poorly all summer. Trade is dull yet. M. M. L.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J.—Ethan Palmer took an extra large dose of laudanum September 28 to relieve toothache and almost succumbed. His life, however, was saved by flogging with switches.

Trade is taking a decided change, and there seems to be a good demand for good flowers of all kinds. Carnations are still quite scarce, and good varieties with long stems bring $1 50 per hundred. Roses seem to be quite plentiful but are worth from $1 to $2 per dozen. Asters are pretty nearly all gone, but a few early chrysanthemums have made their appearance.

Fred. Horn, of Woodward avenue, sent in the few first violets of the season last week and reports his plants as looking very good indeed.

Smith Bradley's automobile has arrived and he may be seen on the boulevards any fine day.

Mr. Swain, of East Haven, is building two carnation houses 12x50.

Recent visitors: Robt. W. Greenlaw, Boston; P. M. Auger, Middlefield, Conn.

G. H.

NEW HAMBURGH, N. Y.—J. F. S. Banks, for whom Jas. Duncan is manager, now has the largest establishment around Poughkeepsie, having built three houses 20x150 this year. They have benched 29,000 violet plants.

In Explanation

of the extraordinary offer of high grade Valley at Three Dollars per Hundred, advertised in this paper of September 9th: The management of the "Rosebank" Nurseries desires to state, that they have secured by option a very large quantity of select three-year Berlin pips at a particularly low price. As forcing Valley is a radical departure for these Nurseries, the management is unwilling to go into the deal without some assurance of support from the trade in the venture. It has, therefore, been decided to make a very attractive price to those of the trade who will make a contract for their season's supply of this stock. It is distinctly agreed that the stock shall be first-class in every respect. The option on the stock expires October 15th, after which date this offer will be withdrawn.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALEXANDER RODGERS, Pres; ALBERT MCCULLOUGH Vice-Pres; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

OLIVER ATWOOD, of Lewis Atwood & Son, Winterport, Me., has just made a business tour of the state.

H. W. BUCKBEE has been at Springfield, Ill., this week in charge of the floricultural features of the State Fair.

VISITED CHICAGO:—Eugene Schaettel, representing Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., of Paris, France; Chas. N. Page, Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, Ia.

THE Washington County, N. Y., crops of cucumber seed will run from 100 to 150 pounds per acre. This short crop is due to the drought during the summer months.

TWO large lots of Japan grown Lilium longiflorum are reported to have reached New York in very bad order, practically worthless. This will no doubt make short deliveries of many orders.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Armand Kerlec & Son have opened a new store for the sale of seeds at 512 Ursuline street. J. A. Shalk has also embarked in the same business on Decatur street, near Ursuline. M. M. L.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—William Henry Maule's seed warehouse and office building, 1711 Filbert street, was badly damaged from fire in a large storage warehouse next door. The loss is mostly on stock, as the building was not hurt to any great extent. Smoke and water, however, played havoc with the large stock of seeds on hand, the loss being estimated at from $25,000 to $40,000, on which there is probably enough insurance to cover the damage. The fire broke out at 8:30 last Wednesday morning and it was 11 o'clock before it was under control. K.

St. Paul.

The American Bag Filling Machine Co. is the name of a new corporation here which will manufacture a new packet filling machine recently patented by A. Martin and S. B. Bowden of this city. Its lightness, simplicity, cheapness and its accuracy in filling and pasting packets are the main points of superiority over other machines now on the market.

L. L. May and family have returned from an eastern trip. Mr. May speaks very encouragingly of the outlook for the seed trade. His firm now has 150 travelers on the road.

H. F. Darrow, manager of L. L. May & Co.'s catalogue department, has been stricken with nervous prostration and has gone to Ohio to recuperate.

Onion sets and seed potatoes are reported a good crop in this vicinity.

S. B. Dicks and J. Comont were recent callers on the trade here. FELIX.

The Nebraska Seed Crops.

WATERLOO, NEB., September 25.—The sweet corn crop, in nearly all kinds is a heavy one. Until two weeks ago there were no worms; since then they have appeared in large numbers, but have not done the damage they would have caused had they put in an appearance when the corn was in the milk. The yield will probably be fifty per cent better than last year. There is a good crop of field corn, with surpluses of most kinds.

Muskmelons are nearly all seeded, and while some varieties produced a good crop, it can on the whole only be called a light crop with most kinds. This is due to the excessive rains which during the season completely destroyed some plantations and injured others more or less. If the weather remains favorable for a week or ten days longer, the yield of a number of kinds may be increased from twenty-five to fifty per cent; but that is hardly to be expected, for a killing frost is likely to occur any night.

Water melons will yield a good average crop, some varieties even above it. Squash and pumpkin will yield much better than last year, although there will be quite some shortages. Cucumbers are much better than last year, some sorts producing 400 pounds to the acre in favorable locations; but these are exceptions. From 200 to 250 pounds per acre, some up to 300 pounds, are the usual yields this year.

On the whole, although by no means a satisfactory year, crops have turned out much better than was anticipated at various periods of their growth.

MONTCLAIR, N. J.—Disease has developed among violets in this section during the past week and growers are apprehensive of the result.

Chinese Narcissus are the most salable bulbs to retail buyers; they are cheap, well-known and give universal satisfaction.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
W. J PETERS Pres.; D. S. LAKE. Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

PEACH seed is reported rather scarce and prices are a considerable advance over last year.

H. C. PECK has completed the no small task of inspecting the fifty-one nurseries at Dansville, N. Y., but did not find a trace of scale.

FRANKLIN K. PHŒNIX, Delavan, Wis., although in his seventy-fifth year, is hale and hearty and doing a successful nursery business. He made a display at the Elkhorn Fair this week.

WM. LONGWORTH, who has conducted a nursery near Bloomington, Ill., for several years, is preparing to retire. He is in his eighty-fifth year and has resided at Bloomington since 1830.

FRUIT stocks in general are being cleaned up in the west and many lines are scarce, Keiffer pear, for instance commanding $150 per thousand. Prices for peach trees have not advanced as much as was expected.

Lincoln, Neb.

At the State Fair there was a large floral display, Louis Henderson, Omaha, leading for the cut flower premiums. Henderson was also first for floral design with the "Old Oaken Bucket"; Chapin Bros., Lincoln, were second with "Rock of Ages." B. Hass was represented in this class by a floral cannon. Hess & Swoboda, Omaha, won first prize for wreaths and every feature of their exhibits was excellent. P. B. Floth and E. C. Erfling were also among the prize winners.

At Philadelphia.

Bowling goes on merrily and before long a series of contests for prizes will be laid out for the winter campaign. Two-hundred scores used to be looked upon as phenomenal, but of late scarcely a week goes by that one or more does not go on the slate. Last week's record is George Craig, 202; J. Walker, 203; Wm. Johnson, 205; J. Hamilton, 213, and George Anderson, 232, within six pins of the record, which he would have held if he had not missed the spare in the last frame. "Deacon" Harris is getting into the harness again, putting up 168 in one game last week. K.

At Chicago.

There was quite a large aggregation of Chicago florists at Anson's alleys on the evening of September 22, when it was expected that a team representing the Armour grain employes of this city—many of whom are crack bowlers—would roll a series of games with the florists. Only three of the Armour men put in an appearance, however, and these were easily defeated by three members of the Florists' Bowling Club. The scores and averages follow:

Armour team	1st	2d	3d	Total	Av.
Smith	163	111	135	409	136
Ennis	99	130	134	363	121
Pratt	110	78	101	279	93

Asmus	156	196	143	495	165
Grand total				1551

While the foregoing games were in progress, and afterward, a number of games were rolled by the florists. Here are the figures:

Name	No. games	High score	Av.
Asmus	2	201	195
Stollery, G.	2	223	178

Euders	4	121	102

Last Tuesday evening C. C. Pollworth, of Milwaukee, A. Henderson and C. Balluff rolled a few games, Pollworth making the high score with 174.

It is stated that there will be a bowling contest between Milwaukee and Chicago florists in this city flower show week.

At Flatbush.

Last Thursday evening saw a very full attendance at the bowling alley, with a feeling of seriousness prevalent, which was eventually enlivened by the arrival of four visitors, Messrs. Robt. Craig, Frank Traendly, J. P. Cleary and W. J. Stewart:

Name	1st	2d	3d	Av.

At New York.

The bowling meeting on Monday evening was full of enthusiasm. Old heroes and young aspirants were there and it was a merry time all through. The first of a series of games with the Flatbush boys will come off on October 9, at 3 p. m., on the New York alleys. The New York Florists' Club will meet that evening and the two events may be relied upon to bring out a big crowd. The O'Mara trophy, a handsome ball and case, will be keenly competed for next month. Scores made on Monday were as follows:

Name	1st	2d	3d	4th	5th	6th.	Av.

W. A. WETTLIN, Hornellsville, N. Y.

Columbus, O.

The Livingston Seed Co. report their cut flower trade as holding up well during July and August, with fall business opening strong, trade about double that of last season. Roses are beginning to take on their natural size but carnations are not in yet and demand exceeds supply. This firm, in addition to flowers grown in their own houses, contracts with parties in the surrounding neighborhood to grow certain stock for them, taking all their product. In addition, however, to this large supply, they are good customers of Chicago wholesalers. Their new three-story office building, just completed, will enable them to give more room to this largely growing part of their trade.

The next regular meeting of the Columbus Horticultural Society will be held at Horticultural Hall, Ohio State University, September 30, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when a paper on cannas will be read by Harry Ballou.

3 More Sensational Novelties

THE GEM FORGET-ME-NOT, 3 COLORS.

PINK, WHITE, BLUE.

The compact and erect growth makes this new variety particularly useful as winter-blooming pot plants, as may be seen from photo. It is undoubtedly the and, like the Baby Primrose, is sure to become popular. It is almost a perpetual bloomer and will give more flowers than any other plant we know, is perfectly hardy and blooms finely in cold frames.

BEST FORGET-ME-NOT FOR CUT FLOWERS,

12 plants, in 3 colors, 75c., or your choice of color for $1.00, by mail. 100 plants, 3 colors, $5.00; express prepaid. Large clumps to divide, $10.00 per 100.

GENUINE EDELWEISS

From the Mountains of Switzerland.

We intend to advertise this extensively and a great demand may be expected for it. Everyone knows that this highly-prized flower has become so rare that the Swiss Government has now stopped its exportation. When cut it lasts for years. We have the only stock in this country.

Lenox, Mass.

On September 12 fourteen of the head gardeners were invited by J F. Huss to a farewell dinner prior to his leaving Lenox for his home in Switzerland. It was a very enjoyable evening, though all felt keenly the loss of a beloved associate in his departure.

After justice had been done to the good things provided, Mr. Norman, chairman of the evening, in a very appropriate speech, presented to Mr. Huss a silver loving cup, suitably inscribed, on behalf of his friends there gathered. Messrs. Griffin, Donahue, Thompson and others also spoke feelingly of the pleasant associations they had always enjoyed with their host and expressed regret that he had decided to leave the United States, and particularly Lenox, where he had lived so long and has so many friends. Mr. Huss expressed the hope that he might sometime be able to come back and meet his Lenox friends again. The party before dispersing joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne" and wished God speed to Mr. Huss and his family, who sailed last Saturday on the S. S. Bretagne for Havre.

Cambridge, O.

I. A. Oldham, the proprietor of the only greenhouses in this busy little city, reports business good and the demand for flowers constantly gaining. The funeral of Hon. J. D. Taylor last week was an occasion calling for many designs. Among the thirteen pieces supplied by Mr. Oldham was a crescent wreath ordered by the bankers of Washington City. This stood four feet high; the base was made up of American Beauties, the heavy part of Bridesmaid and Perle roses with a filling of carnations and a white dove at the top. Another beautiful design was a broken column made of white asters and pink roses.

Mr. Oldham grows quite a lot of flowers in his own houses, but buys most of his roses and finer stock in Chicago. It speaks well for Chicago dealers that in eight years' dealing with them he has only twice received his flowers too late. A telegram at three o'clock will bring the flowers at seven o'clock next morning.

The MODEL Extension Carnation Support.

LANCASTER PA., June 17, '99.
MR. THERON PARKER, Brooklyn, N. Y.,
Dear Sir:—Your Model Carnation support is a right in every way and will no doubt be considered as necessary as good plants with growers when better known. I consider it the best on the market, and if your other specialties are equally as good, they should make another addition to the money makers of 1900. Respectfully,
ALBERT M. HERR.

W. HOBOKEN, N. J., Feb 18 '97.
MR. THERON PARKER.
Dear Sir:—It gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carnation supports. I think that these I have had from you are about as perfect as anybody will be able to make them. They certainly fill my bill for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been looking for a long time. Wishing you every success in the sale of them, I am
Yours truly E. ASMUS.

The Right Cypress for Greenhouse Material.

Have you heard of Cypress Greenhouse Material that has not been satisfactory? If you have it does not follow that Cypress is not the best lumber to use. There is White Cypress, Yellow Cypress and Red Cypress; there is Cypress that grows on the high lands and Cypress that grows in the swamps.

All of these different kinds are not suitable for greenhouse purposes. Do you know which kind is best and do you know that kind when you see it? If not you would better buy from those that do know and will deliver exactly what they sell. We introduced Cypress for greenhouse construction and pushed it to the front. We know all about it. For fifteen years we have made a specialty of furnishing it, and during this time we have built up a reputation that we can not afford to jeopardize. We send out the best only.

Notes from the Pacific Coast.

[Essay of Henry F. Michell, read before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, Tuesday evening, October 3, 1899.]

Again your chairman of the essay committee has bestowed upon me the great favor of permitting me to hear myself speak and to take up your valuable time, of which you could probably make better use than in listening to some notes which may not interest you. However, I shall do my best, in these few pages of manuscript, to tell you what impressed me most during my trip to California, to look after growing crops of seeds and bulbs.

California, as you all know, is a seed and bulb growing country and the seeds, if grown by careful and competent growers, are certainly very good and can always be relied upon to grow fully ninety-five per cent and over.

I left Philadelphia on June 12. Passing through the fertile farming districts of Pennsylvania we had a fine view of the well wooded and well watered hills and valleys of our state, with highly cultivated farms following closely upon one another. Proceeding westward, our first stop was made at Chicago. Here I visited the different parks and especially noticed the well kept and well sprinkled lawns and the grand carpet and group beddings. Lawn sprinklers are used in great quantities and the beautiful green grass is certainly the result of this very liberal watering.

After leaving Chicago we proceeded to Denver, passing through Nebraska. The scenery en route was in marked contrast with that in Pennsylvania—a flat country, few trees and still fewer houses, with a farm or settler's wagon in view about every hour or two. Denver is a well planned city, with plenty of trees planted on each side of its broad streets and a good stream of clear water running constantly in the gutters, the arrangement being such as to produce an agreeable and refreshing effect especially upon the casual visitor. The Denver Park, which is very neat, is liberally supplied with lawn sprinklers, which are in action for ten hours daily, and the grass is beautiful. A novel sight was presented by the appearance of the ground in the park, which was apparently covered with snow, as the cottonwood trees were shedding their bloom in great profusion. The spectacle was one which would be quite unfamiliar to us here in Pennsylvania.

Our next stop was at Salt Lake City, also a prosperous town, near the Great Salt Lake. Here the park around the public buildings is kept in up-to-date style. The grass is also all watered by lawn sprinklers every thirty to forty feet apart. The soil is very rich and, wherever it is watered, fine crops are grown.

Proceeding westward from Salt Lake City we passed through the "great American desert." The ground is an endless dry, gray waste, covered in places with sage brush, which the cattle feed upon and I was informed that it also acts as a medicine for cattle and sheep. The alkali dust in this region is abundant and we may be glad that we do not have it here in the east.

After a long and rather tiresome travel through Nevada we reached California, "the land of fruit and flowers." The sight of palm trees, orange trees and other tropics was certainly an agreeable surprise and a refreshing one. Stately palms are seen everywhere out of doors, not growing in tubs or large pots, as we are accustomed to seeing them here, but all growing in the ground, on the sidewalks, and as large as our young shade trees. Roses grow to immense size and buds of La France are as large as American Beauties, Geraniums, fuchsias and heliotropes grow to great size, especially in San Jose, Santa Barbara, Monterey, Los Angeles and Pasadena.

San Jose is a most beautiful city. The streets, on both sides, are lined with immense, perfectly shaped palms of twenty-five feet and over in height. The very graceful pepper trees, with their fine foliage and cherry-red berries, are also here in profusion. Hedges are formed of geraniums. The Marechal Niel and Lamarque roses grow on trellises about two stories high. Heliotropes, fuchsias, etc., grow as large and are as flourishing as honeysuckles are with us.

Santa Clara is a center for growing seeds such as onion, leeks, salsify, spinach, endive, carrot, etc.

Several hundred acres are here also devoted to growing sweet peas for seed. There are over 150 varieties of the standard sorts and also about twenty-five varieties of the new dwarf or Cupid introductions. One of the largest and best equipped ranches of this valuable flower is owned by C. C. Morse & Co., who are carefully selecting the largest flowering, long stemmed sorts, and add all new varieties as they are introduced, whereas poor varieties are dropped each year. The dwarf or Pink Cupid is a great favorite and does most excellently. A beautiful sight was a three feet wide border of a sidewalk all around the front and sides of Mr. Morse's residence, probably 225 feet long, all planted of Pink Cupid sweet peas, growing only six inches high, the ground being thickly covered with that beautiful pink flower, which emitted a delicious fragrance. These are worthy of extensive trials with us. They may do splendidly and would be something entirely new. The soil was sandy and light and is the best for dwarf sweet peas.

Leaving Santa Clara and near by seed farms we made a stop at the Hotel Del Monte, Monterey, the immense grounds of which are laid out in most magnificent style and upon a large scale. Among the chief attractions here is an old fashioned "maze," which I did not dare to enter for a greater distance than ten or fifteen feet as I am positive that I could not have found my way out again very quickly. The Arizona garden is another great attraction in these grounds. It is planted almost entirely with cacti, agaves and plants of similar character. An Arizona garden would be quite a novelty in the suburbs of Philadelphia. The grounds surrounding this grand hotel cover 126 acres and are kept in fine style. Plenty of sprinkling is constantly going on to keep grass and flowers supplied with water. Conspicuous in the garden were a lot of the new yellow calla in bloom.

Our next stop was at the "big trees" near Santa Cruz. The trees are certainly well named, as they are giant specimens of the California redwood variety. One tree measures ninety-five feet in circumference and is 300 feet high. Another is so large that General Fremont, when exploring this region about fifty years ago, used the hollow trunk of this tree as a tent and had plenty of room to spare.

Our next move was on to Santa Barbara, which trip we made by stage coach, starting from Lompoc at six o'clock in the morning. This was a fine ride. For great distances the road runs alongside of the Pacific Ocean and also through the large pampas grass district in Goleta. Pampas is here grown on a large scale. Where all the plumes are sold I can hardly say. One of the most showy plants in Santa Barbara is the mesembryanthemum. It flourishes here to perfection and is a solid mass of beautiful rich pink color. I do not know if these will give such satisfaction here with us but we shall certainly send out some seed, on trial, to customers in this vicinity and watch its results.

Our next move was to Ventura, where calla and freesia bulbs are grown in very large quantities. This is also headquarters for the very choicest and most improved strains of petunia seed. The size of the flowers and the beautiful markings, striped and throated, fringed and ruffled types, are a sight never to be forgotten. I was informed that they grow constantly the whole year. Hybridizing seems to be the pride of the growers and it is very important to improve the strain. Begonias six feet high, passifloras in every color, mandevilleas and a score of other plants are in great perfection at this place. Rain is scarce but a plentiful supply of water is easily procured by irrigation and is carried down alongside the long rows of crops. At Ventura no rain had fallen for a long time, but the heavy fogs seem to take the place of rain. The soil here is very dry and dusty on top, but when about two inches of top soil is removed the remainder is very dark, moist and exceedingly rich. A great advantage which the California seed growers have over eastern and European growers is that after harvesting their crops they can cure them in the open air and they need not fear that a rain will damage them while being cured.

Santa Paula is also a successful seed growing district. I especially noted some fine verbenas and exceptionally clean healthy asters, also Phlox grandiflora in large tracts. Near Santa Paula we visited a ranch of 5,000 acres, all of which was planted with sugar beets. This was a seemingly endless stretch of that profitable crop. Another ranch of over 2,000 acres was planted entirely with Lima beans. The rows were over 4,000 feet long. The crop looked very well and should turn out a good many bushels of beans.

A most interesting and beautiful display was observed from the car windows in going from San Francisco to San Jose. On both sides of the railroad tracks the embankments were a mass of native wild flowers, prominent among which were the yellow genista in full bloom, the California poppy in great abundance in its bright orange color, and numerous others. In speaking of the large size to which plants attain here, I must not fail to mention a Lamarque rose in the grounds of the Arlington hotel at Santa Barbara, the trunk of which measures twenty-four inches in circumference. It is said that this is about the largest rose plant or tree in California. The Magnolia grandiflora and M. glauca were a grand sight, being in full bloom, in the month of June. Araucarias are here in fine specimens, of fifty feet and over in height, and would make suitable plants if placed in jardinieres for house decoration—providing you had a large enough house.

THE COTTAGE ROSE.

After leaving California we visited Portland, Oregon, where they have a most beautiful natural park. The roses there were magnificent. The buds and flowers were of the largest size I have ever seen. The plants also looked exceedingly healthy and not a diseased leaf was to be seen. They do not seem to be affected by the troubles of mildew, rose bugs and rose slugs—which fact must be attributed to the cool, fresh climate in that locality.

Leaving Portland we stopped at the new cities of Seattle and Tacoma, which are fast becoming very prosperous towns, although rather rough as yet in the suburbs.

Our next journey led us to Yellowstone National Park, stopping en route at Helena, Mont., one of the leading mining towns. Yellowstone Park covers an area of 5775 square miles. It is worth a long journey to visit this place. A great part of the park is made up of formations formed by the overflow of hot springs and geysers, containing large quantities of various mineral matters, which gradually make most beautiful creations of odd and finely colored shapes. These geysers play at different intervals, one regularly every fifty minutes, one every minute and others at uncertain periods; but the sudden appearance of a high column of steam and boiling water thrown to a height of probably a hundred feet, accompanied by a loud noise, creates an impression which can never be forgotten. One of the peculiar formations is so similar to a morning glory flower that it bears that name, and it certainly deserves it. The throat, which is of water, is of an immense depth and is shaped exactly like that popular flower, and the rich colors are very correctly reproduced. Another of the wonders is the devil's paint pot, which boils day and night and throws up over the whole of its surface, a pasty substance exactly like paint of various colors.

In Yellowstone Park are seen the natural or wild flowers of almost every variety and it should be a Mecca for botanists, as they would not have to go far to find almost every wild flower they might wish to have for their herbariums. Among the most plentiful are asters, petunias, white sunflowers, Indian paint brushes, etc. An interesting greenhouse in the park was filled with radishes, lettuce and English prize cucumbers. This house was heated by a boiling spring which entered it at one end and flowed through the center and out at the other end, filling the house with steam. The temperature was 95°. The crops are matured in wonderfully quick time—radishes in seventeen days and cucumbers also in a very short time. The gardener felt very proud of the results. I wonder if the steam vapor could be tried successfully here. It may be worth an experiment.

Leaving Yellowstone we returned homeward, stopping at the beautiful twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul. Along the lakes in Minneapolis I noticed particularly long rows of willows planted closely together. The branches are trained laterally, in careful order, and reminded me much of the European system used in Paris, Berlin and other cities with such good effect.

A few days later I found myself back again in our beautiful city but had hardly arrived before your worthy chairman of the essay committee, Mr. Watson, called me up on the telephone, invited me to speak of my trip and would not take "no" for an answer. The result is before you in the brief and hastily written sketch which I have submitted.

The Cottage Rose.

Rarely do we find this grand old rose (Rosa alba) except in the front yard of some olden time home where, in spite of neglect, weeds and other unfavorable conditions, it has maintained an existence for perhaps half a century and borne each June its profuse crop of deliciously fragrant blossoms under circumstances that would have killed out a dozen successive plantings of the more pretentious but not more lovable hybrid perpetuals. The old cottage rose was probably brought to this country by the early settlers from England, whose affections it shared with the old French Rosa Gallica. Its long life shows its grand constitution, and it is well worthy of a place in every rose garden because of its all-around good qualities. Nurserymen should never omit it from their lists.

Flower Beds at Philadelphia.

At the recent encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic held in Philadelphia, one of the many attractions was the floral display of army badges at Fairmount Park. Through the courtesy of C. H. Miller, I am enabled to present the readers of the AMERICAN FLORIST with illustrations showing the badges and also the beautiful Horticultural Hall, Fairmount Park.

I have thought that a few notes on the plants used in making some of the designs would be of much interest to many readers and am indebted to Thomas Minzey, Mr. Miller's assistant, for the names of some of the plants used.

Taking the Fifth Corps' badge, the Maltese cross, for a commencement, there are six kinds of plants used in its composition. The outside line is Echeveria secunda glauca, the next, a brown colored crassula, the next Sedum variegatum and the fourth, the dark center, Alternanthera rosea. The circular center has for its outside line the new alternanthera, Prospect Park; the white plant appearing next is Echeveria Pachyphytum, the small darkish little clump in the center being Echeveria metallica. This particular design was beautifully constructed and was much admired.

The clover leaf, the Second Corps' badge, took four sorts in its make up. The stem, or petiole, of the leaf had Echeveria secunda glauca for border, with center of the Prospect Park alternanthera. The body of the leaf had the same echeveria with rows of Alternanthera aurea next, and center of a reddish unnamed alternanthera. This, too, was as perfect a piece of work as one could wish to see.

The Eleventh Corps claims the crescent badge. For the outside row of this Echeveria secunda glauca was used, for the next rows a new red althernanthera, the name of which I could not learn, and next Alternanthera aurea, with the center of A. Prospect Park.

The star represents the Twelfth Corps, and this was another work of much beauty. For the outside E. secunda glauca was used, next brown crassula, third, Sedum variegatum. The white in the center is Echeveria Pachyphytum, and the center, E. metallica. It will be noticed that the plants used are the same and in the same order of arrangement as in the Fifth Corps' insignia, excepting that alternanthera is omitted.

The letters "G. A. R." and figures "1899" are composed of Echeveria secunda glauca.

As will be seen the designs are on the grassy slope of a terrace in front of Horticultural Hall. This is what is known as the Schuylkill River front, as the building stands on an eminence far above the river, from which a fine veiw of a portion of the city and of Laurel Hill Cemetery is obtained.

The hall itself was built for the Centennial Exposition in 1876, and is almost alone in representing buildings erected in the park at that time. Many exotics planted therein at that time now find the roof too low for their aspirations So large and rank is the growth of most of the plants that its interior is much as one would suppose a tropical woods would be. It is a great pleasure to thousands of visitors in winter to wander under the mass of foliage. There is much in the flowering line in the main hall. On the approach of cold weather such outdoor plants as are not required are usually given away to the public and are apparently much appreciated by the recipients.

JOSEPH MEEHAN.

COLDWATER, MICH.—Van Aken Bros. report a good trade and bright prospects. During the season they have built two violet houses 20x133, a smilax house 25x34 and a propagating house 6x56.

CARNATIONS.

CULTURAL NOTES.

October 7.—The popular cry is that carnations are not injured by a cool temperature and that while heat is necessary for roses, carnations are in no need of it yet. There is some truth in this but, as in all other truths, there are exceptions. With summer temperature one day and a drop to 35° the next a little heat in the houses is an absolute necessity. The check from such sudden changes is not so noticeable as with roses but it is there all the same and often means a greater loss than the grower realizes.

Do not allow your houses to become overheated as that will mean quite as much loss as to allow them to become too cool; in fact the latter is preferable, for to soften the plants up with too much heat at this season, when flowers are not in especial demand, is extremely bad policy. Far better is it to gradually acclimate your plants to a night temperature of 45° and hold them at that for the next month or six weeks. After chrysanthemums are out of the way you may gradually bring the temperature up to 50° or 55° at night.

This treatment, followed up with judgment and common sense, varying slightly one way or the other according to the condition of the plants, will produce the best crop of Christmas flowers that the plants can be made to yield.

Another point is to be careful not to overfeed your plants now. If the soil was in good shape when you planted there should be no necessity for additional fertilizer until the Christmas crop of buds is set; then a stimulant may be given to bring the blooms in at the proper time and to add to the color and size of the flowers.

I have before stated that overfeeding weakens root action, but it will bear repetition. There is no time like the present, with plenty of sunshine and no heavy crop of buds to mature, for getting a good root formation. This is as necessary to the carnation as a good foundation is to a building, for with a good foundation you can add successfully as much to the top of the plant as you choose but without it you are sure to make a failure.

On no account permit your beds to become over-run with weeds; they not only make your place look slovenly but use up a large percentage of the fertilizing material that should be held in reserve for the carnations. Do the weeding carefully so as not to disturb the young roots of the carnations.

Disbudding should be attended to regularly. A good plan is to set apart a day each week for this work and follow it up all the season. Like most other tasks, if this one is attended to regularly it is quickly accomplished and the results are much more satisfactory than when it is done haphazard and irregularly.

ALBERT M. HERR.

The Commission Man's Judgment.

The subject of the integrity of commission men has been discussed so fully that one would think there could be little left unsaid. But is it really honesty that is sometimes lacking? Is it not more often judgment? I was recently talking with an up-to-date grower, one who is well known to both buyers and sellers, and will try to give the substance of his remarks.

"I can't afford to grow the lines the big growers do," said he, "for so soon as stock becomes at all plentiful they sell cheaper than I can do and make a profit. As a consequence I always devote a bench or more to experiments with new things, for I must grow the novelties, things which command the highest prices. Now I grew something unusual and sent the cut to a commission man who sold it out for, say 25 cents a dozen. That was all he asked for the stock.

"Now he was honest; what he lacked was judgment. Had he been an old line commission man he would have known the value of flowers and would have taken into consideration in putting a price on the stock in question the fact that if he looked far and wide he could not get any more at any price and would have asked $2.50 or $3 for what he sold for a quarter. Some one would have paid it.

"While judgment is a prime requisite in a commission man it is true that it cannot be used if the growers do not put the stock on the market in the best condition. For example, one grower sends in 100 carnations, puts exactly twenty-five in a bunch and sticks the bunches down in a corner among the other stock, so that when they reach the commission man one or two flowers are broken off and the rest are far from fresh-looking. Another man puts twenty-six or even twenty-seven in a bunch and packs them with care. The two may be neighbors and ship to the same house, they may grow the same varieties, in fact the careless man may have the best stock at the time of cutting, although this is improbable, and still his returns will be less because his stock reaches the market in bad order.

"To be a successful commission man you must know the condition of every flower and give it proper care upon its receipt. You must have no favorites and sell to the man who is willing to pay the highest price. Above all, when you know that you have something that the other fellow has not, put on the price and get the grower all you can. Bear in mind that if one man won't buy another man will. There is always a buyer for every flower, even if most of them do want to beat down the price."

CHARLIE'S AUNT.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

CULTURAL NOTES.

We have reached the season when a little fire heat at night is necessary to insure a dry atmosphere. We aim to keep the night temperature in our chrysanthemum houses as near as possible to 48° with a crack of ventilation on. By having a little steam running through one of the pipes during the night we are able to regulate the temperature and without forcing the plants at all. After the buds begin to show color there are times, especially if we get two or three wet days together, when a little higher temperature must be maintained to prevent moisture from settling on the blooms.

BEDDING IN FAIRMOUNT PARK, PHILADELPHIA.

Have all the buds far enough away from the glass for their proper development and see that all the stems are tied as straight and firmly as possible. All superfluous material and any rubbish should be cleaned away from under the benches and the walks fixed so that no water stands in pools after watering.

The temperature during the day must be governed to a certain extent by the condition of the weather. On very bright days all the ventilation possible can be given, but avoid cold draughts. It is necessary to raise the ventilators gradually, beginning early in the day, closing them in the same way toward evening. On dull and dreary days a few degrees above the night temperature, with ventilation enough to keep the air pure, will suffice.

The buds of several of the early varieties are now expanding rapidly and it is well to make note of any peculiarity or failing which will come in handy as a reference when laying out next season's work. It is a great temptation to begin cutting when there are enough petals formed to call it a bloom but we have found it much the best policy to allow the flowers to properly develop before marketing them. RUDBECKIA TRILOBA AT EGANDALE, ILL.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS ABOUT CHICAGO.

The near approach of autumn brings speculation as to the probabilities in the chrysanthemum supply and with the view of furnishing accurate information as to the conditions likely to prevail in the Chicago market the leading growers have supplied the following information in regard to their stocks. It will be seen that the cut is likely to be some 36,000 in excess of last year. With most of the growers the plants are reported as in good condition and the crop is likely to be a few days earlier than a year ago, when nearly everyone was a little late.

Weber Bros. have 40,000 plants, all grown to single stem, as against 5,000 last year. The plants are in the best possible shape and the cut is expected to begin about October 10 and extend to Christmas. They have 10,000 plants of Ivory and 10,000 of Major Bonnaffon. Next in order come Minnie Wanamaker, Glory of Pacific, Maud Dean, Mrs. Jerome Jones, W. H. Chadwick, Yellow Queen, Golden Wedding, Mayflower and Frank Hardy. They have a few plants of Fee du Champsaur.

J. N. Lang has about 6400 plants on his place at Robey and Melrose streets, slightly in excess of his stock last year. He has 1100 Mrs. Jerome Jones, 1000 Major Bonnaffon, 800 Maud Dean, 600 Glory of Pacific, 400 each of Mrs. Fred. L. Button and W. H. Chadwick, 300 each of Mrs. Pierce, Autumn Glory, Yellow Mrs. Jones, Ivory and Pink Ivory, 200 each of Minnie Wanamaker, Viviand-Morel and Solar Queen. Mr. Lang reports his plants small and backward.

Bassett & Washburn expect to cut 30,000 blooms, their planting being the same as last year. They are growing about twenty-five of the leading varieties and the stock is rated as in very good shape. For early they have Lady Fitzwigram and Marquise de Montmort which will soon be in, followed by Ivory, Pink Ivory, Major Bonnaffon and Eugene Dailledouze.

In the Stollery Bros'. collection there are fourteen varieties from which they expect to cut about 2500 blooms, slightly less than last year. The principal sorts are Major Bonnaffon, Soleil de Octobre, Frank Hardy, W. H. Chadwick, Yellow Queen, Mrs. Jerome Jones and Golden Wedding. Yellow Queen will be ready about October 15 but the mid-season sorts are about two weeks late.

P. Weiland, Evanston, reports about 4000 blooms, which he expects to use for local trade. In white he has Mrs. Robinson, The Queen, Mayflower, Ivory and Mrs. Jerome Jones; in pink, Glory of Pacific, Viviand-Morel, President Smith and Pink Ivory; in yellow, Emily Henderson, Mrs. J. G. Whilldin, Golden Wedding and Major Bonnaffon. The first flowers will be ready by October 10.

Poehlmann Bros. have about the same number of plants as last year. They are the largest growers of chrysanthemums for this market and have about thirty varieties in their houses. One house of Lady Fitzwigram has already nearly all been cut. Their plants, like those of most other growers, are not so tall as usual this year, which they attribute to the cool summer. Part of their stock, which they consider rather better than usual, is grown to single stems and part with two and three flowers to a plant.

W. N. Rudd will cut about 4500 blooms this year against 4000 last year. His varieties are Ivory, Yellow Ivory, Yellow Queen, Henry Hurrell, Mrs. H. Weeks, Major Bonnaffon, Golden Wedding, Mayflower, Mrs. Jerome Jones, Yellow Mrs. Jones, Henry Nanz, Autumn Glory, Mrs. Perrin, Mrs. S. T. Murdock, Maud Dean, Xeno, Fee du Champsaur, Rustique, Yellow Mayflower, Solar Queen, Defender, Black Hawk and Henry Shrimpton and C. W. Johnson, the grower, is better satisfied with the plants than in any previous season.

Anton Then will cut 3,500 blooms this season as against 3,200 last year. Lady Fitzwigram, Mrs. H. Robinson, Ivory, Minnie Wanamaker, Mrs. Jerome Jones, W. H. Chadwick, Maud Dean, Glory of Pacific, Mrs. S. T. Murdock, Yellow Queen, Golden Wedding and Major Bonnaffon are the principal varieties although there are six of the newer sorts on the place. All are in good shape.

H. Schiller has the same number of blooms in sight as last year, about 10,000. He has only eight or nine varieties on the place and the stock is principally Major Bonnaffon, Lady Fitzwigram, W. H Lincoln and Mrs. H. Robinson. The stock is in fair condition.

Rudbeckia Triloba.

In August and September we are indebted to the cone flowers for much of the brilliancy in our gardens and fields. The stateliest and probably most interesting is the more recent double form of Rudbeckia laciniata known in catalogues as "the summer chrysanthemum," and as Rudbeckia Golden Glow. This unusual form is caused by the disk florets being changed into ray florets. It is the tallest grower of the group.

Rudbeckia Autumn Glory is probably a garden form that first appeared in England many years ago. The plant is robust, growing about four feet high, bearing flowers nearly four inches in diameter. The ray florets, about twelve in number, one and one-half inches long and three-fourths of an inch broad, a deep lemon in color, cone over an inch in length and greenish yellow.

Rudbeckia triloba, here illustrated, so named on account of its lower leaves being three lobed, is one of the most showy of the group. The flower heads are small but numerous, almost completely covering the plant, showing just enough green of the foliage to set off the blooms. The ray florets are eight in number, deep yellow, and contrast well with the black-purple disk. The plant grows about three and one-half feet high and nearly as broad and is very rich and effective, especially when near a strong-growing specimen of Aconitum Napellus, the deep blue flowers of which contrast well with it.

The more dwarf R. speciosa, sometimes called R. Newmanni is also quite showy but is so near like R. hirta, the black-eyed Susan of our fields, that it is often mistaken for it. It, however, has about double the number of ray florets that R. hirta has, making a more compact flower.

Bentham and Hooker class Echinacea purpurea among the rudbeckias, thus adding a color other than yellow to the family. This grows about four feet high and produces flowers some four inches across, of a reddish purple, sometimes, when grown in full sun, a deep pink. These last a long time and are very effective among shrubbery. Another species often classed as an echinacea is R angustifolia, having rose-colored flowers closely resembling R. purpurea.

All of the above mentioned rudbeckias are hardy perenuials of easy growth. There has lately appeared in catalogues an annual from Texas called Rudbeckia bicolor which is certainly worthy of cultivation. It grows about two feet high, producing many flowers two inches in diameter; ray florets fifteen in number three-fourths of an inch in length, a rich velvety brown at the base, with deep yellow lips, disk cone shaped, one-half an inch high and deep brown in color.

DEWEY DAY DEMORALIZED DEALING.—SUNDAY NOT A DAY OF REST.—WANTED, A LEADER.—A HEALTHY MARKET.—SURPLUSES HERE AND THERE.—RUSH FOR STOCK ENDS IN A DOG TRADE.—DISAPPEARANCE OF A WELL-LIKED SALESMAN.—WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S WHAT IN GOTHAM.

The greater part of last week was spent by the occupants of many of the florist stores, wholesale as well as retail, in the consideration of ways and means whereby a few five-dollar bills could be made by the sale of seats for the Dewey parade, if on the line of march, or devising schemes for seeing the sight without having to pay for it, if not on the line of march. Hammers and nails did not, however, always come so handy to the amateur carpenters and upholsterers and some of the contrivances met the same fate as the Spanish cruisers in Manila Bay, with the difference that they were wrecked even before Dewey appeared. All had a good time, though, and while the big event demoralized everthing in the way of business for the time being, there is nothing more serious to complain of and all are ready to settle down now for the big, prosperous season which everyone believes is in store for us.

It is much to be regretted that within recent years business rivalry has brought about an almost total elimination of Sunday as a day of rest or recreation for those engaged in the florist business in this city. At first it was only to look out for the delivery of some funeral design or similar cause that the store doors were unlocked on Sunday. Then it grew into a regular half day opening and now it is, with many, practically the entire day. The late hours of the week day business furnish a good reason why the florists' clerks should have their Sunday to themselves and it is believed that some mutual arrangement might be perfected whereby this might be brought about without injury to the business or the community. A number of the leading proprietors have expressed a willingness to close up provided their neighbors will do likewise. Who will start the movement in earnest?

The cut flower trade, as a whole, is in healthy condition and the situation, at present, is regarded by those best qualified to know as fairly satisfactory when compared with recent years. First-class American Beauty roses maintain their hold remarkably well and selected stock of other varieties of roses, as well as carnations, is meeting with a fair amount of encouragement. Cattleyas made a bad break in price last week, owing in part to the increasing receipts of C. labiata and the condition of the lily of the valley market shows that the growers are crowding it in faster than the normal demand would warrant, the result being that the price is badly demoralized. Violets are getting plentiful, in the lower grades, but there are a few flowers remarkably good for the season coming in, and these sell well. The other kind does not sell at all and much of the inferior material is lost—not by the grower always but by his commission man, who, between the coercion by the grower and the chasing by his rival, finds himself lacking the necessary courage to face the issue.

The cold snap has set things in active motion over at the Cut Flower Market on Thirty-fourth street. Outdoor flowers got their finish on the night of October 1 and on Monday morning there was an old-fashioned rush for the limited quantity of material that came in. The demand for carnations and chrysanthemums exceeded the supply. The crowd went home very happy with empty baskets, but not before they had the pleasure of watching Charlie Millang make a dog trade that astonished the house.

Many expressions of sorrow are heard at the market and elsewhere over the disappearance of Fritz Kessler who has been for some years salesman for his uncle, T. F. Ehrhardt, of Woodside. A communication in one of the daily papers from Kessler indicated that it was his purpose to commit suicide on account of despondency. He has not been seen for two weeks but a hope exists that he may still be alive.

John Young is receiving large quantities of cattleyas, handsome labiatas, that find a ready demand wherever high-class trade prevails.

George Saltford has opened a headquarters for the sale of violets at wholesale at the same address as Millang & Co., 50 West Twenty-ninth street.

Thos. W. Weathered is expected to sail from Liverpool for New York, on the Lucania, on Saturday, October 7.

BUSINESS BRISKS A BIT.—STOCK IN THE MARKET.—FLORISTS REPRESENTED IN THE FARMERS' NATIONAL CONGRESS.—HORTICULTURAL CLUB HOLDS A LOVE FEAST.—ORATORS AND THEIR SUBJECTS.—FRUIT AND VEGETABLE SHOW AT HORTICULTURAL HALL.—VISITORS.

Business seems to have taken a little spurt this week. Jack Frost is, no doubt, responsible partially, for he has made a clean sweep of all the outdoor bloom. Much complaint is heard of the quality of carnations coming in, the average receipts being of inferior grade, but the growers are promising better things soon. American Beauty roses have stiffened up in price about twenty-five per cent and it is hoped that the advance can be maintained. But the minor grades are not included in this. Lily of the valley is abundant, asters are nearly run out, chrysanthemums begin to assert themselves and an air of activity rules in all lines.

Edwin Lonsdale arrived in town on Tuesday morning armed with a formidable document, nearly four feet square, announcing that "reposing especial trust and confidence in his judgment, integrity and ability," the governor of the state of Pennsylvania has commissioned him as a delegate to the Farmers' National Congress, convening this week at Boston. The opening session of the congress was largely attended by delegates from all parts of the country, governors and legislators being among the number, but none more dignified nor distinguished-looking than the esteemed representative of the florists of the Quaker City. Welcoming addresses were made by Mayor Quincy on behalf of the city, Gen. Appleton on behalf of the state, the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and others. Hon. W. D. Hoard, of Wisconsin, presides and the sessions will extend over a week, with many entertainments interspersed.

The Horticultural Club had a session on Wednesday afternoon, October 4. The presence of Edwin Lonsdale in the club's preserves was sufficient provocation for this and the arrival of C. B. Weathered emphasized it. The gathering was at the Squantum Inn. F. R. Mathison presided and won high honors for his ability in this position. The speakers were Lawrence Cotter, who expressed his high appreciation of the guest of the occasion; James Comley, who did likewise; P. Welch, who talked mathematics and farming statistics and complimented Pennsylvania's governor for his wisdom in selecting Mr. Lonsdale to represent the farming interests of his state; W. W. Edgar, who mentioned the value of time; W. J. Stewart, who read letters of sympathy from several absentees; Wm. Donald, who modestly disclaimed any credit for raising the best stove plants in Massachusetts; Alex. Montgomery, who broke his resolution as to speaking in public; W. H. Long, who showed both oratorical and musical ability; E. M. Wood, who had come from the yacht races especially to greet his friend Lonsdale; Thos. A. Cox, who congratulated everybody, and Warren Ewell, who explained that all the farms in Massachusetts had been cut up into boulevards for the benefit of the bicyclers. Mr. Lonsdale responded to the compliments extended in a fitting manner and, on urgent request, rendered the Duke of York song with variations. Mr. Weathered also expressed his own and the New York Florists' Club's kind feelings toward the Boston fraternity. Toastmaster Mathison was given a unanimous vote of thanks and the freedom of the city of Squantum. Auld Lang Syne closed the entertainment.

The fruit and vegetable show at Horticultural Hall last week was notable, especially for the very fine display of native grapes. Wm. Donald, first, and D. F. Roy, second, was the record on decorative plants. E. O. Orpet was given a silver medal for Cattleya Alpha, an American hybrid between C. labiata and C. Bowringeana. Mr. Burt's display of cactus dahlias was superb.

N. F. McCarthy's auction sales are prospering.

STATE OF THE MARKET.—STOCKS AND PRICES.—MEETING OF THE CLUB.—NEW MEMBERS.—ANDERSON AND HIS METHODS OF BUILDING.—GRIGG TO GO WITH BATTLES.—SOME GOOD NEW DAHLIAS.—DESCRIPTIONS OF MANY SORTS.

The cool weather of the past few days has shortened up the stocks of cut flowers, and this, together with the increasing volume of business, has stiffened prices considerably. Beauties, first choice, are now $2.50 per dozen and scarce at that. The quality keeps improving all the while, which is the case, also, with the teas. Meteors, Brides and Bridesmaids are $3 to $4 per hundred, with a few extras at $5. Some grand Kaiserins are now coming in which easily bring $6. Carnations are getting into form and anything worth looking at brings $1.50 or seeks another buyer. As yet McGowan, Hill, Scott, Daybreak and Eldorado are the only kinds offered. Lily of the valley is spasmodically scarce and it behooves a man to be sure of his market before he promises any quantity for the next day's delivery.

Heavy frosts have finished the outside flowers, dahlias being entirely destroyed; even cosmos in many cases was totally ruined. This will make the chrysanthemums more welcome. The first in were from George Campbell, who sold the bulk of his Fitzwigram to Hugh Graham. So far no flowers, or practically none, have appeared on the market. Violets are coming in nicely, that is, the single varieties, none of the doubles being in view yet.

The October meeting of the Florists' Club last Tuesday evening was well attended, the attraction being the paper by H. F. Michell on his recent visit to the Pacific coast, which appears in another column. The club is increasing in membership rapidly, as five new names were added to the role and about fifteen proposed for action at the next meeting. In this latter list were the names of several ladies. This struck the bachelors of the assemblage in a peculiar manner, and we question if they are over their surprise yet. It was voted unanimously, however, to receive the names, and our club room will now be graced by the presence of the ladies, not only as guests but with the right of membership.

George Anderson has torn down one house and is erecting another. George is one of the finest mechanics in the business and his houses are models of precision and fine fitting. The glass in this structure is being placed to throw the water to the middle, although in most of his other houses it is placed the other way. It is being lapped and bedded in putty. A gutter in the plate or cross beam into which the upper ends of the sash bars are fastened, just below the ventilators, will, he thinks, prevent drip. He is also of the opinion that the arrangement of the tables that provides for a walk around the outside and next to the side walls of the house is of more importance to the growth of the plants than many of the innovations, such as short lean to the south, that have been introduced recently. They are so much more conveniently cared for, and then, too, he says the houses will last longer, as the walls are kept dryer.

Edwin Lonsdale is in Boston this week attending the sessions of the National Farmers' Congress, to which he was appointed a delegate from Pennsylvania by Governor Stone.

C. H. Grigg is to manage the new Century Flower Shop for H. H. Battles. We are glad to welcome Mr. Grigg into the ranks again after his long retirement. Some years ago he set forth his ideas regarding flowers at popular prices in a paper read before the Florists' Club; he will now be in a position to put them into practice.

One of the best things seen at the dahlia exhibition, which closed September 30, was Mr. Blanc's new decorative dahlia, Philadelphia, exhibited by Wm. Henry Maule. The flowers were perhaps the finest in the show and certainly the largest. In color they resemble the famous Nymphæa, although more delicate and refined. They are carried on long, strong and erect stems. It is a very free and early bloomer and was awarded a certificate of merit.

The following are descriptions of some of the best in the Dreer collection of new cactus dahlias:

Miss Webster, a very fine white with rather long petals, much resembling Perle de la tête d' or.

Loreley, was perhaps admired more than any other cactus dahlia; extra fine shape, erect, color of La France, shading to white in center.

Hohenzollern, distinct shade of orange or nankin yellow; fine form.

Aegir, crimson red; fine color.

F. Bartels, bright vermilion scarlet; one of the best.

Austin Cannell, as shown, did not appear to correspond with the originator's description which claims it to be a mauve pink or rose color.

George Marlow, primrose yellow, shaded amber.

Mrs. A. Beck, a rich reddish-salmon with long pointed petals.

Perle de la tête d'or, which obtained a first prize two years ago as the best novelty exhibited, showed up in fine form, the color being absolutely pure white and the form very original and distinct.

Gilt Edge, a fancy sort, appears to improve in size and form yearly. It is quite unique and could be picked out at a distance from all others; it received a first prize.

BRISK CALL FOR STOCK.—DECIDED SHORTAGE OF CARNATIONS.—ASTERS ARE GOOD PROPERTY.—WEDDING OF A POPULAR WHOLESALER.—JOHNSON GOES HOME TO ENGLAND.—STORIES OF THE STREETS AND OF THE TOWN.

The average wholesaler has not condescended to speak to a fakir this week if, indeed, any Greek has been venturesome enough to put his face inside a commission house. It has not been a question of price in this market this week. It is true that there have been more roses than in the ten days previous and that the cut is increasing rapidly but the strength of the buying has made prices firm at 5 cents and 6 cents. Beauties have been in particular favor. The carnation supply has been vastly below the demand and every flower has brought at least 2 cents while 4 cents has not infrequently been paid over the counter. Local buying has been particularly strong and promises to hold up for the city is full of strangers and society will be wide awake through the fall festival. Chrysanthemums are coming in more plentifully. Poehlmann is cutting some very good Lady Fitzwigram which bring $2 a dozen. Large quantities of wild smilax are being used for festival decorations. Leucothoe sprays from North Carolina are coming in heavily and are the best on record. The most profitable property in the market this week has been the Pennsylvanian asters at McKellar & Winterson's. One day's shipment was 7,300 and they sold up to $4 a hundred.

Chas. W. McKellar, of McKellar & Winterson, and Miss Harriet Ayres were married on Wednesday evening, September 27. Mr. McKellar failed to give his friends advance information of the event but the surprise has made their congratulations even more hearty than would have otherwise been the case. Mr. and Mrs. McKellar will reside at the Marquette, 85 Rush street, where they will be at home to their friends after November 1.

The great parade of the industries, a feature of the fall festival in which the florists will be represented by a float, has been postponed from to-night until Tuesday evening. The committee expects the float to be a creditable representative of the trade, although the scarcity of stock may interfere with the plans to a slight degree.

Chas. W. Johnson, for several years foreman for W. N. Rudd, of Mt. Greenwood, will resign his position about December 1 and take his family to spend Christmas at the old home in Red Hill, Surrey, England. Mr. Johnson has the best wishes of a large circle of friends for an enjoyable trip and his future welfare.

The Association of Western Jobbers met at the Auditorium Hotel in this city on Tuesday and decided to again advance the price of glass ten per cent. It was stated that all the firms doing business in the Mississippi valley are represented in the association.

Bassett & Washburn decorated the new home of the Hinsdale Club for its opening Monday night. The club house is one of the finest in the vicinity of Chicago. Both members of the firm are enrolled in the organization.

Capt. H. Schuenemann, of the schooner Mary Collins, sailed this week to Northern Michigan for his customary cargo of greens. He expects to return about November 15.

A. G. Prince & Co. will have greens to go the rounds this season for out at Hinsdale, H. Payne is building an adiantum house 40x150, an asparagus house 51x70 and two smilax houses 30x70.

George Allen left J. C. Schubert & Co., last week and John Burke is now in charge there with Henry Rowe, formerly with the Thiele Floral Co., to back him up.

Peter Reinberg, Henry Wietor and Matt. Everett went to Remsen, Iowa, Tuesday on a ten day's hunting trip.

J. B. Deamud is successor to the Illinois Cut Flower Co., at the old stand, 51 Wabash avenue.

The festival has made some little demand for evergreen wreathing for decorations.

Christ. Ehrhardt, at Park Ridge, is now cutting about 400 California violets a day.

The Morton Floral Co. opened at 743 East Forty-seventh street last week.

O. P. Bassett, returned from Florida last week.

GEORGE R. DAVIS, the Director General of the World's Fair, admitted to a New York correspondent that the profits of the glass trust were over 100 per cent in the past year.

THE palm swindler has been easily defeated several times recently by the precaution of verifying orders received from strangers. Let the next man to meet him do the trade a favor by causing his arrest.

WE learn something of the extent of the greenhouse business in this country from a booklet recently issued by the Herendeen Mfg. Co., of Geneva, N. Y., in which it is stated that there are in New England alone 1,000,000 feet of glass heated by the Furman boilers that firm.

REPORTS from the north Wisconsin green districts show so far little if any picking done; local buyers there say that owing to higher prices for lumber and pulp wood, green pickers will not take hold of that work except at a considerable advance. First costs to begin the season are likely to be from $5 to $7 per 1000 pounds higher.

Location of Return Pipe.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I have at present six greenhouses 154 feet long heated by steam, the boiler being at the northeast corner of the houses, which run east and west and drain their surface water east. The supply pipe leads from the boiler house south through the east end of the houses to the sixth house, feeding in each house a supply pipe which runs overhead to the west end and in turn feeds the coils, which return under the benches to the return pipe. The latter is below the main supply pipe and runs through the east end of the six houses from south, north to the boilers. It is about this return pipe that I wish information. The houses being about eighteen feet wide, this pipe is about 130 feet long from the last coil in the sixth house to the boilers, and it is sunk in the ground the whole way; the boilers being ten feet below the surface gives it a drop of about six feet in the 130 of its length, and the lowest coil is eighteen inches above the return pipe. Now this pipe has done its work satisfactorily, but has always given us trouble whenever we have had to get to it for repairs; it also rusts out very fast, being in the ground and always wet. This year we are pulling it out to make room for a new one, and wish to have replies to the following:

1. Can we raise this return pipe to the surface of the ground?
2. How much drop must it have?
3. How near can it come to the level of our lowest coil?
4. Is there anything in the theory that our steam feed, having to travel so much farther to reach the coil than the return, on cold nights when the condensation is great the return water will be forced up into the coils if the return pipe is not eighteen inches or more below the level of the coil, and not more than that above the water level of the boilers? FLORIST.

1. The data will not suffice to enable one to answer this question definitely, but it seems as though the pipe might be raised, or at least it should be an easy matter to carry it in a conduit slightly below the surface, where it will not be subject to rust and where it can be readily reached for repairs.

2. One inch in ten feet will answer very well.

3. Eighteen inches is desirable, but less will answer and if the boiler is several feet below the level of the coil, six inches will answer very well.

4. The theory referred to becomes a fact only when the water level in the boiler is but a few inches below the lower ends of the coils or if the feed pipe is too small. When there is a difference of two or more feet in the heights of water in boiler and the coils there should be no trouble. For houses as long as those described it is generally desirable to use 2-inch feeds and 1½-inch returns for each house. L. R. TAFT.

The Nomination of S. A. F. Officers.

ED. AM. FLORIST:—I am pleased to notice that P. O'Mara has made an effort to come to the rescue of the subject heading this letter, because Mr. O'Mara can discuss a subject dispassionately, avoiding "hysterics;" consequently it is a pleasure to take note of what he says in your New York contemporary anent the subject under consideration.

The "intricate" nominating process now in operation in the S. A. F. might do for organizations where the membership is not so unwieldly as is that in the S. A. F., but even in those smaller societies nothing is gained in the efficiency of officers elected after being nominated by the new way. Then of what use is it taking up that time which certainly ought to be made more valuable than it now is?

Mr. O'Mara and your contemporary clearly see that there is no advantage in the new fad over the "open and above board," good old way, or they would positively say so, which they do not. The very best your contemporary has been able to say in its favor is, "That just as good officers have been elected by the new way as by the old," or words to that effect. When so much valuable time is taken up by the new process, better or more efficient officials should be elected as compensation for lost time, or why hold on to it?

I do not agree with Mr. O'Mara that "there is always danger that over-zealous friends will say something derogatory to the other candidates and create rancor," when nominating in the good old way, for so far as I have noticed in any conventions which I have attended where oral nominations have been in order, nothing approaching derogatory language has been used against a rival candidate. Every word said, so far as I have heard, has been said with the end in view of saying as good a word as possible for the candidate who has been placed in nomination, without referring to the other candidate or candidates in any way whatever.

The reason why I ventured to suggest that the author of the new way should move for its repeal is because I had hoped and believed that he himself could see that it offered no advantage over the old way, and that he would be more highly respected, therefore, by the members of the S. A. F. for his movement, rather than tacitly assent to its retention. It is more an evidence of strength than otherwise in a person who has the courage to own up that what he thought he had every reason to expect would be a benefit to the S. A. F. had failed, and I will venture a prediction that if Mr. O'Mara or any other member who was prominent among the advocates of the new way of nominating officers of the S. A. F. would move for its repeal, it would be agreed to without a dissenting voice, unless possibly some one or more persons voted in the negative out of pure contrariness.

Let's get together and avoid factions in the good old S. A. F.

OBITUARY.

F. W. LOUDON.

This well known horticulturist died at his home in Janesville, Wis., October 2. To the older generation of fruit growers Mr. Loudon was best known as the originator of the Jessie strawberry and the Loudon raspberry. Francis William Loudon was born at Strafford, Vt., December 17, 1818. He was a tanner by trade, afterward engaging in the boot and shoe industry. In 1852 Mr. Loudon retired from business and turned his attention to horticultural pursuits, in which he gained a national reputation.

NEWS NOTES.

DESMOINES, IA.—Mrs. W. L. Morris has been granted a divorce from her husband the well-known florist, with $2,400 alimony.

NEEDHAM, MASS.—W. H. Watson, florist and gardener, is in bankruptcy. Liabilities are given as about $3,000 with assets $460.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Robert and Mary Paterson have dissolved partnership. The latter will carry on the business under the name of Mary Johnston.

LENOX, MASS.—Thomas Locke succeeds J. F. Huss as superintendent of the Morgan estate at Ventfort Hall. Mr. Locke has been foreman under Mr. Huss for some time.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—The novel suit of John Coleman against Daniel E. Gorman has not yet been heard by Judge Metzger. Mr. Gorman has recently added a palm house and office to his establishment.

BAY CITY, MICH.—Boehringer Bros. are erecting a large smoke stack at their greenhouses. They have heretofore used wood as fuel but will try slack coal this winter.

CANTON, MASS.—Robt. Hutchins, who is running the old Lyons establishment here, has been cutting fine roses from a special summer house and his stock looks very promising for winter.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—Cowan Bros. & Co. report a good summer trade and bright prospects for winter. They have just added a house 10x50 for Princess of Wales violets and have also put in a new boiler.

PERKASIE, PA.—J. Werst has completed a house 40x200 in which he has benched 1700 tomato plants. The house is heated by steam from a 100-horsepower boiler passing through 6,000 feet of 2-inch pipe and 3,800 feet of 1-inch pipe.

DES MOINES, IA.—The Iowa Seed Company is completing a new range of eight houses. They deal extensively in gold fish and are constructing a tank 12x65 and eight feet deep for the finny fellows. They will also use the water from the tank for watering in the houses, being beyond the city water supply.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALEXANDER RODGERS, Pres; ALBERT MCCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Secy and Treas.

VISITED CHICAGO: Winfred Rolker, of August Rolker & Sons, New York.

THE late frost in Nebraska damaged unmatured seed crops to some extent.

DETROIT, MICH.—Eugene Schaettel, of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., called here this week on his way east.

NEW YORK.—It is stated that the entire importation of Japan longiflorums to this city has arrived in a rotten condition and has been abandoned to the government by the consignees.

WETHERSFIELD CONN., October 3.—The season here has been dry, which suits the local seed growers. The crops are good and of a good quality, but the area devoted to seed growing is diminishing every year.

W. H. GRENELL is taking in his peas and beans at Saginaw, Mich., a total of about 35,000 bushels. It is stated that Mr. Grenell contemplates building a warehouse there, possibly making Saginaw his headquarters.

ERFURT, September 16.—Crops have turned out satisfactorily so far but heavy rains have set in during the last week and if they are not over soon we fear the wet will do great damage to asters and other crops still in the field.

BOSTON, MASS.—Robert Farquhar, of So. Market street, has been obliged to give up business on account of ill health. The store was one of the most elaborate in this city. The fixtures, with the entire stock of bulbs, tools and sundries, have been purchased by W. W. Rawson & Co., who are now refitting their own store and intend to make it the most complete in New England.

Corner on Clover Seed.

The clover seed market is being cornered, according to advices received from Toledo, O., the clover seed center of the country. Prices now have a range from 75 cents to $1 higher than prevailed at this time a year ago. The local market is sensitive and fluctuating. At the beginning of the week clover seed was quoted at from $7.50 to $7.75 per hundred pounds for October delivery and advanced to $8.40 on Wednesday. Yesterday the price eased off to $8. The farmer will have to pay 10 to 12 cents more for his seed this year than last.—Chicago Tribune, Sept. 29.

California Notes.

Gustave Brose, for many years manager of the seed department of the Germain Fruit Company and E. Fleur, of Alhambra, have formed a partnership under the name of the Brose-Fleur Seed and Plant Co. They will soon open a store on West Fourth street, Los Angeles, where they will conduct a general seed, plant and florist supply business. They also intend growing seeds and bulbs.

Reports from the freesia growers show that the demand this year exceeded the supply for large sized bulbs. Some crops disappointed the owners, as, owing to the dry season, the bulbs were not up to expectation so far as size is concerned. The growers are very largely increasing their plantings for next year's crop and with a wet season the output next year will surpass all former records.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

W. J. PETERS, Pres.; D. S LAKE, Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

NURSERYMEN are still predicting advances in prices.

C. L. WATROUS considers the De Soto the most profitable variety of plum.

THE receipts of the Minnesota State Fair were $82,203.87 and the profits $20,877.48.

F. T. Ramsey, the Austin nurseryman, has been elected president of the Texas Horticultural Society.

THE Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., has a large stock of ornamentals on land which must be cleared.

SUZUKI & IIDA are introducing Rubus morifolius, a variety which ripens in July, with fruit of splendid appearance.

W. R. AND J. B. LAUGHLIN, College Springs, Ia., have sold their nursery established in 1856 to J. F. Johnson for $5,400.

THE new McPike grape has captured many premiums this autumn. It endured cold 27° below zero last winter and bore a good crop this year.

E. W. REID now has a postoffice in proximity to the nursery, the new address being Reid's Nurseries, Upland, O., instead of Bridgeport.

PYRUS BACCATA is the hardiest known species of the genus, hardy even at Indian Head, Manitoba, where 50° below zero is experienced not infrequently.

JACOB WENTZ, who has been in the nursery business at Rochester for four decades, died at his home at Irondequoit, N. Y., on September 27, aged 70 years.

J. D. MURPHY, Dansville, N. Y., sold Geo. Peters & Son, Troy, O., nursery stock to the amount of $1055 but upon its arrival the purchasers regraded the stock and asked a deduction of $150, which they failed to get, and refused to pay. Murphy began suit and Peters & Son paid without further argument.

Los Angeles.

PLANS FOR HEAVY BUSINESS IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.—MUCH STOCK IN SIGHT.—ABOUT ORCHIDS. — REDUCED EXPRESS RATES ON CUT FLOWERS.—DOINGS OF VACATIONERS.

All our growers have prepared heavy stocks for cut flowers. Carnations are to be seen in five and ten acre patches and violets are grown by the acre, also roses and chrysanthemums. Smilax and Asparagus plumosus are plentiful, being grown in lath houses. Smilax is so easily grown and is in such abundance that it can be bought in quantity, strings six to eight feet long, at $5 per 100 strings. Violets and chrysanthemums are just beginning to appear in the stores. This year there has been a very good demand for the cut blooms of Amaryllis Johnsonii, A. vittata and the Belladonna types. There are some remarkably fine flowers of them exhibited in the store windows. The plantsmen have prepared fine large stocks of ferns and asparagus as they give general satisfaction as house plants. The supply of small and medium sized palms is very good.

The Los Angeles city parks are building two large greenhouses in which to grow plants for display in the conservatory. Mme. Modjeska, the famous actress, has also built a large conservatory on her ranch in Orange county.

H. Wilfrid Walker, the orchid hunter, is again yearning for the tropics and, expecting to make another voyage soon, has disposed of his choice lot of plants, most of which he collected in South America, to M. Welsh. This addition makes Mr. Welsh's collection the finest in Los Angeles or vicinity.

Morris Goldenson is the youngest florist in the city in point of years but he has been in the business long enough to wield considerable influence. Chiefly through his instrumentality the Wells-Fargo Express Company has made a reduction averaging nearly fifty per cent on rates for cut flowers. This should largely increase shipments for this point. Mr. Goldenson also agitated the question of Sunday closing so successfully that all the flower stores are now closed on that day.

A carload of Japanese trees, shrubs and plants recently arrived in this city whence they were forwarded to Pasadena to be used to ornament one of the finest places in that beautiful city.

J. A. Summers, O. C. Saakes, Capt. M. E. Walker, Ed. Ruddy and Morris Goldenson took an ocean voyage for a summer vacation and camped on Catalina Island. Miss Harriet Goodin and Miss Ethel Lord visited San Diego. Alfred Roedder spent his vacation nursing a wounded hand caused by the accidental discharge of a revolver. John Schlaloss visited the mountains and Fred. Howard went to Santa Barbara. D. R. W.

Tarrytown, N. Y.

MEETING OF THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY. —NEW MEMBERS. — THE WESTCHESTER FAIR.—GOOD FLORAL DISPLAYS.—NOTES OF THE EXHIBITS.

The monthly meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held on September 28, but the attendance was somewhat less than usual. John Humphrey, gardener to Mr. Legg, Tarrytown, exhibited a vase of an unnamed carnation of the Eldorado type, which was very favorably commented upon. Walter M. Cooke, Tarrytown; Claude Wilson, Dobbsferry, and Peter Franklin were elected to membership. Robert Henderson, Irvington; Steven Bradley, Hastings, John Boshard and Jos. Money were proposed.

The Westchester Fair at White Plains had several features of interest to the florist. For the most effective group of not less than 100 potted plants the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, secured first honors. They had a nice clean collection of decorative stock. J. S. Snedeker, White Plains, was second. His was a collection of greenhouse flowering plants, over 100 varieties. Cooke & McCord, Tarrytown, were third with a very creditable display. The F. R. Pierson Co. secured first honors for dahlias and cannas with a superb collection. J. S. Snedeker was first for cut flowers.

Cooke & McCord are building a house for palms. JAS. T. SCOTT.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—Green & Underhill were recently the recipients of a visit by the palm swindler but they took care to verify the order and lost nothing. Unfortunately the fellow got away.

WHEELING, W. VA.—Jesse McCausland, assignee for Huscroft Bros., has charge of assets variously estimated at from $4000 to $8000, but certainly ample to cover all liabilities.

What Have You to Sell ?

Having prepared for the season of 1899 and 1900 by remodeling our entire store, building new cooling rooms 12x16 x32 and 16x18x25 all on the latest, modern up-to-date style, we take pleasure in announcing that with the prospects of the coming season, we will be short on supply. We therefore inform you that if you have stock to sell, we can sell it.

Growers who grow stock for themselves often have more than they can use, we can sell it, ship it along.

We have been in the commission business more than twenty years and we can boast that our honest treatment has built up the largest business of its kind in the West. When you want to buy come to us, we will take care of you. When you want to sell come to us, for with the large outlet we have we can sell it.

We pay shippers on demand. Weekly statements of accounts rendered.

Information given on any subject in the trade on request.

We are especially short on "greens" such as Asparagus plumosus, Asparagus tenuissimus, Asparagus Sprengerii, Princeps Ferns, Farleyense, etc. Growers of these lines would do well on this market.

In short, if you are a seller see us. If a buyer see us.

Promptness has been one of the elements of our success; promptness in paying, promptness in filling orders correctly.

Promptness in all branchess makes us just what we have claimed to be, the oldest, most reliable firm of the kind in the United States.

COWS EAT SOUTHERN WILD SMILAX.

CHAPTER 1.

Dear Sir:—Do you know that Cows eat Southern Wild Smilax? Well, they do and it makes fine feed. On my beautiful estate of 1700 acres, "Getmore Farm," near Belleville, Alabama, 12 miles from Evergreen, I have tons of Southern Wild Smilax. In the winter when feed is scarce, I pull it down and let my cattle feed upon it. It improves the Smilax to pull it and it helps the Cows. This year I have changed my tactics. I have built a telephone line to "Getmore" and established a packing house there, and am offering Wild Smilax at $2 per case of 16 cubic feet. And why? Well, figures talk. Southern Wild Smilax at $2 per case will net me $60 a ton. Good Timothy Hay is worth only $15 a ton delivered at Evergreen. Now anyone can see that it will pay me to get $60 a ton for the Smilax and buy the hay at $15, and I am also of the opinion that it will be a heap better for the Cow.

Gentlemen, I want your trade. It's no use bucking against facts and figures like these. This is a quotation. It comes from Caldwell, The Woodsman, and it establishes the market value of Southern Smilax.

Your competitors have them as well as yourself and in the next big decoration they are going to make a figure in your estimate. Orders of five cases or less filled the same day as received; larger orders 24 hours' grace is expected. Hoping to hear from you at an early date with orders, I am, Yours truly,

CALDWELL, The Woodsman.

P. S. Chapter 2d, in which I will let you know What the Cow Says About It, will appear in American Florist of October 14th

They Must Go.

OUR PASTIMES

Announcements of coming contests or other events of interest to our bowling, shooting and cycling readers are solicited and will be given place in this column.

Address all correspondence for this department to Wm. J. Stewart, 67 Bromfield St., Boston, Mass.; Robt. Kift, 1725 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.; or to the American Florist Co., 324 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

At St. Louis.

The bowlers assembled on October 2 for the first time since they lost the Challenge Cup at Detroit but from now on they will meet each Monday evening. Following is the score of the first session:

Name	1st	2d	3d	Av.
J. W. Kunz	157	167	144	156
C. A. Kuehn	112	157	174	148

Jas. Withers	115	114	155	154	74	122

On Monday, October 9, at 3 p. m., the Flatbush contingent will come over to meet the above aggregation and get measured for a suit of deep mourning clothes.

At Philadelphia.

The bowlers are hitting things up lively and a match has been arranged, the first of the season, with an outside club, the Melrose, on their North Broad street alleys. Good scores are now the rule and 150 average or more is the mark it a man expects to be in the running. The committee is working on the winter contests and hopes to soon have the plan laid out for the boys.

The Gun Club had an important match with the Westchester club on their grounds at Wissanoming last Tuesday afternoon. The florists were confident but the Westchester boys proved to be in the best trim and won the match handily by twenty-four targets. There were twelve men on a side, the Westchester team hit 219 and missed eighty-one. The florists hit 195 and missed 105. K.

BRISK DEMAND UPON A SHORT SUPPLY.—GREAT SCARCITY OF STOCK.—ORDERS FOR BIG DECORATIONS.—THE CLUB MEETING.

Unusually cold weather has prevailed here the past ten days and the effect on the local supply of roses is very perceptible while inside-grown carnations are distressingly scarce. The plants outside which have supplied the demand with fairly good flowers for the past three weeks have succumbed to the severe frost, which destroyed outdoor flowers of all kinds; even candytuft, which defies the first frosts of the season, is unfit for use for even the cheapest work. The situation is made the more distracting because of the impetus that the cold snap seems to have given trade. There has been an unprecedented demand for Beauties while many funerals and store openings reach the limit of the resources of the principal retailers. The most notable event of the week was the semi-annual opening of our largest dry-goods store where about 6,000 carnations and roses, including several hundred Beauties, were used in the decorations by Schroeter. The first chrysanthemums of the season were shown at Breitmeyer's last week and found a ready sale; Lady Fitzwigram was the variety.

The feature of the club meeting Wednesday evening was the discussion of matter from the question box, which brought out the experience of the many members present. The committee appointed to secure a permanent home for the club reported progress, several eligible places being under consideration. Preliminary arrangements were made for an outing to take place soon.

Chas. Siebrecht, of New York, was a visitor this week. J. F. S.

TRADE PROSPECTS BRIGHT.—MANY CARNATIONS BENCHED. — THE WANDERERS RETURN.—ELECTION OF THE STATE SOCIETY OF FLORISTS.—NOTES.

Trade is very good for the season and prospects are bright. Roses are the principal stock in the market with the supply hardly equal to the demand. A few carnations are being sent in but are of poor quality and short stemmed. Outside stock is about all gone.

Carnations are nearly all benched and from what I learn about town I think there are more planted than in several years past. We have had no severe frosts though several light ones have visited us. The nights are cool and firing is now a necessity, with coal twenty to twenty-five per cent higher this year than last.

Chris. Hansen, formerly with L. L. May Co., has rented the greenhouses on Dale street owned by H. W. Bunde and will devote them to growing carnations.

Ludwig Anderson, who left last spring to superintend the greenhouses and grounds of the State Public School at Owatonna, has returned and taken his old position with L. L. May & Co. Wm. Scott, who went to the Klondike last year, has also returned to the employ of L. L. May & Co.

W. G. Schucht, representing Ellis & Pollworth, of Milwaukee, is in town, displaying some nice sample palms and taking orders for them.

The Society of Minnesota Florists held its annual meeting at the West Hotel, Minneapolis, on Thursday evening, September 21. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, E. Nagel; vice-president, J. Souden; secretary, A. S. Swanson; treasurer, Fred. Busch.

Mr. Mills, of the State Nursery Company, Butte, Mont., was a caller last week, enroute to Chicago.

S. D. Dysinger and family have returned from their outing in New York state. FELIX.

Pittsburg.

BUSINESS GROWING BETTER EVERY DAY.—A FINE NEW STORE — AFFAIRS WITH BECKERT.—MANY CHRYSANTHEMUMS AT ALLEGHENY PARK.

Business continues to improve and the condition of stock is satisfactory, except carnations, which are scarce. The outdoor stock has all been killed by the frost and out of town dealers are sending for price lists. Chrysanthemums are coming in very slowly; no colors excepting white can be had and many early varieties are very late this year. Roses are of better quality.

A. W. Smith opened his new store October 2. It is said that it is the finest store and contains more ground floor than any establishment west of New York.

Theo. F. Beckert, of Neville Island, is gradually getting into good shape. He is replenishing his chrysanthemum and carnation stock and will soon be able to send in plenty of good stock, as formerly.

The chrysanthemums at Allegheny Park are very promising this year. They will certainly have a grand showing, as there are about 7000 strong, healthy plants with plenty of foliage.

Max. L. Hess, of Wheeling, W. Va., was in town the first of last week. G. O.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.—On September 27 J. F. Wilcox returned from his western trip, during which he learned much that was new to him about the florists of that region. The west is growing more rapidly than is generally supposed.

RAILROAD GREENHOUSES GETTING INTO SHAPE.—A NEW VENTURE FOR THE BURLINGTON.—A FINE RANGE OF GLASS.—GOSSIP OF PROSPERITY AT THE OLDER ESTABLISHMENTS.

The Burlington Route greenhouses here are settling down to their winter's work and there is now a fair cut of roses. The principal product will be roses, although some carnations and chrysanthemums are planted. The range of glass is quite extensive, there being seven houses, built on a triangular piece of ground, without partition walls. The largest house is 20x154 and the smallest 18x54. The glass is 12x22 and 12x16. It is the intention of the management to raise the material heretofore purchased of Bassett & Washburn for use in the dining cars running out of Chicago. The houses are in charge of A. Warimont, formerly in business at West Chicago, and George Serviss, who has been with the Batavia growers.

W. L. Smith is getting things in shipshape for winter. He had the best spring trade for a long time and business was fair all summer.

J. M. Smely, who has the finest range of glass in the city, devotes it to producing stock for his retail trade. Business for the past year was the best in the history of the establishment.

At Rees', across the street from Smely's, trade is also booming, more having been done this summer than for several years.

Tilton Bros. are pursuing their accustomed pace and both J. A. and Peter Freeman are enjoying an early opening of fall business. There is good stock in all their places.

OCONOMOWOC, WIS.—Mrs. H. C. Bucheler, who was recently critically ill with typhoid pneumonia, is now able to be about again although not fully recovered.

MARION, IND.—Gunnar Teilmann has opened a store down town in which to dispose of his product instead of shipping it to Chicago. During the summer he has rebuilt a propagating house and erected a large tank and windmill.

BUSINESS PICKING UP.—MATTERS AT THE CLUB.—ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—COE IS MAKING IMPROVEMENTS.

Business has reached a somewhat better general level and good flowers are fairly well disposed of, although there is quite a large percentage of second grade stock to be seen. Carnations show the effects of recent transplanting, although some of the earlier ones are now improving in quality. It is notable that in some cases where growers were rather too anxious to get their stock in early, they now have plants in much worse shape than those brought in somewhat later.

The committee appointed to secure quarters for the club for the ensuing year having been unable to locate anything that seemed better than our present rooms, it has been directed to lease them for another year. This puts matters in shape so that the bowlers can get down to business at the first meeting in October. There was a decidedly slim attendance at the last meeting, although officers were elected, resulting practically in the choice of the old officers.

A. M. Coe, of Coeridge, is rebuilding and slightly enlarging part of his establishment. The improvement consists of one house 18x50, with a lean-to six feet in width. A.

A GOOD SUMMER IN THE NURSERY TOWN.—FLOWERS NOW SCARCE.—MR. MORRIS GOES WITH BROWN BROS.—VARIOUS ITEMS.

Business was fully as good all summer as in former years and in the past two weeks a change for the better can be noticed, for good flowers are very scarce. The severe drought cut short the crop of outdoor blooms; asters and dahlias did but poorly and hardly any carnations were seen in the market during the summer; none are to be had now. The scarcity is not likely to be relieved until chrysanthemum time.

David Z. Morris, superintendent of Mt. Hope Cemetery, handed in his resignation on October 1, and will hereafter devote his time and energies to the nursery business, having entered the well known Brown Bros. Co. He will reside in Canada, where the firm has an important branch. J. W. Keller, formerly in the wholesale flower business, and lately bookkeeper and assistant superintendent at the cemetery, succeeded Mr. Morris.

Jacob Specht intends to plant 20,000 carnations if he can buy enough field-grown plants of the varieties most popular in this market. Salter Bros. will have more carnations under glass, at their Fairport plant, than any other grower in this vicinity. Their houses are filling up rapidly since the rains.

J. B. Keller Sons have nearly completed two violet houses. The large house, which was erected in place of two smaller ones, was finished some weeks ago and is filled with miscellaneous stock. These additions bring the total number of square feet of glass on the place to 20,000.

Geo. Crooker Co. are building a new house 20x75. Their business is increasing and they need more room for bedding plants. Cemetery trade is their specialty.

J. B. K.

ELLSWORTH, ME.—Miss Mary A. Clark has purchased the Dutton greenhouses and will carry on the business.

In the Bay State.

A fall of 25° in temperature on the first night of October brought a frost which blackened everything outdoors. In the vicinity of Lynn a great many dollars worth of stock was caught for the frost came much earlier than usual.

At the Peabody Fair Mrs. J. N. Julyn, of Salem, made a fine show of palms, ficuses, begonias and other stock. J. M. Ward & Co., of Peabody, had a good show of cut flowers and Richards came over from Lynn with the prize-winning basket.

It seems very strange that the florists should not avail themselves of the county fairs as a medium for interesting the thousands who attend in floriculture.

Almost in a night cut worms played havoc in a house of chrysanthemums at E. B. Blaney's in Swampscott.

The Lynn Horticultural Society has just closed an unusually successful exhibition.

In a recent heavy rain a wall at the Walke houses at Salem was undermined and the boiler room flooded.

W. B. Newhall, at Lynn, has some fine violets, although many of the growers have poor stock, the plants making very little growth in the field. TAP.

The MODEL Extension Carnation Support.

LANCASTER, PA., June 17, '99.
MR. THERON PARKER, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Dear Sir:—Your Model Carnation Support is all right in every way and will no doubt be considered as necessary as good plants with growers when better known. I consider it the best on the market, and if your other specialties are equally as good, they should make another addition to the money makers of 1900. Respectfully,
ALBERT M. HERR.

FLATBUSH, BROOKLYN, N.Y., Feb. 18, '97.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Dear Sir.—Your wire stake is certainly a gem. Without hesitating we indorse it as an up-to-date carnation support. Yours truly,
DAILLEDOUZE BROS.

W. HOBOKEN, N. J., Feb 18, '97.
MR. THERON PARKER,
Dear Sir:—It gives me much pleasure to congratulate you upon your success in getting up carnation supports. I think that those I have had from you are about as perfect as anybody will be able to make them. They certainly fill my bill for an ideal carnation support, a thing I have been looking for a long time. Wishing you every success in the sale of them, I am Yours truly E. ASMUS.

Clear Cypress Greenhouse Material.

This with us means the best growth of Cypress Lumber and the best grade of that growth; and from this grade all the sap—bright sap, which only experts can detect—as well as stained sap, knots and other defects cut out. Others do not equal our quality if they do beat our prices. It is not hard to see the reason: You can not buy gold dollars at fifty cents each. Experienced growers know that the best is not too good and cheapest in the long run.

NAUGATUCK, CONN.—A. N. Squire has opened a flower store on Center bridge.

Azaleas for Christmas and Easter.

The experience of each succeeding year goes to prove that the plant-buying public has adopted the doctrine of expansion to a great extent, for each season's trade demands a greater aggregate number of plants than its predecessor, a greater variety of flowering plants especially, and a much higher grade in all lines. The demand for plants in bloom at these two great festivals of the Christian year is constantly increasing, and the Indian azaleas, being so readily procurable and such satisfactory bloomers, are distributed in great quantities.

It has not yet been clearly demonstrated that we can grow good azaleas as cheaply in this country as we can import them from Europe, and it is therefore likely that the majority of these plants will continue to be imported for many years to come. This imported stock arrives late in the fall as a general thing, the date of its arrival depending to some extent on the condition of the weather in Europe, it being necessary that the flower buds shall be well set and the growth ripened fairly well before the plants are started on their long journey.

Azaleas are good travelers if properly packed and there is seldom much loss, but the plants of the present year's importation are not the ones to force for Christmas, these unestablished plants being unfit for any such radical treatment. On the contrary the azaleas for early work should be plants that have been grown in this country for at least one year, well ripened outdoors in the full sun and brought into a cool house before frost.

The forcing operation is a very simple one and consists in gradually bringing them into warmth as they are required, a temperature of 60° to 65°, with full sunlight and plenty of water, both at the roots and overhead, starting the buds very rapidly. The time required varies somewhat with different varieties and also with the condition of the weather, but under favorable conditions three to four weeks usually suffices.

As soon as the flowers begin to open the plants should be removed to a cool and airy house, in order to give the flowers more endurance. If the opening of the blooms is too much retarded by this process it is a very easy matter to replace the plants in heat for a few days and thus bring them out as required. With the forcing of the flower buds it is not uncommon for many of the leaf b[illegible] also to make an early start and, as this takes the strength of the plant away from the flowers, it is good practice to pinch out all such growths as they appear.

As noted above, this forcing operation necessitates liberal watering and, from the fact that these azaleas are naturally cool house subjects, placing them in a comparatively high temperature increases their liability to attacks of thrips and red spiders. To prevent this trouble they should be syringed forcibly and thoroughly until the buds are ready to open.

For early forcing it is not necessary to have a long list of varieties, three or four kinds being quite enough for this purpose. The following are among the favorites: As an early white either Deutsche Perle or Flag of Truce will answer well, while among the long list of pink varieties there is no other equal as a seller to Mme. Vandercruyssen, it being also a good grower and remarkably free in flowering. For a red variety Simon Mardner is one of the best, though a less number of this color will be called for than of the two preceding ones. Vervaeniana is one of the best among those of mingled coloring, its mixture of pink and white being very attractive; the flowers also very large and of good substance.

At Easter a more extended list of varieties may be handled, there being but little forcing required to bring azaleas into bloom at that season, unless Easter occurs at a very early date. In addition to those already noted, Bernhard Andreas alba, a superb white, should be included, and Iveryana, the flowers of which are white, spotted and dashed with red. Mme. Iris Lefebore is a very showy variety with orange red flowers of good substance and very double. Bernhard Andreas is another good pink, though quite distinct from Mme. Vandercruyssen, and Daphne is also a good variety, the flowers of which are very large, chiefly white but showing occasional markings of red.

Referring once more to the subject of newly imported azaleas, it may be said that these should be potted up as soon as received, examining them carefully as to their condition of moisture at the roots and thoroughly soaking in a tub of water any that are dry, for when repotted in a dry condition it is very difficult to get them moistened through.

Where peat is plentiful it is well to use some of it in the potting soil for azaleas, but it is not absolutely essential to their welfare, a good loam answering very well for this purpose. Azaleas should always be potted very firmly, and if protected slightly from the full sun for a week or two after their long sea voyage are less likely to lose much foliage by the operation.

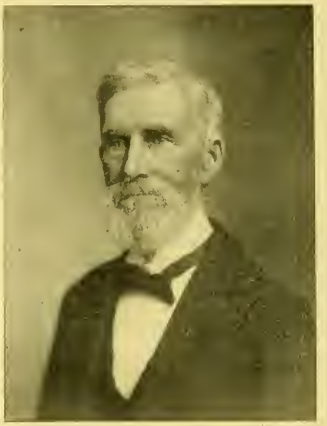
Usually the newly imported plants are reasonably clear of insects, but a few thrips are often found upon them, and as a safeguard it is good practice to spread some tobacco stems among the plants or beneath the bench of the house in which they are placed, and if the tobacco stems have been run through a feed cutter they will be found much more convenient for spreading among the pots. Fumigating with tobacco may be resorted to, except while the plants are in flower.

W. H. TAPLIN.



Watsonia Ardernei.

In a recent issue I noticed the illustration of this beautiful Cape bulb which had been successfully grown and exhibited by Kenneth Finlayson, gardener to Dr. C. G. Weld, of Brookline, Mass. There is undoubtedly a great future before this plant, especially a commercial one, it being the finest of all the white watsonias, producing long, gladiolus-like spikes four and five feet high with many branches, profusely covered with blossoms of the purest white, resembling a giant freesia. This plant is of easy culture and in groups or borders its flowers are very effective; in pots, three or four bulbs together, it is a great success, producing a wealth of foliage and bloom. Last year some remarkably well flowered plants were grown at Oakes Ames' garden in this way. For cutting and all kinds of decorative work it is unsurpassed. In Europe quite a number of bulbs are grown for market purposes, the flowers finding a ready sale at the principal cities and seaside resorts. It requires treatment similar to that given gladioli, and care should be taken as with other bulbs, in storing them through the winter.

The following interesting notes in regard to Watsonia Ardernei appeared in The Garden, London, in 1897:

"This plant was first introduced by Mr. James O'Brien in 1889, but it has only lately been obtainable in quantity. It is certain to become a favorite with growers of gladioli and such like bulbous plants, because, in addition to its beauty of flower, it has the merit of growing and blooming freely in the open border if treated in the same way as for gladioli. The history of the plant is a little involved; it also has received a considerable number of names, not at the hands of botanists, be it said.

"In 1889 Mr. N. E. Brown received and named specimens from Mr. J. O'Brien, who flowered it in his garden at Harrow in September, and who received a first-class certificate for it on September 21 under the name of W. iridifolia O'Brieni. In 1891 some bulbs of it were received at Kew from Port Elizabeth, and these flowered in October, their stems being four feet high, each with five or six branches, bearing many long-tubed, broad mouthed flowers, each two inches across and of the purest, glistening snow-white. They grew in a bed on a small lawn on the south side of the T range, and were a beautiful picture of pure white flowers. In the Gardeners' Chronicle for March 5, 1892, there appeared an illustration of a border of this watsonia in St. George's Park, Port Elizabeth, with an anonymous note to the effect that the plant might have been named Port Elizabeth Pearl or Pride of Algoa Bay, as it had been raised there and was a superb garden plant, growing and flowering splendidly. This was followed by a note from Professor Macowan, of Cape Town, correcting the statement as to the origin of the plant, and stating that it was 'first found by Mr. Robert Templeman, formerly assistant at the Cape Town Botanic Gardens, and within a day's journey from the city. The finder grew the corms among his stock for a year or two, and ultimately sent a few to the late Mr. John Wilson, then superintendent of St. George's Park at Port Elizabeth. When Lord Brassey was round at Algoa Bay in the Sunbeam he saw and greatly admired Wilson's little clump of watsonias, regretting that they were not for sale, but destined for stock. However, Wilson referred him to Templeman at Cape Town, from whom Lord Brassey bought a potful of the white watsonia for a sovereign.' So far we have been dealing with the Port Elizabeth portion of this plant. Now we come to that at Cape Town.

THE LATE F. W. LOUDON.
(See page 277 of last issue.)

"In The Garden for March 25, 1893, there is an engraving from a photograph sent by Mr. Arderne representing what he there calls Watsonia alba, but which is identical with Templeman's plant named in compliment to Mr. O'Brien. Mr. Arderne writes: 'The original was brought by myself from the farm Roman River, in the Worcester valley, about eighty miles from Cape Town, and was found growing in a peaty, boggy marsh among thousands of the common pink variety. . . I have found the flowers considerably improved by cultivation in peat, leaf-mould, and light loam, and grown in a damp locality.' I wrote some notes an watsonias generally to accompany a plate of W. augusta published in The Garden for August 19, 1893, where I recorded the fact that this white watsonia had been sent to Kew as W. iridifolia alba and W. Meriana alba. Recently another name has been added, viz., W. Ardernei, and under this name plants were shown and certificated last year; under it, too, the newly imported corms are being offered. For garden purposes we may conveniently put aside all these Latin names and call the plant the white watsonia, whilst botanically it will be known as W. iridifolia O'Brieni. We must not let wrangling over names blind us to the merits of the plant, which is quite exceptional among cultivated watsonias in its sturdy habit, good behavior under artificial treatment, and the elegance and purity of its flowers."

CARNATIONS.

A MATTER OF PRICES.

We must thank our hybridizers for the gradual elevation of the carnation to a standing shoulder to shoulder with the rose. To them we must look, also, for its continued advancement, for in addition to the improvement in the size of the bloom, the length and strength of the stem and perfection of calyx, the fact that each season brings out some meritorious novelty is an important factor in keeping the carnation before the buyers of cut flowers.

As growers we should heed the signs of the times and make an especial effort to meet the demand for high quality; in fact, we should go one better and increase the demand by improving the quality. There are some varieties which produce exceptionally fine flowers but do not pay with ordinary culture. Such varieties are the ones to grow for the man who is willing to work, for with these sorts and a market at proportionate figures he is above the competition of growers who care more for quantity than quality.

After securing quality in your flowers do not accept a low price for the cut. In the first place it has cost considerable to bring these flowers to perfection; possibly it has cost more than you are aware unless you have kept a careful record of the time and money expended on them. To sell them at a low price means not only no profit for you but it also means a backward step for the flower.

Just what is a fair price for strictly first-grade carnations would be a hard matter to decide, as it is largely influenced by the season and the market in which they are sold, but it is not difficult to determine that the price must at all times range between $4 and $8 per hundred. For a goodly portion of the season they should be up to the eight-dollar mark if the grower is to continue in business.

A little over a year ago I was sat upon by a number of my fellow florists for presuming to have ideas on the manner in which my product should be retailed. I shall not attempt to make any further suggestions on that line but I do think we are entitled to a fair price for our cut. If we grow carnations that retail at from $1.50 to $3 per dozen they should wholesale for half as much.

If a grower has studied his market and planted such varieties as can be sold for fancy sorts he should insist on their not being sold at wholesale for less than $4 per hundred and from that upward as the market demands them. If they cannot be sold at his figure he should have them returned with his empties. At the beginning there might be trouble in getting this arrangement to work smoothly but by the end of the season you will have had a fair return for your work and obtained a market for another season that you could never have had by the acceptance of a low price. But do not for a moment forget that to get first-class prices you must have first-class flowers.

Notes on Aquatics.

The summer has come to an abrupt close, with three or four nights of killing frosts, just in the height of the dahlia season and when cannas were in high glee. Now everything denotes autumn, the blackened foliage, the dead flowers and the tints of the maples, the green trees and the Virginian creeper, all point to the closing scenes of another season. But with all this, aquatic plants still linger and, as it were, defy the elements, just as in early summer they were fresh and bright while other flowers were whitening with the heat. Nelumbiums, of all the water garden, have suffered; their leaves are dead and sere. Not so the nymphæas, and notably the tender varieties; these have numerous buds and several expanded flowers, red, white, pink, blue and yellow, saved by the warmth of the water when the atmosphere cooled down to freezing point.

Here is one reason why aquatic plants are more popular every season. Their advantage over other plants in this respect is but one point in their favor, for there is a diversity of color found in no other class of decorative plants. Nor is this all; they are of much longer duration, their season of bloom extending from April or early May until hard freezing weather. If a tank under glass can be afforded they will continue in flower into the holidays.

When once planted out, having a fair amount of rich soil and the necessary water, they require little else all summer. A few dead leaves must be picked off but no hoeing, weeding, watering or mulching are among their modest wants. They afford more pleasurable returns for the amount of cash expended than do other plants. A 50-cent water lily will cover a pond several feet in diameter and to most people be more attractive than a much more expensive flower bed of the same dimensions.

But this is not the season to begin experiments; it is the time to consider the best methods of wintering the plants and there is a great diversity in the requirements of different varieties. All that are classed as hardy should be left undisturbed, but, where they are not in deep water, out of the reach of frost, some protection must be afforded.

The tender, day-blooming varieties differ from the night-blooming, both in growth and formation of tubers. Large plants of the former do not produce side-shoots or young plants, and the old plant or crown cannot be dried off save with Nymphæa gracilis. This variety may be left in the water until the foliage is cut off by frost, when the tubers may be readily found and stored away. Other plants must be kept growing all through the winter. The best method is to cut off all the large outer leaves and a large proportion of the roots by digging around the plant; then dig it up and place indoors in a tank or tub of water. Place in the light and in a temperature between 60° and 70°. Smaller plants may be placed in pots, and these put into tubs, two or three plants in each tub, according to the size.

This treatment will do for the night-blooming varieties, but where the plants are well advanced there will be numerous side shoots, and in some cases tubers around the main crown. The tubers may be stored away in pots or pans in sand, which should be kept wet at first, then moist, so that the tubers will be kept plump and sound. In cases where the tubers are not advanced to such a stage as just described they may be placed singly in pots just large enough to accommodate the roots. Put these in a shallow tank or tubs and keep them between 60° and 70° until the growth is finished and the tubers ripened, which will be when there is a cessation of new leaves, and those that were healthy die off naturally. When this takes place remove the pots from the water and gradually dry off. In this condition they may remain until early spring, when it will be time to start them afresh.

WM. TRICKER.

Helpful Reminders.

Benches of adiantums or large pots which have not been shifted should be carefully cleaned and all discolored or imperfect fronds carefully removed, after which give them a top dressing. This will require almost an inch of soil, almost clear leaf mould if obtainable.

A common mistake at this season, when plants are received from a distance, is to put them into pots somewhat larger than the balls of earth and fill the space lightly with potting soil. The ball is hard and compact and when water is given it runs through the new soil and does not penetrate the ball. This is particularly true of azaleas. It is well to set them in a tub of water to soak before potting and then protect them from the direct sun for a few days.

Do not refuse to keep plants over winter for your customers. Put this department on a paying basis and it will be a benefit to your business. Set apart a portion of your cool house and another of your warm house for boarders. Provide special labels giving the date received and name of owner; make out a storage receipt describing each plant and price for boarding, retaining a duplicate; 40 cents a square foot for the space occupied is the usual price but where plants are heavy charge 50 cents per hundred pounds additional for cartage; this pays. You will soon have your customers educated to your rules and if they object to the price it is better than that they complain of your refusal to accommodate.

At this season more than any other stock is damaged by condensation of moisture upon the foliage. Give more heat and ventilation.

Do not be afraid of cutting your Asparagus Sprengerii; if the old strings are allowed to remain new ones will not form so rapidly or as numerously.

In bringing stevia inside do not place the plants close enough to touch each other. There is a wonderful difference between first and second class stevia; second class gets light on the top only, first class gets light down to the stems, which are of a dark color and strong.

If you have to put in any new heating pipes be sure they are not covered with tar; you will lose every leaf in your house if they are.

Amaryllises, gloxinias and the summer blooming tuberous begonias should now be drying off for their winter rest; turn the pots on the side on the ground if you can, away from the drip. C. B. W.

MONTHLY MEETING OF FLORISTS' CLUB.—PLANS FOR NEXT YEAR'S CONVENTION.—VISITORS FROM QUAKERTOWN SPEAK OF VARIOUS MATTERS.—CRAIG MAKES AN EXHIBIT.—BUSINESS GOOD ALL ALONG THE LINE.—CALLS ARE FOR GOOD STOCK.—CARNATIONS SCARCE.—A TEST OF ROSES. WESSELENBURG KILLED BY A FALL.—KESSLER'S BODY COMES TO LIGHT.—NOTES.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, held last Monday evening was attended by about forty of the solid representatives of floriculture in this vicinity. The subject for discussion was the matter of preparation for the S. A. F. convention for 1900 and the extent to which the local organization would undertake to co-operate to make that event notable. Vice-President Troy occupied the chair. The trustees reported the result of a recent tour among the available halls in the city and it being evident, after a full discussion of the subject, that immediate action is necessary in order to secure any headquarters for the convention, it was unanimously voted to ask as many of the executive committee of the S. A. F. as can conveniently attend to join with the trustees of the club in a meeting on Monday, October 23, to decide upon a location. It was voted that the club should assume all the expenses of providing a headquarters for meeting and exhibition and all charges connected therewith, also that a horticultural exhibition on a large scale be held in connection with the trade exhibition under the management of the New York Florists' Club. Ways and means were freely discussed and a committee consisting of Messrs. May, O'Mara, Burns, Siebrecht and Weathered was appointed to call on Mr. Starin and learn his intentions regarding an excursion to Glen Island at convention time. There were present Messrs Robert Craig and Robert Kift, of Philadelphia, and both gentlemen were called upon for a few remarks. Mr. Craig spoke of the reviving interest in the matter of new plants and, congratulating New York on its prospective opportunities for 1900, predicted that at the convention would be seen probably every new plant that is worth seeing, from all over the country as well as many from foreign growers. Mr. Kift, true to his sporting instincts, devoted his remarks to the subject of bowling, stating that the Philadelphia club has still one vacant space left in its cupboard for an additional trophy and expressing the hope that New York would bring out a team worthy of their attention. He was assured by several enthusiasts that he would be accommodated in that respect. On the exhibition table Mr. Craig had vases of rose Maman Cochet and White Maman Cochet, outdoor-grown, and of the beautiful new pink carnation, Ethel Crocker, all of which were highly commended by the exhibition committee and duly admired by all, the carnation especially giving every promise of being a winner. Resolutions concerning the death of Alfred Henderson were presented by Mr. Weathered and adopted.

Business is good, so everybody asserts, although faith in its permanency seems to come slowly, so unusual is this condition at this early date. One effect of the boom in the plant trade will be to decrease the number of plant auction sales in this city for the coming season, and those who are waiting in hopes of seeing their opportunity in the big palm sales, such as have been going on in the past, are advised to secure their stock through the regular channels at once, as all indications point to a demand fully equal to the supply. The cut flower market is in a healthy condition as far as fine stock is concerned and prices on the best grades are, or should be, satisfactory. It will, however, take a much bigger boom than anything likely ever to take place to restore the day when the inferior grades in any line of cut flowers can profit by it. Never before has the sentiment for good flowers or none been so much in evidence, and the grower who has any reason to doubt his prospects in that respect for the coming winter, be he violet, rose or carnation grower, will show good judgment by quitting at once and turning his houses over to vegetables or "any other old thing."

The prevailing scarcity in the carnation market might have been avoided had a little more individual independence been cultivated by the carnation growers. Wherever one goes he finds the plants all cut back with a view to prevent blooming now and insure a crop at Christmas. This would have been all right had it not been done so universally. The result is that, cost of production considered, the price of carnations is to-day probably better than it will be at Christmas.

Grafted roses at Frank McMahon's greenhouses show a slight advantage over the own-root stock. Mr. McMahon has them both on benches and in beds and a good opportunity is thus furnished for a careful comparison of results. It would appear, however, that the grafted stock is a little more subject to mildew, which is an important point, especially this year, when mildew seems to be more prevalent than usual. A gratifying fact of the present season is that there appears to be much less thrips on the American Beauty roses than in any recent year. Among the various misfortunes that this rose is subject to, none is more to be dreaded than thrips. Two houses of Beauty at Little Silver in charge of Mr. Dan Dean are free, apparently, and not a speck of mildew is to be seen on the place. A house of Brides, now in third year, looks particularly promising. The soil of this locality is said to be of superior virtue, but Mr. Dean himself, with his sleeves rolled up, is doubtless a big factor in the good results obtained.

News has been received of the death of Jac. Wesselenburg, of Sassenheim, Holland, a bulb grower well known from his annual trips among the bulb handlers here. It appears that he was thrown from his bicycle while on a visit to his father at Hazerswonde and received fatal injuries.

The body of Fritz Kessler, who had been missing from his home at Woodside for nearly two weeks, was found in the East River, near Blackwell's Island, on Monday of last week. He was a very popular young man.

George Lorentz is among the absentees this week, being confined to his home with a sprained ankle.

Wm. Plumb has secured the contract for laying out a fine estate at Plattsburg.

H. C. Rath, of Flushing, has a white seedling carnation, Bertha Rath, which gives promise of a big future.

Miss Hopping, daughter of E. C. Hopping, Madison, was married on October 11 to Mr. Ely.

PROSPEROUS SEASON IS ON IN THE CITY OF BROTHERLY LOVE.—DEMAND IS LEADING THE SUPPLY.—EARLY CHRYSANTHEMUMS AND A GROWER'S OPINION OF THEM.—ENTERPRISE OF THE WHOLESALE DEALERS—A CHRISTENING WITH FLOWERS.—NIEMAN RETURNS.—ETHEL CROCKER.—NOTES.

Business is all right. Of course it might be better, but it is quite up to expectations. Demand and supply are having a sort of race, as it were, with the former just a little ahead. The supply yacht, however, sails best with warm, balmy breezes, and the last day or two the weather is just to her liking and she is liable to push her bow in front before very long. Good Beauties are in particular demand and the best sell at $2 50 to $3 per dozen, with shorter lengths at $2, $1.50 and $1. Teas bring $3, $4, $5 and even $6 is asked for the extras. Carnations that run twenty-five good flowers to the bunch (it takes a Sunday school scholar to grade them like that) bring $2 per 100; in fact, they must be poor indeed if they do not bring $1.50. Violets are now beginning to look something like; singles bring from 20 cents to 25 cents per hundred, doubles, 60 cents to 75 cents. Lily of the valley is scarce at $3 to $4 and even $5 is asked for choice stock. There have been no chrysanthemums as yet, that is, practically none; a few here and there, Bergmann, Merry Monarch, Fitzwigram and Montmort, but it is not safe to take an order for any quantity. From $1.50 to $2 has been the price. Mr. Harris, in speaking of the early chrysanthemums, said there is no money in them; the very earliest are not in it for beauty and size with those that come in a week or ten days later and, unless the early ones come in evenly and are cut out before the competition of the next series begins, there is no sale for them and consequently no profit. He thinks chrysanthemums will sell well, as there are not so many grown this season as last and there appears to be little or no disease to interfere with their proper development. The commission men report out of town demand lively and, while they have so far been able to meet it, they have had to hustle to get stock enough to keep this and their local trade satisfied.

Edward Reid now takes his customers and consignors into the "office," having partitioned off the front of his room and constructed this very necessary compartment. He put a new wagon on the street the past week. The old town may be slow but the wholesalers have a great time chasing one another about with their fiery steeds and fancy wagons. As many as four commission wagons were counted in front of a retail shop one morning this week, which, together with a couple of growers' carts, blocked the carriages quite effectually.

An interesting incident occurred at the launching of a vessel in this city last week. The fair christener was standing ready with a bottle of wine in one hand and a bunch of American Beauties in the other. As the vessel started she raised the bottle, but in her nervousness dropped it over the edge of the stand. She stood for a moment nonplussed, then quickly throwing her bouquet, which struck the sliding vessel, she said, amid the plaudits of the assemblage, "I christen thee Augusta."

Wm. Nieman has just returned from a three months' trip to his old home in Hamburg, Germany. He also made quite a tour among other European cities. He thinks the Germans are great florists and in the arrangement of flowers are very expert; their funeral wreaths, mostly made by women, were the most artistic he had ever seen and the cut flower stores, particularly in Hamburg, where there were a great many, were models, the window decorations being especially unique and attractive.

I neglected, in my report of the Florists' Club meeting, to speak of a vase of Ethel Crocker carnation exhibited by Robt. Craig & Son. It attracted a great deal of attention and all the carnation experts present seemed to be of one mind in declaring it to be the finest pink they had ever seen. It was quite the equal of any of the present favorites in their best mid-winter stage, which, when one considers the early date, October 3, speaks volumes in its favor.

C. H. Grigg, who has connected himself with H. H. Battles, is not to be confined solely to the management of the Century Flower Shop but will be associated with Mr. Battles in his various interests and give his best efforts to the development of the same.

FESTIVAL HURTS LOCAL RETAILERS.—SOME GOOD DECORATIONS.—ROSES MORE PLENTIFUL.—CARNATIONS IN DEMAND.—CLUB MEETING.—FLORISTS SCORE A TRIUMPH.—MATTERS OF THE FALL SHOW.—LIBERTY ROSE IN DEMAND.—CHRYSANTHEMUMS FROM INDIANA.—A NEW CARNATION GROWER.—GALAX IS UP IN PRICE.—PERSONAL JOTTINGS HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE.

The great fall festival has passed into history and only occasionally is there a florist who felt regret at its departure. While the festivities were productive of several nice orders for decorations they had a depressing effect upon local trade in general and the retailers had little to do except join in the merrymaking. The rose cut increased perceptibly during the week and while the celebration was on prices would have taken a material decline had it not been for the shipping orders, which are strong. The quality of roses has improved with the increase in the cut and some excellent stock is now obtainable in all lines. The choicest teas still bring 4 cents, 5 cents and even 6 cents. Beauties maintain their popularity and give evidences of holding up to the supply all through the season. Carnations are not yet plentiful enough to meet all calls and 2 cents and 3 cents is readily obtainable for all good stock. Greens, too, are in favor and are making money for the growers.

The "Chicago florists" distinguished themselves on Tuesday night; their float in the great parade of the industries, which concluded the fall festival, was the finest in the long procession and was applauded all along the line of march. It was drawn by six fine horses and was a credit to the committee and the trade. Large quantities of southern greens, smilax, asparagus, palms and ferns were employed as a base for the cut stock, American Beauties, Brides, Bridesmaids and asters. The finishing touch was given by Flora beneath her canopy, surrounded by her six little maids. A flashlight photograph of the float is reproduced upon another page. It should be distinctly understood that the float represented the Chicago florists, not the Chicago Florists' Club. The success of the affair was largely due to the artistic skill and earnest application of Messrs. Samuelson, Winterson, Gormley and Kreitling. It was unfortunate that President McKinley did not have an opportunity to see this parade.

Flower show matters are still in statu quo. Naturally, W. N. Rudd will be the superintendent. Messrs. A. Herrington, Florham Farms, Madison, N. J.; Prof. John F. Cowell, Director Buffalo Botanic Garden, and Emil Buettner, Park Ridge, Ill., who served as judges of the 1898 show, have accepted invitations to act in the same capacity this year. The quarterly meeting of the Horticultural Society of Chicago will be held at the Sherman House this afternoon, when the matter of changing the day of meeting from Saturday to Tuesday will be acted upon.

The festival has been a good thing for Hauswirth, who had the decoration for the fifteen-dollar-a-plate dinner to President McKinley on Monday night, for the Commercial Club banquet and the dinner to Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith on Tuesday evening. Wittbold had the Marquette Club banquet on Saturday night. The orders for the numerous luncheons were divided among the other leading retailers.

Word has come to Bassett & Washburn from Robt. Scott & Son, Philadelphia, that orders for the Liberty rose are sufficient to exhaust the stock for March delivery and that further orders must be booked only for later shipment. It seems that the 80,000 plants which will, by agreement, be the limit of the season's propagation, will be easily placed.

Wittbold has sent out his new catalogue and price list this week and it proves to be the finest piece of printing so far turned out by a grower of decorative stock. It is full of good half tones and the cover is very attractive, the character of the stock being shown by the embossed representation of the "palms" of one's hands.

At the meeting of the Florist's Club October 6 the members voted that a special premium be offered for the coming chrysanthemum show, the amount to be determined at the next meeting. Messrs. Chas. Dickinson and Albert Budlong were proposed for membership.

E. C. Amling is Chicago consignee for the cut of the E. G. Hill establishment at Richmond, Indiana, and this week has received daily from 200 to 500 chrysanthemums, among them Yellow Fitzwigram, the first of the color in this market.

N. K. Welter has embarked in business as a carnation grower at South Evanston. He has six modern houses stocked with 12,000 field grown plants purchased of Wietor Bros., who have now sold out their stock of 150,000 field plants.

As an evidence that the galax trust is an accomplished fact it may be stated that the green product is one-third higher in price than a year ago. No bronze galax are yet in.

Benthey & Co. are selling quite a number of ferns for John Welsh. They are well-grown plants of Nephrolepis Bostoniensis, N. exaltata and N. exaltata compacta in 5-inch pots.

Messrs. Reinberg, Wietor and Everett returned from Remsen, Iowa, on Wednesday well laden with evidences of their skill with the gun.

Tuesday was the thirty-second anniversary of E. C. Amling's birth and was celebrated in appropriate fashion at his home at Oak Park.

Peter Reinberg will grow a considerable number of the Liberty rose next year, both own root and grafted stock.

Mrs. P. J. Hauswirth, whose illness was regarded as serious early in the week, is now convalescing.

Louis Wittbold and wife spent their festival holidays with Mrs. Wittbold's parents at Wheeling, Ill.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is handling lily of the valley from E. G. Asmus, West Hoboken, N. J. It is very good.

A. L. Randall is getting some good Beauties from Bowmanville growers.

Deamud is receiving some fine orchids, cattleyas and dendrobiums, regularly.

Albert Fuchs has been visiting his boys at school at Notre Dame.

REPLYING to "R," we beg to state that there is no difference, so far as we are aware, between Browallia speciosa major and B. gigantea.

More Free Distribution.

We are in receipt of a circular from the Agricultural Department, Washington, D. C., in which occurs the following paragraph: "The act of Congress making appropriations for the U. S. Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year 1899 provided for the expenditure of $20,000 for the collection, purchase, test, propagation and distribution of rare and valuable seeds, bulbs, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings and plants from foreign countries for experiments with reference to their introduction into this country."

Was not this the original purpose of appropriations now made annually for the purchase and free distribution of common garden seeds? In any event, the new departure appears to follow the course of the older institution very rapidly. Among the "important results," of the investigations we note that the agent of the department has discovered the French everbearing strawberries, stachys and Jerusalem artichokes, plants which have already cost our live growers and merchants a considerable amount of investigation, experiment and capital. The government officials are behindhand with many of their alleged discoveries, and if we are to have an additional burden of free distribution, the original investigators among our enterprising men of business should be given due credit and recompense. Free distribution as applied to commercial commodities, however, should be plucked out by the roots. The government officials can learn more of value about the above mentioned plants, and many others, right at home than would be possible in the most extended junketing tour abroad.

Some Recent Fires.

Now that the firing season has begun each week will bring evidences of the field of great usefulness which should have been opened for the Florists' Mutual Fire Insurance Association.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—On October 4 fire destroyed the residence and two greenhouses of Jacob Geny, on the Hillsboro road. The loss is estimated at $2,200 and partially covered by insurance.

GENEVA, N. Y.—The greenhouse of Wm. Schofield, situated half way between this place and Waterloo, was destroyed by fire on the night of October 2.

Resolutions of New York Florists' Club.

At its meeting on Monday, October 9, the New York Florists' Club adopted the following resolutions upon the death of Alfred Henderson:

WHEREAS, in the inscrutable wisdom of Almighty God, the hand of death has been placed upon our fellow member, Mr. Alfred Henderson.

WHEREAS, his death removes one of the strongest figures among the friends of floriculture and horticulture, be it

Resolved, That the New York Florists' Club sustained in this lamentable event a loss of very great moment, and the horticultural world one whose constant devotion to its interest, tireless energy in its behalf and consistent practice of its teachings, made him a tower of strength to this club.

Resolved, That the members of this club feel a personal grief in his death, the loss of a valuable associate and the deprivation to the community of an exemplary citizen.

Resolved, That we tender to his stricken relatives the assurance of our profound sympathy with them in the sorrow they are called on to bear.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread on the minutes and that a copy thereof be transmitted to the relatives of the deceased.

SEASON ALREADY UNDER WAY.—BUSINESS BEGINS WITH A RUSH —CARNATIONS AND ROSES SOAR.—ALL OUTSIDE STOCK GONE. —BERRIED SHRUBS IN THE PARKS.—SOME VALUABLE SORTS.—ANNUAL MEETING OF THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.—JOTTINGS OF INTEREST.

A tour of the leading retail establishments discloses everywhere indisputable evidence that the fashionable flower-buying season is already under way, much earlier than has been the case in recent years; farther, that customers are buying more liberally than has been their custom. Dinner parties, weddings, etc., are on in earnest and there is no disposition to shirk on the floral features of these affairs. The wholesalers' ice boxes present an appearance of emptiness that is quite impressive as compared with their condition not long since. The boom seems to have been contemporary with the sharp freeze of last week and may be, in a measure, due to it, for everything outside except the hardy asters, sweet alyssum, verbenas and a few other very tough subjects was completely cleaned up in one night. Hydrangeas, lilies and asters, all useful for the florist with a "big order," came to an abrupt ending. The carnation had been waiting for this very opportunity and lost no time in soaring to two or three times its recent value, where it now stays and is likely to maintain itself without eflort until the chrysanthemum begins to make trouble for it. Roses, also, are up, but the prevailing prices cannot be called high. Violets are improving every day. The plant business seems rather behind the flower trade in getting on its feet and is confined principally to the returning of "boarders," but many inquiries indicate an interest that will, no doubt, develop into activity before long.

Any one doubting the decorative value of bright-fruiting shrubs in park and lawn plantations would do well to take a trip through the recently planted driveways of the Boston park system where these have been used in large numbers. Viburnums in several species, symphoricarpuses, barberries, cornuses, wild roses, pyruses and privets are loaded with showy berries in scarlet, red, black, white and blue, making a glorious picture in association with the bright autumn foliage. And it should be remembered, further, that many of the best of these berried subjects are also among the showiest of the flowering shrubs and so are good for two attractive displays annually.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society occurred on Saturday, October 7. The election of officers developed no contest and the entire list holds over from last year with but one or two minor changes. Again a large number of additions were made to the life membership list, many people of prominence being included in the list, Governor Walcott being one.

Wm. Hannan, the senior member of the firm of Wm. Hannan & Son, died at his home in Dorchester on October 6, aged 68 years.

The Boston & Maine Railroad Company has awarded prizes for the best flower gardens, to Arlington first, South Lancaster second, and four other stations each a third premium.

Lawrence Cotter has 600 Crimson Ramblers in training for Easter.

Kaiserin Augusta Victoria is a staple with Welch Bros.

Mrs. Jackson Dawson is improving slowly.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR BRISK BUSINESS.—NOTES OF THE GROWERS —FLORISTS IN THE PARKS.—BUILDING OPERATIONS.—VACATIONERS AND JOTTINGS OF DOINGS IN THE KENTUCKY METROPOLIS.

All the dealers anticipate a good trade this fall for business in opening well, several store openings and social events having already produced large orders. Stock is improving, particularly roses, which now command $4 per hundred. The Anchorage Rose Company leads with Brides and Bridesmaids but they have found American Beauties unprofitable and no longer grow them. Louis Kirch is our only carnation specialist. He is now cutting some very fair blooms and F. C. Haupt takes his entire product.

John Thompson, formerly with Geo. Thompson & Sons, has been appointed superintendent of Jacob Park. E. J. Marrett, formerly president of the Society of Kentucky Florists, is a candidate for park commissioner.

Robert Kinkead, a park commissioner and member of the Society of Kentucky Florists, gave a watermelon feast not long since at which the florists had a jolly time.

George Schultz has a large rose house planted but not yet glazed. He has been waiting for a fall in the price of glass.

Mrs. C. W. Reimers has her new show house completed. Mr. Reimers grew the best asters in the vicinity this year.

Miss Josie Schultz has returned from Waukesha, Wis., but Miss Alice Miller remains there for a time.

Nanz & Neuner had the first chrysanthemums to be shown in Louisville this year.

Mrs. L. H. Comstock has been quite ill but is now convalescent.

Jacob Schultz has some fine specimens of Acalypha Sanderi in his show window.

F. Walker & Co. have ordered a new house 26x132 and heating apparatus.

Wood & Stubbs report a good sale for bulbs, both wholesale and retail.

OBITUARY.

CHARLES W. SCHIRRMACHER.

This pioneer florist died October 6 after a short illness at his home at Milwaukee. He was born at Koenigsburg, Prussia, September 13, 1830 and came to Milwaukee with his wife in 1857. He at first found employment with Thomas Hislop, who had two small greenhouses and the first seed store in Milwaukee. Early in the Civil War Mr. Schirrmacher formed a partnership with Frank Whitnall, the firm establishing the place still known as "Whitnall's Greenhouses." At this time the only other florists in Milwaukee were Casper Thoman, F. Weisner, Chas. Schurze, Dr. Koss, Mr. Hartung, father-in-law of the late Jacob Freytag; Wm. Kitzerow and John Dunlap. Of this number only Kitzerow, Dunlap and Whitnall are living. Mr. Schirrmacher remained in business with Mr. Whitnall for about four years, when he associated himself with Dr. Koss, then located on the Port Washington road. Later on he took a strip of land north of the Koss place and has remained there ever since. The increase in realty values put him in comfortable circumstances and he reduced his business to small proportions. He was a good plantsman and for years quite prominent in the Milwaukee Gardeners' Association, which controlled what has always been popularly known as the German Market in Milwaukee He is survived by his wife and daughter, Mrs. Bertha Kartzke.

C. B. W.

SALAMANCA, N. Y.—W. L. Farquharson has moved from Allegheny to this place, and, with his brother, will engage in the florist business.

SIMSBURY, CONN.—S. T. Welden, who, by the way, is a member of the State Legislature, is building an addition 27x30 feet to his greenhouses.

OUTSIDE STOCK GONE.—ALL STOCK SCARCE.—PRICES ADVANCING.— THE FIRST AUTUMN FLOWERS.—DEATH OF GEORGE MURPHY, SENIOR.

The cold weather of a week ago killed all outside stock and consequently a complete change has taken place in the cut flower market; nearly everything is scarce. Roses are now generally good and meet with a steady demand. Carnations have been very few, especially white. Prices are firm and advancing slightly. Some cattleyas are in market, selling at $6 per dozen. Baer and Jones were the first with violets this season. Chrysanthemums are once more with us and a vase of them may be seen in nearly every florists' window. Lady Fitzwigram and Marquis de Montmort were in last week and sold readily at 12 cents to 15 cents wholesale. George & Allen are sending in some choice lily of the valley.

George Murphy, Sr., father of Wm. and George Murphy, died October 3, in his seventy-third year, and was laid to rest at Spring Grove Cemetery. Quite a number of the craft attended the funeral.

H. SCHWARZ.

Minneapolis.

Trade is slowly but steadily improving and stock is following suit. Roses are becoming a little more plentiful, but carnations are still very scarce and nowhere near equal to the demand. The quality is not good at that, although the plants give promise of fine flowers a little later.

E. Nagel & Co. have moved their city store from 824 Nicollet avenue to 818 on the same thoroughfare, where they are domiciled in first-class style.

Henry Barsch is building a carnation house 16x60. L.

VALLEY.

Beginning October 15th, the forcing of Lily of the Valley will be commenced at the Rosebank Nurseries, and shipping will begin three weeks later. From that time on Valley will constitute one of the special products of Rosebank and will be constantly on hand, both summer and winter.

It is the intention of the management to make the Rosebank Nurseries headquarters for this product, and to that end a special offer of three dollars per hundred has been made to the trade on a contract for a year's supply. This offer is now withdrawn, and a new price of $3.50 per hundred is made to hold throughout the year to regular customers.

THE SEED TRADE.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

ALEXANDER RODGERS, Pres; ALBERT McCULLOUGH, Vice-Pres; S. F. WILLARD, Wethersfield, Conn., Sec'y and Treas.

NEW YORK: S. Y. Haines, of Minneapolis, Minn., was a visitor last week.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. S. Lyons, of Los Angeles, Cal., enroute to New York.

ON the order of the government 875 cases of damaged longiflorums were sold at auction in New York last Monday, and they brought a total of $27.50.

GERMINATION is not an indication of quality. On the contrary, inferior strains of seeds frequently give the best results in the sprouting chamber.

BOSTON, MASS.—About one hundred of the delegates to the recent congress of farmers visited the Arlington, Mass., establishment of W. W. Rawson & Co.

THE Livingstons, of Columbus, O., are having quite an extensive European demand for their new field corn, Early Golden Surprise, attributable for the most part to its earliness.

OWING to the early frost, which came three weeks sooner than usual, there will be but little American grown thunbergia seed in the market this year, and dealers will have to look to Europe for new supplies.

THE tomato seed crop in Michigan is a good one on most of the standard sorts. If the early frost had not occurred there would have been surpluses on a number of sorts; as it is there are hardly any surpluses above contract orders.

FROM an Erfurt letter, dated September 27, we gather that the bean and mangel wurzel crop is badly damaged by continuous rains since September 5, and that there is great danger of an entire loss of the aster seed crop. Mangel wurzel will be fifty per cent higher than last year. The sweet pea crop was extraordinarily good there, while in Quedlinburg it is reported to be poor.

Denver.

A STORY OF PROSPERITY.—GOSSIP OF THE FESTIVAL OF MOUNTAIN AND PLAIN.—JOTTINGS OF THE FLORICULTURAL FEATURES OF THE CARNIVAL.—OTHER NOTES.

Taken all in all the summer trade has been better this year than for several seasons past. When the soldier boys came home the city fairly blossomed; every soldier had a wreath on his hat and a bouquet in his hand. On this occasion the depot and capitol were decorated by Daniels & Fisher and it was well done. During the carnival Beauties were much in demand, some of the prize turnouts being decorated with the natural flower. The decorations for the carnival ball were very elaborate.

Wilmore's dahlia farm has been one of the sights of Denver for the last two months. His dahlia display at the carnival show was simply marvelous. The carnival flower show, by the way, was something new but there was little competition except in the mantle decoration, in which Mrs. Mauf won the first prize. The Park Floral Company took the prize for the largest display. The show was advertised so little that comparatively few people saw it but the prizes went just the same and they were worth the striving. The horticultural part of the carnival was under the direction of Mrs. Martha A. Shute and occupied a street booth a block long. To the easterner who does not realize the possibilities of Colorado soil and climate this part of the show was indeed a marvel. Apples that weighed one and three-fourths of a pound, great yellow peaches and white peaches, red grapes, green grapes and black grapes, plums in endless variety, with nectarines and pears that would almost make a dead man hungry.

The landscape gardening at City Park has been fine and Mr. Davis, who had it in charge, has been highly complimented. Mr. Chamberlain, another of Denver's landscape gardeners, reports more work this year than in any previous season.

Florists are all praying for frost to kill the outside stuff and bring the people home from the hills. There is little talk of a chrysanthemum show but the florists are all beginning to cut some good stock. Not only that, but they are all getting shaped up for bowling and not a little interest is manifest.

The last day of the carnival the Theiss Floral Company's window looked as if a cyclone had struck it. All that was left was a small dish of violets and a solitary vase of Beauties.

The decoration at the church wedding of Miss Gertrude Mauf, of the Capitol Hill greenhouses, were as fine as were ever seen in Denver.

THE NURSERY TRADE.

AM. ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.
W. J. PETERS, Pres.; D. S. LAKE, Vice-Pres.; GEORGE C. SEAGER, Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

THE San Jose scale is not dead; it will still bear watching.

THERE is no agreement as to whether one year or two year apple trees are preferable for planting.

AMONG the nurseries of the south the growing season was good and all stock is heavier in caliper than usual.

THE peach crop brought excellent prices this year and there can be no doubt that plantings will be heavy for a time.

EDWARD MORRIS, formerly representing the Brown Bros. Co. in Chicago, has been transferred to the Welland, Ont., branch.

AT the recent New York State Fair at Syracuse 5,935 plates of fruit were exhibited. Ellwanger & Barry had the leading nursery display, 573 plates.

PROF. J. L. BUDD speaks very highly of the Silken Leaf apple, one of his importations from Russia. It takes the place of Maiden's Blush and is hardy everywhere.

It is reported that 1,000 nurserymen, seedsmen and fruit growers in Germany have petitioned their government for a protective tariff against American horticultural products.

G. B. BRACKETT, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., is receiving very many photographs illustrating nursery processes for exhibition at the Paris Exposition.

THE American Pomological Society's revised catalogue of fruits recommended for nineteen bounded districts in North America has been published by the United States Department of Agriculture.

IT is stated that in Mason county, Michigan, 100,000 peach trees believed to have been killed by the cold of last winter were needlessly cut out in the spring, for those remaining bore a fair crop.

T. V. MUNSON, Denison, Texas, presented a novel plan for a stable nomenclature at the meeting of the American Pomological Society. His idea is to have the Secretary of Agriculture publish an authoritative list of fruit names to which catalogues must conform under penalty of exclusion from the mails.

Allentown, Pa.

While country folks are sure to gather around an exceptionally well grown pumpkin, or gaze admiringly at a fattened pig at a county fair, there is another class of visitors to whom a flower and plant display is the chief attraction. The Lehigh county fair has, in this respect, proved a marked success owing to the efforts of J. F. Horn. His display of plants and cut flowers fairly captured the crowd, while, in his turn, Mr. Horn captured all the premiums. There is no gainsaying the fact that an attractive flower and plant show at a county fair is a sure and quick way of reaching the plain people.

A call on Mr. Horn, at Rittersville, where his greenhouses are located, showed everything in fine condition, both roses and carnations doing exceptionally well. I noticed many improvements about the place, an additional violet pit 20x50, a new water tank and a fine dwelling house, now nearing completion.

TAMAROA, ILL.—No rain worth speaking of has fallen in this section since July 4, and the soil is very dry. W. H. Arendt is digging over 100,000 gladiolus bulbs, and 100,000 oxalis, besides cannas, and planting large quantities of jonquils, pæonies and narcissi for next season, shipping cut blooms to St. Louis, Chicago and Milwaukee. Times are fairly good and the outlook encouraging.

Cyclamen!

We have a fine and healthy lot of Cyclamen Giganteum, well set with buds, growing in 3-in. pots, ready for repotting into 4-in. pots or larger; or three plants in 8-in. bulb pans will make a fine display and grow into suitable gifts for Christmas, or they could remain in the size pots they are in at present and would be most useful with which to make plateaus or "French" baskets of growing plants in bloom for Christmas or any other worthy occasion.

Plants in bloom for the gay and festive Christmas time are becoming more and more popular.

No better time than the present to be thinking about this matter and making necessary preparations.

At Philadelphia.

"Deacon" Harris, as he allows some of his chosen friends to call him, is regaining his old time skill as a bowler. He put up three games last week with an average of 163, which is bowling of the crackerjack variety. Last Saturday night W. H. Smith, who has been summering at Asbury Park, happened in, and treated the boys to a surprise by breaking the record, moving the high score from 238 to 247. All the marks were strikes save three spares and he rounded off the score with 29 in the last frame. It was great bowling and he was roundly applauded by the company present, nine of whom were bowling with him.

There is talk of an Atlantic League, composed of Flatbush, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, the teams to meet once a month, each time in a different city, and bowl for a suitable trophy. This will make a very interesting contest if it can be brought about. K.

New York Versus Flatbush.

As per announcement, New York and Flatbush had a bout at the New York club's alleys on Monday afternoon, October 9. New York "ate 'em up" for three straight games, notwithstanding the tact that Lang had no slippers. There was a time when such a catastrophe would have sent the Flatbush boys home in dejection but chastened by a succession of similar events, they have now learned to take defeat philosophically, and they stayed in town and lined up at the evening meeting of the Florists' Club smilingly and all they had to say was, "wait till we get you over on our own alleys." And they are just the boys to square off the score at that time. Thursday evening, October 19, is the date selected for the return match, which will take place at Schwalback's alleys, Flatbush, where all "rooters" for either side will be welcome. Monday's scores are herewith appended:

NEW YORK.				FLATBUSH.

Worcester, Mass.

Flowers have been very scarce since the heavy freeze of October 1, which caught many growers unprepared, but are in fairly good supply at the present time. Roses have improved both in quantity and quality and the same is true of carnations and violets. Chrysanthemums are obtainable in quantity now and are good; Lady Fitzwigram is almost gone and Mme. Bergmann and Glory of Pacific are in their prime. A few excellent Lady Harriott are also available, but Henderson is the only yellow brought in up to date. Trade has started in a very satisfactory manner and we are anticipating a good winter.

Buildings are nearly completed. Lange has finished his range and H. Book and A. A. Hixon have nearly finished their piping. Lange has had his downtown store renovated; new floor, ceiling and fixtures.

C. A. Keys has fallen a victim to the glib-tongued palm swindler and bemoans the loss of fourteen plants. The usual game was worked.

H. F. Littlefield has opened a store in town and has the best wishes of the trade in his new venture. A. H. L.

NEEDHAM, MASS.—Paul Richwagen has leased the Watson greenhouses on Highland avenue.

WHAT HAVE YOU TO SELL?

Having prepared for the season of 1899 and 1900 by remodeling our entire store, building new cooling rooms 12x16 x32 and 16x18x25 all on the latest, modern up-to-date style, we take pleasure in announcing that with the prospects of the coming season, we will be short on supply. We therefore inform you that if you have stock to sell, we can sell it.

Growers who grow stock for themselves often have more than they can use, we can sell it, ship it along.

We have been in the commission business more than twenty years and we can boast that our honest treatment has built up the largest business of its kind in the West. When you want to buy come to us, we will take care of you. When you want to sell come to us, for with the large outlet we have we can sell it.

We pay shippers on demand. Weekly statements of accounts rendered.

Information given on any subject in the trade on request.

We are especially short on "greens" such as Asparagus plumosus, Asparagus tenuissimus, Asparagus Sprengerii, Princeps Ferns, Farleyense, etc. Growers of these lines would do well on this market.

In short, if you are a seller see us. If a buyer see us.

Promptness has been one of the elements of our success, promptness in paying, promptness in filling orders correctly.

Promptness in all branchess makes us just what we have claimed to be, the oldest, most reliable firm of the kind in the United States.

HAPPENINGS AT BISONVILLE.—SOME GOOD BUSINESS.—FLORISTS' CLUB MEETS.—KASTING IN POLITICS.

Trade is fair for during the week there have been several store openings calling for large quantities of stock. One of them required 1,000 yards of laurel and 300 palms; another 3,000 roses and many plants. Beauties are plentiful but chrysanthemums are scarce as yet. Brookins is sending in some fine carnations.

The Florists' Club was the guest of Prof. Cowell at South Park on Wednesday, October 11. Quite a little business was transacted, some of it pertaining to the Carnation convention of next February.

C. D. Zimmerman is about to open his store on Chippewa street and it is reported that Miss Margaret Skinner is to be in charge. She was with Rebstock.

The Democrats have nominated W. F. Kasting for councilman and the florists will do their best to see that he is elected.

Arthur Beyer, of W. J. Palmer & Son, has been in New York for a week, acquiring the latest notions.

S. A. Anderson is now a benedict and in receipt of numerous congratulations.

Chas. Siebrecht and E. J. Killen were among the week's visitors. W. A.

STOCK SCARCE IN ALL LINES.—INGENUITY OF CUT FLOWER WORKERS FORCED INTO PLAY.—JOTTINGS HERE AND THERE.

Sharp frosts on the first of the month cut down stock that would have been useful ever since, for many florists who usually call upon the wholesale dealers for only part of their supply have been leaning on them almost entirely of late and just now nearly all the flowers that come to this market are spoken for before they arrive. Carnations are particularly scarce and have doubled in price. The scarcity in the ordinary lines has induced many florists to exert their skill in making use of some flowers that are commonly passed by. They have been so successful as to stimulate the demand for a larger variety. Among the novelties employed are maurandya vine in bloom, cut in sprays of six to ten inches, begonias and Primula obconica.

Outdoor bulb planting has begun and fall planting of shrubbery and trees is more general than heretofore.

The display of perennial phloxes in West Park last month has created quite a demand for them on private places.

John Didier, of Rogers Park, and N. K. Welter, of Evanston, were callers this week. C. B. W.

The Cow is pleased with the change.

CHAPTER II.

EVERGREEN, ALA., ——, '99.

Gentlemen: Since addressing you in Oct. 7th issue of AMERICAN FLORIST, I drove home to "Getmore Farm" and consulted the Cow about the scheme. Of course the Cow couldn't talk, but I put a handful of Southern Smilax and a handful of Timothy Hay down in front of her, and the Cow showed her preference by eating the hay first. So the Cow thinks well of the scheme and is pleased. All that bothers me now is, What Do You Think About It? Doubtless I will hear from you by mail or wire within the next few days.

I would just like to say here that a quotation of $2 per case of 16 cubic feet from Calowell, The Woodsman, means something; it means a great deal to you. It is not a cheap bid from some little boy or old farmer who has copied your address from one of my boxes of Smilax at the Express Office and sent you a cheaply gotten up price list, in which, with the postage, all his available capital was invested. You can often buy good Smilax at very low prices from that class of trade, and you would be glad to do it. But, you are not dead certain that you will get the stuff on time and you are a little afraid to risk it. Well, you are right in not taking any risks, for Smilax is no good "After the Ball is Over," or the marriage ceremony performed. But when I offer it to you at $2 per case, backed with the only perfectly equipped packing house in the country in this line of business, good packers, large force of trained Smilax gatherers and a reputation second to none in the trade for promptness, having been intrusted with every large decoration for the past ten years; it means prompt delivery, selected stock, well packed cases and the lowest possible figures. Awaiting your orders, I am,

Yours truly, CALOWELL, The Woodsman.

P. S. Chapter 3 will reach the AMERICAN FLORIST Oct. 21st. I claim a heap in Chapter 3.
